Vietminh Troops Assisting French Wounded

HONG KONG (Reuters) — The Vietminh radio said today that an entire battalion of rebel troops has been put to work caring and providing for French Union troops wounded at Dien Bien Phu.

The Indo-China broadcast heard here quoted a French medical corps major as saying that the wounded "were brought out of their crumbling shelters and sheltered under innumerable parachutes stretched on bamboo poles."

"An entire battalion of the Vietminh's people's army did this work. A kitchen has been organized with cooks provided by the Vietminh.

"It was the first time for several months that the French wounded troops had been able to eat hot soup. We also received aid in medicine and dressing materials."

The major was reported as speaking of "benevolent and effective help" from the Vietminh and of an "extremely correct attitude" towards French troops in general and wounded and medical service personnel in particular.

Nehru Decries Malan's Statement

NEW DELHI (Reuters) — Premier Jawaharlal Nehru today accused his fellow Commonwealth premier, Dr. Daniel Malan of South Africa, of going "utterly beyond all reasonable bounds of decency in international affairs."

The premier was replying in parliament to a question of Malan's statement eight days ago to the South African parliament that Nehru was "the enemy of the white man . . . with his eyes on Africa."

Asked what steps were being taken to counteract this "misleading propaganda," Nehru said: "The government do not consider it necessary to take any steps to refute such false and misleading allegations."

Actor Criticizes Canadian Theatre

HAMILTON (CP) — Lorne Greene, Canadian radio actor just back from a successful season on the Broadway stage, criticized the Canadian theatre for its "amateur attitude," at a Dominion Drama Festival luncheon Tuesday.

"In Canadian radio and sometimes in our professional theatre, actors are still regarded as a necessary evil," Mr. Greene said.

He said the amateur attitude of management towards actors will have to change before Canada can embark on a truely professional theatre of its own. Current treatment of actors and low salaries offered, he said, are driving Canadian talent to the United States or England to get a better chance.

"We Canadians do not believe we have anything of value till someone else tells us so," Mr. Greene said.

8-Year-Old Boy Found Dead

TORONTO (CP)—Steve Pacholok, 8, missing from his east-end home since April 29, today was found dead in the Keating Cut on the eastern waterfront.

The boy, who was deaf, was last seen playing in a lane near his home on Pape avenue with his brother, Joseph, 9.

Police said that when two workmen spotted the body, a rope was looped loosely around the waist. However, investigators said they had no suspicion of foul play.

Police denied a report that there was also a cord around the boy's neck. Dr. Fred W. Tickett, coroner, said a full investigation has been ordered.

The workers sighted the body at almost the same spot where three young boys named Quigley were drowned about a year ago. The Quigley boys toppled off a log while exploring the shoreline during a warm afternoon.

The Pacholok boy's mother, Mrs. Joseph Pacholok, told reporters last week:

"If my Steve is found dead, then I will die too."

Recalling the boy's disappearance, she said a woman neighbor called police and told them she had Steve at her home at 9 p. m. April 29.

"She said he asked if her boy could come out and play and she said 'no' and sent Steve away. How could she do that? So late at night to send a little boy off alone."

Communists Release Colombian Officers

MUNSAN (AP)—Three Colombian officers, including a battalion commander, were released this afternoon after having been held overnight by the Communists.

The Reds seized the trio Tuesday night in the demilitarized zone near Old Baldy on the central front, claiming the Colombians, part of the United Nations force, had illegally crossed the line of demarcation.

Supreme Court Spring Sittings Held At Cobourg

The first case on the docket, Attorney-General vs. Branscombe, was settled, as was also Nickerson vs. Hardy.

Defendants in the first case on the list were Ross and Earl Branscombe, Brighton garage owners. According to the statement of claim, a provincial police car was brought in for a welding of the frame and caught on fire. Damages claimed were $2,392.80.

The Nickerson action was a claim for $10,000 brought by John Nickerson of Bowmanville against Sarah Hardy and Sidney Cornish, executors of the will of Arthur Hardy. Claim was for services rendered as farm superintendent for deceased, who kept livestock.

An action to obtain an accounting in connection with a property sale agreement is being brought by Elizabeth and Sarah Hall of Cobourg, executors of the estate of T. F. Hall, against John and Emma Hart of Cobourg.

Bruce Payne of Cobourg vs. Service Fire Insurance Company of New York is an action in which plaintiff seeks $1,250 for damages sustained by his truck in connection with a policy with the insurance company.

Another action arising out of a motor accident is the claim brought by John Robinson, William Cudney and Beverley Gibbs against Direct Winters and Frederick Carter. Plaintiffs are asking combined damages of around $8,000.

The rest of the cases on the docket are divorce actions.

Predict Increase In Steel-Making

NEW YORK (AP)—If there is to be an increase in steel-making operations in the United States, now is the time for it to start showing on the order books—and chances are it will, says the Iron Age.

The national metal-working weekly points out that the steel wage contract expires June 30 and bargaining on a new one starts next Tuesday. As the seriousness of the bargaining becomes apparent, "many steel users will decide they should have a little more steel on hand just in case. Depending on how the bargaining goes, this could hasten a reversal in the inventory trend."

Navy To Honor Torpedoed Ship

OTTAWA (CP) — Ten years ago almost to the day, 115 officers and men aboard the frigate HMCS Valleyfield perished in the icy waters of the North Atlantic when their vessel was torpedoed.

They and their gallant ship were lost, as were many other ships and men, that the battle of the Atlantic might be won, Sunday, the navy announced today, has been designated to honor that great battle of the sea.

In naval establishments from coast to coast, in ships of the fleet and in numerous churches, special services and events will be held to recall contributions made by the RCN and the Canadian merchant navy toward the Allied victory in the Second World War.

Students' Conduct Draws Comment

CHATHAM (CP) — Complaints that Chatham collegiate students were "necking in cars," and speeding up and down streets after Friday night dances were heard Tuesday night by board of education.

The complaints, contained in letters from P. J. Daigneau, governor of the Keen county jail and Sheriff Arthur Poulter, also said the students "gambled and played poker" during noon hour on school days and taunted work parties from the county jail.

The board directed collegiate principal J. A. M. Hay to call an assembly to warn the students to stop, and recommended council chairman Dr. R. O. Thayer appoint a board member to supervise the dances.

Driver Fined $50

COBOURG (ENS) — Thomas Wetherburn of Smithfield was fined $50 and costs on an impaired driving charge by Magistrate R. B. Baxter.

OPP Constable F. Cooke of Brighton said the accused was driving a truck and crowded two other transports on to the shoulder of the road, west of Trenton.

Wetherburn was unsteady on his feet when he got out of the cab after being stopped by police, said the constable.

No Allied Bases

LONDON (AP) — Foreign Minister Hans Christian Hansen Tuesday ruled out any chance that Allied air forces will be based in Denmark in peacetime "despite the risks we are facing." The Danish Socialist told the Foreign Press Association that public opinion in his country would turn against the Atlantic alliance if foreign forces were brought there at this time.

Tenders Called Construct Mines Road

TORONTO (CP) — First step toward providing a land-link with the copper-rich Manitouwadge area in northwestern Ontario was taken today. The Ontario department of mines announced the calling of tenders for construction of a mining access road.

At present, the only convenient way of reaching the area is by plane.

Since the announcement early this year of the discovery of rich copper showings, there has been intense prospecting activity throughout the Manitouwadge area, southeast of Geraldton.

A complete new townsite, with facilities and amenities for a potential population of 10,000, is in the planning stage.

The new road will be gravel-surfaced and 22 feet wide. It will run 13 miles north from the northern end of the Ontario Pulp and Paper Company's road to the Geco campsite on the east side of Manitouwadge lake, providing a direct route to Highway 17 at Hemlo.

Eight-Legged Pig Preserved In Plastic

Six years ago Mr. Janeff bought the pig for $10 from a woman on a Dresden farm. It had one head, four ears, two tails, two joined bodies and eight legs. It had lived four hours.

Mr. Janeff, a former hotel keeper, thought he would like to put it on show. He preserved it in a bottle of alcohol.

Motels Good For This District

Peterborough's need for the zoning bylaw, now in its final draft stages, is fully demonstrated by the confusion which the lack of it presently perpetrates. Chief Justice McRuer's order requiring the city to issue a building permit for a motel on south George Street, permission formerly refused by the local authorities, serves to show how muddled the existing situation is. Whether a building is good for the city and a neighbourhood or not, the Planning Board and Council cannot withhold permission to build, unless the refusal is sanctioned in law. Rejection merely because the structure of type of business is not according to the Faludi Plan cannot be sustained. That is the lesson for the city and citizens in Chief Justice McRuer's court order. Theoretically, and in actual fact, motels, drive-in laundries, food markets and so on can be put up in some of the best residential districts in town, unless there are deed restrictions governing the use of the property, or unless, as in some parts of the west end, the area is covered by old bylaws such as No. 1750 which does not allow stables, stores, blacksmith shops and similar enterprises to be operated on Weller Street below the present Albertus Street. Nothing is said in that bylaw against operating a horseshoeing establishment north of Albertus on Weller, or on Princess Street.

* * *

The new bylaw will not, of course, cure all ills or prevent future blotching of pleasant swards. The bylaw will be a continuing thing, subject to change and new clauses from decade to decade, like the British North American Act, first passed in 1867 but still without a closing final date. Peterborough's comprehensive zoning by-law will be sort of Constitutional Act for Peterborough, as the B.N.A. Act (1867-19--) is for Canada. It will establish the pattern, but not deep-freeze the city.

* * *

The new zoning bylaw does not, as a matter of fact, mention motels as a separate class. It merely established certain commercial, residential and industrial zones. We have no objections to motels, even to a motel on George street south. What we do not like is the present disorder and uncertainty resulting from the lack of a comprehensive zoning bylaw It cannot be passed too soon for the good of the city's future, and the peace of mind of property owners, who like to know what they can do with their own property and also what their neighbours cannot do with theirs. Motels are good institutions when efficiently operated, adequately equipped and sited on property pleasantly landscaped and having some rural quiet. A motel on a busy street right in the centre of the city may not be as desirable from a customer's point of view, but that is a matter which may safely be left to the laws of commercial private competition.

* * *

Peterborough needs motels, good ones, as it has need of good hotels. Fortunately, there are some of each within and without the city's boundaries. A place which pretends to cater especially to tourists and travellers should be able to offer an abundance of first class accommodation; otherwise tourists and travellers try to avoid the place or get through as fast as possible. Motels are not to be feared. Good ones are highly moral, very comfortable and handsomely convenient The remarkable thing about Peterborough motels is that there are so few of them. Other places catering to tourists have three times as many. The environs of Gananoque and Kingston are studded with motels and more are rising this spring; well-appointed places, good to look at, and offering excellent accommodation and high degrees of comfort, cleanliness and luxury. A lot of fuss has been made about one nine-room motel inside the city. Township and city officials and local business might properly be more concerned about the lack of superior 20- and 30-room motels around the city, which would help to affirm Peterborough's desirability as a first-rate stopping and shopping place.

New Heart Surgery Technique

With news reports being received daily telling of new and more destructive weapons being developed, it is most refreshing to learn of new developments and techniques in the field of preventive medicine.

From Montreal comes a report that one Dr. Arthur Vineberg has perfected an operative technique in cases of angina pectoris. The surgical procedure originated and developed by Dr. Vineberg, is to bypass diseased coronary arteries with a fully functioning chest artery. Over a four year period, Dr. Vineberg has reported that there has been an operative mortality of only 14 per cent.

From Minneapolis comes a report that a revolutionary new operative technique for congenital heart diseases has been perfected. In the past, surgery could be performed successfully in only 30 per cent. of the cases. This figure has been raised to 50 per cent. by adoption of the new operative technique. The procedure which was instigated by a Winnipeg doctor, working solely on dogs, permits a diseased heart to be "repaired", while the circulatory system of a donor is connected in such a manner as to bypass the diseased heart by means of connecting a vein; the artery is replaced by plastic tubing.

This technique has been used on three humans with most successful results. Dr. Lillehei, the perfector of this procedure estimates that it is now possible to make heart "repairs" previously considered impossible, and permits many persons, condemned to invalidism or an early death, to lead normal lives.

Cobourg, Port Hope, Etc., Look Forward

Now that the deep channel from Fort William to the sea is to be completed, cities and towns on its shores should be studying how best to take advantage of it. Industry has already been surveying the prospects and, as our readers know, has been buying acreage for plants and shipping.

The Seaway will not be completed in a year or two, but neither can port facilities, dockage and traffic equipment be got ready over night. Places like Cobourg, Port Hope and Belleville, as well as Hamilton, Toronto, Montreal, Buffalo, and Rochester should be eyeing their seaway future now, even if the Seaway's completion is six years distant. That is the minimum time which a 1949 report prepared by the Department of Transport suggests is necessary to complete both the power and the navigation work on the International Section of the River near Cornwall. The second main project, at Lachine, will also take six years, and the work in the Soulanges section has been estimated to take four years.

The total of these three is sixteen years, but it is likely that work on the three principal projects will be partly concurrent. The minimum time is, however, six years, and six years are not long. Public study of the problems and opportunities should begin now, not only in the great metropolitan centres on the Seaway, but also in communities like Port Hope and Cobourg, and in Peterborough, which could profit from properly-developed port facilities there. Already, we are glad to say, there is a considerable amount of speculative comment about the prospects in these municipalities.

Good Advice Should Be Scant

We notice with interest that the Anglican Synod in Vancouver intends to increase the amount of pre-marriage advice given by clergymen under its direction; this is undertaken in the hope that it will lower the rate of divorce.

This sounds like a good plan; a little sound advice can do much to promote a good marriage, or prevent a bad one. But we must stress the adjective little. Too much advice could effectively prevent all marriage, for it is the nature of advice to be negative.

What really wise young man would ever marry, if he thought about the matter carefully? He never has quite enough money. He is probably not sure of his job, and if he is, he cannot be sure that his health will last. He has no experience in raising a family and will probably make a mess of it. He does not really know the girl of his choice, and within five years of the wedding she may be a hopeless drunkard, or a drug-taker. She is virtually certain to be a shrew, and squanderer. No; he would do better to stay single.

As for the girl, she is giving up her freedom for an endless job, much of it drudgery. She knows nothing about children and cannot be sure that hers will be healthy. She probably cannot cook. She does not know her fiancee very well, and he is quite likely to be a drunkard or a drug-taker. Very probably he is stingy, and smokes cheap cigars in the house. She would be far better off single.

Life is so full of chances and uncertainties that nobody can marry with real hope. Nevertheless, people continue obstinately to disregard the probabilities, and somehow most of them achieve stability and a surprising amount of happiness. That is why we suggest that the B.C. clergy would be wise to give good advice, but in very small doses. The only really good advice is: do nothing.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Stories about American undergraduates raiding women students' dormitories on the campus might lead one to think that campus means rumpus. Actually, the Latin word means 'field'—you know, clearfield, big field, field day—that sort of field.

50 YEARS OF STATELY CARS

Mr. Rolls Met Mr. Royce

By A SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT

FIFTY years ago, Mr. Rolls met Mr. Royce in Manchester. Today, the stately car that bears their names, with its unchanging radiator like the face of a silver temple, has become a symbol of tradition and wealth. The very name, Rolls-Royce, evokes visions of elegance and a feeling of awe.

Yet the aura of Edwardian courtesy associated with the company's name tends to obscure the true nature of its work. For the Rolls-Royce approach to engineering (and today they are primarily concerned with aero engines) has always been intensely progressive, often ahead of its time, notable for improvisation — even for eccentricity — rather than for orthodoxy.

Despite the grandeur of his car, the man who originally conceived it was of "humble origin." Frederick Henry Royce (It seems likely that his name comes second in the title for reasons of euphony — those employed in the firm's headquarters at Derby say they work at "Royce's," although the public calls the car "a Rolls") was the son of a small miller in Lincolnshire.

HIS FATHER died when Henry was only nine, and the child was soon working as a newspaper boy to help support his family. Several jobs followed — one with a pioneer electricity company. Despite poor food and no proper home, Henry had the energy to attend evening classes. In 1884, at the age of twenty-one, he and a friend set up on their own in Manchester as manufacturers of electrical equipment. They specialized in dynamos and electric cranes and, gradually, they prospered.

Royce married. And he bought a French motor-car. Early motoring on the Continent was never restricted by speed limits and men with red flags, as it was in Britain, and Continental cars were more advanced than those made in England. Even so, the inefficiency of his car appalled Royce. He dismantled parts and improved the mechanism. And then, just as his own business was beginning to suffer from cheap foreign competition — he would never lower his own standards to meet the threat — he shocked his colleagues by announcing that he himself intended to build three 10 h.p. two-cylinder experimental motor-cars.

HAND-PICKED mechanics and apprentices, some of whom are still alive, worked with him. Much of the precision work Royce handled himself, working late at night, eating irregularly and reacting fiercely to those whose standards of work did not match his own. The first car was ready on April 1, 1904, and, to the astonishment of onlookers, started with one pull of the handle.

Among those who soon heard of the little car's performance was the Hon. Charles Stewart Rolls, third son of Lord Langattock, and an enterprising young man who had taken a degree in mechanics and applied science at Cambridge and had illuminated his parents' home in Monmouthshire with electricity while still an Eton schoolboy. He was at this time the country's leading salesman of Continental cars — there being no British cars that he considered good enough to handle.

ROLLS FIRST saw the Royce car in London, and then travelled to Manchester to meet its designer. The enthusiastic Rolls and the painstaking Royce took to each other immediately. What struck Rolls about the Royce car was its silence and simplicity; and it started easily, its electrics being admirable (both men, of course, had a common interest in electricity). Rolls saw, too, that Royce had been prepared to adopt — and to improve upon — the ideas of his Continental rivals when they were better than his own.

Rolls fed the designer with ideas and suggestions gained from his own experience and undertook to sell all the cars that Royce could make. His influence was considerable: Royce's car was, even by the standards of the old-fashioned, being short and upright and having only the two cylinders, Rolls's customers were wealthy Edwardians who required in their horseless carriages elegance, as well as comfort, silence and reliability.

THE NAME "Rolls-Royce" came into being at the end of 1904 in a working agreement between C. S. Rolls Ltd., and Henry Royce, Ltd.; by the next spring, 15-h.p. three-cylinder and 20-h.p. four cylinder models were on the market, followed shortly afterwards by a 30-h.p. six-cylinder car. Even at this stage, cylinders, pistons and valves were, in the interests of simplicity, standard size. By 1906, Royce's production capacity was big enough to allow Rolls to stop selling other makes of cars. The two men founded Rolls-Royce Limited.

Young Rolls began to drive his own cars in competitive motoring (he had already gained several records with foreign makes, and was at one time holder of the world speed record). His first success with a Rolls-Royce was in the Isle of Man Tourist Trophy of 1906. Royce, meanwhile, in his search for lightness, was producing some of the famous Rolls-Royce alloys. He was now also at work on a 40/50-h.p. six-cylinder car which he believed to be the finest thing he had ever done. This was to be the "Silver Ghost" — the car that earned for Rolls-Royce the title of "the best car in the world." Princes, maharajas — eventually, even Lenin — found it proper to own a Rolls-Royce car.

At about this time, Rolls, already a keen balloonist, met the Wright brothers. He bought one of their early machines and became the second Englishman to gain a pilot's certificate. Shortly afterwards, in 1910, he was killed, aged 32, in a flying accident at Bournemouth. At the firm's headquarters in Derby, to which it moved from Manchester, they still shake their heads over this tragedy. At the time of his death, Rolls was trying without success to persuade Royce to turn his genius to the problem of designing a satisfactory aero engine.

NEXT, Royce became seriously ill and was not expected to live. But, with careful nursing, he was able to continue his work in exile, in the South of France and on the South Coast of England. With the declaration of war in 1914, he at last turned to the aero engine, spurred on by the thought that his factory was faced — until such time as he had ready one of his own — with producing an engine of someone else's design that offended his engineering pride. With him throughout his illness stayed a team of experts, among them Mr. A. G. Elliott, now joint managing-director and chief engineer of Rolls-Royce. Although faced by entirely new problems, Royce contrived to have the firm's first aero engine on test, and delivering greater horse power than anticipated, six months after he started work upon the design. His instructions flowed ceaselessly to the experimental department at Derby, headed by Mr. Ernest Walter Hives now Lord Hives, chairman of Rolls-Royce, who joined the firm in the early days, originally as a tester).

The engine was the "Eagle," which powered more than half the Allied aircraft in the first war, as well as Alcock and Brown's Vickers Vimy bomber, which made the first direct flight across the Atlantic in 1919. When the engine was completed, Royce's correspondence and design instruction — sometimes acid in tone — were published as a book. It was remarkable that he had only a limited knowledge of mathematics and never used a slide rule; he knew intuitively what he wanted and would draw it in a cramped hand, whereupon Elliott, a fine draughtsman, would enlarge and interpret it.

AFTER the first war, the financial control of Rolls-Royce passed for a short time into the hands of Lord Beaverbrook, who urged the directors to adopt the mass-production methods of America. They resisted this suggestion so strenuously that Beaverbrook relinquished his control. In 1928, the Government pressed the firm to develop a racing aero engine and before he died in 1933, aged 70, Royce (by now a baronet) had the satisfaction of hearing his engine power the seaplane that in 1931 won the Schneider Trophy outright for Britain. Lying in bed, too weak to watch, the distinquished bearded figure timed the aircraft's speed by the sound of its engine. He spent the day before he died working on the design of a new shock absorber.

From the engine that gained the Schneider Trophy, Rolls-Royce developed the famous Merlin, the most-used engine of the allied air forces in the second war, which powered all the British fighters in the Battle of Britain and most of the country's war-time heavy bombers.

THE COMPANY was quick to realise the significance of Sir Frank Whittle's gas turbine, and set about adapting its experience and resources, its metal-rending methods of testing, to the new principles and the new problems of heat and stress. Rolls-Royce were not the pioneers of jet propulsion, but once again their aim was to develop and perfect what already existed; Britain's lead in jet engines is owed largely to them. Yet even amid the specialisation of today they still talk at Royce's of "milk churns," of a "sole and heel" modification and of making an engine — when there are not specific tools for the job — by "knife-and-fork" methods.

At factories in Derby and in Scotland, the company is today producing engines for the Viscount and the larger Comets and for many of the aircraft of the R.A.F.; Rolls-Royce jet engines are being made under licence in many countries of the world, including the United States; and the company's cars, which although joined by the Bentley in 1931, are now less than half the firm's total output, are made in Crewe.

ROLLS-ROYCE are probably alone among British aircraft manufacturers in possessing an organisation for design and development comparable in size to that of American firms. Last year they signed an agreement with the Westinghouse Electric Corporation of Philadelphia: it covered exchange of information on the design, development and production of jet aero engines, and involved the payment by Westinghouse to Rolls-Royce of an initial capital sum of £1 million. Development, the squeezing of more power from an engine, is one of the company's secrets and an art at which it is unrivalled.

Rolls-Royce, who maintain that a man who hopes to become a leading engineer will gain most from being trained not in a university but in the industry he has chosen, have always looked to the future: twice a year, specially selected apprentices, drawn from every walk of life, enter the firm's service for specialist training.

Charles Stewart Rolls and Sir Henry Royce, if they returned today, would find little to displease them in the giant they conceived fifty years ago. Sir Henry once remarked: "Whatever is rightly done, however humble, is noble." His successors have not forgotten his belief.

An American Opinion: THE NEW YORK LOOK

He Just Likes It Here

(MONTREAL GAZETTE)

When young James R. Conant arrived in Montreal a few years ago to represent Time Magazine here, it was the first time the magazine had sent someone from "home office" to look at Canada, learn about it and report on it.

Last year, in line with the magazine's usual procedure, it was decided that Conant had pretty well completed his Canadian education and should be moved back to the United States. With considerable family prestige (his father, long-time president of Harvard, is now U.S. High Commissioner in West Germany), his future in the United States seemed assured.

Conant turned the prospect down, resigned from his job and set about finding work here in Montreal. Undoubtedly there were many factors involved in the choice that he and Mrs. Conant made. Their simplest explanation has been just, "We decided to stay because we like it here."

In the current issue of Merit News, published by the Industrial Acceptance Corporation, "Jim" Conant goes into more detail. It is not just the atmosphere of the "Canadian Boom" (which he thinks has been over-publicized in the United States) that has persuaded him there is more opportunity here. He evidently believes that more opportunity always did exist here, particularly in specialized fields.

He appreciates Canadian calm and Canadian politeness. In politics, though, he misses the louder clamor of U.S. public affairs, he finds Canadian legislators more responsible, Canadian governments better able to put their programs into operation under the more stable system here.

His views are not all compliments. He finds prices high. He approves of the stress on discipline in Canadian schools, but fears it is overdone, with a resultant loss in individual talent. His choice was definitely not made from seeing only one side of the picture.

The fact that he made the choice is something for young Canadians to consider, particularly those who automatically believe that everything is better and bigger below the border.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

And the Lord God called unto Adam, and said unto him, Where art thou? And he said, I heard thy voice in the garden, and I was afraid because I was naked; and I hid myself.

And he said, Who told thee that thou wast naked? Hast thou eaten of the tree, whereof I commanded thee that thou shouldest not eat? And the man said, The woman whom thou gavest to be with me, she gave me of the tree, and I did eat.

And the Lord God said unto the woman, What is this that thou hast done? And the woman said, The serpent beguiled me, and I did eat.

And the Lord God said unto the serpent, Because thou hast done this, thou art cursed above all cattle, and above every beast of the field; upon thy belly shalt thou go, and dust shalt thou eat all the days of thy life: and I will put enmity between thee and the woman, and between thy seed and her seed; and it shall bruise thy head, and thou shalt bruise his heel. (Gen. 3:9-15.)

Behold, a virgin shall conceive, and bear a son, and shall call his name Immanuel. Butter and honey shall he eat, that he may know how to refuse evil, and choose the good. (Isa. 7:14, 15.)

✧ ✧ ✧

And the seventh angel sounded: and there were great voices in heaven, saying. The kingdoms of this world are become the Kingdoms of our Lord, and of his Christ; and he shall reign for ever and ever. (Rev. 11:15.)

But I fear, lest by any means, as the serpent beguiled Eve through his subtilty, so your minds should be corrupted from the simplicity that is in Christ. (II Cor. 11:3.)

Waning Faith in Public Works

(Montreal Gazette)

There was a time when people thought that "public works" could be effectively used to meet a recession. Such works would give employment and increase purchasing power.

But faith in public works is not now what it used to be. Hon. Robert Henry Winters, who is himself the Minister of Public Works, does not consider that they are any panacea. "Public works themselves," he said in Montreal last month, "do not in these days of mechanized equipment and modern construction skills, necessarily provide many jobs for men and women."

He gave an outstanding example. The sum of $23 million is being spent on the causeway across the Strait of Canso. But only from 150 to 200 men are employed to keep the work up to schedule.

Hope New Volume To Solve People's Problems

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—There is a flip saying in the United States that "it ain't what you know that counts—it's who you know."

This remark isn't as pertinent as it used to be. Civilization has become so complicated that people with specialized knowledge in any field are becoming more important.

The publishers of "Who's Who in America" have tried to solve this problem. They have come out with a big volume called "Who Knows—and What."

AARDVAK TO INDIANS

The big blue book lists some 18,000 authorities on 33,000 subjects, ranging from the Aardvark to the Zuni Indians. It runs to 907 pages.

The publishers are hopeful the volume will prove useful to everybody who has a problem. The housewife plagued with cockroaches, for example, will find listed three authorites whose advice she can seek on how to get rid of these kitchen intruders.

Anybody annoyed by a prowling Aardvark, however, will have to turn for help to Dr. Glenn L. Jepson of the Princeton Museum of Natural History. He has a monopoly on this African mammal.

The same way with raindrop erosion. Now there's a field you'd think would be crawling with experts, but Walter David Ellison of the U.S. Navy has it all to himself.

RABBITS BETTER KNOWN

On the other hand "Who Knows—and What" names two specialists on horseflies, two on porpoises, nine on turtles and 11 on rabbits. It also names eight authorities on communism — and doesn't include Senator McCarthy.

Only a baker's dozen are identified as authorities on sex, and Dr. Kinsey isn't slighted. But some of their approaches to sex don't make for very racy reading. Dr. Bernard Samuel Greenberg, to cite only one, has written on "some effects of testosterone on the sexual pigmentation and other sex characters of the cricket frog."

A young girl looking for ways to trap a husband will find slim pickings in "Who Knows—and What." Neither bachelors nor hermits are mentioned. Nor are husbands. Presumably the experts in husband grabbing aren't talking for publication.

10% Increase Approved For Doctors' Fees

TORONTO (CP) — The council of the Ontario Medical Association Tuesday approved an increase in doctors' fees of up to 10 per cent more than present rates.

Approval was given in an interim report of a committee headed by Dr. J. C. C. Dawson of Peterborough. The council was asked to make the decision after members studied Dominion Bureau of Statistics figures which showed that a 10-per-cent increase in the basic cost-of-living had occurred since 1950, the year the present schedule for fees was established.

The council also recommended that all Ontario hospitals adopt a "medical audit" to check the diagnosis with the results obtained by their doctors.

Dr. Ian Davison of Sudbury, who announced the recommendation, said a full medical audit should include all medical records and other data accumulated. The audit, he said, should be filed under code numbers referring to individual doctors.

Vote For Amendment

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate Tuesday voted 58 to 19 for a constitutional amendment designed to prevent any future attempt to revamp the Supreme Court of the United States such as occurred in the Franklin D. Roosevelt administration. The key proviso would permanently fix the number of justices at nine.

Half Million Dollar Loan Fund Plan

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — A half million dollar loan fund to help parishes build new churches, parish halls and rectories was envisioned Tuesday by the Rt. Rev. George N. Luxton, Lord Bishop of Huron, when he delivered his annual charge to the Anglican Synod of Huron.

Making a strong plea for Anglicans to remember what he called the perpetual revolving loan fund, especially in their wills, the bishop warned there are still a few parishes that are touched by the weaknesses of congregationalism or "parochialitis."

The extension program in the diocese, he claimed, was moving along too slowly.

The synod opened today in St. Paul's cathedral with over 300 lay delegates and ministers of the 164 parishes of Huron diocese.

Hawthorne of Toronto.

RELIEF PROMISED

For Arthritic and Rheumatic Pain

Toronto, Ont. (Special)—Discovery of an entirely new method of relieving pain has been announced here. Science has now developed a cream that acts in a new way to bring relief from arthritic, rheumatic and muscular aches and pains. Sold under the brand name "InfraRUB", this new odourless and greaseless cream relieves these pains without the need of pills and other internal medicines.

InfraRUB does not merely set up a surface irritation but penetrates deep down into sore muscles and joints. This permits fresh oxygen-rich blood to flow freely through afflicted areas and actually helps drive away the pain-causing congestion and pressure.

Another feature of InfraRUB that appeals to so many people is its ease of application. No long and painful rubbing is necessary as InfraRUB penetrates in a few seconds and vanishes with a moment's light massage.

InfraRUB leaves no oily film or pungent objectionable odour on the skin. Users find they are able to put on clothing in complete safety immediately after application.

Written medical reports on the success of this new help for patients suffering from rheumatic and arthritic pains and general muscular aches and pains have been prepared, based on hundreds of cases in British and French hospitals. InfraRUB users claim almost immediate relief from rheumatic and arthritic pains, sore muscles and joints.

Now for the first time, InfraRUB can be obtained without a prescription from your local drug store for only $1.39. InfraRUB is guaranteed to give hours and hours of comforting relief from arthritic, rheumatic and muscular aches and pains or your money will be refunded in full.

Five Provinces Accept Border Traffic Change

OTTAWA (CP)—Five provincial governments so far have accepted a formula for switching authority over trans-border highway traffic from the federal government to the provinces.

Informants said Tuesday those dissenting to date are Ontario, New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island, Saskatchewan and Alberta.

On the acceptance of the provinces depends the introduction of legislation at this session of Parliament to effect the change in control. The federal government has not yet indicated how much unanimity it wants before making the move.

Some other provinces in addition to the five known supporters are expected to fall in line, though Quebec's attitude in particular remains a major question mark.

Entertainment Firms Worried Of 'Blackout'

TORONTO (CP)—The Telegram said Tuesday that if certain large entertainment organizations in Toronto, Hamilton and London do not come to terms o a new contract with the American Guild of Variety Artists (AFL), an entertainment "blackout" will be imposed.

The newspaper quoted Jack Irving, national administrator of AGVA, as saying in a telephone interview from New York that the "blackout" will be imposed on the Canadian National Exhibition, the Casino Theatre and Barclay Hotel here and on other organizations if they do not agree to terms of new contracts by May 19.

Senior Lacrosse Opener Postponed For Puck Fray

By DON GRANT

Will the opening game of the 1954 senior OLA season begin Friday night or will it?

That question arose early today when the Peterborough Trailermen learned that the St. Catharines Athletes plan to have Friday's game postponed to allow at least one game of the Memorial Cup series to be played in St. Catharines.

WORRIED — Bobby Shantz' pitching shoulder hurts and the Athletics' little left-hander expresses the fear that he may be through.

Civic and sport organizations are hoping to arrange a game in the Garden City between the TeePees and the Edmonto Oil Kings, the St. Kitts juniors present leading the series 2-0 in games.

On Monday night at a special meeting in the Hotel Queensway, the St. Catharine's Athletic Lacrosse Association went on record as unanimously endorsing at least one cup game played in St. Catharines.

STEPPED ASIDE

The executive went one step further. In case a cup game could be scheduled this weekend, they stepped aside and cancelled their season's opener with the Trailermen, hoping to play that game later this season.

"If this move will in any way aid General Manager Rudy Pilous in his efforts with the CAHA to bring a Memorial Cup game to St. Catharines, we feel this is the least we can do," said Athletic president, E. J. (Ted) Graves.

It was news to the Trailermen today that the Friday opener would be cancelled.

HADN'T HEARD

"We haven't heard a thing," said Coach Bob Thorpe. "I heard after last night's game they were hoping to get a game Friday night in St. Catharines."

Coach Thorpe added that the Trailmen have arranged transportation for the Friday game in St. Catharines.

"I haven't heard a thing, but will probably hear later today. I thought they would want to cancel it."

"We're scheduled to go there Friday night, so we're going," said Thorpe.

Petes' senior "B" hockey club held a stag affair the other night at the Peterborough Golf Club for Roy (Army) Armstrong, who was married recently. President Ed O'Toole, executive officials and players made a presentation, Bill McMaster doing the honors, and Jim Ellis (club manager) gave an address. A nice social evening, topped off by an interesting address on plans for the Community Memorial Centre by Lionel Browne, who is chairman of the building committee. Roy Lewis heads a nominating committee to bring in a suggested slate of officers for the hockey club at the next meeting to run the team in the 1954-55 season. Army is a fine puckist and gridder—the Orfuns having earlier planned a stag but postponing it when Army became sick.

Secretary Bob Hamilton advises that there will be a meeting of the Centre general committee tomorrow eve at 7:30 in the City Hall. The site, at the north-east corner of Morrow Park, has been passed by the site committee (with approval of the Morrow Trust and Exhibition Board) as well as by the executive committee of the Centre. It must still be okayed by the general committee and finally by the city council. The building commitee is prepared to start work on several tentative plans, and the general public is being asked to submit suggestions as soon as possible on type of building, size, and so on.

Chairman For Centre

As carried in other Examiner columns last week, D. A. McGillis proffered his resignation as general committee chairman, a move regretted by the executive committee and others. If he does not care to reconsider, it will be necessary to name a new chairman. No doubt the matter will come in for considerable discussion at the Thursday meeting. We might point out that no pressure whatsoever was used in obtaining the information more than a week ago on the location of the site. We simply made several routine calls over some six weeks in order to keep the project moving and to keep the public advised. After the site had been announced at a meeting of that committee, the information was given to us. It was sought and given out in good faith, neither party concerned anticipating any dispute. Let's hope this and other Centre problems will be solved amicably.

Three local industries so far have submitted cheques to help defray expenses of the proposed Baseball School, under Bill Sisler, to be held here this summer. The firms are Outboard Marine Co., Quaker Oats Co. and the Peterborough Lumber Co. We believe it will go over okay. Executive officers are Hugh Campbell, Dr. F. J. Pitz, Bill Bennett and Ken Robinson, with the recreation commission handling the money. Mr. Campbell has been contacting local industries for several weeks. Prep For Loop Opener

Joe Lowrey put his senior ball Petes' prospects through their paces last e'en in Riverside Park as they prep for their opener against Ed Hosking's Oil Burners of the Viaduct League in Toronto this Sunday aft. The Burners start their schedule at home Saturday against Oshawa Transporters in the afternoon, as Oakville plays Dependable Caterers in the evening. Petes' Sunday tilt begins at 2:30, and we believe they go right back at the Burners in a second game, though no schedule has been received yet. Opener at Riverside will be May 24 with Batas of Belleville here. A 30-game schedule for the six clubs concerned, followed by loop playoffs and provincial playdowns for victors, if they decide to go after OBA honors.

Word comes through from St. Kitts this morning that the OLA senior opening joust betwixt Trailermen and A's has been postponed to let the Memorial Cup teams into the Garden City for Friday night. St. Catharines Teepees lead Edmonton's junior pucksters 2-0 in games, and this belated hockey series isn't drawing well in Toronto, so the CAHA agreed to switch one playoff tilt to St. Kitts. Local lacrosse officials (while they can use the delay for more conditioning of players) aren't happy about the postponement, feeling they should give away absolutely nothing to the Athletics, who signed Powless and Smith on 'em. Young Logan has been going out the A's lately, too, and they've signed a husky Sarnia intermediate named Paul Soper. Petes play in Mimico Tuesday, and have St. Catharines here the next Friday.

Boxing Trials For Games Begin May 13

TORONTO (CP)—Boxers from various parts of Canada converged on Toronto today for the Canadian British Empire Games boxing trials May 13-15 as the boxing committee in charge debated how many rounds will constitute a bout.

British Empire Games regulations permit three three-minute rounds or five two-minute rounds as constituting a bout.

George Denniston, chairman of the central Ontario branch of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada, said that 50 entries have already registered for the trials and he expects possibly 75 entries, the largest such field ever assembled.

Eight provinces will definitely be represented with the other two—Newfoundland and New Brunswick—yet to indicate if they will send entrants.

Ontario will have the largest number of entries with 27. Nova Scotia is sending a 13-man team, Quebec will have 16, British Columbia 10 and Prince Edward Island one. Good representation is expected from the Prairie provinces.

CAHA Approves Junior Transfers

VANCOUVER (CP) — Canada's hockey executives Tuesday clarified the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association's position on transfer of juniors across the east-west zones.

The CAHA Monday approved in principle the transfer of juniors and juveniles across a line drawn north-south through the Lakehead.

No such transfers are allowed at present, but any team is allowed two imports from other branches within each zone.

Now, one of these imports may be from across the east-west zone line. The player may be a junior or juvenile.

It marks the first time transfer of juveniles has been approved.

Transfers will only be allowed across the line with the full approval of the home club and both the players' parents.

Actual wording of the resolution has not been passed and is expected to come before the meeting Thursday.

Mark St. Divides Two Church Tilts

Mark St. spilt two Church Softball League openers last evening, the bantams beating St. John's 24-6 and the midgets dropping a 6-4 decision to their opponents from St. John's. Latter played errorless ball as Mark St. midgets booted five. Fuller fanned 13 and gave up 10 hits, while Hayden allowed just seven bingles on the other slap. Hayden and Barclay got two hits each. Dunsford and Nolan were best for the winners.

Mark St. bantams had a good edge in all departments in their game, with Bob Duncan and Ron Worboy turning in a nifty chore for them, while Sargent and King were best for the losers. The easterners scored runs in batches in all but the first inning. Teams:

Mark St. midgets — Paul, Dorrington, Carson, White, Hayden, Barclay, Kelly, Bell, Roberts, Dixon Duncan.

St. John's — Forester, Findlay, Ellis, Dunford, Lustic, Graystock, Nolan, Parker, Fuller, Genge, Reil, Sherch.

St. John's bantams — Irwin, Rishor, Haddon, Ongley, Sargent, King, Davidson, Wagester, Crump, Dalliday.

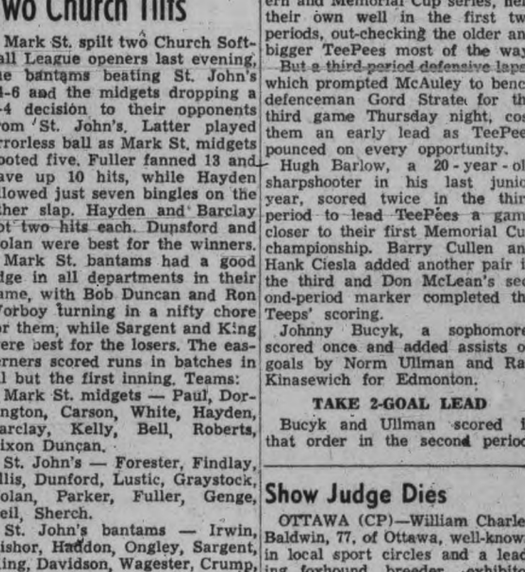
TWO TOP EARNED RUNS

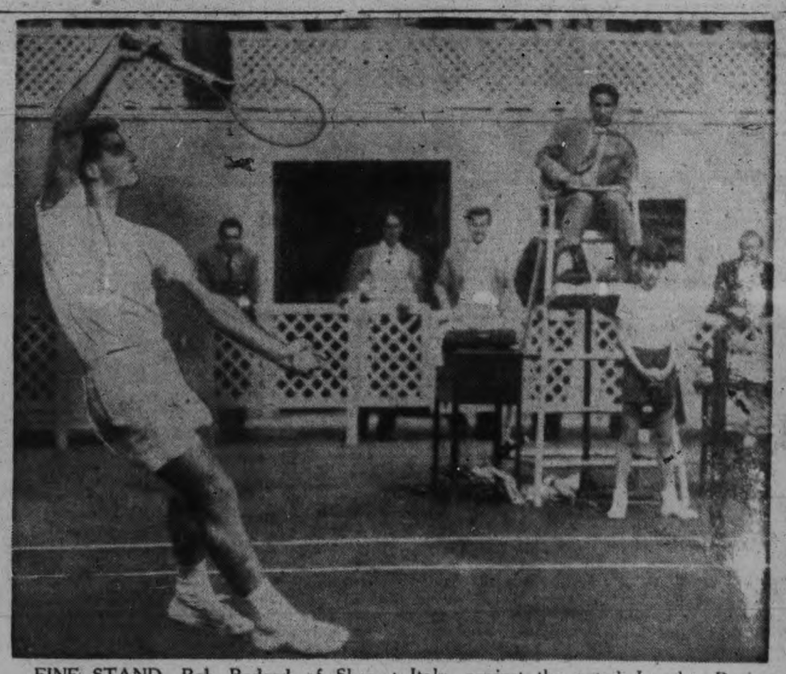
NEW YORK (AP)—Curt Simmons and Robin Roberts, the Philadelphia Phils' pitching aces, are running one-two in the National League earned run ratings today, while Murry Dickson, the other member of the staff's "big three" ranks fifth.

Statistics compiled by The Associated Press show Simmons has allowed seven earned runs in 45 innings and tops the league with a 1.40 ERA, followed by Roberts' 2.04 mark. Dickson's average is 2.50.

In the American League Detroit's Ned Garver is the early pace-setter with an impressive 0.49 ERA, having given up only two earned runs in 37 innings. Figures include Sunday's games.



OPEN SEASON on records. Parry O'Brien has set a new world's record for the shot put following his toss of 60 feet 5½ inches in Los Angeles over the weekend. Parry, whose new record quickly followed Roger Bannister's 4 minute mile, predicts that he will throw the shot 62 feet before the season's end.



FINE STAND, Bob Bedard of Sherbrooke, Que., is seen in action during the International tennis tournament at Rome, Italy, against the noted Jaroslav Drobny. Bob bowed to Drobny after pulling the major upset of the tourney against Sweden's ranking Sven Davidsson.

TeePees Win Second Game Junior Championship Series

By JIM PEACOCK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—Western Memorial Cup hopes dwindled today as the east rested with considerable confidence after taking a two-game lead in the best-of-seven series for the Canadian junior hockey championship.

St. Catharines TeePees, battle-worn but still sharp after a heavy schedule since last fall, turned opportunist long enough Tuesday night to defeat Edmonton Oil Kings 5-3 in a fast-skating, hard-checking game that had the 3,680 fans roaring.

But Tuesday night's story was a different one from Sunday, when TeePees walloped the Kings 8-2 in easy fashion. Coach Ken McAuley of Edmonton was more convinced that his team will not fold in the minimum of games.

"The boys played a lot better," he said, "and they can play better than that."

PLAY BETTER TO WIN

Coach Rudy Pilous, "happy we got two wins out of it," joined McAuley in saying Kings "improved a lot," but added: "They've got to be a better hockey team to win."

Oil Kings, apparently getting their "hockey legs" again after a three-week layoff between the western and Memorial Cup series, held their own well in the first two periods, out-checking the older and bigger TeePees most of the way.

But a third-period defensive lapse which prompted McAuley to bench defenceman Gord Strate for the third game Thursday night, cost them an early lead as TeePees pounced on every opportunity.

Hugh Barlow, a 20-year-old sharpshooter in his last junior year, scored twice in the third period to lead TeePees a game closer to their first Memorial Cup championship. Barry Cullen and Hank Ciesla added another pair in the third and Don McLean's second-period marker completed the Teeps' scoring.

TAKE 2-GOAL LEAD

Bucyk and Ullman scored in that order in the second period, each goal coming on two-man breaks from centre ice, to give Kings a 2-0 advantage before McLean pushed the puck past Al Jacobson from a scramble.

The third period was only 33 seconds old when Barry Cullen backhanded the puck past Jacobson after catching the Edmonton defence out of position. Not two minutes later, Barlow scored from close in when Strate failed to clear on Barry Cullen's easy shot.

Penalties to Billy McNeill and Lionel Repka at 4:57 and 9:25, set up TeePees deciding goals. Ciesla batted the puck in from a scramble with McNeill off, and Barlow pushed the puck under Jacobson from the goalcrease with Repka off.

McAuley sent out five forwards when Wimpy Roberts went off for charging late in the third and the move paid off when Kinasewich blazed a 25-foot shot high into the open corner behind Marv Edwards.

Show Judge Dies

OTTAWA (CP)—William Charles Baldwin, 77, of Ottawa, well-known in local sport circles and a leading foxhound breeder, exhibitor and dog show judge, died here Tuesday.

Employed as electrical superintendent with the E. B. Eddy Company for 47 years, Mr. Baldwin played lacrosse with the old Capital lacrosse team of Ottawa which captured the world championship, and formerly held the Canadian quarter-mile track championship.

Syracuse Chiefs Still Leading

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Their nine-game winning streak has gone by the boards but Syracuse Chiefs are still atop the International Baseball League by a game and a half.

The cellar-dwelling Richmond Virginians, who hadn't been successful against Syracuse in three previous games, defeated the Chiefs 4-2 Tuesday night. Behind the strong-arm pitching of Wimpy Nardella, Richmond broke a 2-2 tie in the fifth inning on Marty Tabacheck's two-run triple.

Buffalo and the Havana Cuban Sugar Kings battled to a 13-inning 9-9 tie at Havana in a game that went four hours and 20 minutes before being called by the curfew.

Three times Buffalo held the lead, but the Sugar Kings rallied to tie in the ninth, 12th and 13th, although they were down 9-6 after the Bisons scored three times in the top of the 13th.

CAHA Goes All Out To Capture World Hockey Title

By DON MATHESON

VANCOUVER (CP)—Canadian amateur hockey is going "all out" to recover the world hockey title in 1955. The decision was reached here Tuesday by the annual meeting of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association.

The future, 1956 onward, was left indefinite when the best-for-55 decision was reached. It could include withdrawal from the world tournament. CAHA delegates voted to give the executive the job of selecting a team of "the highest possible calibre" to represent Canada in 1955.

Executives will choose one club that wants to go, then build around it a solid senior A club. Reinforcing players would be picked from CAHA branches anywhere in Canada.

The final Canadian team would then be essentially an all-star squad playing under the name of the "backbone" club. It would work out a month or six weeks in Canada before going overseas, then play a European tour before the championship.

What will happen in 1956 and later is only conjecture.

But delegates felt they had a "hot potato," and hot potatoes are often dropped.

Before arriving at the final decision for an all-star type club, delegates discussed the world tourney problem for two hours.

"BEST FOR ONE YEAR"

Some of their expressions that left the impression about the future:

"I say don't worry about the expense—let us even resort to the reserve fund to show the best for one year only"—secretary-manager G. S. Dudley of Midland, Ont.

"The crux of the matter is should we get out of what has become a political hot potato. . . or are we prepared to spend money to go all out"—Ed Benson, Kelowna, first vice-president B. C. branch.

"I agree that it's a 'hot potato' but in 1955 I think we should go back to Europe and win back the championship"—Dr. W. G. Hardy of Edmonton, former CAHA president and life member.

Delegates final decision on the team make-up follows the 1952 plan where only eight members of the original Edmonton Mercuries team made the European trip. The other players were selected from top calibre players in other centres willing to make the trip.

Clubs have until July 1 to apply for the jaunt.

MIGHT DAMAGE LEAGUE

Delegates felt that no complete trophy-winning team or runnerup could be selected and sent overseas. The action would possibly break up the league in which it played. Then, there was no assurance that the same team would be in existence the following year.

The convention also asked that negotiations be started with the National Hockey League, under the NHL-CAHA agreement, to have the old icing-the-puck rule restored.

The change would make players carry the puck over the blueline, rather than shooting it into the corners from the centre-ice zone as at present.

The convention concludes Thursday.

HIT OFFICIAL

DETROIT (AP) — President Frank Gallagher of the International Hockey League Tuesday suspended Bill Booth of Toledo Mercurys for a year for hitting an official.

The suspension, heaviest in the league's history, can be appealed to the loop's board of governors at its next meeting.

Milwaukee Braves Find Success At Brooklyn Dodger Ball Park

By BEN PHLEGAR
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Brooklyn Dodger ball park, graveyard of many National League pennant hopes last season is proving surprisingly friendly to Charlie Grimm's Milwaukee Braves.

They won six of 11 games there last year. Their 1954 edition is trying to do the job even better.

Milwaukee invaded Brooklyn Tuesday night for the first time this season and walked off with a 2-0 triumph. However, they lost one of the most prolonged arguments of the season. A seventh-inning drive by Eddie Mathews bounced off a railing atop the centrefield fence and fell back on the field.

Umpire Bill Engelin ruled it a double. Umpire Bill Summers called it a home run and waved Mathews in. The Dodgers screamed. The four umpires huddled. The Braves screamed. But in the end Mathews was sent back to second. Despite the ruling, the drive scored Danny O'Connell from first base with Milwaukee's second run.

OTHER GAMES

Elsewhere in the National League New York Giants defeated Cincinnati 5-4 and Philadelphia Phils edged Chicago Cubs 8-7 in 10 innings. The St. Louis-Pirates game at Pittsburgh was rained out.

In the American League Joe Coleman of Baltimore allowed his former Philadelphia tem-mates only two hits, both singles, as the Orioles beat the Athletics 2-0. New York Yankees defeated Cleveland 5-3, Chicago White Sox shaded Boston 2-1 and Washington beat Detroit 5-3.

The Giants beat Fred Baczewski for the first time in his career. The Cincinnati lefthander had whipped the New Yorkers five times running.

After falling two runs behind in the eighth because of poor defensive play, the Phils rallied to tie the Cubs in the eighth and won in the 10th as Del Ennis singled home Richie Ashburn.

A double by Yogi Berra with two on and two out drove home the runs the Yankees needed to beat Cleveland for the first time this season. The Indians had won three in a row.

Bob Keegan won his fourth game against a single loss and scored the winning run for the White Sox against Boston after he tripled in the seventh.

Detroit used four hits, including a homer by Frank House, to score three runs in the first four innings against the Senators, but Bob Porterfield slammed the door as he finished with 5 1-3 hitless innings. Porterfield homered in the ninth after Washington had scored the tie-breaking run in the eighth.

Penticton Beats Wolves 6-5 Fifth Of Allan Cup Games

PENTICTON, B.C. (CP) — A switch in strategy Tuesday night paid off as Penticton V's kept their Allan Cup hopes alive with 6-5 overtime win over Sudbury Wolves.

Wolves lead the best-of-seven series 3-2 with the sixth game set for Kelowna, B.C., Thursday.

Sudbury only had to hold Penticton within the margin of three goals for 15 minutes to win the game and the cup that goes to the top senior amateur hockey club in Canada.

Playing-coach Grant Warwick mapped the pattern of his team's victory when he reverted to defence, where he and Kevin (Crusher) Conway played nearly the entire game.

Twice, once in the second period and once in the third, Warwick apparently lured Sudbury players into penalties that paid off with Penticton goals.

COSTLY PENALTY

In the second period, he deked Pete Horeck into a rough cross-check which cost the Wolves' player two minors, allowing Jack McIntyre to score while the easterners were short-handed.

Defelice turned on Bernie Bathgate, earning a major which kept him off for five minutes and allowed two Penticton goals. RCMP had to restrain him when, under the needling from nearby fans, the Wolves centreman began to lash out at spectators.

OPENS SCORING

Harrison opened the scoring at 2:30 of the first and within 10 seconds Grant Warwick tied it up. Wolves went ahead when King connected at 6:03 to end the first-period scoring.

Wolves opened fast and first again in the second when Flynn tipped in Mauno Kauppi's cross on a relay from Tatter McClellan. Then came McIntyre's goal to make it 3-2.

Sudbury took two early goals in the second period, one by Tomiuk and the other by Heale to put Wolves ahead 5-2 and then came Defelice's major and a minor to Horeck. Dick Warwick, Kilburn and Fairburn scored to make the regulation time score 5-5.

The teams played it close to the vest in the overtime period, the break coming with only 15 seconds to go as Conway launched a rush and fed Grant Warwick. Warwick pulled Wolves' Al Millar to the right on a swerving attack, backhanded to McIntyre and the game was over as McIntyre zeroed in on three feet of vacant net.

Bannister Flies To New York

LONDON (AP) — Roger Bannister, the medical student who broke the four-minute mile barrier, left for New York by plane Tuesday night where he will tell North Americans about the race on television and radio. His first scheduled TV appearance is tonight.

Bannister is making the trip at the request of the British foreign office. The 25-year-old athlete said he would be back home Saturday "for the royal homecoming."

Two foreign office men, who accompanied Bannister to his plane said U.S. television interests were paying the trip's costs. Bannister will do no running while in the U.S.

As the shy master miler climbed aboard the plane he had this to say about his great race last Thursday:

"It seems to me the more you try without succeeding, the less chance there is of making it because you become frightened. I had not raced for six months and had forgotten what some of the agony was like."

Canada May Get Olympic Games

VANCOUVER (CP)—Canada will likely get the Olympic Games in 1964, George Duthie, sports director of the Canadian National Exhibition said here Monday night. They would be held in Toronto.

Canada has made a bid for the 1960 games, but it is expected Italy will get the nod.

Avery Brundage, United States Olympic Games czar, has promised to support Canada's bid for 1964 but said the 1960 games will go to Italy. "We are morally obligated to that country," Brundage told Duthie recently.

Duthie, who attended a meeting of the B.C. Track and Field Association, also said that it is possible that the Woodbine race track in Toronto will set aside a day each year with the take going to Canada's Olympic and British Empire Games teams. He estimated it would be worth at least $100,000 annually.

NEW ALOUETTE — Larry Grigg, Oklahoma's All-American backfielder who led the scoring in the Big Seven Conference last season and scored the only touchdown in Oklahoma's 7-0 victory over Maryland's national champions in the 1954 Orange Bowl, has signed with the Montreal Alouettes of the Big Four League to end months of negotiations. Grigg, the 175-pound Texan, was named to two All-American teams, led the Sooners, the nation's top rushing squad, in four offensive departments, was sought by several top U.S. pro teams and was the draft choice of the Balitmore Colts. Besides being an offensive standout Grigg was brilliant in defensive roles.

Mining Of Gold Too Costly, So Give It Away

DAHLONEGA, Ga. (AP) — If you've got an itch for gold, you can prospect in the north Georgia mountains and keep every ounce you find.

In a promotional scheme they hope will put their town on the tourist's map, the people of Dahlonega will not only show you where to find gold deposits, but will have oldtime prospectors on hand this summer to show you how to pan.

It costs more to mine the gold than the $35 an ounce the government has set as the legal price. Some who have tried commercial mining recently say it costs about $115 to mine $100 worth of gold.

Churchill Has New Look After Renovation

The Churchill restaurant will re-open Thursday and everything will be new except the name, coffe urns and cash register, according to proprietor John Mousmousles.

Designed and renovated by the Refrigeration and Fixtures Co., of Toronto, the building has undergone considerable interior change. The coffee and sandwich bar, once situated on the north side, has been placed in the centre of the room and is surrounded by red leather upholstered booths. The capacity of the restaurant has increased by 12 seats to a maximum of 84.

The walls and ceiling have been painted a deep grayish-blue and the floor covered with green-streaked linoleum. All the light fixtures, suspended from an elongated "S"-shaped sub-ceiling over the coffee bar, are black and of modern desgin. A large family table has been placed near the front window looking onto George street.

Renovation of the restaurant has been going on for the past five weeks, and come Thursday, the Churchill restaurant will take its place among the "new look" establishments of the city.

Blood Donors Role Outlined To WI

BETHANY (ENS) — Mrs. Charles Ray, representative of the Blood Donor Clinic of the Peterborough Branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society was the guest speaker at the Women's Institute meeting held in the Orange Hall on Monday evening.

Mrs. Ray told of the organization of this service in 1942 which was begun as a transfusion service for the two Peterborough Hospitals and grew to tremendous importance during the war years.

The speaker said "There seems to be very mistaken impression that there is a fee charged for blood. This is not so in the Peterborough district, Toronto and some other hospitals do charge for blood transfusions . . . they have their own private set-up. In Peterborough Hospitals, all the blood necessary for transfusions comes directly from the Red Cross Blood Bank.

Any charges relating to blood transfusions are for laboratory and operating room technical service . . . checking and matching the types of blood and the equipment used.

Clinics are held each week at either hospital. At present there is a special drive on in Peterborough for new donors in order to combat polio, one of the most dreaded diseases of our time. Recently, a promising weapon has been discovered to fight this disease, gamma globulin, a name applied to one of the substances contained in your own blood. Gamma globulin processed from human blood, helps fight polio.

The speaker was introduced by Mrs. T. S. Gault and thanked by Mrs. Rubert Wood.

Mrs. Mansel Finney gave a report of the Junior Girls' Club Activities and their attendance at the County Achievement Day held in Orono last week. Mrs. Frank Bigelow, co-leader of the club showed the exhibit given on Achievement day, which consisted of five attractive dinner plates with meat as the main course and giving the accompanying recipes for cooking.

Mrs. Thomas Jennings presided for the meeting. There were 26 members present (and several visitors welcomed.

Treasurer, Mrs. R. W. Price, reported that new dishes had been purchased for the town hall kitchen. Plans were made for the district annual meeting when the Bethany group will be the hostess on June 4.

Mrs. R. Carr, district director reported attending the district Executive meeting, together with Mrs. T. S. Gault, at the home of Mrs. William Armstrong in Millbrook and that all program plans were completed for that day. Miss Ethel Chapman of Toronto will be the guest speaker. A committee was appointed to look after the luncheon menu and Mrs. A. H. Monk and Mrs. Clara Armstrong will be in charge of registration.

A social hour followed during which refreshments were served by Mrs. T. Jennings, Mrs. T. S. Gault, Mrs. A. Monk, Mrs. W. Price and Mrs. R. Wood. Mrs. T. J Jackson expressed the thanks of the members to the hostess group for their very interesting meeting

Commons Welcomes Lines To Open Up Norhern Areas

OTTAWA (CP)—Both sides of the Commons Tuesday welcomed the prospect of opening up mineral and timber wealth in northern Quebec and Ontario through two branch lines of the Canadian National Railways.

Transport Minister Chevrier met no opposition as he introduced a bill authorizing the government to guarantee up to $44,562,500 in CNR bonds for the two lines.

The largest branch line, 294 miles long, will be built into Quebec's new Chibougamau mining area some 250 miles northwest of Quebec City.

It will extend in an arc from Beattyville, near Abitibi on the Ontario border, northeast 155 miles to Chibougamau and then southeast 139 miles to St. Felicien, on the west side of Lake St. John at the head of the Saguenay valley.

The second line will run 27 miles into the rich new Manitouwadge mining district in northern Ontario. It will be built south from Hillsport, on the CNR main line about 200 miles northwest of the Lakehead.

HIGH COSTS

Estimated construction costs are $35,000,000 for the Quebec line and $3,750,000 for the one in Ontario. However, the legislation provides that the CNR can exceed those amounts by 15 per cent and authorizes temporary government loans of up to $44,562,500 to permit construction to start without delay.

Reaction of opposition members to the railway bill was typified by Howard Green (PC — Vancouver-Quadra), who said he hopes the days of railway building in Canada are not over.

He said that some day Canada will see the need for a railway across the northern part of western Canada, perhaps from Lynn Lake, Man., to Lake Athabaska and on to Stewart, B.C., at the south end of the Alaska panhandle.

Mr. Chevrier said that the western section of the branch line in Quebec will be built first, from Beattyville to Chibougamau. It would connect Chibougamau's copper mines with smelters at Noranda, Que., and two mines in the area had guaranteed a daily average of 325 tons of ore concentrates for six years after completion of the line.

OPEN UP FORESTS

The railway also would open up forests containing more than 30,000,000 cords of pulpwood, capable of sustained annual yields of about 617,000 cords. Most of the forest wealth would be tapped by the railway.

Mr. Chevrier said the 27-mile branch in northern Ontario into the Manitouwadge area had potential earnings of $6,000,000 a year. Construction could start in the fall of this year.

The area was so profitable that the CNR decided it needed no guarantees of traffic from the mining companies. There had been major discoveries of copper, zinc and silver and at the present stage it appeared that one large mine was assured and two smaller ones were anticipated.

Armand Dumas (L—Villeneuve) a surveyor, said the northern area has thousands of acres of rich farm land and more than 1,000,000 horsepower in potential power sites as well as minerals and timber.

"There will be opportunities for all, and I predict that within the next 15 years the population of that area will be well over 50,000 people."

SEEDING TIME—The granaries of the Canadian West still are full of last year's grain crop but the ever-hopeful farmer follows the age-old ritual of breaking the land to seed the new season's wheat. As the land dries under the spring sun this farmer turning the soil for seed is typical of the Prairies. —(CP Photo).

Western Farmers Planning For New Bumper Wheat Crop

By AL VICKERY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WINNIPEG (CP)—Farm granaries still bulge with unsold grain from last year's crop but western farmers are wheeling seed drills back on the land to sow wheat they hope will be another bumper harvest.

Farmers the world over are full of hope at seeding time. Despite large carryovers from previous years, they know that there always will be a demand for grain as long as people have to eat.

As one leading grain man said: "What else can the farmers do? If they turn the land into summer fallow, it is only delaying the situation one year. There will be double the crop from the summer-fallow the next year.

SEEDING NECESSARY

"They just can't leave the land alone. Land not seeded costs the farmer more in the long run than seeding it. Seeding is the cheapest way known to keep weeds down."

So, the farmer is cleaning up his equipment and keeping an eye on the weather, a major factor in all growth.

Across the West, the main requirements for an average wheat yield of 16.2 bushels an acre are normal spring and summer rains.

Farmers do not appear too worried. They've had good rainfall for three successive years and reaped wheat crops of more than 500,000,000 bushels. Too, fall moisture on summer-fallow land was above normal in all three prairie provinces.

PROSPECTS GOOD

Maj. H. G. L. Strange, research director for Searle Grain Co., says chances are that the West can obtain an average wheat yield this year if summer rains are just normal. However, coarse grains, usually grown on stubble land, will need better-than-average summer rains to give an average yield.

While an estimated 490,000,000 bushels of all grains still is in store on western farms—backed up by plugged elevators and limited exports—officials say they expect some 190,000,000 bushels will be delivered by farmers by the end of the crop year, July 31. This would leave on farms a carryover of about 300,000,000 bushels into the 1954-55 crop year. Of the present total on farms, 320,000,000 bushels is wheat and 170,000,000 coarse grains.

Despite this prospect of a large carryover of wheat, farmers in the three prairie provinces are not expected to change their seeding pattern to any great degree. There may be some switching from hard wheat which makes flour for white bread, to durum, especially in Manitoba.

Durum is sought by importers in southern Europe. Its flour is used for macaroni and the like.

PRICE ATTRACTIVE

Provincial agriculture officials in Manitoba say 1954 reports indicate that between 10,000 and 15,000 more acres may be seeded to durum than last year, due to the good price—$2.78 for No. 1 amber durum compared with $1.83⅛ for No. 1 northern—and durum having no delivery quota.

Delivery by the farmer of hard wheat is strictly limited by quotas based on cultivated acreage. However, many farmers will be wary of making the change because the danger of rust, a parasite that attacks grain, is greater in durum than in other wheat.

Weather is another major factor in the seeding plan. If weather conditions delay seeding, farmers may switch to coarse grains. Wheat takes longer to mature.

MAY NOT USE POWERS

There is no indication that the Canadian wheat board will use its power under the Wheat Board Act to restrict the acreage from which it will be willing to accept wheat from farmers.

If such a move is made, farmers still will be faced with two big problems. If they put more land into summer-fallow, they will have to contend with double the crop next year. If they plant coarse grains instead of wheat, they would have to look for new markets.

So, authorities say the pattern probably will be much the same as last year when wheat took up 24,600,000 acres in the West; oats 6,500,000 acres; barley 8,600,000; rye 1,400,000; and flaxseed 1,000,000. About 20,000,000 was left in summer-fallow.

Patent Cleaners Found Harmful

OTTAWA (CP) — CCF Leader Coldwell thinks the Canadian housewife should be told about some of the findings of the National Research Council.

Cleaning products are a case in point, he told the Commons Tuesday night during a debate on research.

Mr. Coldwell said that members of Parliament, visiting the NRC a few years ago, saw various cleaners tested. Some products actually destroyed clothes during extended use.

One wash-day product, which advertised that no rinsing was required, was especially harmful.

Bruce Belfrage To Play Summer Theatre

Bruce Belfrage, who is best remembered by Canadian service personnel as the BBC announcer reading the nine o'clock news on the night Broadcastig House was bombed by the Germans in 1941, is the latest addition to this year's summer theatre company.

It will be recalled on the particular night that a bomb explosion was heard over the air, followed by a short pause, and then Mr. Belfrage continued reading the news without further interruption.

The morning newspapers reported that the Germans had scored a direct hit on the BBC during the evening newscast, and although water poured through the ceiling and down the walls into the studio, the announcer had remained at his microphone.

For this, Mr. Belfrage was later decorated with the OBE. In addition to his radio work Mr. Belfrage has played in many London stage productions, and appeared in a number of British films before coming to Canada last year.

The program is: For week of June 21, Peg Of My Heart; June 28. A Lady Mislaid; July 5, Rain; July 12, Love's A Luxury; July 19, The Whiteheaded Boy; July 26, Come Back, Little Sheba; August 2, Nothing But The Truth; Aug. 9, Fly Away Peter; Aug. 16, I Killed The Count; Aug. 23, The Eagle Has Two Heads; Aug. 30, My Wife's Family; Sept. 6, To Dorothy, A Son.

Nurse Appointed

The island has been without the services of a public nurse for the last few years.

Cavan Gets Tough On Taxes, Takes Steps Improve Roads

CAVAN (ENS)—At the May meeting of Cavan township council A. V. Thorn, collector of rates, reported that $1121.55 had been collected last month, and several others in arrears had paid this month.

A motion was passed that these letters, should be acknowledged by council; and that those taxpayers who had not written in reply to council's request that they make arrangements for payment of arrears, should have further action taken against them to collect back taxes.

Reeve Lloyd Hooton reported that council had met with South Cavan Area school board last Saturday evening in S.S. No. 12, Cedar Valley School. On looking further into plans the board felt now that they would be able to build a new school for less money than the price they had quoted to council previously.

A motion carried to add two clauses to the draft of a building by-law. One was to the effect that no ground in the township should be used as a wrecking place without first obtaining permission from council.

The second was that the use of prefabricated chimneys should be allowed to be used in buildings, if the chimneys are set on the ground. The committee is to add to these clauses before sending the by-law in to the municipal board for approval.

ROAD REPAIRS

A motion was passed also to have the road superintendent get an estimate from Mr. Marston, district engineer, concerning the proposed work on the west end of Zion line near the Marsh school. Several complaints had been received at last month's meeting about the condition of this piece of road. If the cost of repairing the road is not too high, with Mr. Marston's approval, work is to be started on the road as soon as possible.

Messrs. J. White and A. Stewart were a delegation to council asking that the [illegible] and culvert on the Cavan - Manvers boundary near Mr. Bigelow's gate should be changed. The council thought that Cavan and Manvers councils should meet with the district engineer, Mr. Marston, to discuss this piece of construction.

A motion was carried to have a contract drawn up between Albert Olan who is operating a warble fly sprayer for the cattle in the township, and the township of Cavan.

The reeve declared Wednesday, June 9th, a public school holiday throughout the township of Cavan to allow school children to attend the spring show in Millbrook.

Accounts totalling $2888.91 were voted paid of which the largest items were to the treasurer of roads pay roll and workers $2146.40; $211.13 for hospitalization to the United counties for indigent patients; and a $200 grant to the Millbrook Agricultural Society.

Sudden Quiet

EAST GRINSTEAD, Eng. (CP)—Rev. G. Golding-Bird explained why the church bells in this Surrey district stopped suddenly in mid-peal: "One of the bellringers had rheumatism."

Experts Attend Weed Meeting

"You don't need to worry about the noxious weed crop, or whether they're going to have a good season," M. H. Johnston, county weed inspector, remarked Tuesday.

"If they're perennials they'll rise up again, and if they are annuals they got their seeding done last fall. Nature has a way of looking after them, and if the sun isn't shining they keep on growing just the same, while a lot of folks are wondering whether they're ever going to get their crop in."

Mr. Johnston took off this morning with T. C. Paterson for a weed control conference at Newmarket, due there at 10 a.m. The program continues in the afternoon featured by a panel discussion.

The Department directed considerable attention to this anti-weed rally today. It was a fresh call to action throughout Central Ontario counties, realizing that the curled dock and ragweed, the spurge and Queen Anne's lace are on the march again. Before long they will be in flower and seed once more.

The weed control forces are getting a re-briefing at Newmarket, stressing the fact that their job is never done whether the season is late or early, sunny or cloudy.

35 Members Attend Mission Band Meeting

SPRINGVILLE (ENS) — Springville Mission Band met at the home of Neal Robson and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Robson, Highway 28. Thirty-five boys and girls were present.

The worship theme centred around the commandment, "Honor thy father and thy mother". Edith Lillico read the scripture, Donna Murphy led in prayer and Nancy Johnston read a poem. The band sang a hymn. This part of the meeting closed with a friendship circle, Lords Prayer, Mission Band and a motion song.

Nelson Northey read a temperance poem. Donna Northey gave the treasurer's report and the offering was taken by Donald Deyell and dedicated with a hymn.

The older members, with Mrs. Clifford Johnston as leader, studied a chapter from the study book, "Missionaries in Mexico." The smaller members, with Mrs. Carlisle Murray, Mrs. Cecil Neals and Mrs. Wiliam Robson as instructors, did handwork and took home Easter lilies to their mothers.

Karen and Debby Dunford and Neal Robson served lunch.

McCarthy Issue Apears Headed For Night Session Debates

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate investigators today appeared headed toward a night-session effort to speed up the McCarthy-Army inquiry after futile efforts Tuesday to telescope the televised testimony.

Chairman Karl Mundt (Rep.-S.D.) called the investigations subcommittee into closed session to discuss a motion by Senator Henry Dworshak (Rep. Idaho) forafter-dinner sessions. Of the four Republican and three Democratic members, only Senator Everett Dirksen (Rep. Ill.) has been holding out against such a move.

Mundt and Ray H. Jenkins, special sub-committee counsel, declined to say in advance who would be called at today's public session, but the general assumption was that it would be army counsel John G. Adams.

Adams is a principal with Army Secretary Robert T. Stevens in charging that Senator McCarthy and two aides brought pressure on them to get favored military treatment for a former sub-committee consultant, Pte. G. David Schine.

A McCARTHY TARGET

Adams also is a principal target for the Wisconsin Republican Senator's counter-charges that Stevens and his aides used Schine as a "hostage" in efforts to get the McCarthy sub-committee to drop or divert its search for subversives in the United States Army. McCarthy normally is chairman of the sub-committee, but has stepped off it for this inquiry.

In a rough-and-tumble session which produced no testimony but only lengthy discussion of how to limit future testimony, the committee slapped down a proposal by Dirksen to call McCarthy to the stand and recess public sessions after completing his questioning.

Mundt helped the Democrats scuttle that proposal after Stevens sent word that he considered the proposal would "not result in fairness."

The committee also killed, on a party-line vote, a proposal by Senator John McClellan (Dem. Ark.) to limit the questioning of witnesses drastically, but to hear publicly all of the principals in the case.

ASKS NIGHT SESSIONS

The upshot was Dworshak's motion for a two-hour hearing nightly, which produced a reaction from Senator Henry Jackson (Dem. Wash.) that seemed to express general sentiment:

"I'm going to move my bed over here."

Stevens was excused from the stand Tuesday when it developed that he had been suffering from a virus infection, but McCarthy said Stevens "will be back" for later questioning.

Dirksen, asked by reporters whether he had given up trying to get an agreement to shorten hearings, replied: "I don't give up very easily. I will be giving it some thought."

Dworshak said "we have been in continuous session for 14 days and we have succeeded in accomplishing practically nothing."

Credit Trading Suggested

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canadian Exporters' Association proposed today that Canada provide the United Kingdom and other overseas countries with long-term credit as a means to expand exports vital to Canadian prosperity.

The association, whose members ship some $4,000,000,000 worth of goods a year, urged also that Canada and the United States promote commodity trade pacts, guaranteeing prices and markets for basic goods produced by underdeveloped countries.

These and such other proposals to provide tax-free goods for tourists, tax relief on foreign investment profits, lower freight charges to seaports and broader government insurance on export risks formed part of a seven-point program prepared for submission to the Senate trade relations committee.

The committee, investigating ways to strengthen the economic side of the North Atlantic treaty, received a five-man delegation headed by S. A. MacKay-Smith of Ottawa, association president.

WANT CONVERTIBILITY

Mr. MacKay-Smith, in his brief, said the association agrees with proposals to remove import barriers, ease monetary curbs and hasten the advance towards convertibility of currency.

Most sterling-area countries have said large-scale imports from Canada would injure their international financial structure. Some of the claims had been "exaggerated" but the fact remained that many of the countries are not prepared to enlarge purchases from Canada.

To help offset this, the association suggested "Canada should be prepared to grant long-term credits to countries prepared to enlarge the list of Canadian products which can be imported on open general licence."

CONTROLLED BY CANADA

These credits would be similar to long-term loans. They would be earmarked for specific countries and specific purposes and thus the ultimate use of the dollars would be under Canadian government control.

At home, the big problem was to overcome mounting costs of labor and production which were pricing many Canadian goods out of world markets.

Government and trade bodies should strive to inform labor unions of the consequences of "constant wage increases" on production costs and to call attention to the importance of exports to the economy—"an importance which seems to be entirely overlooked by our labor leaders."

Recruiting Unit Seeking Men To Join Navy

Have you felt that you might like to join the Navy, but not quite knowing what you might be getting into?

Until Tuesday, four naval officers will be setting up headquarters at the armories. These officers, two lieutenants and two petty officers under Lt. James Thornton [illegible] N.B. are members of the mobile recruiting unit seeking young men from Ontario and western Quebec.

Naval careers are open to young men with a minimum of grade 8 education who wish to apprentice as seamen, bandsmen, cooks, stewards, communicators, engineers or electrical workers. Age limits are from 17 to 26, though for special trades the age limit may be raised to 29.

This year, however, the Navy is offering more than this. A special program has been developed whereby approved young men with junior matriculation can become officers without UNTD training and without attempting the painfully slow rise through the ranks.

Young men of 16 to 19 who sign for a seven-year stretch, and have proper qualifications, may be posted to Esquimault, B.C., for a two-year course. They then become midshipmen, after their education has been raised to officer standards. After another 14 months of sea and land training, they become acting sub-lieutenants, then continue their training under the regular officer-training plan.

The other young men who join the navy can expect to be sworn in Peterborough, so that proud parents can see a boy become a sailor. After three to five days at HMCS York in Toronto, they move to HMCS Cornwallis in Halifax for training in gunnery, seamanship, damage control, etc.

After the Cornwallis training seamen join their ships and others join schools. Starting pay is $92 a month, $55 for the officer cadets at Esquimault.

Striking Seamen Receive No Union Support

MONTREAL (CP) — Striking crew members of the British freighters Cibou and Shelldrake learned by a telegram Tuesday they will have no support from their union—the National Union of Seamen of Great Britain—in their fight for higher wages.

The 30-man Cibou crew struck Monday partly to enforce their own wage demands and partly in sympathy with the 18 Shelldrake seamen, arrested two days previously for allegedly refusing their captain's orders to put to sea.

A spokesman for the Cibou men—aboard the cold, unlit collier—said they had only $3 among them and some had not eaten since Monday night. Captain D. S. Whittet, acting in the interests of the shipowners, locked up the Cibou's food supplies and ordered the boilers closed down.

"We'd all be better off in jail," the crew's spokesman said, "but the company has decided to wait until a verdict is returned in the Shelldrake case." He said the union's telegram indicated it had "washed its hands off the Shelldrake affair."

PAID $90 A MONTH

British seamen are paid less than $90 a month compared to union [illegible] for Canadian seamen.

The Shelldrake and Cibou ply Canadian coastal waters during the summer, and crewmen claimed they cannot live at Canadian price levels and maintain their families in Britain.

The Shelldrake's crew appeared briefly in court Tuesday and the case was postponed until today at the request of their lawyer.

STAND "ILLOGICAL"

LONDON (Reuters) — Crew of two British ships in Montreal striking for Canadian pay rates while trading in Canadian waters have taken an "illogical" stand, a union official said here today.

Tom Yates, 58, general secretary of the National Union of Seamen, said the situation goes beyond his union's jurisdiction.

"How can we support them?" he asked. "A seaman signs a contract in this country and his wages and conditions are based upon the economy of this country."

He denied the union had sent a cable to the Cibou strikers suggesting that the union had "washed their hands of the Shelldrake case and doesn't want anything to do with it."

But he said he sent this telegram to the men: "Carry out the conditions of the contract you have signed. Failure to do so will have serious consequences not only upon yourselves but upon all British shipping trading in these waters."

YMCA Official Addresses Springville YPU

SPRINGVILLE (ENS)—An address that will linger long in the memories of the young people was given by Jim McClenaghan of the Peterborough YMCA at the annual banquet of Springville YPU in the Sunday school auditorium of the church.

Bryce Larke, president, was in the chair. George Bedford led the service of song, with Don Timmins at the piano.

After the toast to The Queen, Betty McIndoo proposed the toast to the Church and the Rev. A. E. Larke responded. The toast to the Girls was proposed by Graham Lowes with response by Joan Dunn. The toast to the Boys was proposed by Mary Waterman and responded to by Jim Seymour.

In an address spiced with illustrations from science and missions and full of catchy phrases, Mr. McClenaghan held the rapt attention of the young people as he pointed out "Our Need for Enthusiasm for God in Our Lives."

EAR TO GROUND

Fifty H-bombs strategically placed, he said, could destroy all life on the earth for a thousand years. Put your ear to the ground and you can hear the rumbles of things to come he said. Girls will be able to cook meals weeks in advance and then freeze them until ready to serve them.

Elijah and Jonah he characterized as members of a sit-downers' club. They didn't do what they should do at the time, but later came back and did it.

"An atheist is one who has no invisible means of support," he said. "A Christian has an invisible means of support."

Citing the case of George Washington Carver, that great Negro who did so much for his fellow countrymen when he found so many uses for the lowly peanut, Mr. McClenaghan said, "He gave all credit to God."

J. Arthur Rank, the great motion picture enthusiast, started work with God. "All things work together for good to them who love the Lord," was his motto.

We should never doubt it; for our disappointments may be God's appointments. He told of one who was a failure as a teacher but as a preacher he was one of the finest and most sincere.

ISSUES CHALLENGE

He challenged the young people to "kill" with kindness, not expecting gratitude in return. Samuel Levinter, a criminal lawyer, saved 78 persons from the electric chair and none even thanked him. Jesus cleansed ten lepers and only one returned to thank Him.

Enthusiasm is necessary for good health and for business success, said Mr. McClenaghan. Depression causes poor circulation. The bird is the happiest of God's creation.

Mr. McClenaghan told of an American who went to France as a salesman. He knew little of the French language but he memorized a sales talk and was able to make a $5,000 salary. He was enthusiastic and made the best use of what knowledge he had.

He quoted the message of the Laodiceans from Revelation: "Because thou art lukewarm and neither hot or cold, I will spue thee out of my mouth."

"We must be for or against Christ," he said, "there is no middle way."

Bryce Larke, president, thanked all those who had helped make the banquet a success and Mr. McClenaghan.

High Loan Rates Bother Parliament

OTTAWA (CP)—The plight of the little man of Canada, the one who sometimes must pay exceedingly high rates for a small loan, has struck the conscience of Parliament.

But despite the pleading of legislators for help, bankers cannot seem to agree on a line of action that would provide the thousands of small borrowers with loans at acceptable rates.

Neil McKinnon, general manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce outlined before the Commons banking committee Tuesday a proposal for providing loans for the first time on television sets, radios and other chattel mortgages. The maximum loan would be $3,500.

But the point some parliamentarians found hard to accept was that lending rates would be doubled to 12 per cent a year from six. Mr. McKinnon said small loans companies charge up to 24 per cent a year and that his own bank, despite the Bank Act's six-per-cent lending rate ceiling, has been charging about 10.46 per cent for the last 18 years.

And though C. F. Elderkin, inspector-general of banks, assured the committee that the Bank of Commerce method of operations are legal, Solon Low, Social Credit leader, suggested the justice department be called to make a final ruling on the legality issue.

Adding to the entanglement was the view expressed by T. H. Atkinson, president of the Canadian Bankers' Association, that the establishment of two lending rates: one at six per cent and one at 12, might make it a little tougher for Canadians to get loans at the lower rate.

Some bank managers had discussed Mr. McKinnon's proposals and there had been varying opinions on their merits, he said. But his own view is that some branch managers might boost customers who formerly got six-per-cent loans into the 12-per-cent bracket.

Chairman David Croll (L—Toronto Spadina) said he was "shocked" by Mr. Atkinson's remarks. It meant that the public could not expect a fair deal from the managers.

Mr. Atkinson in turn said he was "shocked" by Mr. Croll's inference from his remarks. He was merely trying to give the committee a "realistic appraisal." His own bank, the Royal Bank of Canada, provided small loans at six per cent.

Mr. McKinnon said his bank had obtained a legal opinion that loans at 10.46 per cent were legal, but counsel for the Royal Bank had given a contrary view.

Newfoundland Complimented Drama Display

HAMILTON, Ont. (CP) — The second-night audience at the Dominion Drama Festival Tuesday night gave a rousing welcome to Newfoundland's Northcliffe Drama Club that competed in the festival for the first time with the entry, 'Juno and The Paycock."

Adjudicator Hugh Hunt, associated with the Abbey Theatre in Dublin for four years, found the performance convincing. The actors had caught much of the mercurical Irish character.

"Juno" is the tragedy of an Irish Dublin tenement family during the revolution of 1922. It portrays the breakdown of the Boyles, as the son Johnny who has been wounded in the revolution turns traitor and is shot, and the daughter Mary brings disgrace to her family when she is seduced by a villainous Englishman.

"The play is one of deep humanity," Mr. Hunt said. "Its message is embodied in the words of Juno the mother in the last act when she says, take away our hearts of stone and give us hearts of flesh."

The adjudicator said the play is one of the greatest to come out of Ireland. It is a folk play. A play of the simple real people and as such is difficult to perform.

IMPERCEPTIBLE DIRECTION

Mr. Hunt said the direction must be imperceptible. The Northcliffe group's director had happily left the actors to build their own characters according to their understanding of the play.

He praised the group for authenticity in setting and dress and lauded the performances of Clifford Allen and Estelle Wall as the Paycock and Juno.

Paycock, he said, was "extremely well done," and Juno was played with a fine sense of reality and sympathy.

But he criticized the company for missing two important climaxes, in the party scene of the second act and again in the funeral sequence which ends act two.

More Sympathy Needed For Immigrants

QUEBEC (CP)—A French-speaking newspaper editor from Ottawa said Tuesday Roman Catholic Quebec can surely do a great more than it has done until now in favor of Catholic immigrants."

Camille L'Heureux, editor of the Ottawa Le [illegible] made the statement in a[illegible]ss to the second annual meeting of the French-speaking section of the Roman Catholic welfare conference.

Inactivity of French - speaking Canadians in the immigration field said Mr. L'Heureux, is "a scandal" compared with what Protestant groups are doing.

There were groups in French Canada which had understood the need for a human attitude toward immigrants. The welfare conference was one "shining example." Public opinion here had evolved in the right direction and the French-speaking press had shown, in general, "great sympathy for New Canadians."

"But unfortunately we find among many persons, even among those who are in a position to have better understanding, an attitude of apathy, indifference, exaggerated individualism, isolation and sometimes of hostility or false nationalism," he said.

Rev. Lawrence Norman took as his text "How shall we order the child, and how shall we do unto him?" "In His wisdom God has made us grow up in families, where we learn the power and nature of love which is the reflection of His love for us.

Christian homes and families who practice the Christian way of living together need, he said, to be multiplied around the world As families we must be constantly asking God's guidance to show us our part in making an abundant life possible. Train up a child in the way he should go in his youth and when he is old he will not depart from it."

During the service, Lynda Marie Neals, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Preston Neals was baptized.

Man Fined $200 Keeping Liquor For Sale

LINDSAY (ENS) — Roland Faiers, Fowler's Corners, was Monday fined $200 and costs of $26.50 when he was convicted by Magistrate R. I. Moore of keeping liquor for sale at his residence, just west of Fowler's Corners, on Highway 7.

The charge was laid by provincial police following a raid on May 2, the result of information received from Lindsay police. Lindsay police arrested a Lindsay man May 2 in possession of two bottles of whiskey which he claimed to have bought at the Fowler's Corners house the previous evening.

The home was placed under observation by Cpl. Ken Denniss and two constables of the Lindsay OPP the next night. When a taxi from Lindsay brought a fare out to the residence as a customer, they closed in after Faiers brought two bottles of wine from the house in answer to a request from the cab driver.

According to the officer's evidence, Faiers handed over the liquor to Cpl. Denniss while the other officers took the money from the prospective customer in the car.

Further search revealed three more bottles of wine under a case in the yard of the farm home. All were wrapped in paper. The evidence also showed that a case from the wine and an empty beer case were also hidden in the woodshed at the rear of the home.

The first witness for the Crown was the Lindsay man from whom the information had first been obtained leading to the raid. Under rigorous cross-examination by Faiers, however, he admitted he could not be sure of his identification of Faiers made during his trial earlier.

After hearing the evidence of the officers which also included the introduction of sales slips from Peterborough liquor and beer retail stores from March 2 until May, Faiers said he would plead guilty to the keeping for sale charge, but not to selling the liquor.

Faiers might have completed the transaction at the time of the raid, the officers said, but he "spotted" Cpl. Denniss as he went to his customer.

Magistrate Moore imposed the fine despite Faiers' request for a light levy, and set default at three months. Faiers' residence was also declared a public place for one year.

Man Pleads Guilty To Arson; No Memory of Fire

Gratton Harris, 51, of 369 Princess St. pleaded guilty to a charge of arson in county court today but said he did not recollect attempting to set fire to the Coronation Inn on the west side of Queen St. in Lakefield on the night of November 29, a Sunday.

A metal-polisher at CGE, Harris purchased the business in January of last year and sold it at the end of March this year. While he was working at CGE during the day, the Lakefield business was operated by his wife. Harris worked there in the evenings and on weekends.

Having bought the business to have a source of income when he retired in about 10 years, Harris told the court it kept him so busy he didn't even have time to read the paper. He realized his health was failing last summer.

"I got awful tired and never seemed to get my proper rest at night," Harris said.

DID LITTLE DAMAGE

On the Friday night before the fire, which did less than $40 damage before being extinguished by the Lakefield fire department, Harris clocked out of the CGE at 5 p.m. His memory of what occurred after that was a blank until he found himself in the Ontario Hospital in Kingston and he wondered where he was.

Harris said he hadn't been worried about the financial end of the business. His defence counsel, Robert Carley, said the profits had been sufficient to pay off a $2,000 chattel mortgage on the contents of the building. Harris rented the premises and sublet two upstairs apartments.

"I guess there was just too much work all round," Harris said. "My wife did a lot of unnecessary worrying and worried others."

The hearing, before Judge John de N. Kennedy, was held without a jury and was adjourned until Thursday pending the presentative of medical evidence.

Chief Constable Price Morris of Lakefield produced pictures in evidence to show that matches had been placed on the smokestack of the automatic furnace to ignite a trail of matches and paper leading towards the wall.

A cleaning solvent can, half-filled with what was believed to have been gasoline was found tipped on its side with the cap loose. Some scrap lumber was found in the well of the cellar window.

It was believed, Chief Morris said, that when the furnace started, the heat of the smoke stack would ignite the matches.

GOOD REPUTATION

Several witnesses, including Chief Morris, gave evidence of Harris' previous good reputation for integrity and hard work. All said they were surprised when they heard that Harris had been connected with the incident. Crown Attorney John A. Bradshaw, QC, did not contest any of the character evidence.

Wilfred Dean, a Thornhill feed merchant, said he had been acquainted with Harris for eight or nine years through his work in a fraternal organization. He had gained the respect of the members of the lodge in which he had held high office. He seemed enthusiastic in the community service work of the lodge, which included work among juveniles.

Detective-sergeant John Stevenson of the Peterborough police department said he had been a neighbor of Harris for 20 years and he was highly respected in the neighborhood. He had been very interested in boys' projects, especially hockey.

"There was a lot of comment that he was working too hard and there would be a breakdown of some type," the detective said.

"Would you consider him a good, above-average, law-abiding citizen?" Mr. Carley asked.

"I certainly would," answered the detective. He said he was "stunned" when he heard of the fire.

Arthur Smith of the CGE personnel department said he was "astounded" when he heard the news. Harris was considered a "class-A man." He "definitely felt there was something bothering Mr. Harris before this happened."

Arthur Padgett, a foreman in the CGE switchgear department, said he had known Harris for 19 years through playing baseball and fraternally. Harris had been instrumental in organizing and operating a Junior hockey team. He had "put everything he had" into his voluntary service work.

"I have other witnesses; I could call 100," Mr. Carley said when the crown attorney said there was no question of Harris' character reputation.

Harris, when he took the stand, said he had spent 54 days in the Ontario Hospital and had returned to work at CGE on February 22. He was able to do his work satisfactorily as long as he got lots of sleep. He had been advised by his doctor to get rid of his Lakefield business, which was sold at the end of March.

Two doctors from the Ontario Hospital were unable to give medical evidence for Harris today. Judge Kennedy was unable to grant bail during the adjournment in view of Harris' plea of guilty.

Walter Dinesen New President Of Film Council

With 90 members in attendance, the meeting was the best in the council's history. Although total membership for the year of 198 was slightly less than preceeding years, it is considered above average considering that the Peterborough county film council, initiated about a year and a half ago, now consists of many former city members.

Other executive members elected are: hon. presidents, Mayor Norman Graham and Dr. J. J. Craig; vice-presidents, D. R. McGregor; secretary-treasurer, W. L. Graff; film librarian, Mrs. Q. McKinney; and directors, June Fraser, Mrs. Gord Longhorne, Victor N. Barry, Lewis Bird, Joseph Cooper, Fred Flaherty, Donald Loucks, James Moloney, Rev. Lloyd Shorten, Mrs. Lloyd Raper, Hazel Wilson and Russ Baer.

Since last September 38 projection operations have been trained, 10 new films, a new projection operators have been purchased by the council. There have been 978 showings, and 2,013 films circulated to a total audience of nearly 95,000 people. There has been an average attendance of 72 at the past nine public meetings of the council.

The Rev. Lloyd Shorten led a discussion on the film "Neighbours", produced by Norman McLaren. Other films screened included the British Academy award winner "The Romance of Travel".

Honeymoon Delay Husband In Jail

A week ago, her 20-year-old husband left her after the wedding ceremony to drive home and pick up his clothes.

But he was arrested and charged with dangerous driving. Police said he was travelling 60 miles an hour without lights through heavy traffic. Pleading guilty, McFarland said a fuse had blown.

Tuesday, Cooksville magistrate K. L. Langdon delayed the honeymoon for at least another week when he remanded McFarland in custody.

The bride, watching in the court room, wept silently as he was led away.

Sues Couple For $2,222 Claims Owing

Frank A. Montgomery of 701 Stewart St. a warehouseman, is suing an Oshawa district couple in Supreme Court for $2,222.65 plus interest and costs of the action.

Montgomery claims the money is owing on two promissory notes that Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Chambers of RR 1 Oshawa gave to the Imperial Bank on June 20, 1951, and which he guaranteed.

In February 1949 the Chambers were running a business, the Peterborough Fur Coat Storage. They leased vault space at 124 Robinson St. for their business of selling furs and storing them.

SIGNED NOTES

Montgomery said in court today that he originally guaranteed a bank overdraft of $2,000 (later increased to $3,000, but only $2,000 was used). In subsequent financial dealings Mr. and Mrs. Chambers signed promissory notes of $1,054.40 and $1,180.33.

He said the Chambers paid only a small amount and he had to make good the rest to the Imperial Bank. So he started the legal action against them.

In cross-examination, the defendants' counsel, J. M. Greer, suggested that Montgomery hadn't lived up to the terms of the agreement. He had put a new combination lock on the vault containing the fur coats and Mrs. Chambers didn't know the combination.

However, she was never refused admitance, Montgomery said.

The Chambers in their counterclaim are asking $5,000 damages and an accounting of the records and monies of their business transactions with Montgomery.

At the morning session Montgomery was in the witness box. His counsel is John Corkery.

The non-jury Supreme Court sittings are being presided over by Mr. Justice King. The case is continuing.

CREDIT TO THE SCHOOL—Inspecting officer, Col. John A. Dewart, today told the Kenner Collegiate Cadet corps it was a credit to the school today after its second annual inspection. In altering downpours and bright skies the corps went through the ceremonial and displays, finishing soaking wet. With the sun shining brightly the color party (top photo) passes the reviewing stand and spectators. Five minutes later the rains came but spectators like Ruth Gall, Carole Ellison and Joan Guthrie stayed on for the show sharing the few raincoats. (Examiner Staff Photos)

Kenner Cadets March In Rain

Service above and beyond the call of duty by cadets, reviewing officers, mothers, girl friends, civilian officials and reporters was performed at Kenner collegiate this morning. Occasion was the second annual parade of the Kenner cadet corps, commanded by Lt. Col. Ted Spearin.

Rain teemed during most of this morning's inspection, reviewed by Col. John A. Dewart. Cadets and officers, however, were unfazed by the weather and one platoon, the seconds of A Company, was good enough to receive an award as the best platoon on the parade square. It was donated by the PCVS cadet corps and presented to platoon commander, Lt. Bill Bullied, by PCVS principal C. S. Browne.

GREAT IMPROVEMENT

The Kenner corps is sure to proceed "to bigger and better things," said Col. Dewart, as the regiment was formed in a hollow square at the end of the morning's ceremonies. Col. Dewart said he was especially pleased, inasmuch as this is only the second year of the regiment's existence. A "remarkable improvement" has taken place since 1953, and "all cadets are to be congratulated."

Col. Dewart's words of praise were echoed by Lt. H. E. Done, cadet training officer for this area. The "diligence and ability" of the corps had resulted in "tremendous improvement" which could not have been achieved "without the full co-operation of all cadets."

Also on the reviewing stand with these two were Dr. E. P. Ray, principal of Kenner; Charles Huffman, chairman of the board of education; Capt. John Londerville, liasion officer between the 50th Heavy AA regiment and the Peterborough cadets corps, and Capt. A. J. Noftall, Kenner teacher in charge of the corps with Lt. Col. Spearin.

After the general salute and corps inspection, cadets looked particularly smart in a march past, first in close column of platoons, then in column of route. After an advance in review order and another general salute, the colors were marched off.

It was then that the rain was heaviest. Skies poured buckets as the Union Jack hung limply. Commanding the color party was Lt. Ron Ward.

Skies lightened somewhat as second-in-command Major Bob Druery adjourned the corps to various displays of martial skills. Three platoons of A company, the Grade 9 group, presented field-craft displays, while some B company cadets showed their talents in map-reading and in Bren gun operation.

Bren guns were manned by a squad of 6th platoon cadets under Sgt. Michael Robinson. Hovering in the background was recreation director Ken Robinson, Michael's father.

The boys have never actually fired these Bren guns, Lt. Col. Spearin told The Examiner, although they could. Cadet groups may go to Cobourg or Camp Borden and use such guns, although the Lindsay corps is the only group to avail itself of this opportunity this year.

Also on hand this morning was the PCVS cadet corps band. They led the cadets into the marches past the reviewing stand.

TWO COMPANIES

The Kenner corps is composed of two companies, each with two platoons. Major ranks are listed below.

Commanding officer. Lt. Col. Ted Spearin; 2IC, Major Bob Druery; Adjutant, Capt. Jerome Montgomery; RSM, John Chesney; RQMS, F. Ball.

$10 Million May Be Invested In Bancroft Uranium Area

Probably $10 million dollars will be spent in the Bancroft area in the next two years, as estimated in a newspaper survey of possibilities of development of uranium prospects and properties.

Its heading affirms that "U-308 is now big business, and $550 million is likely to be expended" in the next few years to reach the sage of production.

The reference to Bancroft is in part as follows: "One operation appears now to be assured of future production. That is the Centre Lake property which has completed sales arrangements under satisfactory terms. It is now undergoing accelerated underground development, but ore-dressing plans are not yet finished.

"Operators in the area have been actively entertaining the idea of a central ore-dressing plant. If this is carried out, pre-production investment for Centre Lake would be fairly limited. However, should Centre Lake be faced with the job of its own plant, a bill of about $5 is expected.

"Adjoining Centre Lake is the Croft company, being developed under sponsorship. Macassa Mines. Operations are not as advanced as at Centre Lake, but the Croft appears headed for production. Costs would be about the same as at Centre Lake.

"Bancroft is an active exploration spot with about ten drilling rigs in operation. Two properties are considering underground programs—the Faraday and the Dyno. With this work it is possible that some $750,000 on exploration could be poured into the district over the remainder of the year and into early 1955."

Fire Discovered While Family Away From Home

Fire of unknown origin at the home of Donald Smith, Highland Rd., was discovered at 10 a.m. today by neighbors. The fire department sent a pumper and when Chief William Sorrie arrived smoke was seeping out from under the roof shingles. Flames were also visible through the windows.

Mrs. Smith and their daughter are visiting at Brighton for a few days and Mr. Smith has been supervising an insulating job at Victoria church, Prince Edward county, since Monday, James C. McKenzie, his employer, said.

Smith had been working for his firm for the past week. He returned to the city Tuesday evening and was at the house.

The fire, firemen believe, had been smouldering for some time. It was in the central stairwell where the fire started.

Smoke and water damage to the entire house was extensive.

Mr. Smith had been employed in the advertising department of The Examiner until very recently.

While the new look is being applied, the daily business of the bank will proceed without interruption.

Entomologist Speaks At Marmora

MARMORA (ENS) — Dr. H. L. House of the entomology division with the department of agriculture, Belleville, was guest speaker at a meeting of the Marmora district Chamber of Commerce held at the Royal hotel on Monday.

The speaker discussed the habits and users of bees which, he said, had never been domesticated by Man. Left to follow its own inclinations the bees proved more valuable.

The honey bee was described as a native of Europe and the most common variety in Canada was the Italian bee. Dr. House also described several dances or motions followed by bees when they directed their working mates to heavy nectar areas.

Reeve C. H. Buskard of Deloro, who had just returned from a trip to Brazil, was asked by president Floyd Loveless, to give members a description of his journey.

Mr. Buskard said that he had flown a total of 14,000 miles since leaving Canada and had had the wonderful experience of looking down on New York and Rio-de-Janeiro at night.

After visiting several coffee areas in Brazil, the reeve thought that any coffee shortage would be felt in Canada when next year's imports began to arrive.

He said that he had spent quite some time in the San Paolo region. From here across the mountains to Rio were massive groves of wild bananas and cultivated areas on the heights where oranges were grown.

Around San Paolo no houses could be built except from brick with all kitchens and bathrooms tiled, continued the speaker, who added that he considered every make of automobile in the world was represented in Brazil.

Following dinner the meeting heard reports read by executive members.

Alex Fraser reported about school ground improvements and said that a special committee had met the Home and School Association and the property committee of Marmora Public School Board and found both most cooperative. The fence near the highway is being erected and swings and other pleasures for the children were to be put up.

Ralph Neal briefly reported for the parking committee, intimating that he had been in touch with the village council which was prepared to give his ideas consideration later.

For the water and sewerage committee, H. A. McNally gave a short report. He said that the committee had met the village council as desired, and he had asked that Reeve Ritchie Wells discuss the matter of the joint consultations on the water works project.

The reeve referred to the survey made last year when it was found impossible to do anything. That was what influenced the council to call for an expression of opinions from the chamber of commerce. "The proper time to start the project," he said, "is now."

It was stated that the municipal board had ruled that a vote of the ratepayers should come first. Difficulty was being experienced in getting a true figure of estimates with the present uncertainty of those favouring the proposal. Mr. McNally felt there was no possible hope of putting in both water and sewerage with the tax rate as it was.

Discussing the project, past president Ralph Neal enquired if it would be possible to have a representative of the department come down and inspect the local situation.

The matter was left for the committee to make further negotiations with the council

The committee for tourist development was advised of leaflets ready for distribution. Mr. R. G. Walsh of the membership committee stated he believed the increase of membership was still continuing.

Solon Low Has New Plan Help Economy

OTTAWA (CP) — Solon Low, Social Credit leader, Tuesday night outlined what he described as a plan for providing the Canadian economy with a "fast pick-up and effective four-wheel brakes" to keep it out of depression trouble.

This would involve turning over to the consumers a "carefully calculated" amount of new purchasing power made available to the government by the Bank of Canada.

This limited volume of new money, carefully regulated to prevent inflation, would be distributed in the form of higher old age pensions, blind pensions, family and war veterans allowances equal to available surplus production of goods and services, Mr. Low said.

His speech was prepared for delivery over the CBC's free-time political broadcast, The Nation's Business.

Similar proposals were made before the commerce banking committee by Lucien Maynard, Alberta's attorney-general.

Hangman To Talk With Committee

OTTAWA (CP)—Justice Minister Garson said Tuesday automatic commutation of the death penalty when juries recommend mercy for murder in effect would give juries the discretion to impose or withhold capital punishment.

The procedure and factors entering automatic consideration of commutations of the death penalty in murder cases were described by Mr. Garson to the Commons-Senate committee on capital punishment.

The committee, studying whether the Criminal Code's sections on capital punishment should be amended, was informed at the same time that the only executioner in Canada is willing to appear as a witness under certain unnamed circumstances.

The offer will be considered today at a meeting of the subcommittee which prepares the 27-member committee's schedule.

The hangman's identity is secret.

Floor Prices Urged For Cereal Grains

In a submission to the Commons agriculture committee, the council asked that the federal treasury support prices for the next crop year at these minimums: Wheat, $1.50 a bushel; barley, 90 cents; oats, 60 cents.

The council, representing farm groups in Ontario and the four western provinces, said these figures should be guaranteed under the agricultural prices support act up to a quantity equal at least to the long-time average yield.

Magistrates To Decide On Radar Tests

TORONTO (CP)—Ontario magistrates will soon decide whether speeding motorists trapped by radar-equipped police patrol cars are actually guilty of speeding.

Ontario provincial police officials said the first road tests of two radar screens now being tested at the University of Toronto will be made within the next few weeks.

The first group of motorists caught by the equipment will be used to determine whether Canadian courts will accept the mechanical evidence as proof of speeding, police said.

OPP officials said 20 states in the United States now are using the equipment and that radar has reduced the accident toll wherever it has been used.

Ford Boosts Pension

WHITBY (CP)—Stephen Ferron of Toronto appeared in court Tuesday on a charge of failing to provide food for 50 ducks on a farm near Manchester, 10 miles northwest of Oshawa.

He pleaded not guilty and judgment was reserved for two weeks.

John Kusack, an inspector for the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, said he visited the farm in March and found nearly 100 dead ducks in the farm yard.

Ferron said the farm had been sold to another person last November.

Minister Denies Story Of Race

ST. THOMAS (CP) — Ontario Health Minister Phillips Tuesday denied press and radio reports he would race an ambulance today in a helicopter ride from the Parliament Buildings in Toronto to the site of the new Queensway Hospital in Etobicoke.

"I do not know who originated that story, but I have read it and heard it several times today and it is not true," he said.

He said he would like to see helicopter landing facilities on top of hospitals of the future.

Ambulances too often get held up in heavy traffic, he said. "Helicopter ambulances could avoid the traffic, would be less dangerous, and in highway crashes could bring victims to hospital a lot more quickly."

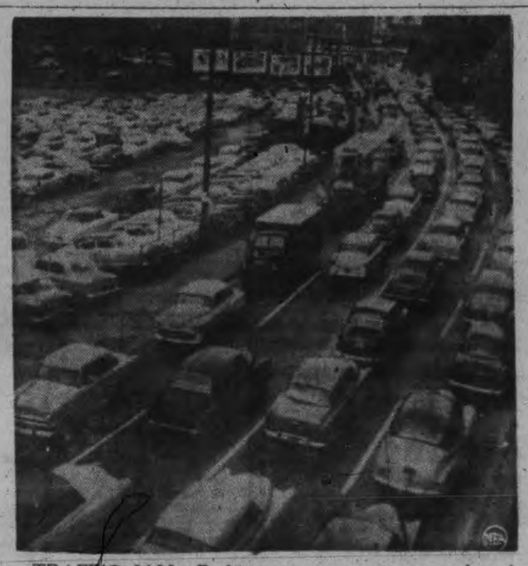
Two Firemen Killed

LONDON (Reuters)—Two firemen were killed and eight others were injured Tuesday when one of the biggest fires since the wartime air raids swept through a five-storey warehouse in Covent Garden, London's mammoth fruit and vegetable market. The blaze destroyed three-quarters of the building.



TRAFFIC JAM—Parking space was at a premium in downtown Pittsburgh, with traffic backed up for blocks, as a strike by bus and trolley operators forced commuters to find other means of transportation.

MOTHER OF HEROINE—Viscountess Germaine Oger De Gallard-Terraube studies a portrait of her daughter, Genevieve, in her Paris home. Genevieve, a 29-year-old French nurse, was the only woman who remained until the end in the besieged fortress of Dien Bien Phu when it fell to the Communist onslaught last week.

Religious Basis Said Needed Africa Education

HAVELOCK (ENS). — "Knowledge or Wisdom" was the title of the study from the book "Africa Steps Out," which was given by Mrs. R. Young at a meeting of St. John's WA held Tuesday afternoon.

It dealt with the growth of literacy in Africa and the difficulties to be faced in that task, one of the biggest being the language barrier.

There are four main language groups, and each of these groups has many different dialects, which though they may have originally had a common base have developed into different ways.

Through advisory councils, Mrs. Young said, representatives of the missions and the authorities try to keep a balance on the building of the schools so that there are not too many primary schools with not enough trained teachers or that subjects taught are not too much out of touch with the life that the children intend to lead.

TECHNICAL EMPHASIS

They try to emphasize techincal and agricultural subjects. For most areas girls' education lags behind that of the boys, but now special attention is being given to domestic science subjects.

There are now thousands of Africans who have learned to read and write but to what end they will use this new skill is the present problem. Only the man who puts service to others before self will be prepared to use his knowledge to serve his own people and this means, said Mrs. Young, that education must have a religious basis.

Mrs. H. W. Roche, the president, opened the meeting with the WA prayer. Mrs. L. H. Cooke read the scripture lesson. In the absence of Mrs. W. Woodbeck the secretary, Mrs. W. M. Campbell officiated in that office.

Arrangements were completed for the "Tulip Tea" to be held May 15.

Tractor Exports At New High Mark

LONDON (CP) — The British agricultural machinery industry, resurgent after a two-year depression, may hit record figures this year.

Britain has exported nearly 26,700 tractors in the first quarter, about 3,000 more than last year in the same period. Order books are reported full.

British farmers, who claim to be the most mechanized in the world, are estimated to own 400,000 tractors. Largest farm implement firm in Britain is Massey-Harris-Ferguson, formed last year by the merger of the Canadian company with inventor Harry Ferguson.

High School Student Admits Slaying 4-Year-Old Girl

DETROIT (AP) — An unemotional high school student told police Tuesday night he fatally beat and slashed a tiny four-year-old girl, but doesn't know why he did it.

Marion Jo Zobrovitz was found Tuesday by three playmates in a garage behind her home, her body torn and bleeding. She died in hospital after doctors fought four hours to save her.

Police said 15-year-old Terrence de Moss told them he had struck the girl with a two-by-four beam, then slashed her. The boy gave no reason for the attack.

De Moss is a juvenile under Michigan law and cannot be charged with a major crime in criminal court unless probate court waives its jurisdiction.

Mrs. Doris de Moss, his mother, told police that she knew her son was the slayer, but police arrived before she could call them.

In a formal statement to police, she said her son was fascinated by a newspaper account of the crime. She said he came home after school and went to the kitchen, where he tried to clean brown spots off his grey flannel trousers. He told her that a girl had spilled something at school.

Later, she told police, he went to a show with her and his brother, and when they got back home, he grabbed a newspaper and began to read the story of the fatal attack.

Mrs. de Moss said he told her that he had been at school, but she threatened to call his teacher. It was then that he broke down and said:

"I don't know why I did it."

Meanwhile police, acting on a tip from a policeman neighbor, had already headed for the home.

Police said the boy had been treated three times at the county child study clinic and had been arrested once for breaking and entering.

His mother told police he had suffered pneumonia when he was five and the result was abnormal height and weight. She said the pneumonia had led to what she described as "brain fever."

Reynolds Sues For $500,000

NEW YORK (AP) — Columnist Westbrook Pegler's lawyer lit into writer Quentin Reynolds Tuesday as "a yellow coward . . . an absentee war correspondent."

"He covered the Casablanca landing from London," said Charles Henry, Pegler's counsel. "He covered the Sicily landing from Palestine and he covered the Normandy landing from Hollywood."

The opening remarks to a federal court jury indicated a no-holds-barred battle in Reynolds' $500,000 libel suit against the Hearst newspapers' columnist.

Reynolds' lawyer, Louis Nizer, questioned Pegler's own First World War record as a warrior and promised to "put Pegler under a microscope."

In it, Pegler wrote that Reynolds was "a yellow coward . . . an absentee war correspondent . . . a nudist and a Russian propagandist."

"We don't have to apologize to anybody," lawyer Henry said of the column.

Nizer told a jury of four women and eight men he is prepared to back up Reynolds' Second World War experiences under fire with depositions from such military figures as Admiral Earl Mountbatten.

As the first witness, Reynolds testified that as a Second World War correspondent he was under bomb attack many times, was under Nazi shellfire in France, voyaged aboard a British ship that sought to decoy Nazi planes within range of its guns, and was the last American correspondent out of Paris before it fell to the Germans.

Should Restrict Trade To Canadian Vessels

MONTREAL (CP)—C. H. Barrett, president of Canadian Vickers Ltd., said Monday night trade between Great Lakes ports and those on the St. Lawrence should be restricted to Canadian flag vessels.

Mr. Barrett said he has no objection to foreign ships bringing cargo into the St. Lawrence and to the Great Lakes.

Local shipping, however, "should be restricted to Canadian-owned vessels," he stated.

Specialist Advises Against Daily Bathing

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—Clean living is fine, says Dr. Earl D. Osborn of Buffalo, N.Y., a skin specialist, but "daily bathing is the worst thing you can do to your skin, especially when you use soap."

He said statistics show that countries where people seldom take baths have the least number of skin infections and diseases.

Osborn spoke at one of the business sessions of the Oklahoma Medical Asociation convention in progress here. He is the author of more than 50 publications dealing with dermatology.

Thomas Pitchford

Funeral services were held in All Saints' Anglican church at 2:00 p.m. Tuesday, for Thomas Pitchford, who died at his home 527 Gilmour St., Saturday. The Rev. M. P. Poole officiated and burial was in Little Lake cemetery.

Honorary pallbearers were: R. J. Bolton, Percy Hooper, Ford Warren, Gordon Millen, Dr. G. R. Penhall, Tom Griffin. Pallbearers: Willis Garrow, Edward Ruiter, G. A. MacDonald, Thomas Cook, F. Frisken and Peter Perie.

Dragnet Show Being "Shot" For Movie

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Jack Webb and his crime-busting gang are still shooting "Dragnet" these days, but there's a difference. The end result will not be a half-hour television drama, but an hour-and-a-half movie for theatres.

I arrived on the set as the crew was returning from lunch. First I spotted jolly Ben Alexander, the reliable Frank Smith of the series. His face was bruised.

"It's just make-up," he assured. "One of the hoods in the picture roughed us up. He's dead now."

I asked Alexander how the set-up had changed for the theatrical movie.

MORE TIME NEEDED

"In a lot of ways it's the same," he remarked. "The only difference is that it takes much longer, since we're shooting in color. We need many more lights, and it takes a lot of time to get a set lighted.

"We don't expect to move as fast. After all, in the TV films—at least the ones I write—I try to write in only three sets. In this picture we'll have 51 sets!"

Soon Webb, also bruised, appeared. Webb is directing the film, as he does the TV series. That is no easy matter, since he appears in every scene.

PERSONAL LIFE OUT

Will Joe Frida be allowed a personal life in the film? "Nope. As in TV, there isn't enough time."

I asked Joe—I mean Jack—about his other activities. He said he still has 95 more TV "Dragnets" to make for his present sponsor.

"After that, who knows?" he said. "If the show is still popular and the sponsor wants it—that'll be three years from now—I might do some more."

GALLANT DEFENDER — Constable Cliff Cooper, patrolling Vancouver's Stanley Park on "Trooper," came too close to a gander's mate and nest, and the father, a large Canadian goose, rushed to the defence, hissing loudly and buffeting both horse and rider with its broad, strong wings. These geese had made their home on the tip of a tree stump. (CP Photo)

Should Use Union For Improvements

TORONTO (CP)—A union official said Tuesday labor unions must "never succumb to the philosophy of organizing merely for the sake of gaining numerical strength."

William L. McFetridge, general president of the Building Service Employees' International Union (AFL), said unions should organize "people solely for the purpose of helping them improve their conditions." He was speaking to 200 delegates to the union's eastern and mid-western conference.

Mr. McFetridge said union members must not only make sure that the employer lives up to an agreement but ensure that the union abides by the contract.

"Even if you make a bad deal you have to live with it for as long as the contract lasts. We can only ensure responsibility in labor-management relations so long as all parties live by the agreement."

Delegates present included those from Fort William.

Canadian Businessmen Help Austrian Student At McGill

By FORBES RHUDE

Gustav Haslehner looked forward to seeing two things when he came to Canada last September from Vienna to study at McGill University.

One was the RCMP and the other was Niagara Falls.

After eight months in Canada and about to return home, he had seen neither. However, he visited Washington last week and in the United States capital finally sighted his first RCMP uniform.

To complete his list of "musts," he returned to Canada via Niagara Falls.

Today he was scheduled to leave from Montreal for Austria.

Symbol of a goodwill gesture by a group of Canadian business men, he had been at McGill as the result of a one-term fellowship paid by Canadian delegates to last May's congress in Vienna of the International Chamber of Commerce.

Herbert H. Lank of Montreal, chairman of the fellowship committee, commenting on his departure, said:

"The idea back of inviting an Austrian student to study in Canada was two-fold: first, to show the keen appreciation of the Canadian delegation for the countless courtesies extended them; and secondly to contribute in a small way to a wider understanding in Austria of the Canadian way of life.

"The experiment, we feel, has been a notable success and Mr. Haslehner is returning to his native land a one-man booster committee for Canada."

Condemns Israel

Joins Prisoner Pact

BERN (Reuters) — Russia has legally bound itself to the Geneva Red Cross conventions for the protection of war victims, it was announced Tuesday. Soviet authorities deposited ratification of the four 1949 conventions with the Swiss federal political department.

ARRESTED—Arthur M. Mills, former Fort William division engineer for the Ontario highways department, faces charges in connection with the Ontario highways investigation of alleged irregularities in road-building contracts. The attorney-general's department issued 15 warrants charging three contracting companies, Mr. Mills and others with conspiracy to defraud the Ontario government with respect to highway work in the Fort William division. Mills previously had been committed for trial on charges of breach of trust and fraud.—(CP Photo).

Little Reporter Gets Stories By Parachute

By JOHN RODERICK

SAIGON, Indo-China (AP) — At 30, petite, brown-haired Elizabeth (Brigitte) Friang has lived many lives.

When she was 20 she won the French Legion of Honor, for her work as an underground resistance leader.

Today she is a newspaper woman who disdains ordinary means of covering a war. She doesn't ride, walk or sail into battle. She jumps in. To the troops, she is known as "Madame Parachute."

In May, 1952, she made her first parachute jump to cover a paratrooper operation at Xuyen Moc, on the border of Annam and Cambodia. Since then, pencil and pad in her hip pocket, she has jumped 10 times, six of them during military operations — including Dien Bien Phu.

Now she's about to realise another childhood dream—to visit the United States. She is due in San Francisco late this week.

WRINKLES NOSE

Despite the adventure which runs through most of her young life, she is as feminine as a Jacques Fath model. She weighs barely 98 pounds, and her pert little nose wrinkles with amusement when she recalls her hundred-and-one adventures.

Brigitte is the name she got while serving in the underground in France. She was only 17 when the Germans arrested her and jailed her three days for taking part in a sudent parade on Armistice Day, 1941.

At 19 she had become secretary of the underground resistance organization which operated in western France. She held the keys to the code used to keep in touch with London and the Free French forces of Gen. Charles de Gaulle.

Brigitte worked under the cover of her normal life as a medical student at the University of Paris. But the Gestapo closed in on her on March 21, 1944, in the gardens of the Trocadero. She bowled over one of the Nazi agents and started to run. A bullet in her back stopped her.

She was shipped off to Ravensbruck concentration camp and from there to Czechoslovakia.

EMBITTERED

For two years after the war she threw in her lot with De Gaulle and helped form the party he headed. She served as his press officer until the 1951 elections. Embittered by the party's defeat, she decided to go to Indo-China, where she became correspondent for the Paris publication Samedi Soi and the magazine Sud-Est Asiatique.

Her first jump was accomplished without prior training, and it almost cost her her life. Instead of jumping straight out in the conventional manner, she tumbled head first. When the chute opened she found herself twisted in the cords.

With quick presence of mind, she seized and stretched the strings, stopping the spinning motion of her body. Her next jump also was operational. Then, carrying things out in revese, she took four practice jumps. One of her jumps, in November last year, was into Dien Bien Phu when it first was taken from the Vietminh.

Home and School Association News

QUEEN ELIZABETH SCHOOL

Annual meeting of Queen Elizabeth Home and School Association was held Monday evening, Mrs. W. Weaver presiding.

Mrs. G. Astell lead the members in repeating the 23rd Psalm. After the various reports had been presented, Mrs. I. Ellicott and Mrs. H. Race favoured with a piano duet.

Mrs. L. Raper, guest speaker, spoke on "Education for Parents and Teachers." "We expect teachers to possess vitality; be interesting; to have a sense of order in planning; to be fair in judgement; skilled in communicating ideas; to have a sense of humor and moral integrity," she said and urged the parents not to be too critical of teachers.

Dr. S. R. Laycock's classification of parents was quoted — "coddling parents; bossy and possessive; neglectful; nagging, bragging; worrying kind, and finally the unfair parent." Mrs. Raper said that teachers expect parents to send their children to school clean, properly fed and rested; also that they be sent to school on time, with their homework done. "We, as parents, should refrain from personal comment on teachers.

Mrs. Raper told of the parent education workshop held at camp last year, comprising 20 members from various places, at which they discussed everything about relationship between parent, child and teacher. She concluded her talk by saying that "to understand a child's problems we must get on a child's level. All education is not gained from book learning and what we share with teachers becomes a part of learning."

Mrs. Raper then installed the new executive. They are president, Mrs. I. Ellicott; 1st vice-president, Mrs. H. Cockerill; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. V. Last; recording secretary, Mrs. L. H. Edwards; treasurer, Mrs. R. T. Clarke; corresponding secretary, Mrs. N. Mahood; executive, Mrs. H. Burgess, Mrs. M. Tedford, Mrs. A. Long, Mrs. C. Burton and Mrs. K. Harrison.

Mrs. Ellicott spoke a few words Mrs. H. Race presented Mrs. Weaver with a past president's pin and thanked her for her leadership during the past year.

The annual school picnic was announced for June 15th, Mrs. G. Astell to be convener.

Miss I. Cruikshanks sang two very enjoyable songs, "The Road to the Isles" and "Jeannine," accompanied by Miss I. Burrows at the piano. A film "Trooping of the Colour" was shown by Mrs. E. Drury.

The guest speaker and those who entertained were thanked by Mrs. N. Mahood.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

First Picnic Of The 1954 Season

The picnic season for the Moore family got off to a late start in the spring of 1954, for it was May 1 before I first touched match to kindling beside a babbling brook. However, we were well ahead of the other outdoor friends for we had the best spot for miles around all to ourselves.

Quite a few firsts made it a day we shall never forget. I saw an indigo bunting and watched him through a cedar tree for about two minutes at not more than four-foot range. Doris and Marianne stood at the bottom of a 2-foot rill in their bare feet with slacks hoisted high, but Doris slipped on the mossy rocks and got a soaker. Herbie was there—his first picnic with the tribe and an outdoors guy if there ever was one. Pete had to leave early to go back to school to write exams for a solid week—and as he started to pull out got stuck to his hub caps in mud. By the time we'd pushed him out we were mud to kneecaps.

We gathered watercress and mint and mash marigolds, and tired and muddy as I was when we got home I had the fun of grouping the marigolds in one of those rakish modern arrangements for a table centre. I slept a solid nine hours that night.

Peady made an apple pie to top all former apple pies and her exact method is my theme song today.

PEADY'S APPLE PIE

(Deep 9-incher)

Three cups sifted pastry flour, 1 cup best quality shortening at room temperature, 1 teaspoon salt. Cut shortening into flour and salt with 2 knives or pastry blender until crumbly, then sprinkle 5 tablespoons water over, 1 tablespoon at a time, mixing with a knife, pressing together with a knife. Take out half, press into a flat round on well-floured board, roll out to just fit pie plate and line pie plate. Pare, core and slice about 10 or 12 medium Spy apples into crust and sprinkle over 2/3 cup light brown sugar and 1 teaspoon each nutmeg and cinnamon. Roll out, gash and seal on top. Bake 15 minutes at 450 deg. Fahr., then reduce heat to 350 deg. Fahr. for 30 to 35 minutes. During last 10 minutes brush top with mixture of 1 tablespoon milk and 1 teaspoon sugar and repeat this during last five minutes. Also sprinkle with a very little more dry white sugar to make the top brown in uneven spots. Sufficient for six hungry outdoor eaters, including two very tall young men. Peady served snappy cream cheese with it, and we thought the cheese tasted better because it was not straight from the refrigerator.

LETTER: I wonder if you already have this recipe for chili sauce made from canned tomatoes. I find it very nice at this time and tomatoes are so cheap.

CHILI SAUCE

(From Canned Tomatoes, Courtesy Lollie)

Two 28-ounce cans tomatoes (7 cups), 1 large onion (½ cup ground), 2 medium apples (1 cup ground), 1½ cups finely diced celery, 1 cup cider or blended vinegar, ¾ to 1 cup sugar (depending on tartness of apples and tomatoes), 2 teaspoons salt, 1 teaspoon each ground allspice and cinnamon, ⅛ teaspoon cayenne pepper, 12 whole cloves (tied in cheesecloth bag). I strain nearly all liquid from tomatoes for I hate watery chili sauce. Place tomatoes in kettle, put onions and apples through food chopper, using fine blade. Dice celery small. Add seasonings to tomatoes, bring to boil and boil until thick—about 1¼ hours, stiring frequently. Remove cloves, pour chili sauce into sterilized jars and seal.

P do want to thank you for your column. Emem's biscuits and your all-purpose dressing are two that every woman should have. Some day I will send you special recipe for Royal Rolls.

ANSWER: Thanks Lollie, this chili sauce is splendid and came at just the right time. Now you've got me drooling—how long do I have to wait for the royal rolls?

Athletic Awards At Mother, Daughter Tea

Mothers turned out in force Tuesday afternoon for the annual GAA (Girls' Athletic Association) Mother and Daughter Tea at PCVS.

The social part of this occasion was entirely planned by the girls including decoration of the gym and the tea tables, seating and serving and pinning corsages of sweet peas on each mother as she entered. President Miss Millie Hayward and vice-president Miss Elizabeth Myles were receiving and Miss Wynne Whyte was tea convener.

Physical education teacher Miss Ruth Sinclair presented some of her 475 pupils in a demonstration of their exercise drills and several of the popular square dances to entertain.

She then introduced the four girls who were the athletic representatives for the year, taking considerable responsibility from her shoulders, and they in turn introduced the award winners in their particular sports.

Miss Sinclair expressed thanks for the valuable assistance of volunteer basketball coach Miss Mabel Gillen. Both the junior and senior teams were winners in the local area but lost out in the COSSA finals at Toronto. Th swimming is possible through the arrangement with YWCA and the Y swimming director Miss Roselyn Stone was called on to present the Royal Life Saving Society awards won by students.

Principal Mr. C. S. Browne spoke briefly at conclusion of the award-giving in which he participated. He paid tribute to Miss Sinclair and her assistant Mrs. Jean LeRoy for their handling of the girls' athletic education and commended their practice of giving work out to the girls. "This practice left the teachers free to act as the worry-ers" he said.

Mrs. Browne was an honored guest and she poured tea with Mrs. O. J. Hayward, mother of the GAA president. They were followed by the two lady members of the board of education, Mrs. Paige Rowell and Mrs. Blake Bell.

The tea table was very attractive with a bouquet of sweet peas in the centre and silver tea things. The tea cups and refreshments were served on large trays by pairs of students.

Eliz. Parker Aux. Holds Discussion

"Trained technicians as ambassadors for Christ was one of the aims of the Christian church coined from the Willingden Conference held in Germany 1952," stated Mrs. M. Watkins in a panel discussion on the conference, at the Elizabeth Parker Auxiliary meeting Monday evening in Trinity church hall. The discussion was led by Miss Ila Giles who represented an auxiliary member, while Mrs. Watkins represented a missionary on furlough from Japan who had attended the Willingden Conference. Miss Myrtle Sargent represented a graduate of a Christian college in India who had also been a delegate at the conference. Miss Catharine Hodgens and Mrs. G. Fallen represented local church members.

Mrs. Watkins further stated that at the conference it was agreed that wherever there was a single church member he was called upon to witness in his daily life and work, and it was believed that God was calling the church to demonstrate not only through missionaries but also through lives of Christian laymen and lay women who go out across the world in business, industry and government. She claimed that these are the people who have the greatest opportunity to create a spirit of goodwill among nations and to demonstrate day by day what it really means to be a Christian citizen of a Christian country.

Miss Sargent verified these statements and told of a Swiss experiment of training laymen for Christian service abroad in non-missionary posts, and of an experimental six-weeks course that is being given in the United States near Baltimore, Maryland, designed to provide orientation and spiritual fellowship for people going abroad in technical service. Also, she said that the British Council of Churches is developing a scheme for preparing people for non-missionary overseas service.

She claimed that the people of India wanted to know what the Christian believes about his God and why, and they expect Canadians in business positions from a so-called Christian country to attend church and to be interested in the mission centres and hospitals.

The discussion closed with Miss Hodgens and Mrs. Fallen representing local church members pledging to witness more sincerely at home and accepting the challenge that each church member has a church responsibility.

As a fitting prelude to this timely discussion, Miss Alma Blanchard sang "My Task" and as a well chosen climax Miss Helen Staples read "The Poem of Mary Mahone" by Wilson McDonald.

The worship period based on the theme "The gospel according to you" was led by Miss H. Staples and shared by Miss Grace Sargent and Miss L. Emmerson.

Mrs. F. Horton presided for the business session when it was reported that a bale had been packed the first week in May and plans were made to serve a mother and daughter banquet for the CGIT girls on May 17.

Delicious lunch was served by group 4 under the leadership of Miss I. Giles and Miss H. Staples.

MILLBROOK

MILLBROOK (ENS)—At the annual meeting of the Home and School Association on Monday evening, Mrs. B. B. Dawson was returned as president for a second year.

Both vice-presidents, Mrs. M. Hobbs and Mrs. Homer Ouellette, were also re-elected, as were the recording secretary, Mrs. James McMaster, and the treasurer, Harry Williams. The new corresponding secretary will be Mrs. Stewart Snelgrove. Members of the executive committee are Mrs. Douglas Sheppard, Mrs. Bruce Ingham, Mrs. Ed. Nattress, Mrs. Hugh Abbott and Mrs. Allan Wood.

Mrs. Dawson thanked the members for the confidence shown in her and for their co-operation during the past year. The executive had difficulty in evaluating the most successful meeting of the year, she said.

The September meeting at which members of the Durham area high school board and Millbrook public school board had been special guests, along with representatives from town council and the chamber of commerce, and the November meeting at which Dr. Charlotte Horner of the Northumberland-Durham health unit and John James, MP, had spoken, were chosen as the two outstanding programs.

Miss Edith Clarke moved a vote of thanks to the president and her executive for their work during the past year. Miss Jean Burnham seconded it.

Mrs. W. Kennedy, survey chairman for the X-ray clinic to be held in Millbrook May 18, told of being shown through the Beck Memorial Sanitarium in London.

Miss E. Raikes, health nurse, said the best preventative of tuberculosis were the maintenance of good health by good nutrition, obtaining sufficient rest, and having frequent X-rays. X-rays for T .B. sometimes showed up other abnormalties and diseases, such as cancer and pneumonia. Early detection helped in their cure.

In the age group from 14 to 30 there were more deaths from tuberculosis among girls than boys. The death rate in this group from T. B. was second only to that from accidents. In older age groups, deaths among men outnumbered those among women. Ontario had the lowest death rate from T. B. in Canada.

Mrs. Hugh Abbott moved a vote of thanks to Miss Raikes and Mr. Young and to Mr. Williams for showing and procuring the films.

The attendance award went to the pupils of Mr. Hamilton's room for having the most parents present.

Refreshment were served by the social committee.

HAVELOCK

HAVELOCK (ENS) — Mrs. George Rigby, Sr., a past president of the Havelock Home and School Association installed the officers of that organization at the annual meeting held in the schoolMondya evening.

The officers are: president, Mrs. J. Calnan; fist vice-president, Mrs. D. Kirk; second vice-president, Mrs. G. Whitney; secretary, Mrs. G. Kennedy; treasurer, Mrs. R. Sayers; executive committe, Mrs. L. Parnall, Mrs. J. Watson, Mrs. G. Rutherford, Mrs. J. Wade, Mrs W. Nobes, Jr.

Mrs. Calnan thanked the members for re-electing her as president and asked for their continued co-operation and that all would work for an increased membership when the meetings begin in September.

The treasurer's report presented by Mrs. R. Sayers showed a balance of $209.66 on hand. The only fund raising event during the year was the "amateur night," the proceeds being $125.85. The expenditures covered attendance prizes, awards, expenses for guest speakers, the Ontario Federation and prizes for amatuer night.

In June the association entertained the teachers with an afternoon tea. In October they assisted the Havelock Women's Institute in sponsoring the oratorial contest for public school pupils and donated $10 to the awards. They also awarded $5 each to the girl and boy with the highest standing in grade 8, the previous year.

Founders' Day was observed in February and in March the 17th birthday of the local association was observed. The "amateur night" was held in April.

The membership conveners report read by Mrs. V. Howard, showed 26 members on the roll.

At the conclusion of the reports a period of community singing was enjoyed led by Mrs. D. Kirk with Mrs. G. Kennedy at the piano. The soloist was Donald Pollock who sang two numbers accompanied by Mrs. Kirk.

LINDEN SPEAKER

John Linden, teacher of grades 6 and 7 in Havelock public school was the guest speaker.

Mr. Linden emphasized the fact that the school can only be built on the foundation laid in the home. In his opening remarks he dealt with the intertwining elements of parents, pupils and teachers and asked the parents how they viewed the approach of Labour Day. Was it with a sense of relief that the child will be away at school? On the other hand, how does the child come to school, with a preconceived fear of the teacher? he asked.

Fear beings in the home and often in the outcome of a remark such as the following: "You behave yourself or next year the teacher will get you when you start to school." It is no joke, Mr. Linden said, when teachers have to deal with threats.

A child should be taught to look on a teacher as a friend. If a child is taught kindness and obedience it is reflected not only in its home life, but its school life and everywhere else. It is the duty of the parent, he said, to instill trust and ambition in the child and the teacher's duty to foster these attitudes. In many cases the teachers have to establish them.

Mrs. J. Wilde moved a motion of thanks to Mr. Linden and Mr. Pollock.

Mr. Linden's room won the attendance shield and prize.

Navy Offers Girls Good Opportunities

Girls of 19 to 26 years looking for an interesting career might investigate the opportunities offered by the Canadian Navy, which is recruiting at the Peterborough Armouries until next Tuesday.

Lieut. James Thornton, in charge of the mobile recruiting unit, advises that he has openings for storeswomen, clerks, writers, medical assistants, radar operators and communicators. At least grade 10 education is required for all except the communicators, and in this case the need at present is so great that girls of 18 with grade 9 education will be considered.

Continuous naval duty for three years is a requisite of enlistment. The girls receive a six-week basic training course at HMCS Cornwallis where they learn marching routine and nautical terms. They have their own living block and officers and enjoy a good deal of recreation time.

Storeswomen, writers and medical assistants then go to HMCS Naden at Victoria, B.C. and the others to one of the training schools of the fleet, Cornwallis or Stadacona for advanced training, after which they are employed at one of the permanent barracks.

FEUD IN THE NUDE

NEW YORK (AP)—A nude 30-year-old woman ran wounded into the street Tuesday night, followed by her equally nude estranged husband, who was waving a kitchen knife. Mrs. Evelyn Marziale was taken to hospital with stab wounds. The husband, Gerard Marziale, 42, was charged with assault.

Communion Breakfast At St. Joseph's Graduation Day

Graduation day at St. Joseph's Hospital opened with a high mass sung by the chaplain, Rev. Roy McEachern for the intentions of the graduates. At eight o'clock this morning the communion breakfast took place in the cafeteria of the hospital. The beautifully arranged table had as centrepiece a low vase filled with white chrysanthemums and pink roses, while the gifts to be presented were artistically arranged around a Marian shrine at the head of the table.

In a touching address, Sister Superior extended congratulations and good wishes from the Sisters of St. Joseph. Sister stressed the many opportunities which the graduates have had during their three years of training to practise generosity and courage—opportunities which have served to transform them into "angels of mercy and good-natured philosophers."

She expressed the hope that many would undertake post graduate work and recommended that they pray daily, "for guidance to choose the way of life God had intended for each to attain to the happiness of heaven."

A message of greetings from the ladies' auxiliary was brought by the president, Mrs. J. L. Paquette, who spoke of the transformation that had been achieved in the graduates during three short years. From "tittering teen-agers" they had emerged as "mature women" with a wealth of experience which many other women would not acquire during their whole life span, she observed. In conclusion she expressed the hope that the graduates would always prove to be worthy daughters of their alma mater. Each graduate received from the ladies' auxiliary a beautifully bound copy of "The Manual for Nurses."

The Canadian Nurse award, a two-year subscription to the magazine, was won by Miss Marie Woodhouse. This is given for the highest degree of professional development and the winner is determined by the votes of the supervisors and members of the graduating class.

Gifts from the Sisters of St. Joseph were presented the graduates by Sister Superior and from Rev. Mother of Mount St. Joseph by Sister Gonzaga.

On behalf of the members of the graduating class Miss Anne Marie O'Toole graciously thanked the sisters and the ladies' auxiliary for the guidance and kindness received during their years of training.

To conclude this happy event the graduates sang a hymn and the National Anthem.

CGIT Doings

NOWOOD CGIT

NORWOOD (ENS)—The Norwood CGIT entertained their "Mystery Mothers" Monday evening at their regular meeting.

DOROTHY DIX

Attractive Mother Target Of Anonymous Letter Writer

DEAR MISS DIX: I am 35 and the mother of six children, from 2 to 16 years of age. I have often been told I don't look that old. My husband is a wonderful person, good provider, intelligent, and has a highly skilled job. He works nights every other month, and, since I have many friends and social connections, I often go visiting for a few hours on these evenings when he's not home.

When I go out, I dress well, since I always try to keep up my appearance. Now, to the problem. Last month my husband received a letter signed, "Good friend and neighbor," in which he was adviscd to watch me since I looked so attractive when I went out. My husband passed the letter off as a joke, but I know it has him worried from a few snide remarks he has let drop in the past weeks.

Mrs. L.

DESERVES PRAISE

ANSWER: You deserve nothing but commendation for bringing up a good sized family without losing all outside contacts or your appearance. That's no easy accomplishment. The writer of the letter was undoubtedly someone so inadequate and so mean that the sight of another's efficiency is galling to an insufferable point. No matter how one tries to shrug off these despicable anonymous letters, the venom they carry seems to seep in somewhere. Your husband has every reason to be mighty proud of you, and he should be made to realize the folly of putting any credence whatever in a poison-pen lettere.

The professional troublemaker hides behind such splendid-sounding phrases as "Good friend," "Well-meaning neighbor," etc. Ask your husband if he wants you to become dowdy just to please certain neighbors. Pick out the sort of people who might have written the letter—this shouldn't be difficult; just look for a frustrated, lazy, selfish person, and you have her (or him).

Ask your man if t it's what he'd like for a wife, and point out just what might have motivated the trouble-making missive; also point out that the letter is apparently acomplishing its purpose with him. Is he so willing to please a miscreant who hides behind a false phrase? Whatever you do, don't let anyone outside know that the letter has caused any difficulty.

DEAR MISS DIX: My first husband was a good man and left me everything he had, including our home and some property. We had eight children, and it was his wish that they should have this property after I die. Now, I have remarried—a man who has money and property. He, too, has children. He wants me to bring all my livestock to his place, and put my money in his name. He makes me pay for everything as it is—clothes, furniture, even food for the table.

ANSWER: I'm afraid the neighbors who say you were married for your money are about right. Your husband certainly is avaricious in refusing to pay any household expenses, which definitely are his responsibility. I advise you to see a lawyer and protect as much of your property as possible for your children.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I've been going steady for a year with a wonderful boy. Since he lives in another state, I don't see him very often, and we correspond constantly. I'm a high school senior and have heard that one of the most-sought-after boys in school would date me if he could. I want to date him, but how can I let him know that I'm available, and that my boy friend wouldn't find out.

O. O.

ANEWER: How would you like it if you found out your boy friend was having a fine time dating other girls? You wouldn't be too enthusiastic, I warrant. Either date the high school hero, and tell your boy friend, or forget the local boy entirely. The truth is that the only reason our hero says he wants to date you is because he knows you are going steady. Sneaky tactics would never hold his respect.

Eden Suggests 5 Points For Korean Settlement

"FIRST GROWING WEATHER in about ten days," farmers and gardeners said today as they got ready to plant the land and work in gardens. The temperature climbed steadily into the 70s during early afternoon. Dormant leaf buds on trees unfolded and bees were busy around wild plum blossoms, little Lynn Clarke of 163 Murray St., found. She didn't get stung and managed to take home a few sprays to mother. (Examiner Staff Photo)

French Hurl Rebels From Villages

Vietminh Launches New Attacks On Hanoi Highway

HANOI, Indo-China (AP)—French Union troops hurling grenades and charging with bayonets today drove into two small villages where the Vietminh had entrenched themselves near the vital Hanoi-to-Haiphong highway and the paralleling railway.

A French spokesman reported the infantry had driven the Vietminh out of the villages and hideouts in subterranean passages and inflicted heavy losses.

Along the vital routes of communication, French troops were aided where necessary by tanks and armored cars and with planes strafing and bombing.

TEAR GAPS IN ROAD

The Vietminh during the night again succeeded in mining and tearing big gaps in the road from Hanoi to Haiphong, delaying the daily movement of an estimated 6,000 trucks and vehicles bringing war supplies for French troops landed at the seaport of Haiphong. French army engineers protected by tanks and armored cars are managing to keep traffic moving on the highway and railway daily from noon until dusk.

B-26 bombers, aided by Privateers and Corsairs, hammered regular Vietminh troop concentrations in occupied villages and hideouts in limestone hills around Phuly, only 30 miles south of here.

From Saigon, it was reported today that 65 men died in a fierce clash between Viet Nam troops and forces of the Hoa Hao Indo-China religious sect last Sunday.

The sect is one of south Viet Nam's three political religious groups whose forces were recently ordered incorporated in the Viet Nam national army by Bao Dai, the head of state.

Forty Hoa Hao were killed and several others wounded in the battle which raged for several hours at Sadec, 70 miles southwest of here, the report said. Twenty-five Viet Nam soldiers lost their lives.

The reports said that the clash started because army officers stopped a Hoa Hao river raft to examine its cargo. They suspected arms smuggling.

UN Asks Accounting

PANMUNJOM, Korea (CP)—The United Nations command today asked the Communists to return or account for 54 foreign nationals, including one Canadian, last reported to be in North Korea or in territory under control of the North Korean Army. The request was made at a meeting of the military armistice commission. Thirty-one of the people mentioned were Roman Catholic and Anglican missionaries. The Canadian was identified only as Hugh Elliott.

How Many Hips Before Hurrah Britons Debate

LONDON (AP) — The Queen is coming home, Roger Bannister has just shattered the four-minute-mile barrier, and all sorts of events are going to call for organized cheering.

Sticklers for propriety, Britons far and wide are wondering whether all through the years they have been cheering correctly. The question being discussed: How many "hips" should precede "hurrah."

Some hold three, others think two hips more in keeping with traditions of restrained British behavior.

The forum, as usual is the letters column of The Times.

RAISES QUESTION

The question of genteel practice on occasions calling for polite racket from the mob was first raised by Miss Celia Burlison, head of the school of the convent of the Sacred Heart at Tunbridge Wells. She wrote:

"On the day of the Cup Final match (football) I heard on the wireless the captain of the winning team call for cheers for Queen Elizabeth, the Queen Mother. He said 'Hip-hip.' On the next day there was a broadcast from a ship which met Her Majesty the Queen on her way from Tobruk to Malta. The officer who called for the cheers said 'hip-hip-hip.' Which is correct?"

David Mackenzie of London now has advised Miss Burlison to stick to the shorter version — "easier to shout."

Alan Moore of Whatlington appears rather annoyed: "Must even cheers be right or wrong by rule?" he asked. "Hereabouts the cuckoo has been calling 'cuck-cuckoo' sometimes, and sometimes 'cuckoo.' The latter is more usual, but not being a cuckoo, I do not ask which is correct."

An international twist was injected by Francois Lafitte of the Oxford and Cambridge club in Pall Mall. He wrote:

"'In France in my boyhood we always did it in triplicate: 'Ip-ip-ip—ouraaaa.'"

Eisenhower Signs Seaway Bill

President Hopes Work To Go Rapidly For Mutual Benefit

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower today signed the St. Lawrence seaway bill in a White House ceremony.

"Now work can begin on the great project," the president declared as he put his signature to the measure which sets in motion United States participation in a plan to bring ocean trade into the heart of the continent.

With more than a score of Congress members and the Canadian ambassador, A. D. P. Heeney, looking on, Eisenhower used nine pens to sign the bill.

Three of them were made from wood recovered from old Fort Detroit in Michigan, which was the last of the British-held forts in the U. S.

HAPPY TO SIGN

Eisenhower said he was happy to sign it and that he was particularly glad the Canadian ambassador was present.

The president announced plans for the ceremony at his press conference Wednesday. He spoke of a 30-year struggle and study that has terminated, in reference to the bitterly contested American legislation that finally cleared congress last Friday.

The president, after signing, expressed hope that the work will progress rapidly "so benefits can come to our people on both sides of the river."

Wiley said the "dreams and hopes of countless millions are being fulfilled" in the signing of the bill, and called the presence of ambassador Heeney "a symbol of unity between the United States and Canada."

The measure authorizes the U. S. to join Canada in building a waterway deep enough to let ocean ships sail from the Atlantic as far inland as Toledo, Ohio, by going up the St. Lawrence river to the Great Lakes.

Engineers figure it will take about six years to complete the project. There is talk about a U. S. plan to extend the ocean channel all the way to Duluth, Minn., at the end of Lake Superior, but this will require further congressional action.

Urges Elections Be Held Under UN Auspices

GENEV A(CP)—Foreign Secretary Eden of Britain today outlined five basic principles which he said might serve as a basis for a settlement of the Korean problem. "If we are agreed about these five principles," Eden told the 19-nation conference, "this conference can get down to the practical business of working out the terms and stages." One of his major points was that the proposed elections in Korea should be held under the auspices of the United Nations and this already has been rejected by the communists.

BIDAULT BACKS EDEN

French Foreign Minister Bidault also told the conference Korea must be reunited through UN-controlled elections.

Bidault said reunification should be guaranteed by an all-Korean commission in which both North and South Korea would be represented in proportion to their population.

Before today's session, the delegates of 16 nations which fought under the UN command in Korea held a two-hour meeting and reported "no progress" in an attempt to break the double deadlock on Korea.

External Affairs Minister Pearson left the meeting when it was half way through to board an RCAF plane for London and the disarmament conference of the five atomic powers. His place was taken by Chester Ronning, who will lead the Canadian delegation during the minister's absence.

Pearson is expected back here Tuesday.

DOUBLE DEADLOCK

After nine plenary sessions on Korea, most Western delegates became convinced that there was no hope of reaching an agreement on this subject during the life of the Geneva conference.

It is felt that the Communist side simply will not agree to even the minimum demand of the UN countries for free elections under international supervision.

Russia Accuses U.K. Attache Of Espionage

LONDON (CP) — Russia today accused an assistant military attache of the British embassy in Moscow of spying on Soviet military secrets.

The Soviet move was believed to be retaliation for the British decision last Friday to expel two Soviet assistant military air attaches for attempted espionage.

ATTENDING CONFERENCE

Landon now is in London attending an annual military conference. He was then due to take leave and to return to Moscow in mid-June.

The Soviet decision on Landon was conveyed by the Soviet foreign office this morning to Paul Grey, British charge d'affaires in Moscow, the London source said.

A foreign office spokesman said the British government remains "unimpressed" by the Soviet espionage charge. The Russian action was not unexpected.

Unemployment May Halt Immigration

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada may cut down on immigration for the remainder of 1954 as the result of unemployment.

The government will be conducting its half-yearly survey of the immigration outlook this month, and informants Wednesday said the 1954 program could be affected by unemployment that reached a post-war peak a few weeks ago.

The question the cabinet will consider, it was stated, is whether Canada can continue to take in immigrants at the current rate when there is more unemployment than normal in the country.

ASK SHUTDOWN

The unemployment — which reached a top of 570,000 job-seekers in late March—Wednesday led the executive council of the 580,000-member Trades and Labor Congress of Canada to call on the government to cut off immigration altogether for at least the remainder of this year.

The council—governing body of the TLC between annual conventions—said thousands of workers are unemployed while immigrants are coming in and "it now must be recognized that many unemployed workers may not be re-employed even during the peak employment season this year."

Atom Conference Opens In London

LONDON (CP) — The world's five leading atomic powers gathered for a meeting here today in quest of a pact to end the arms race and outlaw atomic and germ warfare.

There were guarded hints from British and United States informants that the Western powers, jointly or individually, might put forward revised proposals in a bid to break the years-long deadlock with Russia on the issues.

The closed-door talks at the British government's stately Lancaster House are under United Nations auspices. The group is meeting as a sub-committee of the UN disarmament commission.

Recent disclosures of effects of hydrogen bomb test explosions gave new urgency to the task facing the Russian and Western disarmament experts. Revelations stemming from United States tests in the Pacific touched off a chain reaction of nervousness in many parts of the globe and especially in this exposed island. This led the Churchill government to propose that a new effort at control should be made in London.

Town Alarmed By Jet Stunting

WIARTON (CP) — Mrs. Jack Matthews fainted from fright today as a low-flying jet aircraft "shot up" this town on the southwest corner of Georgian bay, police said.

Citizens were alarmed as the jet plane continually flew over the town as low as 150 feet. The pilot started his "beat-up" of the town about 10 a. m., and continued for more than 15 minutes.

Residents were afraid the plane might crash into the town.

Watchers could not determine if the silver craft was an RCAF plane.

Senator Says Foreign Policy Marching Straight To War

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (CP)—Senator Wayne Morse (Ind. Ore.) said Wednesday the foreign policy of the Eisenhower administration is "marching straight to war."

Morse, who quit the Republican party during the 1952 election campaign, told the annual convention of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America (CIO) the Republican party is becoming a "war party" under the leadership of Eisenhower, State Secretary Dulles and Admiral Arthur W. Radford, chairman of the U.S. joint chiefs of staff.

"Every American should pause and consider the importance of placing a check on the Eisenhower administration in the field of foreign policy," Morse said. The present policy might lead to armed intervention in Indo-China.

ONLY ANSWER

Morse, who threw his support behind Democrat Adlai Stevenson in the 1952 presidential campaign, said election of a democratic Congress next November is the only way the Republicans' drive toward war can be checked.

"Then Eisenhower will have to sit down with the committees of the Congress and conduct a bipartisan foreign policy."

Morse said Dulles had lost support in Asia by a "fumbling, bungling policy" of losing India, losing "international policy prestige" and losing face.

Present Scroll On River Trip

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Mayors Orville Hubbard and Art Reaume shook hands in the middle of the Detroit river today.

Mayor Hubbard carried an ornate scroll from the residents of Dearborn, Mich., congratulating the people of Windsor on the 100th birthday of the city. He reached across from the tugboat Liberty of Detroit to present the scroll to Mayor Reaume who rode the tug Patty McQueen.

The meeting was arranged for the middle of the river because Mayor Hubbard has against him a $7,500 jail bond which prevents him from leaving Wayne county on penalty of paying the full amount.

Mayor Hubbard was on the losing end of a libel suit a few years ago. The jail bond was posted instead of payment being made.

To Make Statement

LONDON (Reuters) — Prime Minister Churchill told the House of Commons today that he will make a statement on the proposed southeast Asia security pact next Monday.

Believe Laniel To Win Vote

PARIS (CP)—Premier Joseph Laniel told the National Assembly today the decision to try to hold the northwest Indo-China fortress of Dien Bien Phu was justified on grounds of both military and political 'rategy.

Laniel, seeking a vote of confidence, said he would take full responsibility for Dien Bien Phu, which fell after a 57-day siege.

There was still considerable hostility toward Laniel this afternoon but the general sentiment seemed to be that he will be left in office at least a while longer.

Dien Bien Phu, Laniel asserted, was at the crossroads of two big supply routes from China and for this reason was selected as a strong point to hold against the Communist-led Vietminh.

Laniel insisted that no government could have done more to help the besieged fortress.

The issue was the premier's demand that debate on Indo-China be postponed until after the Geneva conference. He won a confidence vote on the same question by 311 to 262 Thursday, but that was before the fall of Dien Bien Pho.

In Laniel's favor, however, Foreign Minister George Bidault has been in the midst of negotiations at Geneva for much-desired peace in Indo-China. To throw out the government now would mean throwing out Bidault as well. And while much of the resentment in the assembly was directed against the foreign minister, many deputies were hesitant about leaving France voiceless at Geneva because of a cabinet crisis.

Planeload Of Doctors Sent To Aid Eskimos

COPENHAGEN (Reuters) — A planeload of doctors and nurses left here today for the Greenland community of Godthaab, where all pected to catch measles within the next few weeks.

Danish officials are gravely concerned because the Eskimos there have little resistance to the disease. Many of Godthaab's 970 inhabitants have already been taken ill.

Officials are anxious to prevent a spread of the epidemic to other parts of the big island.

24-Hour Rain Has Sent B.C. Streams Over Banks

VANCOUVER (CP)—A warm, 24-hour rain which pelted snow-covered peaks in British Columbia's interior, has sent streams and creeks boiling over their banks and raised the level of giant rivers.

The snow, lying in unseasonable depths, is melting rapidly. Mill creek, Renata creek, the Kettle river and other small waterways are over their banks. At Mission, B. C., the end of tidewater, the Fraser river has risen 12 inches in 24 hours.

Mayor Fred Jackson of New Westminster, said the latest word he has received from the provincial government is that a definite change in weather is needed to avert more serious flooding.

"We need warm weather and then a cooling-off period," he said.

In 1948 a late run-off caused floods which did $30,000,000 damage.

KELOWNA PARTLY FLOODED

This year, Kelowna is the first town to report flood damage as Mill creek flooded six blocks of residential area in the centre of the city.

A bridge was swept out at Renata, leaving half the village's 140 residents looking at the other half across the swollen Renata creek with boats the only means of communication.

Begin Appeal For Lieutenant

OTTAWA (CP) — Counsel for Lieut. Peter E. R. Balcombe, convicted of the murder of Marie Anne Carrier of Bienville, Que., today argued in Supreme Court of Canada that the court which tried Balcombe had no jurisdiction to hear the murder charge.

J. M. P. Kelly, Balcombe's lawyer, launched his argument before Mr. Justice J. H. G. Fauteux on a motion for leave to appeal Balcombe's conviction to the Supreme Court. Balcombe has been sentenced to be hanged May 25.

Mr. Kelly said the theory that Miss Carrier was fatally stabbed in Quebec province is as consistent with the facts of the case as the theory that she was killed in Ontario. Balcombe was tried in Cornwall.

Mr. Kelly said Chief Justice J. C. McRuer did not bring to the jury's attention that Miss Carrier might have been killed in Quebec, outside the Ontario court's jurisdiction.

The hearing is continuing.

900 Fishermen Feared Drowned

TOKYO (AP) — Perhaps 900 Japanese fishermen drowned in a tremendous cyclonic storm which slashed across northern Japan and off-shore fishing grounds Sunday, the newspaper Asahi said today.

The men were on 108 boats which capsized or vanished in the raging storm, Asahi said.

Japan's coast guard said 55 boats sank and about 250 were damaged.

Fog has hampered the search for possible survivors.

The coast guard also reported the 7,762 ton Tatsuwa Maru, caught by a typhoon between Indo-China and the Philippines, has not been heard from since Tuesday.

2 Desperate Gunmen Commit Suicide

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP)—Two desperate gunmen committed suicide Wednesday when they were cornered by police who sought them for critically wounding a detective in a movie theatre.

James Pollard, 26, shot himself in the head as police closed in on him in an apartment house attic. The other gunman, Clarence Rydstrom, 21, killed himself in a taxicab an hour later as police surrounded him with drawn guns.

Shot in a downtown movie was detective Ralph Palma, 30, felled by two bullets in the chest as he wrestled with the pair.

Pollard and Rydstrom had been hunted after a hold-up Monday in nearby Middlebury where two bandits tied two women and escaped with $1,400 in cash, jewelry and bonds.

Giant Of Dogdom Arrives For Show

MONTREAL (CP)—A giant of dogdom, big enough to look down on Shetland ponies, arrived here by air from Britain today, and will compete in a New Jerse dog show of Irish wolfhounds late this month.

Now owned by Mrs. Betty Hyslop of Brockville, Ont., the dog is known in Gaelic as Fuath of Ulaid, which means Courage of Ulster.

"Why shouldn't he be courageous?" quipped a crew member of the British Overseas Airways corporation plane which brought him here. "He weighs about 155 pounds and stands 37 inches at the shoulder."

Eminent Doctor To Aid Wounded

HANOI (AP)—The French flew Dr. Pierre Huard, one of Indo-China's most eminent doctors to Dien Bien Phu today to arrange for speedy release of French Union troops badly wounded in the long defence of the fallen fortress.

French officials hope the mass airlift of casualties from the Vietminh-held valley 175 miles west of Hanoi will start Friday.

They anticipate the airlift will bring out about 700 men—half of the 1,300 to 1,400 estimated wounded. The Communists agreed at the Geneva conference to release only casualties in the "serious" category.

Milk Vs. Coffee Upsets Diplomat

NEW YORK (AP) — Governor Thomas E. Dewey's assertion that people should switch from coffee to milk has South American diplomats boiling. They even hint "hemispheric solidarity" may go to pot.

The governor—who has his own dairy farm—strayed into the "cow versus coffee bean" pasture when he noted that New York state's cows had delivered an excess of 165,000,000 quarts up to last March.

Dewey said that if all citizens drink a glass of milk a day the surplus will fade away. "Switch to milk," he urged, adding that it's "healthier, cheaper and more plentiful" than coffee.

It's all right, Muniz said, to urge people to "consume a fine beverage" like milk, especially when there's an over-supply, but:

"To urge them to do so at the expense of coffee, which is the economic life blood of friendly neighbor nations, appears to be undermining United States foreign policy aimed at maintaining and encouraging sound economies in friendly nations throughout the world."

Police To Lay Murder Charge

MINTO, N. B. (CP) — Police said today a charge of murder will be laid against Floyd Edgar Brown, 25, later today. Brown, sought for seven days in New Brunswick bushlands in connection with the killing of one man and the wounding of another, surrendered Wednesday.

The search by RCMP using trained dogs and an airplane started after Earle Thompson, 54, was killed in his home near here. Rene Patris, 43, a neighbor of Thompson, was shot the same day on his farm and is recovering in hospital.

Police said Brown was unarmed, tired, dirty and hungry when he gave up to a constable who gave Brown some food when he came to the door.

U.S. Senator Dies At Desk In Office

Hoey, whose gray frock coat, silver hair and daily fresh carnation made him a conspicuous figure in the Senate, had been in Congress since 1945. He was a former governor of North Carolina.

More Irregularities—Charge

Wren, Doucett May Be Called To Testify

TORONTO (CP)—The possibility was seen today that both Albert Wren and Highways Minister Doucett may appear before the legislature's select committee in its investigation of highway contracts which has resulted in charges of conspiracy against 11 men and three companies.

Mr. Wren, Liberal-Labor member of the legislature for Kenora, said Wednesday in a statement he has uncovered "even more evidence of irregularities" in divisions of the department of highways "outside of Huntsville and Fort William."

He said he wants Mr. Doucett called again before the committee because he has a "lot of embarrassing questions for him to answer."

Mr. Doucett, who has appeared previously, said he is available at any time to testify before the committee uner oath.

BACKS FEDERAL INQUIRY

He also said there is no need for a federal inquiry into the department of public works on grounds that a federal inspector has been charged in connection with the highways department case.

The inquiry was asked Tuesday by Progressive Conservative leader George Drew in the House of Commons.

It was learned Wednesday night that other members of the committee on highways plan to ask that Mr. Wren, a committee member, be called as a witness, placed under oath and asked to disclose any information he has.

Authorities at Queen's Park said this procedure would be in order. Although Mr. Wren is a member of the legislature and of the committee, there is nothing in the Ontario Legislative Assembly Act which prohibits calling him as a witness.

Mr. Wren said he will also ask the committee to call "several prominent contracts," including those among the 11 facing conspiracy counts.

One of the accused, W. S. Tomlinson, vice-president of Tomlinson Bros., flew from British Columbia to Port Arthur Wednesday to appear in court on a conspiracy charge. He was remanded to May 31 on $10,000 bail.

Mr. Wren said today he will "reveal all my investigation under oath—at the proper time."

"And when I do testify, I'll have enough material to keep a staff of six secretaries busy for two weeks."

Justice Dismisses Claims Of Man And Township

Mr. Justice King today dismissed in Supreme Court a suit brought by a Peterborough man, Martin Graves, against Faraday township in which Graves claimed two lots of bushland owned by him were illegally sold for unpaid taxes while he was overseas.

On the other hand, the judge also dismissed a counterclaim by the township for $900 damages against Graves. While negotiations over ownership of the bushland were still going on Graves went into the bush and cut a disputed amount of timber.

Mr. Justice King found as a fact that taxes were not paid on the land in 1936 and 1938. But even had they been paid, he found, Graves had no clear title to the land.

SQUATTER'S RIGHTS?

The plaintiff testified that he bought the two lots on the 3rd concession of Faraday, trading a second-hand car valued at $150. The alleged owner of the land was a Herbert Peacock who, the plaintiff argued, based his claim on length of possession.

However Mr. Justice King observed that neither Peacock's nor Graves' name was on the abstract of title filed by Graves.

While he was overseas during the Second World War, Graves heard that his place was up for sale in default of tax payment. He sent $22.80 to the township treasurer for 1940 taxes but later found that the property was sold for unpaid 1938 taxes.

When he returned from overseas township officials offered to try and get the land back and arranged for him to purchase it from them. He made a $30 deposit but the township wanted $141.45 for back taxes which Graves refused to pay.

At this time he went onto the land and cut some timber which set off the counterclaim.

Mr. Justice King found that the plaintiff had no right to the land now or at any time, so he dismissed the action. Both claim and counterclaim were dismissed without costs.

W. J. Arthur Fair, QC, was counsel for the township, and W. C. Grant was counsel for Graves. Both were complimented by the justice for their handling of a difficult case.

Wide-Open Presidency Fight

OTTAWA (CP)—A wide-open fight for the presidency of the 580,000-member Trades and Labor Congress of Canada is ahead as the result of a meeting of the TLC's executive council.

The closed meeting of the council, governing body of the TLC between annual conventions, took no action toward backing any of the candidates for the job that will be vacated by Percy R. Bengough at the August convention of the congress in Regina.

Mr. Bengough, president for 12 years, recently announced he won't be a candidate to succeed himself in the most influential job in Canadian labor.

Informants said the council, made up of top officers of TLC unions, carefully steered away from the question of a successor at a meeting that ended Wednesday.

NO TOP PRESSURE

It could have, as has been done in the past, quietly decided on a leading candidate and then have its members, top officials of big unions, pass the word down to the rank and file who will be sending delegates to the Regina convention.

But the council decided this time to leave the succession open without any pressure from the top.

This seems to deposit three major candidates in the field, none without some special support from the TLC bosses.

Two of them are TLC vice-presidents, Quebec chief Claude Jodoin, a burly and voluble bilingual labor leader, and R. K. (Rolly) Gervin of Vancouver, a quiet but personable officer who prefers to put in most of his hard work in the back rooms of the congress.

SEEN AS STRONGEST

The third prospective candidate, and perhaps the strongest on present indications, is Gordon G. Cushing, general secretary-treasurer and former president of the Calgary and District Trades and Labor Council.

Cushing is a redoubtable campaigner. He came up from nowhere in 1948 to sweep the convention for his job, the only permanent salaried office in the TLC aside from the presidency that pays about $13,000 a year. He has said he will not go after the presidency but will run if he is nominated—a certainty.

Aside from Jodoin and Gervin, there is not likely to be any competition from the five vice-presidents. Ontario's vice-president, Bill Jenoves of Toronto, has said he will not run; James Whiteboné of Saint John, N.B. and Carl Berg of Edmonton, Maritimes and Prairies vice-presidents, are known to have no presidential aspirations.

Frank Hall of Montreal, Canadian chief of the Brotherhood of Railways Clerks and head of the Non-Operating Railway Unions' General Conference representing 145,000 employees, is not in the running.

Howe Says Japanese Goods No Threat To Canada

OTTAWA (CP)—Trade Minister Howe says Japan expects to sell more goods in Canada during a new Japanese-Canadian trade agreement but that the imports will not seriously threaten Canadian industry.

Mr. Howe made the observation Wednesday shortly before the Commons, all three opposition parties agreeing, approved the tariff-cutting trade agreement after a three-hour debate.

Donald Fleming (PC — Toronto Eglinton) warned, however, his party will keep a careful watch to make sure the government carries out measures to prevent Japanese goods from being dumped in Canada. Safeguards against dumping in the pact could be a mere jumble of words unless the government was determined to make them effective.

"If they are permitted to remain a dead letter, if the kind of occasion contemplated by these safeguards arises, then we will be calling this government to account," he said. "We look to you (the government) to make that assurance good 100 per cent."

SAYS PROTECTION AMPLE

CCF leader Coldwell and Social Credit leader Lowe said they believe the treaty, under which Canada will reduce tariffs on Japanese goods, provides ample protection for Canadian industry against the possibility of unfair competition from Japan.

Mr. Howe said he expects that Japan will increase sales to Canada under the agreement. However the pact also would provide employment and income for Canadian agriculture and industry.

"Japan legitimately expects to sell more in this country.

"For my part, I do not believe we need be afraid of such increases. Under these new arrangements, Japan will be in a position to compete for a share of the Canadian market on an equal basis with other foreign suppliers, such as the United States and Germany. Importers may well find it advantageous to obtain some of their requirements from Japan in competition with their former sources of supply."

TRADE GAP

Mr. Howe said Canada in 1953 sold Japan $119,000,000 worth of goods and purchased only $13,600,000. Canada could not hope to maintain her markets in Japan for long if she did not grant tariff levels to Japanese goods similar to those granted other member countries of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade.

Canada obtained extra concessions under the agreement which she did not receive in pacts with many other countries. The government intended to extend the terms of GATT to Japan, but would retain the right to impose heavy duties if imports of Japanese goods seriously threatened Canadian industry.

Grain Commissioners Called "Incompetent"

OTTAWA (CP) — Hazen Argue, CCF Commons member for Assiniboia, Sask., alleged Wednesday the federal government's board of grain commissioners is "incompetent and inefficient."

Mr. Argue made the comment before a meeting of the Commons agricultural committee. It grew out of a request he made to the commissioners at a committee meeting Tuesday as to whether they issue a monthly statement on wheat exported to various countries.

He was told then that the board did not issue such statements, but Wednesday he produced copies of a report on this from the board.

D. G. McKenzie, chief commissioner of the board, said that when the board had given an eight-page list of its publications Tuesday to the committee, he had not recognized the document in question from Mr. Argue's description.

Navy Able To Cut Down Noise In Warships By Half

OTTAWA (CP)—The navy has been able to cut down noise in warships by half.

"We had to or it might have reached the point where we could not have lived in them," says Cmdr. Keith Farrell, in charge of anti-submarine ship design for the Canadian navy.

"Noise has become a major problem because of the vast amount of electronic equipment in today's ships. The physiologists tell us that a person's effectiveness is lowered as noise around him increaes.

"We now are able to keep noise down to 70 or 75 decibels in the living spaces in our new ships. An ordinary office, without the typewriter going, has a noise level of about 65 decibels."

Lessening noise makes not only a ship's crew more effective but also the ship itself, Cmdr. Farrell said in an interview.

QUIET NECESSARY

"We are an anti-submarine navy. Our ships are, first of all listeners for submarines. Therefore, the quieter our ships are, the better.

"In this regard, our main problem is the propellers. We've tried to cut down the noise and vibration of the props by reducing the number of revolutions per minute. I can't tell you by how much because that is secret."

The tall, sandy-haired naval architect, born at Portsmouth, England, in 1919 and on loan to the Canadian Navy since 1949, said the problems of shock and vibration are bound up with that of noise.

Noise has been cut down by putting as much equipment as possible, especially fast-running gear, on rubber feet. This includes fans, pumps and refrigerators but not guns or ascic.

"By putting as much equipment as possible on resilient mounts, we can cut down the noise by half. We are at least as far ahead as any other country on this sort of work."

May Shorten Canadian Stay

By ALAN HARVEY

GENEVA (CP)—The deadlock on Korea at the Geneva conference does not necessarily mean that United Nations troops—including Canadians—will stay in the peninsula indefinitely, it is learned here.

If the present division at the 38th parallel is perpetuated, as most conference observers expect, a time limit could still be placed on the withdrawal of Canadian and other United Nations troops.

It is felt that the South Korean army, now numbering about 20 divisions, will ultimately be able to hold its half of the peninsula on its own.

No guess is made as to when the Canadian forces might be sent home.

MORE ABOUT—

Urges Election

The picture was complicated on the UN side by what delegates call the double deadlock. The 16 non-Communist countries were unable to reach a "family agreement."

The main obstacle was South Korea's refusal, apparently on orders from President Syngman Rhee, to consider all-Korean elections.

The smaller UN members, including Commonwealth countries, held private meetings this week to discuss a way out of the impasse.

A possible solution might be that one country, perhaps the Philippines, will table more-reasonable proposals on Korea "for the record." When the Communists turn these down, as they almost certainly will, the UN powers will at least feel they have done something to demonstrate before world public opinion that they made an effort to reach agreement.

MAY TRY LATER

If the conference breaks up without agreement on Korea, it is expected interested countries will take another look at the problem in six months.

The Korean meeting took the spotlight today from the Indo-China question, which also is deadlocked. The Indo-China peace talks came to a standstill, while delegates awaited the outcome of France's political crisis.

Some followers of French internal politics said it was a toss-up whether Premier Joseph Laniel's government would survive the National Assembly vote of confidence scheduled for tonight on the Indo-China issue.

The feeling here was that if the government fell, the Geneva parley would have to be suspended pending formation of a new cabinet.

No formal meeting of the nine-delegation Indo-China conference was scheduled for today, but diplomats planned numerous private meetings to discuss strategy and review developments so far.

This afternoon delegates to the Korean conference were to hear a policy statement from Britain's foreign secretary Eden, last of the big-power delegates to speak on Korea.

ANNOYED AT ALLIES

During early stages of the Korean debate, the United States let it be known it was annoyed by the failure of its Western allies to answer sharp Communist attacks on the U.S. Since then the United Nations allies have come along one by one to defend the Americans and associate themselves with U.S. policies.

The Western powers still are having difficulties lining up South Korea's president Syngman Rhee behind their efforts to present a common policy for country-wide elections under UN supervision. The U.S. through special ambassador Arthur Dean, has been trying to persuade Rhee for two weeks to give up his insistence that the proposed elections must be held only in North Korea.

A dispatch from Seoul Wednesday night said Rhee had rejected the appeals.

In view of the general conviction that a Korean solution is not possible at this time, Western sources here consider Rhee's position important only from a propaganda standpoint.

The Indo-China debate also has given little cause for optimism.

HAVE THREE PLANS

There are three plans before the conference, from France, Viet Nam and the Communist Vietminh rebels.

The French have proposed an internationally supervised armistice, with both sides withdrawing into zones set by the conference. The Vietminh would get out of Cambodia and Laos.

The Viet Nam regime has asked recognition as the only legal government. Free elections under UN supervision and international guarantee of the state of Viet Nam.

The Vietminh also has demanded recognition as the legal regime for Viet Nam. It also wants recognition for the Communist "governments" of Laos and Cambodia, withdrawal of all foreign troops from Indo-China and elections without international supervision.

PCVS English Master Festival Adjudicator

R. L. Hale, English master at PCVS, is one of the adjudicators at the Victoria county music festival, a festival he helped to found 18 years ago.

The festival is being held this week with at least 133 classes participating. Most of the classes are at St. Andrew's Presbyterian church in Lindsay, although the Wednesday sessions were in Fenelon Falls.

Other adjudicators for the festival are John J. Weatherseed for piano and G. Roy Fenwick, judging vocal and instrumental classes. Mr. Hale is judging poetry and verse speaking.

Stock Market Shows Greater Strength

TORONTO (CP)—The stock market showed its greatest across-the-board strength of the week in moderate early afternoon trading today.

The rise was sparked by climbing industrials, western oils, and lightly-traded golds. Base metals, however, were slightly weaker in seniors and juniors. Uraniums and Manitouwadge issues were slightly improved but Bathurst issues fell sharply. Volume at 1 p. m. was 1,202,000 shares.

In western oils Pacific Petroleum picked up 20 cents. Increases in seven issues ranged from 10 to 35 cents.

Industrial strength was in papers, foods, liquors, refining oils, financial institutions, textiles, and manufacturing. Biggest industrial gainer was Burns, up $2.50 after a dividend announcement. Most other issues gained small fractions.

Jenkins Switches Roles In Hearing

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP) — Counsel Ray H. Jenkins planned to switch roles today in an attempt to punch holes in army counsel John G. Adams' story that Senator McCarthy and Roy M. Cohn badgered him for army favors to Pte. G. David Schine.

Almost mechanically, Jenkins put questions which brought out Adams' testimony Wednesday that Cohn roundly cursed both him and the Wisconsin Republican senator because Schine, their former associate in investigations, didn't get an army assignment to New York.

But Jenkins was ready to don the robes of Adams' cross-examiner, and he has been tough in that role in the past, in the 16th day of televised hearings before the Senate investigations sub - committee probing McCarthy's controversy with army officials.

Without a single point of order being raised, Adams unrolled Wednesday a sequence of events capped by testimony that Sherman Adams, chief of the White House staff, had been first to suggest that he put into writing the army charges against McCarthy which ultimately led to the current investigation. Sherman Adams had no comment.

TARGET OF OBSCENITY

John Adams said he was the target of obscenity and abuse "extremely hard to bear," with Cohn delivering most of it. Cohn is normally the chief counsel and McCarthy the chairman of the investigations sub-committee. Both have stepped from those roles temporarily for this inquiry.

Army Secretary Robert T. Stevens and John Adams have accused McCarthy, Cohn and Francis P. Carr, the senator's chief of staff, with exerting improper pressure to get favored army treatment for Schine, who was drafted last November.

McCarthy and his aides have replied that Stevens and Adams sought to use Schine as a "hostage" to stop or divert their investigation of alleged Communists in the army.

John Adams testified that Sherman Adams suggested at a justice department conference last Jan. 21 that he prepare a chronology of events regarding the Schine case. A similar account, made public in mid-March, led to the present investigation.

The witness said that at the meeting were Attorney - General Herbert Brownell, the deputy attorney-general, and William Rogers, presidential assistant Gerald Morgan and Henry Cabot Lodge, U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, in addition to Sherman Adams.

WILL ASK SUBPOENAES

The New York Daily Mirror, in a dispatch from Washington, quoted McCarthy as saying he will ask the sub-committee to subpoena all five to testify.

The meeting was called, John Adams said, to seek justice department support for the army's refusal to produce members of its loyalty screening board for testimony before McCarthy's sub-committee. Army officials had contended that presidential orders forbade disclosure of such loyal information.

Adams testified that the demand for appearance of the loyalty board members came the day after he had informed Cohn, then vacationing in Florida, that Schine probably faced overseas duty.

He said he described to the conference of high administration officials "the problem we were having over private Schine and how the two matters seemed to me to be related."

Throughout his testimony, the soft-spoken Adams directed most of his accusations at the 27-year-old Cohn rather than at McCarthy.

Cohn watched the witness unblinkingly, his face impassive. After the session, he nodded agreement when McCarthy, who read a newspaper part of the time Adams was testifying, told reporters:

"Many statements Adams made are completely and provably untrue."

Faced Death Writer Swears

NEW YORK (AP)—Writer Quentin Reynolds swore Wednesday that he faced death in the Libyan desert during the Second World War in "the most frightening experience I ever had."

"Were you in danger of death?" he was asked at the federal court trial of his $500,000 libel suit against columnist Westbrook Pegler.

"Every man there was," replied the husky Reynolds.

Reynolds is suing Pegler over the latter's Hearst newspaper column of Nov. 29, 1949. In it, Pegler called Reynolds "a yellow coward . . . an absentee war correspondent . . . a nudist and a Russian propagandist."

In the battle of Libya, he described in some detail his experiences under fire with the British forces during a three-day desert battle with the Germans.

Reynolds said he was nicked by bomb fragments during the battle.

What The Department Of Highways Has Not Done

Ontario travellers through northern New York State and the northern fringes of the New England States are sometimes agreeably surprised to discover that their southern Ontario roads are better than the American ones. They should not be so agreeable. The standard of comparison with our highways should not be the types of roads found in the hinterland of the United States. Let it be remembered that northern New England and northern New York State, in hilly country, are (in the U.S.) considered to be back of beyond, in fact, cheek by jowl with the unpopulated foreign country from which the cold winds come—Canada. But southern Ontario, especially that part of it within twenty miles of the Great Lakes and St. Lawrence, is the busiest, most thickly settled and most heavily industrialized part of Canada. By comparison, parts of the northern states are backwoods. Therefore, our roads should be set against the type of highways found in southern New England, Connecticut, Massachusetts and so on. Comparing Ontario's southern highways with these, an Ontario traveller will find little reason for exulting about Ontario's roads.

* * *

The Ontario Department of Highways is now before the klieg-lights of public opinion (and the cold light of the courts) for sins of commission. We are inclined to think it guilty of sins of omission, whatever the folly of its deeds. It has left undone things it ought to have done as well as done those things it ought not to have done. There is no superior parkway such as one finds in even in western Massachusetts. Ontario's dual-lane highways are few, and the praise one likes to give the Queen Elizabeth Way is lessened by the fact that it is such a short Way. Highways west of Toronto are superior, those east of it are not.

* * *

The dual-lane highway goes east from Toronto to Newcastle and there stops. Bits of it are picked up at Belleville. There is a double highway (No. 2 and No. 2A) east of Gananoque. But taking the Lake and River front as a whole, the Ontario Department of Highways is utterly disgraced in comparison with American departments. It has not done enough or built fast enough in the most important traffic area in the whole of Canada, the space between Toronto and Montreal. Number 2 highway, which has to bear more traffic in one day than most upper New England highways carry in a week, is an impediment to the flow of vehicles, a menace to cars and drivers, and a shaming artery, considering its strategic industrial, commercial and tourist importance and the pride Ontario people and the Government take in this rich province. The war has been ended nine years. Are nine years not long enough to build a big wide highway between the two chief metropoles of Canada? The Department obviously has lots of money, since it has apparently allowed so much to be spread so wantonly elsewhere, in the Fort William country, for instance.

* * *

From time to time we have praised the Department for some of its roads and plans. While not withdrawing that praise—for instance, of the highways out of Barrie or those being developed through this Peterborough district, we must condemn the slow and piecemeal dealing with the central highway problem in the whole of Canada, the Lakeshore route. There should have been a completed "super" highway there five years ago. The way the Department is crawling along (expensively, at that) with the dual-lane building program between Toronto and Montreal gives us no confidence that the thing will be completed even within the next fifteen years.

The St. Lawrence Seaway

Now that the United States Congress has approved the St. Lawrence Seaway project, there is a great furore among the cities along the route of the new seaway, and extravagant, and perhaps ultra-ambitious predictions are being made by all. The Toronto Star visualizes the St. Lawrence as "an industrial Rhine with Toronto as capital". Undoubtedly, Toronto, with its larger population, might understandably be considered as "Canada's greatest Inland Seaport", but Hamilton, with greater natural harbour facilities than Toronto, might dispute that claim.

With the flooding of several villages and hamlets along the route of the seaway, many sites, steeped in history and tradition, will disappear. Though a feeling of nostalgia is understandably felt by the older residents, no condemnation of the project has ever been made by them. They prefer to consider the whole affair in the light of progress, and they do not desire to impede progress in any way. It is estimated that the Seaway project will take at least six years to complete. After completion, it will be possible for cargo ships of 10,000 tons burden to sail as far as Toronto.

Mayor Moore of Port Hope visualized an enlargement of port facilities there. He said: "We are only 30 miles from Peterborough, and could take a lot of shipping for them." Shipping by boat is much cheaper than by rail, and perhaps areas remote from the Seaway will be affected economically by it.

Military Canada

If a settlement of Far Eastern conflicts is not reached in Geneva, and it is not likely, Canadian troops will probably be stationed in Korea indefinitely. This is not necessarily bad for Canada's army; Korea provides a training ground different from what officers and men can get at home or in Germany. The fact that Canada is now fielding troops in peacetime in both Europe and Asia shows that this country has become military, whether the taxpayers like it or not. The size of the defence budget—nearly two billion dollars—gives the financial evidence, if citizens needed any reminder after paying their annual tax bills, almost half of which goes directly or indirectly for military spending.

Canadian people do not require financial figures to tell them how this country has suffered a transmogrification since 1939. Before the war, hardly a uniform, a gun, a parading squad, a military plane or truck was to be seen in or about an ordinary Canadian town. We except permanent garrison towns like Kingston, but even in them many officers and men preferred to doff uniform when outside the barracks area so as not to be conspicuous.

Now we are reminded every day, by radio, TV and the press of the duty and privilege of enlisting, of the life, the feats of our military men. Uniforms are worn on our streets, military convoys pass up and down the highways, war planes on exercise zoom overhead, no Exhibition or Fall Fair is complete without a military parade or an Air Force demonstration, and military camp-sites have multiplied and expanded and become towns in themselves, with toddlers in the back yards of the barracks and washing hanging from the line. Radar towers fringe the sky and factories are clanging with the effort to produce military equipment. The Royal Canadian Air Force has become a sacred cow, the Royal Canadian Navy is as holy as the waters of the Indus and the Army is a righteous power supporting the throne of democracy's god. Nothing is too good for any of them. Before the war there was raillery, scoffing or irritability about such military things (in some quarters); now all bow the knee before them—and pay bills far higher than a tithe.

Today Canada's face and body are almost as military-looking as that of Germany, Italy or Russia before the war. Then Canadians called those nations militaristic. Canadians of course resent that description being applied to their country now. Quite rightly, too. Canada's face may be military but its heart is still peaceable. This country has had to accept militariness because of international circumstances and its own growth, not because it is swash-buckling or greedy for power.

Farming And Unemployment Problems

Next month, there will probably be the usual outcry about the scarcity of farm labour. We know of a young, robust fellow who was recently laid off from his job. After a fruitless search for employment in the Peterborough area, he journeyed to Toronto. There he experienced the same reactions to his queries. Returning to Peterborough, he experienced no difficulty whatever in obtaining a job as a farm hand—at $75 a month. Compared with salaries in several factories, this sum may not appear very munificent. But when it is understood that this amount includes board, room and laundry, the $75 is almost entirely clear. To have $75 a month as "spending money", others would have to earn a very large amount indeed.

The obvious question is, therefore, why more young men do not avail themselves of such an opportunity? Possibly it is because of the stigma formerly associated with farming itself. Certainly in post World War I, the social status of the "hired man" was not very high. The mere word "farm" came to be almost synonymous with "drudgery". But Hydro and modern appliances and labour-saving machinery have eliminated much of the tediousness associated with the farm. Water systems and modern conveniences have made farms much more comfortable and efficient.

Perhaps the bright lights of the city might account for the desire of farm youth to move to town. Of course, it is impossible to bring the city glamour to the country. But you cannot eat glamour.

His Worship The Mayor

By PATRICK O'DONOVAN
(In Manila)

THERE IS NOT — there cannot be — another mayor in the world like the Mayor of Manila, the capital of the Philippines. At the entrance to his City Hall is the notice: "Please leave your weapons here." On the stairs is: "No ten percenters or fixers allowed."

His building is large and dominating, and inside it sounds like the ticket hall of a great railway station. Crowds move up and down the stairways and trail down the long passages. Young men in Hawaiian shirts; girls in smart American frocks; rich men in semi-transparent smocks embroidered with birds and flowers; old ladies with wide, puffed-out sleeves. You can see courts in session through open doorways. People press round the doorways of offices where young men who look as if they were dressed for the beach sit behind barriers of paper. It is as busy as an anthill, and at its centre is the Mayor's office.

THE ANTE-ROOM was crowded with courtiers and suitors, with journalists and friends and officials. It looked cheerful, and a young man in a flowered shirt came up and said: "Do you want to see the Mayor?" We had no appointment, but the young man was a journalist on the city hall beat and went in. "He's not busy," he said.

The office was packed. There were several groups of men standing in urgent discussion. Two were telephoning. Four were pouring over papers spread on the desk. The walls were covered with photographs and caricatures, mostly of the Mayor. A Philippine flag stood in the corner. A man in a blue and yellow shirt lounged across an armchair. He wore a large gold watch, dark sun glasses and decorated Texan riding boots. He was holding a whisky and soda. That was the Mayor.

ARSENIO LACSON is undoubtedly a great man in the Philippines. He would be that anywhere. He speaks a powerful American argot in which a trace of Spanish can be discerned. His voice grates like a coffee mill. It is impossible to discern in him any respect for anyone else. He has been a prize fighter; he was a brilliant lawyer; he has been, and will be, a Congressman.

He was also a journalist. He once wrote a column about a former President of the Philippines that was so outspoken, so outrageous, that it has become a collector's item, treasured and framed in Press Club washrooms all over the world. He once poured soda-water over a foreign diplomat who was unbraiding him for something he wrote, saying: "Cool off, brother."

A MEMBER of a former Cabinet sent a colonel to arrest him — with tanks and armoured cars — in a high-class night club. Lacson pushed a pistol in the colonel's stomach and dared him to produce a warrant.

Mayor Lacson is currently in trouble for hitting a member of his council in a passage of the City Hall. He hit him three times for spreading untrue rumours about the Mayor, and the President has asked for the Mayor's explanation — in writing. The local headline was: "Mayor Gives Dad Three Punches." "Dad" means a city father.

✧ ✧ ✧

BUT this burly cheerful extrovert is nonetheless a good and honest administrator, in a country that is famished for such people. He has charge of a city which President Eisenhower once described as being, after Warsaw, the most ruined in the world. It is a modern city again, but between the tall white office buildings are the shells of old Spanish churches and the thousands of wooden hutches where poor people live.

✧ ✧ ✧

MAYOR LACSON has halved the city debt in two and a half years. He has formed an effective fire brigade and purged the police. By a ferocious policy of shooting to kill, he has reduced violent crime in the city to reasonable proportions. He has tried to abolish the nepotism and corruption which go with low civil service salaries and tolerant temperments. He has just asked all city employees to render a list of all their relatives employed by the city—to the third degree of consanguinity and spiritual relationship.

NON-COMMUNIST Asia has need of men like this. There is nothing passive or defeated here. He is as positive as any leader writer on America's Saturday Evening Post, and far more entertaining. As he sat in his office, signing papers, efficiently greeting the visitors who poured through his door, shouting down the telephone, handing out whiskys and sodas, he talked with scarcely a pause. He did not sound like anybody's puppet.

"I once shocked our President," he said. "I told him that in his predecessor's day, President Quirino, politics here were like a game of basketball. But no one moved and the ball was frozen in the middle of the game. With Magsaysay, now, it's all action. Everyone on the run. But they've left the ball in the changing room."

OR AGAIN, of his country: "Look at us. Our retail trade's in the hands of a few Chinese traders. If the Japanese get their way over reparations, our foreign trade will be in the hands of the Japanese. Our foreign policy is in the hands of the Americans. What a glorious future! What a heritage for our martyrs! Come on, have a drink."

This is not the conventional type of administrator, but behind the facade of noise and irreverence and gaudy friendliness there is a man determined to do his best for his city. In a country whose leaders have not been noted for consistency and single-mindedness, he stands out like a sharp rock in a placid sea.

NOW HE KNOWS

The circus strong man rode out on horseback to challenge a farmer whose great strength had gained him a reputation. The circus man tied his horse in the farmyard and approached the farmer.

"Hey!" he called, "I've heard a lot about you, and I though I'd see which is the better man."

Without answering, the farmer seized the intruder, hurled him bodily over the fence into the road, and returned to work.

When the loser had recovered his breath, the farmer growled, "Got anything else to say to me?"

Letters To The Editor

CONCERT HALL NOT WANTED

SIR: It seems to me there is far too much talk about the business of adding an auditorium to the Memorial Centre.

I represent the average Peterborough citizen and I haven't any time for a lot of this so-called culture. I like sports. Why spend a lot of money on something nobody wants. Who does want it anyway? A handful of people. The Arena is always full, so let's have a better one and get on with it. As far as these concerts are concerned there are probably more people in the orchestra than are listening to it. I suggest we give the taxpayers what they want, which is a new arena, and not what a few "long hairs" want to give them.

ON LONDON STREET BRIDGE

SIR: She was a pretty young lady, in all her morning freshness, walking into the sun. She was well dressed, too! Nice fitting navy suit, and she wore a bunch of frilly tulle at her young throat. But there was something odd about her! for why did she pretend not to see me? and why was she carrying her shoes in hand for the morning was cool and the bridge damp. Then it finally dawned on me, she was protecting her high heeled shoes from the ravages of the bridge for when they laid down the London street foot bridge, young ladies with spike heels were not considered.

LAMPREY IN THE TRENT

SIR: In The Peterborough Examiner of April 26th appears an interesting article on the sea lamprey under the heading "Government Renews War to Wipe Out Sea Lamprey"; also on the editorial page of The Examiner, dated April 29th, 1954, a letter appears entitled "Outlaw The Spinning Reel" and signed by "Fish Lover." In regard to these two articles I have been watching to see if any one took these matters seriously enough to make any comment, but as no one has come forth I venture to say something on the sea lamprey as I fear the day may soon come when it will seriously affect our Trent River and the game fish in it.

In my boyhood days there were plenty of game fish in the Trent. The water was clear and nice and a person could often stand on the bank and watch the fish darting about and perhaps see a maskinonge sunning himself along a rock or log, but not so now. What has happened? The obvious reason is too many things preying on the game fish. I am quite confident the spinning reel had nothing to do with this, but something much more to be dreaded.

The bill fish (gar pike) was a very destructive fish but it never got up the river higher than Ranney Falls. However, it now appears this lamprey eel is working its way up the river and what makes the situation worse is that with the Trent Canal the natural barriers are gone that we had at Ranney Falls, Middle Falls and Healey Falls. I have never seen a live lamprey, and for that matter I don't want to see one; however, I have been told these lamprey are in the reach of water between Percy Boom and Frankford and in the reach of water above Healey Falls extending as far as Hastings.

A reliable person told me recently of a bather coming out of the water just above Campbellford with a lamprey sucked on to him and it took a burning stick thrust under the head of the lamprey to make it let go. Surely we don't want any such fish as this in our inland waters and we should do all we can to prevent it getting into Rice lake and the Indian River and the Otonabee River. If it should do so, what about the Kawartha lakes?

As a matter of fact the lamprey has ruined the fishing on a commercial basis in the Bay of Quinte. Quite recently I said to a fisherman from Belleville, "Have you any white fish?" The reply was: "Sorry to say, No; the lamprey is making these fish scarce and besides if we do get a few they are often marked with sores caused by the lamprey."

From the foregoing does it not appear we can forget all about spinning reel and put forth every effort to combat the lamprey from reaching the upper waters of the Otonabee and the Trent. If any one has any suggestions to make, let's have them.

Yours truly,
"SAFETY FIRST."

PSYCHOPATHISTS A BIT DAFFY?

SIR: In your editorial "Preserving Our Sanity" you have given correct answers to the points on mental health that you enumerate, but the antithesis of 20 centuries of inculcated fantasy and falsehood stands, impervious to the rules of reason.

For fifty years I have been interested in the scientific aspect of psychiatry; but the action of some psychopathists seems a bit daffy. Item: in the case of a lad charged with the murder of parents and grandparents, six psychiatrists were called to examine, and give their opinion as to whether he was sane or not. According to the news item the six doctors split three all in their opinion. From our "common sense" point-of-view, and the Law, a person may commit murder or other crimes in a fit of sanity, but we should not expect that men of wisdom or science will endorse such ideas.

The statistical report on mental cases, as given in your editorial "Insanity in Ontario" is appalling; but, with such a lead, Canada may yet be able to claim the honour of being first to usher in the golden era of the millennium: when we have all become pure, and simple.

Respectfully,
W. H. ROSEBUSH.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

And Saul, yet breathing out threatenings and slaughter against the disciples of the Lord, went unto the high priest, and desired of him letters to Damascus to the synagogues, that if he found any of this way, whether they were men or women, he might bring them bound unto Jerusalem.

And as he journeyed, he came near Damascus: and suddenly there shined round about him a light from heaven: and he fell to the earth, and heard a voice saying unto him, Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou me? And he said, Who art thou, Lord? and the Lord said, I am Jesus whom thou persecutest: it is hard for thee to kick against the pricks.

And he trembling and astonished said, Lord, what wilt thou have me to do? And the Lord said unto him, Arise, and go into the city, and it shall be told thee what thou must do . . . . And Saul arose from the earth; and when his eyes were opened, he saw no man: but they led him by the hand, and brought him into Damascus . . . .

And there was a certain disciple at Damascus, named Ananias; and to him said, the Lord in a vision, Ananias. And he said, Behold, I am here, Lord. And the Lord said unto him, Arise, and go into the street which is called Straight, and enquire in the house of Judas for one called Saul, of Tarsus: for behold, he prayeth, and hath seen in a vision a man named Ananias coming in, and putting his hand on him, that he might receive his sight . . .

And Ananias went his way, and entered into the house; and putting his hands on him said, Brother Saul, the Lord, even Jesus, that appeared unto thee in the way as thou camest, hath sent me, that thou mightest receive thy sight and be filled with the Holy Ghost. And immediately there fell from his eyes as it had been scales: and he received sight forthwith, and arose, and was baptized. (Acts 9:1-6, 8, 10-12, 17, 18.)

The Imperfect Mother

(The Vancouver News-Herald)

No mother can be expected to be on the job every minute. In view of all she has to do, it is not surprising she should occasionally allow her eye to stray from the children.

She may be conversing with a friend on the telephone. Or she may have put her head out the window to talk to a next-door neighbour. She will not have attention diverted for more than a minute or two.

But in those minutes the children may slip out of her sight. They may crawl down the front steps. They may reach the street. No telling how far they will have gone or what hazards they will have encountered before they are missed and the mother rushes after them. In all likelihood, they will be rescued by kind friends before she arrives on the scene.

Or instead, while the mother's head is turned, they may get into the bottom shelves of the kitchen cabinet. They may discover therein bottles of ketchup or other seasoning. They may uncork a bottle and pour the contents on the floor. They may then place the bottles to their lips and start to drink what remains. Fortunately they will be discovered and stopped before their little stomachs have suffered.

The children may, for the moment, have been in jeopardy. But they are none the worse off. The mother can be forgiven. For, after all, with all her responsibilities, she can't be in two places at one time. And she isn't equipped with eyes at the back of her head.

But what cannot be forgiven is that she should include a description of the incident in her next letter to the children's grandparents who are miles away, always anticipate the worst, will be frightened out of their wits and know they can do nothing about it.

Yanks Nose Out Cleveland With 5-4 Victory

By BEN PHLEGAR, Associated Press Sports Writer

New York Yankees have some fresh ammunition to use against the critics who have blasted them for hoarding talent during their pennant rampages of the last five baseball seasons.

Burdette, now a front-line member of the Milwaukee Braves' mound staff, moved down Brooklyn Dodgers on one hit Wednesday for a 5-1 victory. Johnson gave up only two hits in pitching Chicago White Sox to a 1-0 verdict over Boston.

Detroit held on to first place in the American League by 27 percentage points despite Johnson's victory by beating Washington 4-2. The Yankees edged Cleveland 5-4.

Philadelphia replaced Brooklyn at the top of the National League, downing Chicago Cubs 5-4. New York Giants defeated Cincinnati 2-1 and St. Louis slugged Pittsburgh 13-5.

GRAY'S FIRST

Lefty Ted Gray pitched his first complete game and scored his first victory for the Tigers this season as he scattered six Washington hits. Jim Busby reached him for a home run in the ninth.

The Indians kayoed Eddie Lopat with a four-run uprising in the eighth but Sain came to the rescue and saved Lopat's fifth straight triumph. The victory, the Yanks' second in a row over the Indians, deadlocked the two teams in third place, a game and a half behind Detroit.

The only hit off Burdette at Brooklyn was a home run by Gil Hodges in the fifth. Burdette kept the Dodgers pounding the ball into the dirt and first-baseman Joe Adcock made 17 put-outs.

Harry Perkowski of Cincinnati had a two-hit shutout working at the Polo Grounds until the ninth when with one out and one on Bob Hofman unloaded his second pinch-hit homer of the season.

Rookie Wally Moon of the Cardinals got five hits in six tries against Pittsburgh and Red Schoendienst went four-for-four as the Redbirds battered Pirate pitching for 21 hits.

Royals Crush Ottawa In Doubleheader

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Veterans Ken Lehman and Tom Lasorda of Montreal Royals in the International League are making strong bids for another trial with Brooklyn Dodgers.

The two southpaws hurled five-hitters Wednesday night as the Royals evened their season record to 8-8 by defeating Ottawa Athletics twice, 2-1 and 4-2.

In other games, Rochester Red Wings moved to within half a game of first place by outlasting Toronto Maple Leafs 12-8. Meanwhile the league leaders, Syracuse Chiefs, were blanked 1-0 by Richmond. Havana Sugar Kings nipped Buffalo Bisons 3-2 in Cuba.

Dick Whitman and Lasorda hit home runs, accounting for all the runs in the first game at Ottawa. It was Lasorda's second win against one loss. Walt Dabek's ninth-inning sacrifice fly drove in the winning run in the nightcap as Dick Young and Chico Fernandez contributed homers in Ken Lehman's fourth straight victory.

LIMITS CHIEFS

Jocko Thompson limited the Chiefs to three hits as the Virginians won their second straight game. Richmond scored the only run in the last of the ninth when catcher Marty Tabacheck squeezed home Joe Lutz with the bases loaded.

Rochester broke their game wide open with four runs in the sixth inning on three doubles and two walks. Rookie reliefer Jack Knight who retired the last six hitters in order, was given the decision, his first of the season.

CALGARY WINS—Ray Barry (12) of Calgary Stampeders, scores with a low shot into the right-hand corner of Quebec Aces' net in the second period of the fourth Edinburgh Trophy game at Calgary. Stampeders won the game 7-4 to take a 3-1 lead in the best-of-nine series for the Canadian Professional Hockey championship between the East and West. Stamps' Steve Witiuk (11) and Aces' Joe Crozier (3) watch the puck nestled behind goalie Jack Gelineau, of Quebec. Aces' Roy Kelly can be seen just behind Barry.—(CP Photo).

Sure TeePees Will Take Championship

TORONTO (CP)—The coach of the east won't predict it and the coach of the west certainly will deny it.

But it appears that it is only a question of "how long" before St. Catharines TeePees win their first Memorial Cup in 12 years of junior hockey competition.

And tonight the TeePees can come to within one game of that goal when they meet Edmonton Oil Kings in the third game of the best-of-seven finals for the Canadian junior hockey championship. TeePees won the first game 8-2 and came from behind for a 5-3 victory in their second meeting.

But despite the two-game deficit coach Ken McAuley of the Oil Kings thinks Edmonton will come back.

"We improved 100 per cent for the second game and we're going to improve even more," he said. "I still don't think TeePees are any better than we are."

EASIEST OPPOSITION

Rudy Pilous, coach of the eastern champions, won't go out on a limb but he does admit that Edmonton is the easiest opposition that TeePees have faced to date.

Both coaches, however, agreed on one thing—the officiating.

McAuley said referees Paul Bozak and Ike Morrison, both of Moose Jaw, were intimidated by Pilous. Said Pilous: "It's news to me." Somewhat wistfully he added: "I've never scared a referee in my life."

But Pilous said he was hoping for more accurate refereeing in future games.

"They've been ignoring too much interference and slashing," he said. "I don't say Edmonton is a rough club but they get away with a lot of chippy stuff. My players are covered with bruises."

McAuley countered:

"Pilous started to scream after the second period in the second game. Then the referees gave us the business. But we'll still win despite the referees. We're only starting to go."

OVERCOME BY RECEPTION

Although he wasn't too impressed with St. Catharines' play, he was overcome by the city's civic reception Wednesday.

The Oil Kings were tendered a civic banquet by the city of St. Catharines and then were taken on a tour of the Niagara Peninsula and Niagara Falls as guests of the TeePee sponsors, a St. Catharines manufacturing company.

"We had a wonderful time," McAuley said. "The boys really enjoyed every minute of it."

And Leo Leclerc, manager of the Oil Kings, chimed in:

"The warm reception given us in St. Catharines has changed our views completely on the hospitality of the east.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

There have been some good members on local recreation commissions in recent years, and there have been some indifferent ones. Chairman Wilf Langan and his committee are ready to tackle any problem that comes under the heading of Peterborough recreation, and they have a capable and hard-working recreation director in Ken Robinson. Regarding the sports' part of their program, they have proven quite keen and this spring have done a lot of organization work, especially for minor sports and for the kids. Bill Bennett, as sports chairman of the commission, is another live-wire, being custodian-treasurer for minor ball in the city. On the whole, the city has a fine recreation commission operating.

* * * * * *

The spring edition of the Research Guide of Sports College is just out, a government-sponsored paper edited by head coach Lloyd Percival. It includes a lacrosse piece by D. C. Seaton, author of "Safety in Sports". He comments: "To the uninitiated viewing the game for the first time, it appears to be a contest of mayhem; but upon closer observation the skills and plan of attack become apparent and the game less rugged than thought. The use of more protective equipment in recent years and the development of playing and coaching techniques have made lacrosse a relatively safe activity." From there, Lloyd Percival goes on:

* * * * * *

Sure Exciting To Watch

"It is too bad that there is such a widespread misconception of lacrosse because it has much to offer. Because of the amount of running in the game, lacrosse is rated very highly by physical education experts. Most certainly a well played game of lacrosse is exciting to watch, probably as exciting as any game there is. The speed with which the ball is exchanged and shot at the goal, the quick starting of the runners, and the sudden bursts of activity give it an attraction that few other games have. If sport fans went out to see a few games and got acquainted with the activity, it appears certain that it would soon begin to regain its deserved popularity." Well, Peterborough fans sure like it, and they have the top team to watch, thrice Mann Cup champs.

Petes' Trailermen were due to open their OLA season tomorrow in St. Kitts, trek to Mimico on Tuesday, and have the Saints here next Friday. But their first game away was postponed. The St. Catharines' writer put it thusly: "In a move which should be endorsed and commended by sports fans of the Niagara district, the St. Catharines Lacrosse Club gave up their opening game against Peterborough this Friday in deference to the hockey TeePees in Memorial Cup playoffs. The Trailermen will most likely be very glad of the extra time to round their club into condition. With the rainy weather this spring, no team has had an opportunity for many outdoor workouts."

So The Tilt's On Again

However, the CAHA threw a hitch in the St. Catharine's plans in a phone call yesterday and ordered the Memorial Cup finals to go as scheduled, with all games in Maple Leaf Gardens. Thus, Edmonton and the Oil Kings are at it tonight and Saturday in Toronto, leaving the St. Kitts' arena available for the scheduled senior "A" lacrosse opener betwixt Trailermen and the Athletics. The Petes have made their preparations for the trip Friday and no change in plans will be made now. Coach Bob Thorpe had hoped to sign George Masters by this time but the latter proved coy and has left the city, saying he didn't plan to play at present but, if he changed his mind, would consider the Petes first.

* * * * * *

Along the local baseball front, the senior Petes have one game at two p.m. Sunday in Toronto 'gainst Hosking's to open VOBL play Schedule will be listed the first of the week. Bill Sisler's summer-long minor baseball school got the green light at an executive meeting last p.m. here as it looks now as if enough money will be raised to carry the project. Instructor Bill is planning short lectures at all city schools as one of his first moves in organizing the school, actual field play not starting till out in June. But more on it again. A minor baseball rally at the East City Bowl on Saturday morn or, if it rains, a lecture for the lads in the hall at Hunter and Mark streets. Meanwhile, Bill Bennett is lining up his minor ball circuit for the season, also.

Sedgman Wins Singles Downs Riggs 8-1

GRANDFORKS, N.D. (AP) — Frank Sedgman won the singles series of Jack Kramer's travelling pro tennis tournament here Wednesday night by defeating Bobby Riggs 8-1 in the semi-final match and Pancho Gonzales 8-6 in the final. Gonzales won from Pancho Segura 8-5 in the other semi-final.

Kramer and Segura won the doubles match from Sedgman and Gonzales 8-4. The victory was Sedgman's 18th of the season and was worth $750. Gonzales is pacing the squad with 24 victories in 64 series.

Fans Flocking To Cheer Penticton On

KELOWNA, B.C. (CP)—A sell-out crowd of hockey fans, who braved pneumonia to purchase their tickets, will bear partisan witnesses tonight when Penticton V's take on Sudbury Wolves in the sixth game of a best-of-seven series for the Allan Cup.

Tuesday night's 6-5 overtime victory by Penticton was credited with sending long lines of Kelowna citizens out into a pounding downpour where they stood for up to two hours Wednesday waiting for the ticket office to open.

All 2,800 seats were accounted for Wednesday and ticket-sellers reported a brisk business in standing room—which is expected to swell the crowd to 3,500 capacity.

Wolves won the first game 2-1 in Penticton, lost the second 6-2 in Vernon, won the third 3-1 here and the fourth 8-2 back in Penticton.

FACED ELIMINATION

V's were facing elimination, down 3-1 in games Tuesday night. The game had only 15 minutes to go and Penticton was behind 5-2 before a rash of penalties gave them a new lease on life, a 5-5 regulation time tie and a 6-5 overtime victory. The winning goal came with only 15 seconds remaining.

Should V's take the Wolves tonight, the seventh game would go to Penticton Saturday.

Max Silverman's Wolves had a chartered plane standing by to fly them, and the Allan Cup, back to Ontario after Tuesday night's game, but had to postpone the trip. The veteran coach said his team planned to arrive in Sudbury for a big civic welcome Wednesday.

SLAUGHTER HURT

McNichol Signs With Als For '54 Season

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Alouettes of the Big Four Wednesday night announced signing of all-star defensive end, Doug McNichol for the 1954 football season.

McNichol, 225-pound former University of Western Ontario star who played for Alouettes last season, said he turned down a $9,000 offer from New York Giants of the National Football League to sign with the Big Four club again this year.

"The Giants offered me $9,000 with a bonus understanding," he said. "However, after thinking it over for a long while, I feel I would be better off in Montreal."

A spokesman for Alouettes said McNichol had been negotiating with the Giants for several months and on one occasion was flown to New York for contract talks.

A college all-star with Western in 1951 and 1952, the 24-year-old St. Catharines, Ont., boy played as an end with Montreal last season and was chosen for the 1953 eastern all-star defensive team.

King Maple Tops In Classic At Woodbine

TORONTO (CP) — King Maple, the shortest-priced winter book favorite in the 95-year-history of the Queen's Plate, didn't set hearts aflutter when he made his debut at the Woodbine track June 29, 1953. He finished a languid seventh in a field of two-year-olds and, in the argot of the turf, he "didn't run fast enough to beat a fat man."

He goofed again in his second start—at Fort Erie July 10—finishing eighth. Six days later, also at Fort Erie, he came to life, beat a field of maidens and paid $48.10 for $2.

From such an inauspicious start, King Maple finished the season in a blaze of glory and now is an 8-to-5 choice for the 1⅛-mile plate classic June 22 at the east-end Woodbine track. Before then, he either will show in the six-furlong plate trial May 22 or the mile-and-70-yard second plate trial June 2.

RAKED IN THE CASH

As a juvenile, he won seven of his 11 starts; finished second twice and earned a total of $41,075. He came within $200 of breaking the record for purses won by a Canadian-bred juvenile, a record set a year earlier by Canadiana.

King Maple must be classed with the bargain yearlings. Mrs. Gordon McMacken of Toronto bought him for $3,500 from his breeder, D. G. McClelland, and McClelland tossed in another yearling colt as a bonus. The son of Fairaris and Noon Maid was a rugged individual but, initially, there was nothing in his appearance to indicate that he would be voted Canada's "horse of the year" in 1953.

When John B. Campbell, handicapper for the Jockey Club in New York, ranked North America's two-year-olds at the end of the season, he assigned 116 pounds to the Canadian champion.

The big McMacken colt has trained faultlessly although members of the "knock-down-the-favorite club" are quick to point out that his speed trials have been surpassed by some of his plate rivals.

Canada's Weight-Lifters Be At Top At Empire Games

MONTREAL (CP) — Lionel St. Jean is confident about Canada's chances in the weight-lifting events at the July 30-Aug. 7 British Empire Games in Vancouver.

In an interview Canada's weight-lifting coach said: "If we don't take the championship I'm willing to bet we will at least claim two or three firsts."

A native Montrealer, St. Jean, 44, speaks with a wealth of 20 years of experience when he says Canada should have no competition in the heavier classes.

St. Jean thinks the only weak spots for Canada might be in the bantam and feather-weight groups.

"Countries such as Malaya and Singapore concentrate on the lighter classes."

St. Jean has been a coach 10 years. He started at the YMCA in Notre Dame de Grace in 1943 where he stayed one year. The following two years he operated a private club and seven years ago took over a coaching position at the Palestre Nationale, a French-Canadian athletic club.

WRONG IMPRESSION

Concerning the techniques of weight-lifting, St. Jean said many people have the wrong impression that weight-lifters and physical-culture enthusiasts are one and the same people.

"They aren't," he said, "because it would be impossible to do both. In weight-lifting you must concentrate on the lifting movements rather than the physical exercises."

The five-foot-nine 175 - pound French-Canadian, an accountant with an automobile firm, spends three nights a week coaching. He coached Canada's 1953 Olympic team.

He said he is "convinced" that there are people who never knew the sport existed, until they heard about Doug Hepburn winning the world heavy title at Stockholm last year.

WEIGHT-LIFTING COACH —Lionel St. Jean, 44, of Montreal, will coach Canada's weight-lifting team at the British Empire Games at Vancouver this summer. Selke Supports CAHA Plans For Better Team

MONTREAL (CP)—Frank Selke, managing director of Montreal Canadiens in the National Hockey League, tossed in his support Wednesday to the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association's plans to bring the world title back to this country.

RIDIN' HIGH—Ernie Shelton, of University of Southern California, hopes to join fellows like Roger Bannister in becoming a famous first. He's aiming for the seven-foot high jump mark and will shoot for the record at the Fresno relays this Saturday. He's already cleared the 6-9¾ mark.

Canadian Driver Brings In Winner

HAMBURG, N.Y. (CP)—Bud Gilmour, youthful Canadian driver, brought home the first winner on the opening card of Buffalo Raceway's 12th season.

Ronnie Don, a trotter, was clocked in 2:18 4-5 on a slow track after rain during the day. Ronnie Don and Belwin Chief, winner in the second, paid a daily double of $56.90.

Mr. Galvin, owned by J. Russell Miller of Dutton, Ont., won his first start of the season, with Johnny Chapman in the sulky.

Baseball Fan Spoils Hit, Fined $100

CHICAGO (AP)—It cost a baseball fan $100 plus court costs Wednesday because he leaned out of his Comiskey Park box Tuesday night and grabbed what would have been a sure three-base hit by Minnie Minoso of the White Sox.

Judge John R. McSweeney, a White Sox fan himself, levied the fine against Otis Williams, 25, on a charge of disorderly conduct. He also enjoined him from attending games at Comiskey Park.

SENT BACK

Nellie Fox, on base with a single had crossed home plate on Minoso's hit, but when the umpires ruled it a ground-rule double, he was sent back to third base. He was there when the inning ended.

Angry fans then set upon Williams, who retreated into the arms of a couple of cops.

Amateur Status Being Checked

ATHENS (AP) — Avery Brundage today said he expects the International Olympic Committee to start an investigation immediately into the problem of so-called amateur athletes who are subsodized by their governments.

Brundage, American president of the IOC, said the investigation may begin with a questionnaire to each Olympic national committee "asking point-blank questions on how their athletes are selected, maintained and trained."

Brundage told The Associated Press in an exclusive interview that "one thing particularly to be enquired into is training camps. Under the Olympic rules and requirements, state training camps of more than two weeks are against the Olympic spirit."

Brundage did not single out any country as a probable violator of the rule.

The IOC meeting, which ends Friday, also is expected to select the city to stage the 1956 equestrian events.

Browns To Drop Case Against Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP) — Cleveland Browns of the National Football League Wednesday moved to drop charges against the Ottawa Football Club and John Kissell, star lineman.

Browns sued when Kissell last year allegedly jumped a contract with them and played with Riders all season. Kissell signed a two-year contract with Riders, but this year went back to the Cleveland fold.

Undercover Work

MAJORS CUT ROSTERS

NEW YORK (CP) — Montreal Royals reclaimed the International League's leading hitter of 1953 and Toronto Maple Leafs acquired a southpaw pitcher from the world champion New York Yankees Wednesday as major league clubs to the 25-player limit before Wednesday's midnight deadline.

Outfielder Sandy Amoros, a .139 hitter in 13 games with Brooklyn Dodgers this season, was returned to the Dodgers' Montreal farm club on a 24-hour recall basis. Bill Miller, who lost in his only start for the Yanks this spring, went to Toronto on a similar basis.

Ottawa Athletics got Luke Easter burly Negro first baseman, from Cleveland Indians. Easter, normally a power-hitter, hasn't regained his batting eye since he missed most of last season because of injuries.

Other International League clubs also benefitted. The last - place Richmond Virginians got catcher Darrell Johnson and pitcher Mike Blyzka from Baltimore and received outfielder - first baseman Stan Hollmig from Louisville of the American Association as part of a deal by which the Orioles sold outfielder Don Lenhardt to Boston Red Sox, Louisville's parent club.

LOSE CAMPANELLA

BROOKLYN (AP) — Roy Campanella, Brooklyn catcher who underwent an operation for the removal of a bone splinter from his left hand May 3, said Wednesday he would be lost to the team for eight to 10 weeks. At the time of the operation it was estimated he would be out only three weeks.

Not only will the National League's most valuable player of 1953 be unavailable until after the all-star game in July, but he is lucky not to have lost the use of his hand altogether. He said the operation was of much more serious nature than originally believed.

8 Canadian Boxing Titles Placed On Line

TORONTO (CP) — Eight Canadian amateur boxing titles will be placed on the line during the three-day British Empire Game final trials that begin today at Varsity Arena. The winners will represent Canada at the games in Vancouver this summer.

George Dennison, chairman of the central Ontario branch of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada, said Wednesday that bouts will consist of three three - minute rounds.

In the heavyweight division former lightweight champ Gerry Buchanan of Montreal is favored over defending champion Jim Saunders and No. 3 man Pete Piper. A Victoria sailor, Trent Ketcheson, is favored to cop the middleweight title but will have to meet highly-rated Pinky Mitchell of Ottawa.

A bout between Paul Chyzzi, defending light middleweight holder from Winnipeg, and Lloyd Lawrence of Toronto is expected to produce one of the best fights of the large card.

Lawrence dropped a close match to Chyzzi last year.

Murphy Chamberlain, rugged player of the Toronto Maple Leafs hockey team, was sold to Montreal Canadiens for the option price of $7,500 just 14 years ago today. Chamberlain was a main cog in the Canadien teams that won the Stanley Cup in 1944 over Chicago and in 1946 over Boston.

Medical Work Comes First—Bannister

NEW YORK (AP)—Roger Bannister, who flew to New York to appear on television but instead ran into a hassle over his amateur status, said Wednesday he doubts if he will maintain condition enough to appear in the 1956 Olympic Games.

"This year I become a doctor," the world record-holder for the mile said in an interview shortly after his arival at Idlewild airport.

"That means I will work all hours, will be subject to calls at night and will find it very difficult to maintain condition. After this year my track activities will be materially shortened."

The 25-year-old medical student, who ran a tremendous 3:59.4 mile at Oxford last week, had quiet, professorial answers for the barrage of reporters' questions.

NOT AT PEAK

Q. Do you think you have reached your running peak?

"No, I am sure I haven't. I imagine my peak would be around 28 or 30 years old. After all, the world's greatest runner, Emil Zatopek, is around 32. It's a pity that I must taper off training but I have my work to think of. It's only a sport, you know."

Q. Do you expect to make any more tries this year at breaking your record?

"I have two more objectives primarily in mind. They are the British Empire Games at Vancouver and the European championships at Berne, Switzerland. The next two months after that I will be devoting almost entirely to my medical work."

Q. In these races will you go out to break your own record?

"My first obligation, I think, is to run for my country. You can't go into a race with a divided mind —that is, concentrating on both the stop watch and the opposition. That would be courting disaster. I will be trying to win the races."

Q Do you think your record will be broken?

MADE TO BE BROKEN

"Records are ephemeral. They are made to be broken. No one can reach the ultimate. It's just that the increments of the times will be shortened."

Q. Who is mainly responsible for helping out?

"I coached myself. While I have been indebted to others for their help, I have felt that an athlete is responsible only to himself. I have trained myself. That is the essence of sport."

The IOC decided today that the equestrian events in the 1956 Olympics will be held in Stockholm at the end of June and beginning of July.

Big Four TV Broadcast In U.S. Great Advertisement For Canada

By W. R. WHEATLEY

MONTREAL (CP)—The deal that sends Big Four football games over the NBC's television network throughout the United States is a tremendous thing geographically and politically for Canada, Lew Hayman said today.

"This unlimited publicity won't cost Canada a cent," said Hayman, general manager of Montreal Alouettes and chairman of the Big Four's TV committee.

"It will associate four of our major cities, Montreal, Toronto, Ottawa and Hamilton, in the minds of American TV viewers and this area of eastern Canada will become as well known as southern Texas or South Dakota or Alabama.

"The NBC will romance these games in 15-minute prologues about the city, the stadium, the individual players and the Canadian game itself."

At the same time Hayman said he felt that U.S. players signing with teams in the western Canada league "will lose all identity and potential publicity."

Even pro players in the U.S. are seen on TV only in local or sectional areas, said Hayman. Players in the Big Four become "not only national figures in each country but international."

"This TV arrangement maintains the identity of any Canadian boy who has football talent. His name becomes a household word in the U.S. as well as here.

"Few people realize the potential impact that will be created on the calibre of our football and its improvement. Youngsters will take a renewed interest in football and will want to play in the Big Four. They will have something to look forward to and will be welcomed by Canadians and Americans alike.

"Then consider the tremendous repercussion through newspaper and magazine articles. Identity and publicity are no longer limited possibilities."

Hayman said a meeting between the Grey Cup winner and the NFL winner is not impossible. Neither is the adoption of the same rules.

THREE BLOOD DONOR UNITS from Toronto will be in Peterborough on Tuesday next with 12 technicians to assist the Peterborough branch of the Red Cross at a special blood donor clinic held in the Canadian Legion hall. Two hundred city and district people have already registered as blood donors and 100 more are needed in this drive to provide a reserve of gamma globulin to fight polio.

PUC Will Build $900 Incinerator

People plow through the dump looking for contest box tops and other treasures. Such characters might also come across confidential but obsolete correspondence of the Peterborough Utilities Commission and this, general manager Howard Powell, told the commissioners Wednesday, would not be a desirable situation.

Mr. Powell was asking for an $800 incinerator "big enough to walk around in" for the PUC's Aylmer St. property. There was considerable discussion of this incinerator, although the ruling of the municipal board forbidding sale of debentures to cover gas deficits was not mentioned officially at all.

An incinerator nearby would save a lot of legwork and would also save the commission considerable money, Mr. Powell argued. Commissioner Dick Raine wondered what value would be derived from such an investment, even if most of the labor is done by PUC workers, but Mr. Powell pointed out "We're spending as much each week in disposing of waste, but you don't notice it because it's marked down to maintenance."

Commissioner George A. Macdonald was in favor of Mr. Powell's suggestion, estimating that costs could be substantially cut by relying on materials already on hand and some labor already in the employ of the commission. The expenditure was approved.

It is expected that the new incinerator will also be used to dispose of tree branches and other brush debris which adheres to PUC trucks and creates a mess in the yard. For aesthetic reasons, too, the commission thought it better to build an incinerator.

Russian Trains Are Slow Travelling Facilities Poor

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

If you draw an upper berth on a Soviet train you're stuck with it, day and night.

First- and second-class compartments on Russian trains each have four berths, two uppers and two lowers. They're left made up continuously.

To see the countryside, upper-berth passengers have to develop an acquaintance with someone in a lower—or stand in the corridor.

SIMPLICITY DECEPTIVE

For a foreigner to take a trip by plane or train sounds simple. You get the foreign office to endorse your Soviet document with an authorization to visit the places of your choice. With that you go to Intourist, the state tourist bureau, to buy tickets.

That's where you go grey. Planes and trains leave Moscow daily for most parts of the U.S.S.R. but complications set in when you want to go from one interior point to another, say from Tashkent, in Soviet central Asia north of Afghanistan to Baku, in Azerbaijan north of Iran.

Twenty-four hours after working out a time-table you're apt to find you must spend five days extra at one spot because the plane service from there to your next stop is only five times a month.

"SOFT" AND "HARD"

First class is known as "soft class." Berths are upholstered. There is a curtain over the window, a small table near the window and an old-fashioned lamp.

The equivalent of Canadian tourist class is a coach furnished with wooden racks, two and three deep, set at various angles to make best use of space so as to accommodate more than 80 passengers with their bags, bundles and bales. Most of each train comprises such coaches.

The diner usually is a buffet in the last car. All the seats are taken by beer-drinkers. If you want to eat, you must take your own container for soup or meat dishes, or get the porter to make you sandwiches.

Most travellers bring hampers of food. The woman porter in each car brews tea frequently for her passengers.

The conductor also was a woman.

RADIO SURFEIT

The coaches have hoarse loudspeakers tuned to Radio Moscow day and night.

The Rostov-Moscow train is modern, with carpeted floors and good furniture, but there are no clothes racks and the only thing to do is sleep fully clothed.

Plane travel doesn't offer quite the scope of trains for meeting Russians. Foreigners usually are put aboard first, and in single seats. They are taken to a special waiting room at each airport. The planes are all two-engined Ilyushins, Soviet version of the American DC-3, except they have a tricycle landing-gear. Westerners are disconcerted by the absence of seat belts.

In-flight snacks are paid for, except on the Leningrad-Helsinki run where they are free.

Western Farmers Consider Wheat Stored In Granary Money In Bank

By AL VICKERY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

PETERSFIELD, Man. (CP)—The wheat that bulges farmers' granaries here in the West is looked on as money in the bank. That's why Charlie Carter and thousands like him are waiting for the land to dry so they can plant more grain.

Mr. Carter, now 54, has worked a farm in this district 25 miles northeast of Winnipeg since his father left it to him in 1928.

"Sure, my bins and barn are full of last year's grain," said Mr. Carter as he looked across his 480 acres in the Red river valley. "But I'd rather see them full than empty."

TYPICAL VIEW

His view is typical of that of thousands of western farmers, who despite the huge carryover from last year, plan to seed as much land as in 1953.

Mr. Carter sowed barley on one-half of his farm last year but hopes to grow more wheat this year. He has 9,000 bushels of grain plugging six granaries and one large barn.

His deliveries to his local elevator are limited by quotas based on his cultivated acreage. Although little grain moved through export channels this spring, Mr. Carter says he is confident the Canadian wheat board will eventually get rid of the surplus.

"They're doing a fine job," he says. "We never had better security. It's nice to know you're getting the same price as your neighbor. That's something we didn't get in the 1930s."

This year he plans to sow Thatcher wheat which often has returned more than 40 bushels to the acre compared with the Canadian average of 16.2.

LEFT STUBBLE HIGH

Last fall, he left the stubble high when cutting the grain crop to give the snow a chance to spread more evenly. Now he's waiting for the land to dry. He said many Manitoba farmers are getting away from the old practice of plowing their land in the fall. Now they cultivate in the spring before seeding.

Besides his barley and wheat crops last year, Mr. Carter raised alfalfa on 35 acres. He gets between three and 12 tons an acre and it returns $14 a ton picked up on the field.

Mr. Carter works from 5 a.m. until dark. His wife, his son and a nephew are his only help from seedtime to harvest.

Before the one-man combine harvester, Mr. Carter had a hired man throughout the season and about 15 extra at harvest.

"I had livestock on the farm then. But I slowly got rid of them. I was keeping them. They didn't keep me."

ECONOMY MEASURE

Now all he gets off his farm beside grain and hay, are eggs from his 250 chickens. He buys his butter and bottled milk from the dairies.

"It's cheaper than raising your own livestock," he says.

But despite the long hours, Mr. Carter says the farm is the life for him.

"Why should I go to the city?" he asks. "We've got every convenience here that city folk have—but I do like to go to Winnipeg once in a while, especially to watch the Blue Bombers."

He laughed at the white-collar workers' belief that all farmers go to Florida for the winter.

"I'll never go south for the winter as long as I can curl," he says. "They'll have to bring California up here."

Juvenile Delinquency Grows In Winnipeg

WINNIPEG (CP)—The chief investigating officer for a downtown department store says he has seen as much juvenile delinquency in Winnipeg in the last six months as in the 18 years he served as a Scotland Yard detective.

Arthur Kendall, who came to Canada in 1948, told the Cosmopolitan Club here Wednesday:

"If Winnipeg doesn't think it has a juvenile delinquency problem it is kidding itself. Scores of children are brought to my office for shoplifting. Many are clever stealers; quick as a flash.

"Then when they are apprehended, they lie, blame the other boy, say their parents are divorced, or that their teacher doesn't like them."

"Some of these youngsters have $5 a week pocket-money but still they steal."

Gilmour BYPU Meets

Gilmour BYPU met Sunday evening with 23 present at the home of the Rev. and Mrs. E. C. Smith, with the new officers of the year in charge.

The devotional part was taken by Jim McMullen and Nancy Archer had the opening verse. Barbara Bulmer read the scripture lesson, followed by prayer by Orland Kidd. The Bible quiz was conducted by Marilyn Scott. Mary Raddon had the topic.

The young people's banquet, held recently, was a great success. There were 31 present, with toasts given to the Queen by Donald Irwin; to the past officers by Burrit Mann; to the union by Marilyn Scott. Lillian McGregor led in a sing song, and there was a welcome given to Park St. YP and visitors.

The Rev. E. C. Smith had the inauguration of the new officers. Don Irwin introduced the guest speaker, which was Mrs. E. C. Smith. Orland Kidd thanked Mrs. Smith for her address.

Games were then enjoyed by all.

Shipping Slump

OSLO (CP)—The number of Norwegian merchant vessels laid up in port reached 45, totalling 93,000 gross tons, during April, as a result of depression in world ocean freight markets.

MONEY IN THE BANK — To many a Prairie wheat grower the unsold grain in granaries is like money in the bank. Charlie Carter (right), Petersfield, Man., farmer, says he would rather see his grain bins full than empty. With his Red River Valley neighbor, C. A. (Pat) Sherlock, farmer Carter handles a bag of rust-resistant Selkirk wheat. The Selkirk seed resists one of the deadliest enemies of the Canadian wheat fields.—(CP Photo).

Autopsy Verifies Doctor's Verdict In Baby's Death

TORONTO (CP)—An autopsy on the body of 13-month-old Margaret Drapak performed here Wednesday by Dr. Chester McLean confirmed the findings of a Kingston coroner who ruled the death accidental.

The autopsy showed that death was caused by bronchial pneumonia aggravated by choking on food particles.

The girl died Monday in a nursing home at Sydenham, about 15 miles north of Kingston.

ORDERED AUTOPSY

Dr. Smirle Lawson, Ontario's chief coroner, ordered an autopsy after the girl's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Symond Drapak of Toronto, said they were not satisfied by what they termed conflicting reports about the girl's death.

The baby was found hanging over a string of toys across her crib at a nursery operated by Mrs. P. Switzer of Sydenham. The parents said there was a bruise on her forehead.

The Drapaks placed Margaret in a boarding home because the landlord of their third-floor flat objected to the baby's crying. A Kingston doctor described the nursery to which they took the child as well-run.

Red Teachers Instruct Students In Espionage

TOKYO (AP) — Japanese legislators were told today that Communist teachers in a Kyoto high school added arson, general destruction and rock throwing to the curriculum.

The school was taken over by a group of Communist teachers this week and anti-Red teachers are holding classes in the city auditorium. The Communists remained in control today.

Yoshinosuke Ishida, chairman of the Kyoto municipal assembly, said the children were organized into "stone throwing squads," "destruction squads," and "fire starting squads" by their teachers. Younger students became members of "crying squads" which go into action if a communist teacher is arrested or any other time tears might be effective.

TEHRAN, Iran (AP)—An army appeal court confirmed Wednesday the three-year solitary confinement sentence on conviction of treason handed to Iran's ex-dictator Mohammed Mossadegh by a lower military tribunal.

Says Comic Books Like Poe-Works

TORONTO (CP)—A comic-books publisher said in court Wednesday that his books deal with the same sort of material found in the works of Edgar Allen Poe and Joseph Conrad.

William Zimmerman, president of Superior Publishers Limited, had unsuccessfully sought dismissal of the joint charges against him and his company of printing magazines depicting the commission of crime. The offence carries a two-year penalty.

Testifying in his own defence, Zimmerman said his comics use the same sort of material found in the thriller classics.

The trial is continuing.

Moose Inclined To Act A Bit Crazy All The Time

WASHINGTON — Mentally unbalanced moose pose a problem both strange and sad for Canadian wildlife experts.

Recently government biologists reported that half the moose in the sea-gate provice of Nova Scotia seem out of their minds, the National Geographic Society says. Their antics, briefly, are unmooselike.

They lose normal canniness and caution, and sometimes even the senses of sight and smell. They eat anything. Loping crazily through the forests, they crash blindly into thickets or even fences and then cannot extricate themselves.

Moose madness is known to occur in individual cases as the result of brain disease. Sometimes this can be traced to long-term diet deficiencies. Gradual deprivation of certain minerals and vitamins seems to be the cause in Nova Scotia.

As the province's climate has grown warmer over past decades, vegetation has changed somewhat too. Normally moose would merely move farther north to maintain their usual woodland fare. But in Nova Scotia, connected to the mainland by one narrow land bridge, they are hemmed in.

MONSTER AMONG DEER

Daft moose — or even moose in their right minds — are no animals to trifle with. Largest of the world's antlered creatures, the majestic, ungainly monarch of the woods can be both perverse and unpredictable.

An Alaskan bull moose can weigh 1,800 pounds, stand nearly eight feet high at the shoulders, and carry bulldozer-like antlers six feet across. The common or American moose, somewhat smaller, is nonetheless pugnacious when on a rampage.

Even normal moose behaviour often seems addlebrained to woodsmen. Moose rear up to eat the tops of trees and stand chin-deep in water to duck for water-lily roots. During mating season their bellows can be heard all over their domain; amorous bulls can be lured miles by hunters making cow-like blatting calls through birch-bark horns.

When a rival bull sounds off, a quick-tempered moose charges through the woods like a runaway locomotive, crashing through thickets and brush, splashing thunderously through lake shallows to fight to the death, even after antlers sometimes lock together. At other times a moose can move through dry woods as soundlessly as a cat.

A few years ago in New York State, where moose had not been reported in 70 years, the people of Troy were startled when one wandered into the suburbs. In 1933 a Royal Canadian police boat rescued a giant bull moose several miles in the Atlantic off Labrador, bucking high waves and swimming straight toward Europe.

BATTLING THE IRON HORSE

All across northern Canada, moose regularly do battle with railroad locomotives, particularly those with moose-like horns. Mooseburger is the usual result, although trains have occasionally been derailed by a charging giant.

The Alaska Railroad, troubled every winter by moose parked on the right-of-way, has spent thousands of dollars on devices to scare them off, including oscillating red-and-white headlights, rockets, flares, artificial wolf scent applied to the tracks, snowballs, steam horses, and even electrically - charged "moose-movers" protruding out ahead of the engines.

Success has been slight. When the six-foot snows come, the moose finds easy going along the plowed tracks. They look askance at all such efforts to force them into the deep drifts, and continue to battle the railroad.

ITCHING TOES
may mean you have ATHLETE'S FOOT

Don't delay treatment one minute if you are bothered with itching, burning feet—raw, sore cracks and watery blisters between and under your toes. The odds are 100 to 1 you have Athlete's Foot and you will lose out if you wait. Get after it now, this very day. It can become serious, if neglected.

For quick, sure action go to any drug store and get a bottle of Zorticol. The first application will check the itching and burning. A few days' use will completely kill the germ causing the infection, dry up watery blisters and help heal any raw, sore cracks between and under your toes. Zorticol is low cost, quick, easy and pleasant to use—it is a proven formula for Athlete's Foot. Your druggist will return your money if you are not 100% pleased. At Tamblyn's or any drug store.

Driver's Speed Excessive Jury Decides At Inquest

HAVELOCK (ENS) — "Death was caused by an accident and it is the opinion of the jury that the driver may have been driving at a speed in excess of good common sense taking into consideration the location to Havelock and road consideration."

This was the verdict returned by a coroner's jury, Wednesday afternoon at the town hall at the inquest into the death of Robert James McGowan, 3, son of Mr. and Mrs. George A. McGowan, who was killed, Good Friday, April 16, when he was struck by a car on Highway 30 at the southern entrance to the village at what is known as Old Havelock.

The members of the jury were: Douglas MacLean (foreman), William Woodbeck, Percy Hill, George Outwater, Henry Ellis.

Dr. Herbert N. Young of Peterborough was the coroner and Crown Attorney John A. Bradshaw represented the crown and W. J. A. Fair, QC, represented Mr. McGowan.

CALLED TO SCENE

Dr. H. J. Holdcroft testified that he had been called to go to the home of George McGowan late in the afternoon of Good Friday. He found the child unconscious, with a fractured skull and brain material protruding from the open fracture. There were also minor bruises on the left side and hip. The youngster died within five minutes after, in fact while they were discussing advisability of rushing him to hospital.

Gilbert Crook identified five photos he had taken at the scene of the accident upon a request from Chief R. W. Hall. Two of the photos were of the car invovled in the accident, driven by Cecil Richardson of Trent River and owned by his brother-in-law, Lloyd Donaldson of Toronto. One of these showed a crease in the fender and the broken rim of the right front headlight. The other was a close-up of the damaged headlight. Picture No. 3 was taken that night facing north, showing the roadway wet and the cross intersection. No. 4 was taken the following morning when the road was dry and the sun out and was almost a duplicate of No. 3. No. 5 showed the spot where the child had been picked up and also a skid mark on the road.

HAD ONE DRINK

Cecil Richardson, of Trent River, acknowledged that he was the driver of the car shown in exhibit photo No. 1 at the time of the accident. When asked by Crown Attorney Bradshaw if he had been drinking prior to the accident he said he had had a glass of beer prior to leaving his home to come to Havelock but it did not have any effect on him. He was on the centre of the right hand lane on the highway and he knew he was not speeding.

He did not see the child until he was about seven or eight feet in front of the driver's seat. He was crossing the highway running from the east to the west. Richardson said he immediately put on the brakes and swung the car west at the same time.

LOWERING SPEED

He was easing off speed, as he neared the village limits and his brakes were good. The weather was misty and the highway damp.

Lloyd Donaldson of Toronto testified that he was the owner of the car invovled in the accident and was a passenger in the car which was being driven by Richardson.

He testified they were proceeding north to Havelock. He did not see the child and was not aware anything was wrong until his brother-in-law spoke and he felt a jolt. He said they each had had a glass of beer before starting to come to Havelock to pick up a friend who was to return with them for supper. He said he could not say exactly what speed they were travelling but from his 25 years experience of driving a car, he would estimate it at about 35 to 40 miles per hour.

Ralph Nelson of Campbellford, driver of the next car coming from the south said he saw the child going through the air after it had been struck. He estimated his speed at about 45 miles per hour. At the distance he was away he could not say whether Richardson had slackened his speed or not.

John Shotton, Mrs. Shotton, Mrs. Mabel Watson and Bert Martin all were called but none had witnessed the accident.

Provincial Constable Eady of Campbellford, told of the investigations made by him. He said there was the average visibility the afternoon of the accident for rainy weather. He told Crown Attorney Bradshaw that he could smell liquor or beer on the defendant's breath but that his actions and speech were normal.

Constable Eady described the damages to car, and said there was a skid mark nine feet, 11 inches long which could or could not ha e been made by the accident. There was also a blood spot which was shown in one picture of the scene.

AT MAIL BOX

Mr. McGowan, the father of the child, said he noticed his small son at the mail box, situated on the east side of No. 30 highway south of the cross road and had started to go across for him when he heard a bang. He saw the car coming and estimated Richardson was travelling at quite a speed.

Crown Attorney Bradshaw asked Reeve E. J. Leeson who was in the audience if the 30 mile speed limit had been duly passed by the municipal council. Reeve Leeson would not say definitely but he said the sign was in the township of Belmont and had been put up by the highway department.

Dr. Young said before the jury left to reach a verdict that unless there was definite evidence that the skid marks pertained to the case, it might be better to ignore them.

Carrier Passes Test

LONDON (AP)—The admiralty says the Royal Navy's newest aircraft carrier, the angle-decked HMS Centaur, has given satisfaction in its trials and will go into service before the end of 1954. The 737-foot Centaur's angled deck, described by the admiralty as the world's first, permits a longer run for take-offs and landings.

Choir Of 700 To Sing At Kitchener

KITCHENER (CP)—An international all-male choir of 700 voices, in the largest gathering of its kind in Canada, will shake the rafters at Kitchener's new auditorium Saturday.

Eighteen choral groups, 11 from the United States and seven from Ontario, will blend voices in the annual Big Sing before an expected audience of 7,000.

American choirs from Ohio, New York, Michigan and Pennsylvania and Canadian groups from Toronto, Brantford, Hamilton, Ottawa and Kitchener will harmonize on "Deep River," "Syncopated Clock," "The Battle Hymn of the Republic" and other selections. A two-piano team will accompany the choirs.

WILL BE SOLOIST

Master of ceremonies for the event is Don Craig of New York, television performer and bass soloist, formerly with the Fred Waring organization. He will be the only featured soloist.

All the participating choirs, some coming hundreds of miles for the event, are donating their time, talent and expenses. The profits of the production which takes about 18 months to plan and produce go toward a fund for various youth activities of the YMCA.

The event is being sponsored by the Kitchener-Waterloo Y's Men Club.

It's Not Permissible Bawl Out Motorist

TORONTO (CP) — No matter what the provocation, it is not permissible to yank open a car door and bawl out a motorist, magistrate F. C. Gullen ruled in effect Wednesday.

He convicted John Passmore, a street cleaner, of common assault on motorist Harry Would and fined him $10 and costs or five days.

Evidence was that a car driven by Would struck but did not injure Passmore. The street cleaner opened the car door and told Would he didn't know how to drive. As Would tried to push Passmore from the car, Passmore struck him in the face and caused $8 damage to his glasses, police said.

"A person has not the right to open a car door in a state of irritation and upbraid the owner," said the magistrate.

Says Rent Controls 90% Expediency

TORONTO (CP)—Rent control is 90 per cent political expediency and 10 per cent necessity, President Leo Landreville, president of the Sudbury Property Owners Association, said Wednesday.

He was addressing the annual meeting of the Toronto Property Owners Association.

Mr. Landreville said controls in Sudbury were abolished two months ago.

"They destroy the incentive to ownership and so destroy democracy as we understand it," he said. "Controls have never built homes."

Too Much Rain Stalls Farmers

Along the rural horizon, rain this week was too much of a good thing as reported from most points of the provincial compass to the Ontario Department of Agriculture. However, in some of the counties farmers grasp every weather chance that is offered, and in Bruce they have more than 50 per cent of the spring seeding finished.

In Haldimand, however, it is next to nothing. Maybe the figure of "1 per cent." is a stenographic misprint. Possibly there should be an "O" added to it. At any rate, from that county came the news: "There is still less than 1 per cent of the spring seeding done, due to the continued wet weather." Better than 40 per cent is done in Grey, and only 10 per cent in Elgin.

Last phase of the seeding may back up onto the toes of the haying. . .

In North Simcoe the price of weanling pigs has soared to unprecedented lyevels. Some of the fields in Norfolk have been too damp for pasturing of dairy cattle. Coming nearer to Ontario county —feeder pigs and breeding stock continue in strong demand.

Fall wheat has been putting on heavy top; there are more sheep in the fields of Central Ontario than in recent years and finally a spell of sunshine could effect fast change in the spring work schedule.

Describe Two Hydro Projects

QUEBEC (CP) — Two hydro-electric power projects, one distinguished for its tremendous size and the other for the complications involved in its construction were described today by Canadian engineers.

Dr. R. L. Hearn, general manager and chief engineer, Ontario hydro-electric power commission, and J. E. Sproule, consulting transmission engineer for Ontario Hydro, gave the annual meeting of the Engineering Institute of Canada data on the Niagara power development.

Dr. Hearn said that with completion, in 1956, of its Sir Adam Beck-Niagara G.S. No. 2, Ontario Hydro will have increased its dependable peak capacity by 6,345,000 h.p. since 1945 at a cost of $1,250,000,000.

Dr. Hearn said recent developments will not affect the scenic beauty of the falls.

When completed in 1956, the plant will contain 12 units with a total capacity of 1,260,000 horsepower.

Mr. Sproule said transmission lines in 1910 could carry only 20,000 kilowatts. Today they could carry 200,000 kilowatts.

PIONEER LINES

In 1860 a total of 16 railway companies operated 1,800 miles of track in Canada with wood-burning locomotives.

European Entrants Compete In Canadian House Designing

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

More than 600 architects from Canada and Western Europe have come up with suggestions for the sort of home Canadians should live in.

They are entrants calling for designs for an attractive, practical and efficient house for a typical Canadian family.

This family would have five members—parents and three children under 15 years of age, and be people who wish a house in good taste, simple in detail and pleasant in color, without being impractical to maintain or too costly to build.

Only Canadian and Western European architects are eligible, and more than half the entries are from Europe, from virtually every country invited to compete. United States architects were not invited because it was felt U.S. ideas are already being adequately presented in Canada.

Prof. Gio Ponti of Italy, one of the judges, whose country sent 50 entries, said at a press conference in Toronto Wednesday that such a contest is not expected to provide an ideal home, but to be an "episode" in development. "After all," he added, "Life goes on—needs and tastes change."

WANTS PERSONAL TOUCH

He hoped architects would not allow the house of the future to become "too industrialized," but would manage, within the bounds of economy, to leave room for the personal touch.

The competition, financed by a distilling firm and sponsored by the school of architecture at McGill University, has been approved by the Royal Architectural Institute of Canada and the International Union of Architects, Paris.

First prize is $5,000 and, aside from the winning entry, the best Canadian entry and the best European entry will each receive $2,500. Ten honorable mentions will get $200 each. Results are expected to be announced shortly.

The judges, in addition to Prof. Ponti, are Eric Arthur, University of Toronto, and Humphrey Carver, Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation. Professional advisers to the jury are Prof. John Bland, McGill University, and Prof. Pierre Morency, Ecole des Beaux-Arts, Montreal.

Birds, Beasts Behave Oddly In Brantford

A raccoon was found asleep in a tree on the market square Tuesday afternoon.

A bluejay plopped out of a cedar tree on the city's main street and lay stunned until he was picked up, fed and watered. He flew off with his dignity and feathers ruffled.

A chick hopped on the undercarriage of an automobile and rode three miles before he was discovered.

A budgie named Tweety went on a nocturnal flight in his owner's home lost his bearings in the dark and plunged into a bowl. He was drowned.

U.S. Catholics Increase

NEW YORK (AP)—The number of American Roman Catholics has risen to about 31,500,000, a gain of more than four per cent in the last year, official church statistics say. In the previous year, the tempo of increase was just over three per cent. The 1954 official Catholic directory says the Catholic proportion of the country's over-all population now is about 21 per cent.

Singer's Medals Stolen

CHICAGO (AP)—Two dozen foreign decorations awarded to opera singer Lauritz Melchior were stolen, along with jewelry, from an auto Wednesday. Police estimated the loss at $4,000. But the thieves who broke into the car and stole the leather case containig the medals and jewelry did not disturb cases containing jewelry and clothing valued at $25,000, which were locked in the car's trunk.

Must Protect Inland Extension Of Coastal Shipping Trade

OTTAWA (CP)—The son of a Lunenburg skipper said Wednesday the Atlantic provinces will benefit from the St. Lawrence power and seaway project but Canada must protect this inland extension of her coastal shipping trade.

Senator J. J. Kinley (L—Nova Scotia) described coastal shipping trade as the cradle of country's maritime strength. He spoke in the Senate during consideration of minor changes to expropriation powers for building power sections of the St. Lawrence waterway.

Senator John T. Haig, Opposition leader, said the laws Parliament passes for the St. Lawrence development rank with such historic acts as the declarations of war in 1939 and 1914 and the building of the trans-continental railways.

Senator A. W. Roebuck (L—Ontario) suggested that, if there are no limits on the expropriation powers granted the Ontario government in the power phase, land may be taken which is needed for the waterway.

Senator Norman Lambert (L—Ontario) who explained the measure said he does not think such a situation is likely.

The Ontario legislature had outlined a specific procedure the Ontario Hydro is to follow in expropriations for power sites on the St. Lawrence.

National Flag And Anthem Troubles In Other Nations Of Commonwealth

For instance:

South Africa has had a "compromise" flag since 1927. Nobody appears happy with it.

Both Australia and New Zealand have national songs though "God Save the Queen" is regarded as the national anthem.

INDIAN ANTHEM

Pakistan has the tune for a national anthem but no words.

So Canadian members of Parliament are not alone as they try to come up with a design for a distinctive Canadian flag.

The Union Jack and Red Ensign are both flown in Canada as national flags. "God Save the Queen" is regarded as the national anthem though "O Canada" is heard almost as often.

The situation most nearly parallel to Canada's is that of South Africa, which started flag discussions more than 30 years ago.

South Africa has two "flags of the Union"—the Union Jack and the national flag.

ADOPTED IN 1927

The national flag is three horizontal stripes, orange, white and blue. In the centre is the "compromise"—three tiny editions of three flags lying cheek-by-jowl. They are the Union Jack and the old flags of the original South African republics, the Orange Free State and the Transvaal. All three small flags are of equal size.

This flag was adopted in 1927 and Wentzel du Plessis new South African high commissioner to Canada, said recently nobody in South Africa is happy with it.

The argument over a national flag went on for years between the English-speaking and Afrikaans speaking South Africans. Nowadays one section of the population—mostly the Afrikaners—wants to do away with the Union Jack altogether.

The Union Jack, denoting South Africa partnership in the Commonwealth, is flown with the national flag from the Houses of Parliament and from principal government buildings in the capitals of the union and of the provinces. Incidentally, South Africa has three national capitals—administrative in Pretoria, legislative in Capetown and judicial in Bloemfontein.

TWO ANTHEMS

It also has two national anthems: "God Save the Queen" and "The Voice of South Africa." The section which wants to eliminate the Union Jack also wants to get rid of "God Save the Queen." There is a strong movement to stop the playing of the anthem or anthems after movie shows, night club performances and the like.

Both the Australia and New Zealand flags have the Union Jack in the upper corner nearest the staff. Both have the Southern Cross in the fly. This constellation of stars was named "Crux" by the astronomer Royer in 1679.

The New Zealand flag, on a blue field, has four stars of the Southern Cross in the fly. The Australian flag, on a red field, has five stars of the cross in the fly. Under the Union Jack, it has a sixth star. This star originally had six points for the six states but a seventh point was added in 1908 to represent the Australian territories.

Australia became a federation, Jan. 1, 1901. But it had no national flag. So a competition for designs was held. More than 30,000 entries were received and the winning one, adopted in 1902, was designed by a schoolboy.

It was not until late last year, however, that the Australian Parliament officially adopted the flag, a lapse of 51 years.

"God Save the Queen" is the national anthem in both Australia and New Zealand. Australia has a national song called "Advance Australia Fair" but it hasn't the same status as "O Canada" in Canada. It became popular during the war but the majority of Australians apparently are happy with "the Queen."

NOT USED OFTEN

New Zealand's national song is "God Defend New Zealand." It is not used often.

There is no trace of the Union Jack in either the Pakistani or Indian flags. Both flags became official when the countries became republics within the Commonwealth in 1947.

The Indian flag is three horizontal stripes, saffron, white and green, with a blue wheel in the centre of the white panel.

In Pakistan, "God Save the Queen" is played only on Commonwealth occasions. A competition now is being held for words to the national anthem.

In India, the national anthem is "Janaganamana." It finally won out in 1950 over the older "Vande Mataram" but the latter is still used. Theatres are discouraged from playing the national anthem except on special occasions.

One rule regarding the Indian anthem: "In no circumstances should it be played for more than a minute."

SCOTTISH PORT

Cargo Fleet Cut In June

OTTAWA (CP) — An Ontario shipping authority and parliamentarian says Canada's decimated deep-sea cargo fleet will be cut next month to a 35-year low.

Senator G. P. Campbell (L—Ontario) told the Senate trade committee Wednesday that the entire fleet is gripped by pessimism. There likely would be continued deterioration until Canada has no fleet at all.

The shipping issue arose as the committee opened a discussion of Canadian exporters' problems.

Senator Campbell, lawyer for several grain and shipping companies, added in an interview later that more and more Canadian ships are being transferred to foreign registers.

By June 30 there will be only 21 sea-going freighters flying the Canadian flag. This compares with 147 in 1947. High operating costs and the lack of a clear-cut government policy had cut the fleet to 74 in 1950 and to 47 last year.

Bilingual Program Praised By Festival Adjudicator

By PAULINE KENNEDY

HAMILTON, Ont. (CP) — The Dominion Drama Festival went bilingual Wednesday with a double-header program of English comedy and an 18th century French comedy.

The Trail Little Theatre from British Columbia gave a matinee performance of "For Love or Money," a sophisticated, naughty Broadway play by F. Hugh Herbert, author of "The Moon is Blue." In the evening, the College de Saint-Boniface group from St. Boniface, Man., presented Moliere's classic, "La Malade Imaginaire."

Adjudicator Hugh Hunt said "For Love or Money," the story of an elderly matinee idol, Preston Mitchell, pursued by a designing woman and an innocent girl, was well set and well staged and that the actors "kept up a rapid-fire delivery of lines so important to this type of comedy."

GREAT DEMAND

He said the group's choice of this "slick play, tailor-made for box office success, made great demands of the actors."

Mr. Hunt singled out the performances of Chris Wiggins as the matinee idol and Patricia Tench as the girl, as skilful and charming.

"The play had plenty of bitchy talk between the two main women characters, which makes for a successful play if not a very high calibre one," the adjudicator said.

The cast also included Marion Johnson as Nita, Dorothy Calder, John Ferguson, Laurie Lynds, Gina Landucci and Roland Lerose.

PRAISES ACTING

Mr. Hunt paid high tribute to French actor Robert Trudel's lead in "La Malade Imaginaire." He said Mr. Trudel's playing of the comic character Argan, a hypochondriac who tries to marry his daughter off to the simple son of a physician so he can have a doctor on call at all times, was in "tradition with the best French comedians of today."

Moliere wrote the play as a dig at the pompous medical profession of his day. After his third performance in the title role of Argan, he collapsed and died of tuberculosis.

Mr. Hunt praised the company for over-all excellence of performance. Toinette, Argan's maid, was played by Raymonde Marchand. Armand Lafleche played the role of Argan's physician Diafoirus. Other members of the cast included Lucinenne Dacquay, Denis Belaire, Napoleon Prince, Leandre Bergeron and Claude Cloutier.

Workshop 14 of Calgary will produce "The Lady's Not for Burning," a play by Christopher Fry, tonight. The week-long festival runs until Saturday.

5-Storey Building Burns In Quebec

QUEBEC (CP)—Flames, spread by small explosions, whipped through a five-storey brick building late Wednesday night in the heart of Quebec's lower town tenement district.

No one was injured in the three-alarm blaze. Damage was estimated at more than $75,000.

Yep, It's Big

TORONTO (CP) — City officials have decided that a tour of metropolitan Toronto is no small jaunt. An eight-bus caravan under police escort Wednesday carried 400 members of the Board of Trade and metropolitan council on a 100-mile tour of the metropolitan area. The trip took five hours.

Newspapermen 'Crippled' By Ruling—CCF

TORONTO (CP) — CCF leader Donald C. MacDonald said Wednesday night newspapermen may be reduced to writing government handouts as a result of a recent court decision which compels them to reveal sources of information.

Mr. MacDonald said "the courts may go even further" since "they have been asked to rule that such contempt would automaticallyforfeit any defence in a libel suit."

He was speaking to a meeting of the St. Paul's CCF Riding Association. He referred to the libel suit brought against Blair Fraser, Ottawa editor of Maclean's Magazine.

It has always been taken for granted that newspapermen did not have to reveal sources of information, Mr. MacDonald said. Sufficient guarantee of a responsible press was held in the fact that a journalist could be sued for libel.

"The supreme court decision," Mr. MacDonald said, "means that henceforth, if a journalist refuses to be a tattle-tale, his goose is virtually cooked if he is faced with a libel suit."

DR. H. MAX YELLAND was named a life member of the Ontario Medical Association Wednesday at a conference in Toronto. The association represents 4,000 doctors in the province.

Expert On Far East Affairs Canadian Accidentally

By ALAN HARVEY

GENEVA (CP)—Some 300 acres of rich Alberta farm land made an "accidental" Canadian out of Chester Ronning.

Ronning will take over leadership of the Canadian delegation at the Geneva conference Friday. He succeeds External Affairs Minister Pearson, off to London for atomic energy talks.

The 59-year-old Ronning, of Norwegian-American stock, is one of Canada's least known diplomats. Yet few Westerners know more about Asian problems than this tall, gentle-mannered man who has spent nearly half his life in China, speaks Chinese as readily as he does English and has intimate knowledge of the background of contemporary Chinese leaders.

He had a ringside seat during the great revolution of 1922-27 which overthrew the war lords and set Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek firmly in the saddle. He was in Hankow when the revolutionary government was set up there.

If Canada one day takes the plunge and recognizes Communist China, the chances are Chester Alvin Ronning will be her first ambassador at Peiping.

BORN IN CHINA

Ronning was born Dec. 13, 1894 in Fancheng, Hupeh, most central province of China. His father, Halvor, a missionary, was in his youth one of the champion skiers of Telemark, Norway.

The process which was to transform the missionary's son into a Canadian diplomat began in 1901. Passing through Calgary after the Boxer rebellion, Ronning senior was advised to buy a parcel of Alberta agricultural land at $3 an acre.

He did, and the tip paid off. The family moved to Canada in 1908 and now has a home at Camrose.

Since those early days the missionary's son has alternated between Canada and the Far East, spending a total of about 25 years in China.

Knitwear Gains Popularity

Some couturiers have opened boutiques or special departments devoted entirely to knitted clothes, everything from bulky sports sweaters to the sheerest cobweb evening gowns.

Strategic buying of knitwear can round out a small basic wardrobe, with advantages of new processing in permanent pleating and crease - proof treatments which never need look at an iron.

An additional feature is the absence of weight, an important factor in capsule wardrobes for travelling. Many new yarns use just sufficient nylon to ensure quick drying and elasticity while retaining the feel and effect of wool, cashmere or cotton.

Current styles and techniques are handled exactly like fabric and are lined to avoid any possibility of sagging or mis-shaping. A knitted suit need fit no tighter than one made in flannel, silk or other fabric.

Three Synods Elect New Officers

TORONTO (CP)—Three Ontario Synods of the Anglican Church Wednesday wound up annual sessions. They elected officers and discussed the extension of church activities.

The synods met at London (diocese of Huron), Hamilton (diocese of Niagara) and Kingston (diocese of Ontario). The synod at Hamilton discussed gambling in relation to church raffles.

The Rev. T. Bailey of Beamsville asked delegates at the 80th annual session of the Niagara Synod whether a church raffle is any more related to the evils of gambling as one glass of beer is to the evils of gambling.

The Rev. K. N. Brueton of Arthur said: "Perhaps there is nothing wrong with selling tickets on a quilt, but if the church is going to support raffles the church should also serve beer."

Delegates passed a resolution asking parishes in the Niagara diocese to raise voluntarily 50 per cent more than what has been asked for in 1954. They said the current apportionment of $113,879 is not enough for the Hamilton area.

The synod also heard social service council reports on housing, juvenile delinquency, prison welfare and immigration.

STUDY CREDIT UNIONS

Huron Synod approved a study of the formation of credit unions to encourage parochial and community thrift in the diocese. Delegates also recommended establishment of church institutions to help unmarried mothers, the aged, and discharged prisoners.

The council suggested Anglican parishes should pay the heating costs of rectories.

The Rt. Rev. G. N. Luxton, Bishop of Huron Diocese, appointed three archdeacons and named eight new canons.

Mrs. A. C. McCullum told delegates at the 88th annual session of the Ontario Synod that it would be a good idea if women were permitted to attend the sessions as lay delegates from the parishes. This is not allowed now under synod rules.

Meeting Decides $100,000 Renovations Best Solution For Library Problems

A special committee meeting of the whole city council will be held after the regular council meeting next Monday night to discuss the public library board's request for alterations to the library building.

At a joint meeting of the library board with six council members Wednesday night, board chairman Herb Bradburn said $100,000 was the maximum estimate of the cost of carrying out the plans for modernization suggested by architect A. E. Vine, a specialist in library building design.

Already available are approximately $11,000 of the endowment left by the late Charlotte Nicholls and $4,000 remaining from the original building gift of $30,000 from United States philanthropist Andrew Carnegie.

It is assumed that the remaining $85,000 would be borrowed on 20-year debentures. Under the provisions of the Public Library Act, it is expected that the province would grant 20 per cent of the annual payments if the city put up the other 80 per cent. Last year the province paid 20 per cent on the full $48,000 appropriated to the library by the city.

BEST SOLUTION

All six members of the library board present agreed that the proposed plan was the best solution to the overcrowding and lack of facilities in the building as it stands. If $100,000 was to be spent, however, it would be on the understanding that the improved building would be intended to serve the city for at least 20 years.

Some discussion was given to the idea current a few years ago that it was intended to extend the north wing of city hall and add an additional east-wing along McDonnel St. to house the library. But Mr. Bradburn said he understood space in the city hall was at present being used to capacity and the extension would be used by the staff of city departments.

If the city hall were extended, therefore, it would involve construction of a new library on a different site. Judging by costs to other cities of similar size, a new library would probably cost between $450,000 and $500,000.

Ald. Art Burrows was of the opinion that adding a new wing to the city hall would cost as much as the city hall itself and the citizens would countenance neither that nor destruction of the library. Ald. Burrows said he was probably just as enthusiastic about the proposed alterations to the existing library building as members of the library board.

Ald. Harold Rehill said the idea of tearing the library down and adding another wing to city hall was "grandiose." He said private firms were loathe to tear down buildings that were structurally sound and replace them with modern buildings. They preferred to renovate.

WORK WASTED

The board looked with disfavor on an alternative proposal to make temporary repairs to the library, on the understanding that in a few years major renovations would be undertaken or a new building erected.

In the long run, Mr. Bradburn said, the cost of temporary repairs would be wasted, because at least some of the work would be undone when the larger job was undertaken.

It was also pointed out that some of the proposed changes to the building were structural, involving the installation of fireproof stairways, additional washroom facilities and alterations to the lighting and heating systems so as to provide additional space for books along the walls. Full use of basement space would provide shelf space for another 11,417 books.

Librarian William Graff said he was faced with a serious problem of book storage.

Ald. Gordon Farquharson asked whether the board would consider the construction of a branch library as an alternative but Mr. Graff said this would in no way solve the problem, although the provision of additional extension service was something which had to be considered for the future.

But branch libraries could not supplement the essential service provided by the main library. The board could not afford to duplicate its reference works, for one thing. With 22 branches, Toronto kept all its reference works in the main library.

It was pointed out that renovation of the present library building was a prerequisite of providing adequate branch service. The bulk of the books in branches are interchangeable so that borrowers can obtain any book contained in the main library.

Ald. Harold Rehill said he thought council would come in for more criticism if they undertook to make temporary repairs to the library than if they approved the major renovations.

"If the library board is satisfied that the present building is central enough to serve the city, I think council would be wise to go ahead with the alterations," Ald. Hehill said, "especially when we spend large amounts on non-participating sports. I just can't visualize tearing down the present building."

"I think the library is in the same category as our schools," Ald. John Dewart said. "We insist on educating all our children and I think that we ought to provide adequate library facilities for all our citizens."

Mr. Graff said the library had 11,000 borrowers "and they are very critical," particularly of the present lighting ovr the stacks and the narrow space between the rows of shelves. The library was also providing meeting space for 440 groups.

"The library is performing many of the functions of a community centre and performing them very well," Ald. Gordon Powell agreed.

The board agreed to prepare for next Monday's council meeting a statement of what funds were already available and what provincial grants would probably be forthcoming.

Would Have Used A-Bomb: Chennault

NEW YORK (AP) — Maj.-Gen. Claire Chennault (retired), leader of the Second World War's "Flying Tigers" in China, said Wednesday "if it had been up to me, I would have used the atom bomb" in defence of Dien Bien Phu.

"I do not think this would have precipitated World War III," he told reporters. "I don't see how anyone could attack us for attacking an aggressor."

General Committee To Hold Meeting To Ratify Location Of Memorial Centre

The Memorial Centre general committee will meet tonight to ratify the site in Exhibition Park recommended by the site committee. The proposed site has been approved by both the Morrow trust and the exhibition board, as well as the Memorial Centre executive committee.

The proposal is to locate the building in the north-east portion of the park along Lansdowne and Lock streets. The side committee have recommended to the building committee that the building should be set back 60 to 75 feet from Lansdowne St. to provide for a circular driveway to serve the entrance to the centre.

The driveway would permit vehicles, including buses and taxis, to swing off Lansdowne St., unload their passengers and return to the street with a minimum interruption of traffic. The committee suggested that no parking or standing of vehicles should be permitted on the driveway at any time.

PARKING LOTS

The committee also suggested that a parking lot should be established south of the Memorial Centre with an entrance directly from Lock St. The lot could also be reached from the south entrance to the park and even from the George St gates.

They also suggested an additional parking lot immediately west of the building with an entrance from the main gate at George St.

They suggested holding a consultation with the Morrow trustees and the exhibition board to determine whether or not the two suggested parking areas should be deeded to the city as part of the site for the Memorial Centre.

There seems to be much to recommend that the land for the parking area should not be deeded, the report stated, but should, by agreement, be set aside and properly established for parking facilities and used as required, jointly to serve and benefit the Memorial Centre and also the exhibition board.

It was suggested that if the parking area was retained in this manner, the money spent in surfacing it might be augmented by federal and provincial grants.

SIZE TO BE SET

The committee was unable to set out the exact area required for the Memorial Centre, as it would depend on the dimensions of the building, which will have to be decided by the building committee.

It was pointed out that there was no place for the centre in the area taken up by the racetrack, its ancillary buildings and the grandstand, unless the exhibition board intended to abandon the racetrack and its infield—and there was no indication that it did. Besides, this area served as an important playing field for several sports.

It was also evident that there was not sufficient space for the Memorial Centre between the race track and the extension of George St. Further, the report stated, it would appear improper to place the new building, architecturally designed, near the rather unimpressive former drill hall.

The committee gave some consideration to having the centre located in the centre of the park, east of the George St. extension. It was felt, however, that the building would not be properly shown off there.

Furthermore, the area would have to be deeded to the city, creating an island of land owned by the city within the park, which, it was suggested, would not be approved by the Morrow trustees or the exhibition board.

In addition, the roadway, usually referred to as an extension of George St., is not a public thoroughfare in the true sense and is not controlled by the city.

By process of elimination, therefore, the committee recommended the north-east portion of the park as the most desirable location for the Memorial Centre.

See Price-Cutting War Between Truckers, Railways

OTTAWA (CP)—A tough price-cutting war is in prospect—if it has not already broken out quietly—between Canada's railways and truckers.

The railways have been slashing rates in many directions in an attempt to hold their slipping $1,000,000,000-a-year freight business, and Wednesday a truckers' spokesman warned against a "destructive" rate fight that he said could put commerce into the red.

Fear of such a war was expressed n a statement issued here by G. M. Parke of Toronto, president of Canadian Trucking Associations, the cross-country organization that speaks for the "for hire" truckers doing a $70,000,000-a-year traffic.

For many years, the trucks have been cutting into the railways' lucrative high-class traffic, and the railways have been complaining of unfair competition from the road haulers. Wednesday's complaint by Mr. Parke reversed that.

Counter-measures by the trucking industry are necessary, Mr. Parke said, and "the trucking industry is able to protect its competitive position and can be expected to do so."

At Montreal, head offices of the two big railways had no comment. Their new rates were posted May 3.

Forest Rangers Use TV Network

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)—An experimental television network which would allow one forest fire ranger to watch 10 different areas simultaneously was explained to a southern states forest fire control conference here Wednesday.

A. S. Vendt, communications engineer for the Louisiana forestry commission, said two sets are being used in his state to test the project.

Here's how the project works:

A rotating television camera is mounted on a forest lookout tower. Its signals are carried by microwave to sets in another location.

As many as 10 TV-equipped towers located in one general area would send their signals to a central location, manned by one operator. Two screens, each receiving five signals in clusters, would allow the operator to keep the entire area under surveillance.

Rules 3 Must Answer Pre-Trial Questions

VANCOUVER (CP)—The British Columbia Court of Appeal has ruled that three Vancouver men, former directors in a distillery here, must answer pre-trial questions in the $3,000,000 suit of Mrs. Nat Bell of Calgary.

Mrs. Bell, widow of Nat Bell one of the founders of United Distillers of Canada Ltd., is suing George Norgan, Albert McLennan and Isidore J. Klein, alleging fraud in the sale of shares.

The three were indicted in New York Tuesday on charges of failing to pay $17,000,000 in taxes on profits made from the sale of Canadian whisky in the United States.

In the Vancouver case, the court ruled that the pre-trial questions of Mrs. Bell must be answered and that they must disclose documents needed in the case.

See Textile Trade Conditions Worsening

OTTAWA (CP)—A Liberal member said Wednesday the depressed condition of Canada's textiles and machine tool industries will be increased by preferred treatment given Japan in a trade treaty with Canada.

Arthur White, Waterloo-South, said during Commons debate of the treaty that the situation is due to mounting imports from low-wage countries.

The Canadian textile industry now supplied only 51 per cent of the domestic market, compared with 68 per cent in 1950. Imports from mass-producing United States mills and low-wage mills in Britain and Japan were underselling Canadian output.

A former singer in Peterborough, Mrs. Dorothy Alan Park, is adjudicating at a music festival in Hamilton. Now living in Toronto, Mrs. Park is a daughter of the late John Alan, formerly organist at St. Paul's church. She was also a conductor of the Peterborough Madrigal Singers in this city.

RADIOS READY

Antennae and masts are in place, and the Peterborough utilities commission trucks should be equipped with two-way radios shortly. Frequency and call letters have been assigned and general manager Howard Powell reports everything "just about ready to start." The equipment is being installed by Rogers - Majestic Electronics Ltd., which underbid CGE.

MORE CONSUMPTION

Electrical power consumption is up 785,951 kilowatt hours last month, compared with April of 1953. Increase was from 10,590,649 to 11,376,600 KWH. Peak load was up 1,960 to 23,890 kw. The water department showed consumption up more than four million gallons to 132,960,000 for April, 1954.

NEW STAMPING MACHINE

The property committee of city council Wednesday recommended the purchase of a stamping machine for city hall mail at a cost of $790. City clerk E. A. Outram reported the present machine had broken down and was no longer adequate to handle the volume of mail at city hall. It was purchased seven years ago.

MORE THAN MARCHING takes place when collegiate cadets hold inspections nowadays. Pictures here demonstrate the variety of equipment and skills that the cadets of PCVS have mastered and performed for inspecting officers at Nicholls Oval Wednesday. In the top left photo, Lt. H. E. Done, district cadet training officer, checks a head bandage on Cadet Bob Dixon. Watching are cadets Peter Dunford and Gary Barclay. Map reading is also an important part of a cadet's training, and Cadets Ken Dunn and Peter Norris in the top right photo are showing Betty Raddon how it's done. In the lower photo, Cadets Doug Shearer and Bob Moore demonstrate their ability with a bren gun for inspecting officer, Lt. Col. Howard Hammell, commanding officer of the 50th HAA regiment. Misunderstanding Reason For Veto By Board, PUC Feels

There must be some mistake. This was the reaction of the Peterborough Utilities Commission to the news that the Ontario municipal board had refused to allow the city of Peterborough to issue debentures amounting to $52,000 to cover a $25,000 deficit in the gas department and bring the department out of the red.

"We have no comment to make until we hear more about it," chairman Fred Hills commented. "We have received no official word from the municipal board, and all we know is what's in the papers."

Dick Raine felt there must be "some misunderstanding" which would be cleared up, perhaps after further talks with the municipal board.

General manager Howard Powell was optimistic about an amicable settlement of the problem, but pointed out he was still in the dark on exactly what had happened and why. He did mention, however, "that this is not the first time this has happened to a utilities commission."

Refusal of permission to issue debentures was based on the municipal board's contention that deficits should have been met by increasing gas rates last year, rather than by withdrawals from invested reserves. Transfers were made last year from waterworks surpluses to circumvent interest charges against gas works overdrafts.

This move was made at a meeting Jan. 14, 1953, when former commissioner Dr. G. R. Langley moved a transfer of money from water account to meet this gas deficit.

RULE ILLEGAL

The municipal board, in its veto ruling, said the utilities commission, and the city (which issues the debentures for all PUC projects) were acting illegally in undertaking capital expenditures for which funds were not available, without the prior approval of the municipal board.

The gas department has been the PUC's white elephant for years. Time was when gas was the biggest money-maker, but with the advent of cheap electrical power the day of gas ascendancy was over. The city might have gone out of the gas field altogether, only there was too large an investment in mains and equipment to let go to waste.

Until a few years ago, gas was made from coke, not a very profitable business. Three years ago the PUC began to use propane and has steadily increased output. But the department was too far behind to catch up.

Recently natural gas from the west, which would not only reduce gas costs but would supplement power shortages, has become a significant factor, discussed in some degree at almost every PUC meeting. Until pipelines are laid, gas from the west, from the Williston Basin, or from Texas fields via Niagara Falls provides the PUC with nothing but speculation.

The basic gas rate is now $2.50 for the first 1,000 cubic feet and $1.45 for all subsequent thousands for domestic use. It has been estimated that natural gas would cut local costs by as much as 50 per cent.

If no other solution can be found, it would appear likely that gas rates will go up. But whether or not this would bail the gas department out of its present difficulties remains a debatable point, since increased prices without improved transportation facilities might boomerang and make losses even greater, with less gas consumed.

In April, 7,898,999 cubic feet of gas was made, an increase of 811,000 over April of 1953. There has been some increase in gas demands, and the CGE has been attempting to persuade its head office to contract for a substantial increase. Also, last month a booster pump was placed at the PUC's Aylmer St. property to take care of a heavier load in the south end of the city.

The increases, however, still do not begin to keep up with the deficits.

City May Rent Downtown Space For Car Parking

City council is going to investigate the possibility of leasing land in the area of George and Hunter streets for off-street parking.

Meanwhile, there is a possibility that only a portion of the proposed new parking lot between King and Sherbrooke streets will be equipped with meters. If a proposal made to the property committee Wednesday afternoon is carried out, the remainder of the lot would be rented during an experimental period while the actual parking needs in the south end of the main business section are determined by experience.

The new parking lot was purchased in two parcels by last year's city council at a total cost of $40,000. The property committee Wednesday recommended that the houses on the property should now be advertised for demolition.

NOT IMMEDIATE NEED

The entire site will eventually provide space for between 160 and 180 cars. City Clerk E. A. Outram admitted there probably wasn't an immediate need for that much parking space in that section but he thought it was a wise purchase.

"I'm sure we'll need it all for parking eventually," he said, "but I think only part of it should be metered now until it is discovered how much room is needed. The remainder could be rented for various purposes such as a used car lot."

Council's search for parking space at the north end of the business section recently met with little success when owners of prospective sites asked what were termed exorbitant prices.

Ald. Stan McBride suggested to the property committee Wednesday that some of the owners ought to be willing to consider leasing their land. In some cases, the property was at the rear of the owners' store buildings and use of the land for parking space would be an advantage to their businesses.

Mr. Outram pointed out that many United States municipalities rented land for parking lots. One reason was that municipalities could operate the lots more efficiently than the private owners. In some cases, he said, there was no fixed rent but the owners received a percentage of the revenue from meters.

The committee decided to arrange a meeting to discuss leases with some of the owners who had quoted sale prices on the properties under consideration.

Erecting Boarding School For Boys, Girls In Harvey

Construction has started on a new boarding school on Pigeon lake in Harvey township that will eventually provide primary and secondary education for pupils from grade four to grade 13.

It will be known as Kingsway school, "a Christian boarding school for boys and girls," that can accommodate anywhere from 75 to 100 pupils, though there will be a smaller enrolment than this at first.

Plans are for a cement block, two-storey building, 50 feet wide and 100 feet long. Excavation work for the foundations has already started and footings will soon be poured.

The school, privately owned and operated though government recognized and inspected, is on a 25-acre campus five miles west of Lakehurst. It is on the Elim Lodge site near Sandy Point.

A prospectus for the school says, in part:

"For some years now, many have had the desire to see . . . in Eastern Canada, a boarding school with a clearly defined conservative evangelical basis and interdenominational in character. Recent discussions amongst Christian leaders and business men have produced the conviction that the opening of such a school is both feasible and timely.

TWO PRINCIPALS

"The principals (Richard B. Gilman, MA (Oxford), FRGS, and A. Gordon Watts, BA, have both had wide experience in the educational field and are capable of giving the specialized leadership needed . . . Dr. and Mrs. J. C. Arnold, of Lindsay, have made their property at Elim Lodge available for this project and have assumed the responsibility of its administration, including the erection of the new buildings necessary."

Aims and policy of the school:

1. To provide an atmosphere in which true Christian character may grow;
2. To develop cultured students who have an appreciation of all that is finest in life;
3. To achieve the highest possible academic standards.

Courses:

High school. During the first year is is intended to enrol high school boys and girls for basic courses in Grades 9, 10 and 11, including English subjects, languages, social studies, physics/biology, chemistry, mathematics and physical education.

As needed, the high school will be expanded to include Grades 12 and 13 to enable students to be prepared for university entrance, and professional or business vocations.

The school will be government recognized and inspected," the propectus says, "and certificates will be awarded in accordance with prescribed educational standards."

PRIMARY SCHOOL

Junior school. A parallel development of a junior department, grades 4 to 8, is planned, to prepare students for the high school and provide "a solid foundation for Christian growth in the formative years."

Bible teaching will be stressed, though on a non-denominational basis.

Cultural activities will consist of music, art, speech-training and discussion groups. Other activities the students may choose from will be domestic science and woodcraft, with scope to indulge in their own hobbies.

A recreational program of sports and games is planned. Athletics include baseball, swimming, tennis, archery, volleyball, football, skating, skiing, badminton, basketball.

A library and a wide variety of films will also be on hand for students.

In July and August, non-school months, Kingsway school will be used as a summer resort. The present buildings at Elim Lodge are used as a Christian conference centre in summer.

Some tentative bookings for the fall term have already been made and some verbal arrangements. Classes should begin in September.

Served In Far East Brothers On Furlough

The two soldier sons of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Healey, 330 Euclid Ave., are now re-united in their Ashburnham home, both on extended leave after serving overseas with the 27th Brigade.

Pte. Ronald Healey, 22, of the Royal Canadian Ordnance Corps, arrived home a month ago after a 13-month stint in Japan. Most of it was in Kure, a stores base in the southern part of the main island.

On Monday 20-year-old Basil Healey, a private with the RCIC, returned home after serving in Korea. He went overseas last July.

PCVS Cadet Wins Award As Leading Rifle Shot

Private Bun Dorrington groaned. He had good reason to. He was underneath-man in a display of artificial resuscitation techniques at the PCVS cadet corps inspection at Nicholls Oval Wednesday afternoon.

Hovering in the background was Lt. H. E. Done, assistant cadet training officer for eastern Ontario. He asked Private Jim Lustic, top-man in the respiration team, how long attempts should be made to revive a drowned person. Pte. Lustic correctly answered "until he is fully recovered." Lt. Done said he would be back in three or four hours. Pte. Dorrington groaned.

This was but one feature of a most successful inspection of the PCVS 13th corps, the oldest in the district. There were, however, some casualties as several cadets passed out from exhaustion.

One happy cadet was George Burrett. Not only did he receive an individaul award for marksmanship, best in the PCVS corps, but he also became one of only 51 cadets in Canada to make the rolls of the Dominion Rifle association. To make the hundred-roll requires an exceptionally high calibre of marksmanship, and George was the hero of the corps.

The best-shot award was presented to cadet Burrett by Col. J. A. Dewart, who had inspected the Kenner corps earlier in the day. Major J. D. McNabb, senior PCVS instructor presented the DCRA award.

Another proud young lad was Kwong Hum, a Chinese who was honored as the second-best in the corps. The award was presented by Lt. Col. H. A. Craig.

BEST BATTERY

The PCVS corps is composed of four batteries, each with three troops. Best battery was "C" commanded by Major Trevor Hawkins. Mrs. C. E. Newman, regent of the 50th HAA regiment, presented Major Hawkins with the battery award, and an individual award in recognition of his personal command of this well-drilled unit.

Best troop was the 8th of Major Hakwins' C battery, commanded by Lt. Ron Pettinger. The award was presented by Mrs. G. Stewart. Lt. Pettinger's troop was also the best intermediate group on the parade square, and received a trophy presented by Lt. Col. Craig.

A round of applause arose when Lt. Tom Nice of the 9th troop of C battery added more glory to Major Hawkins command as the best junior troop of the afternoon. Best senior troop was the 4th of B battery commanded by Capt. L. Hill.

The award to the best seinior troop was presented by C. S. Browne, PCVS principal, while the K. S. Wightman trophy for the best junior troop was presented by Charles Huffman, chairman of the board of education.

25-Year Men At CGE Plan Trip To Barrie

Approximately 400 members of the CGE Quarter Century Club are taking off for Barrie by special CNR train at 11.30 a.m. Saturday on what appears to becoming established as their annual excursion.

This is the biggest event of the Quarter Century Club year. They went to Cobourg in 1953, and for this outing the executive has elaborated their planning. They are taking the CGE pipe band, and their day's program includes a couple of parades.

Dinner will be ready for them at the Barrie armouries, provided by a Toronto catering firm who are bringing everything prepared, including roast turkey.

40 YEARS' SERVICE

Twenty-four members of the Quarter Century Club are attaining 40 years' service with the company, and the fact that some of them are on the pension list does not interfere with the honors that are being paid to them at the dinner. Incidentally, the company assumes the entire cost of the trip details.

These 40-year members of the club will be presented by President H. M. Turner with wrist watches, new Quarter Century Club pins with ruby jewel mounting, and their certificates of 40 years with the company, enclosed in leather cases.

WELCOME VISITORS

Jack Mitchenson, works manager at Barrie, will welcome the visitors from Peterborough, and show them through the new plant. There will be a draw for prizes which will be one each of the products of that comparatively new branch of the company.

Some time in the afternoon the members will parade to the Barrie cenotaph, headed by the pipe band, and a wreath will be placed on that monument probably by Major Cy Whatley.

The program also includes an hour's after dinner entertainment.

Particularly for the pensioned group of the club this excursion is just about the highlight of the year. It brings them back for a day's get-together with the members who are still on the active employment list. The big CGE party is due home about 11 p.m.

Police, Firemen Investigate Mysterious Fires

Two fires mysteriously occurred on Victoria Ave., Wednesday night and early Thursday morning.

The cushion and upholstery of a car owned by Joseph Beradi had to be removed when they were discovered on fire at 10.45 p.m. The car was parked in front of the home of George Hetherington, 60 Victoria Ave. The fire department was called to a fire in the shed of the house next to Hetherington's at 12:01. Both fires were quickly extinguished.

A third fire was discovered under a car at Hetherington's about two weeks ago.

Sidney Brooks, who boards at Hetherington's, told police he had been working on the Berardi car until 9.00 p.m., then disconnected the battery, and went to the house. Mrs. Hetherington spotted the fire in the car and Brooks and some friends extinguished it. PCs Bob Menzies and Arthur Beardsmore were called to the scene, but credited the fire to some children playing in the neighborhood.

The second fire, discovered in the shed behind 70 Victoria Ave., where Laverne Healey lives, brought Fire Chief Bill Sorrie and the two constables to the scene, but the fire had already been extinguished by Sidney Brooks.

Healey was present when both the fires were put out, and police said he and Hetherington had been drinking beer in the shed shortly after the car fire. Five bottles of beer were found in the shed.

Healey was questioned by police and arrested. He was remanded until Monday on a drunk charge in magistrate's court, today.

McNaughton Says U.S. Abandoning Ostrich Ideas

OTTAWA (CP)—Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, Canadian chairman of the International Joint Commission, said Wednesday the United States is abandoning what he called its "ostrich-head-in-the-sand attitude" to downstream benefits for Canada from Columbia river power.

He also told the Commons external affairs committee that the $425,000,000 Mica creek dam project on the British Columbia section of the Columbia could be cleared for construction within a year.

The Columbia, third largest river in North America, had a power potential of at least 34,000,000 kilowatts, about five times the potential of the St. Lawrence. Three-fifths of this potential was within the U.S., one-fifth within Canada.

SHOULD BE DIVIDED

"It seems only right that this power should be divided," Gen. McNaughton said. "We want only our fair share, nothing more. We now are in a more favorable position than a year ago for our representations to be dealt with."

He told Dr. W. H. McMillan (L—Welland) there has been wonderful co-operation from industry in getting rid of pollution in the connecting channels of the Great Lakes. However, the municipalities were not doing nearly as well.

He said in reply to a question that it will require about 5½ years to complete the St. Lawrence seaway and power project. Earliest possible date for a start would be July.

Many Russian Graduates Sent Little-Known Regions Of Siberia

By TOM WHITNEY

NEW YORK (AP)—Graduation Day approaches in Russia as in other countries, but in the Soviet Union this occasion is often one of weeping as parents hope to prevent their sons and daughters from being sent to Siberia.

Each year as they complete their courses and become specialists, thousands of young men and women are sent to take up work in the less-habitable regions. Their parents don't know when they'll see them again.

A recent issue of Pravda throws light on the attempts Soviet parents make to keep their offspring from this involuntary exile.

Pravda told about a letter sent by a scientific research worker in the Moscow planetarium to a highly placed friend in the Moscow prosecutor's office. The scientists, Konstantin Shistovsky, asked Peter Petrov, his friend, to try to arrange that Shistovsky's daughter Marina, about to finish the course at the Moscow Juridical Institute, could get work permitting her to stay in Moscow.

In this particular case, Pravda reported, the person asked refused the assistance.

But, said the paper, its investigation revealed that many graduates of the Institute had received help in avoiding what are called duties to the state. Ten graduates last year, the paper said, had succeeded in staying in Moscow against the rules.

The government considers that graduates who have benefited during their education from state scholarships—this means the overwhelming majority of students in higher educational institutions—lack the right to decide themselves where they will work.

University graduates before completing their courses are called before a committee which decides where they will work. The student has no right to appeal from this decision.

Once he accepts his assignment, say, in some Far East village, he is stuck there. Soviet laws provide criminal penalties for those who leave their jobs without permission.

The question of students attempting to avoid the obligation to go wherever they are sent is a perpetual one in the Soviet Union. Newspapers write about it every year and every year some parents andstudents find their way around the stiff laws.

From One Cook to Another

by Mary Blake
Carnation Home Service Director

Seasons come and go — bringing favorite recipes for cool drinks or hot soups . . . for summer-cottage meals, or cold-weather parties. But the recipes we really love, are ones adaptable to all seasons. Those are the kind of recipes I give you here. They all call for Carnation Evaporated Milk, of course. For Carnation does such grand things for foods. It's specially heat-refined for extra-smooth consistency, extra-rich flavor. And because it's concentrated to double-richness, Carnation can be used undiluted, to give miracle-cooking-results that just aren't possible with any other form of milk. Here's a recipe where Carnation's special advantages shine!

CHICKEN 'N' VEGETABLE LOAF
(Makes 6 servings)

3 cups diced cooked chicken
⅓ cup lemon juice
1½ tsps. salt
⅛ tsp. pepper
⅔ cup soda biscuit crumbs
1 egg
1 cup diced cooked carrots
1 cup well-drained cooked peas
1 cup undiluted Carnation Evaporated Milk

Combine all ingredients until thoroughly blended. Line loaf pan (9 x 5 x 3 inches) with heavy waxed paper. Spread loaf mixture in pan and bake in moderate oven (350°F.) about 45 minutes. Serve hot.

For spring-like freshness — serve Chicken 'n' Vegetable Loaf with fresh or frozen asparagus. For a bright touch for cold-weather meals, serve with a cream sauce to which diced pimiento and green pepper have been added.

SEASON IN, SEASON OUT . . . there's one recipe that every woman treasures — the recipe for good coffee. Would you like yours to taste better? "Cream" it with Carnation Evaporated Milk. It's easy as that! Carnation gives coffee a richer, more satisfying flavor . . . smoother consistency . . . wonderful body. Yet it costs only half as much as lightest cream!

IF EVER THERE WAS A YEAR-'ROUND FAVORITE, it's something dressed up with a whipped topping — or a dessert that calls for whipped cream. So, high on your list of all-season favorites, is sure to be — whipped Carnation Evaporated Milk! Because it's double-concentrated and specially heat-refined, Carnation whips like a dream — piles up in billowy mounds, tripling in volume. Here's how:

Chill 1 cup undiluted Carnation in freezing tray until soft ice crystals form around edges of tray (about 25 minutes). Pour into chilled bowl; whip rapidly until stiff. Add 2 tbsps. lemon juice and continue whipping until very stiff. Sweeten to taste. (If you have no mechanical refrigerator, chill the Carnation over night on ice in the unopened can.)

FOR USE AS TOPPING: After sweetening to taste, add flavoring chosen from the following: Grated orange or lemon rind; vanilla; a hint of peppermint essence. Use on shortcakes, jelly desserts, fruit, puddings.

FOR USE IN RECIPES: Whip Carnation as above, including the lemon juice and light sweetening. Use in scrumptious charlotte russes, bavarian creams, fancy jellied salads, home-made ice cream.

BIBLES FOR RUSSIANS—An unprecedented cold war move to launch a barrage of more than 100,000 balloon-carried Russian language Bibles deep into Russia is expected to start from Munich next week. The Rev. Billy James Hargis of Tulsa, Okla., shown holding the balloons, said the Bibles will be sent forth as soon as the weather permits. He is a representative of the International Council of Christian Churches.

Truck, Transport Hit

COBOURG (ENS). — Considerable damage was done to a light pick-up truck when it collided with a transport Wednesday at George and University Sts.

Police said that the transport, driven by Hendry Puddy of Cobourg, was going north on George St. when struck by the light pick-up truck going across on University, and driven by Lyle J Primeau of Toronto. Constable C. Cunningham investigated.

Plan Traffic Bylaw

COBOURG (ENS)—Town council held a special session in committee last night to consider the draft of the traffic bylaw aimed at meeting the increasing traffic problems of the town, with special attention to parking.

The bylaw is extensive in its scope. There are a number of points to be cleared up still, but it is expected that the bylaw will be in shape for passage at next Monday night's council meeting.

Gold In Honduras

BELIZE, British Honduras (CP) Gold has been found in this central American British colony, a government geologist disclosed Wednesday night. He said gold was found in tributaries of two rivers and the head of another river is a possible source of more.

United Church Against All Forms Of Gambling

OTTAWA (CP) — The United Church of Canada is against all forms of gambling, looks to the eventual abolition of corporal punishment and is undecided about the need for capital punishment.

The church, whose membership in the 1951 census was about 2,800,000, gave its views today in a brief prepared for submission to the Commons-Senate committee on capital and corporal punishment and lotteries.

The stand on lotteries and gambling follows similar views expressed before the committee last month by the Canadian Council of Churches. The United church devoted more than half its 247-page brief to anti-gambling arguments. It gave about four pages to capital and corporal punishment.

The church said it regrets the use of corporal punishment and believes the country should look forward to its abolition.

The brief said the weight of evidence on the site of capital punishment as a deterrent is not large. Perhaps only the crafty schemer who plans a deliberate murder would be deterred by the thought of capital punishment. It would not be the case for the insane, the frightened bandit, the one who kills in a moment of passion or the paid underworld gangster.

OPINION UNDECIDED

The United church could not give an opinion as to whether capital punishment should be abolished. The matter was under consideration by its board of evangelism and social service which may bring a report at the United church's general council meeting in Sackville, N.B., next September.

However, it could recommend that if the death penalty—hanging—is to be retained, serious consideration should be given to an alternate method of execution. The death penalty should be used only for premeditated murder, murder in connection with robbery with violence, treason or kidnapping.

The United church objected to all forms of gambling, including raffles for low prizes on behalf of charitable and religious organizations. Legalized gambling in any form was a cloak for organized crime and gangsterism.

Benefit Of Experience In Plowing Sought

COBOURG (ENS)—A committee from Waterloo, site of the International Plowing Match next fall, was in Cobourg Wednesday to confer with the committee which handled the International held at Cobourg last October.

The Waterloo committee went over the details in connection with preliminary planning and all the problems which were encountered by the local committee in preparing for last fall's International.

A number of problems cropped up at the last minute and also during the International match and the committee of last year gained valuable experience, which is being passed on to the Waterloo group.

Prosperity Threatens Ontario Fruitlands

TORONTO (CP) — A Toronto paper took a clos elook today at Ontario's lush fruitlands and came to the conclusion that they are threatened by prosperity.

Expanding industries and housing developments that use up land needed for horticulture disturb conservationists, the newspaper says in a newspage story.

While giving no figures for current production, the Toronto newspaper notes that in 1950 Ontario produced $17,653,749 worth of tree and small fruits—nearly half Canada's total production of $35,691,355. Fifty-seven per cent—$10,089,932 worth—came from the counties of Lincoln, Welland and Wentworth.

The paper adds:

"Fruit farmers are offered prices that they find hard to refuse. One farmer sold lakefront property for resident development at $25 a foot. . . ."

Hog Cholera Rages

BERLIN (Reuters)—A hog cholera epidemic in East Germany has grown to critical proportions, with some 75,000 infected pigs having to be killed during the first quarter of the year, the West Berlin anti-Communist free jurists committee said Wednesday.

Walls Posts £500 Bond To Force Fight

LONDON (CP)—Harry Levene, British agent for Earl Walls, Canadian heavyweight boxing champion Wednesday posted £500 with the British boxing board of control "in an effort to force British and empire champion Don Cockell into an empire title fight."

The sum is the "first instalment of a side bet of up to £2,000 we are willing to place," Levene said.

The boxing board confirmed the step but said it was unable to force Cockell to meet the Toronto boxer in an empire match.

Cockell's manager, John Simpson, was unavailable for comment Wednesday but has said recently that he is not interested in Walls at the present time.

"We're too close to (world champion Rocky) Marciano after beating (Roland) La Starza to worry about him," Simpson said.

Brantford Has To May 26 To Decide On Fielding Team

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Rugby Football Union Wednesday gave Brantford Redskins until May 26 to decide whether they will field a team in the senior group next season.

League officials said the Brantford club, which entered the ORFU in 1952, must post a $5,000 bond by May 26 or withdraw from the league. In the event of withdrawal, the league would operate with the three remaining teams, Toronto Balmy Beach, Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen and Sarnia Imperials.

Officials have prepared a four-team and three-team schedule. One of them will be released after May 26.

Ernie Churchouse, president of the Brantford club, said at a league meeting he is confident the bond will be posted if financial arrangements with a Big Four team or a western Canada club can be made.

Brantford's working agreement of the last two seasons with the Montreal Alouettes of the Big Four was discontinued this year.

Commenting on the Big Four's deal this week to televise its Saturday games, D. F. Downey, ORFU president, said:

"The ORFU is not opposed to the principle, but in view of the fact that it may interfere with attendance at certain ORFU games, the ORFU should be granted some compensation."

Calgary Within Game Of Trophy Downs Quebec Aces In 2-1 Win

CALGARY (CP)—Calgary Stampeders moved to within a single game of the Edinburgh Trophy and the professional hockey championship of Canada when they downed Quebec Aces 2-1 here Wednesday night before a crowd of 5,867—smallest of the series to date.

The victory gave the Stampeders a commanding 4-1 bulge in the best-of-nine playoff series. The sixth game will be played here Thursday night with a seventh, if necessary, in Edmonton Saturday night.

Stampeders, playing it just as hard as they had to, were held in check over most of the distance by the eastern champions. The Calgarians' goal-scoring opportunities were few and far between but they managed to make the most of them against substitute netminder Jean Marois.

BRILLIANT DISPLAY

The diminutive Quebec custodian replaced Jack Gelineau and came through with a brilliant display. He had no chance against the shots which evaded him.

At the other end of the rink, Bill Brennan played a standout game to keep Stamps on top.

Tempers were kept in check throughout. Referee Eddie Powers handed out five penalties—three to Calgary.

Art Michaluk and Bill Shvetz scored for Stampeders. Ray Powell back in action after sitting out one game with an injured leg, spoiled Brennan's bid for a shutout with a goal in the final period.

To Form Association

OTTAWA (CP)—Some 30 members of the Commons and Senate plan to form a Canadian North Atlantic Treaty Organization parliamentary association, it was learned Wednesday. Names of the members of the group were not given.

THEY PLAYED IT SAFE — Industrial accidents annually take a heavy toll in death, injuries and lost production. These story-telling photos were taken at Armco Steel Corp. plants at Middletown, Ohio, and Ashland, Ky., but they could be duplicated in almost any plant. The stories: 1. Pot tender in galvanizing department. Molten zinc exploded, sending shower of hot metal against his face mask. No injury. 2. High-pressure hammer operator. Hose connector failed and hose thrashed wildly. Metal end (arrow) struck him on head. Hard hat was smashed. No injury. 3. He was working with air-hammer operator. Piece of chipped slag flew up, striking his safety goggles. No injury. 4. Crane follower carelessly signalled crane operator to lower 30,000-pound load of steel sheets, forgetting to take left foot off top of previous load. He wore hard-toed safety shoes. No injury.

One foot from the 30,000-pound load of steely disaster—but injury was shoo-ed away by hard-toed safety shoes he was wearing.

Find Technique To Discover Cause Of Aging

TORONTO (CP) — Development of a technique for finding the cause of aging in humans was described Wednesday to the general session of the Ontario Medical Association.

Dr. Hugh McAlpine, on the staffs of the University of Western Ontario medical school and Victoria Hospital in London, Ont., outlined the first steps of a research group that has determined that an impairment of ability to absorb fat in their diet occurs in aged people, and has evolved a method of quickly determining this condition.

The Western Ontario group sought the answer to aging in a study of metabolism, the mysterious processes of the body which include utilization of food. They established a group of 100 persons as a study unit. Fifty were residents of a home for the aged and the others were hospital patients.

Dr. McAlpine said the food intake of these persons was measured. There was an average of 1,700 calories. By dietary standards this was an adequate diet, yet most of the group showed aging, such as loss of fatty tissue and muscle. He said much study must be done before use of the technique of measuring fat consumption will be utilized for its potential values.

Health Minister Makes Helicopter Test

TORONTO (CP)—Health Minister Phillips of Ontario Wednesday flew in a bright yellow helicopter from Queen's Park to the construction site of the new Queensway Hospital, about 10 miles to the west.

At the site, he turned the first sod to mark the start of construction.

He said the flight was to prove that a helicopter could be used in congested areas to speed victims of traffic accidents to hospitals.

Eisenhower Believes In Bipartisan Policy

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower expressed firm belief in a bipartisan foreign policy Wednesday and the Democratic leader of the Senate said his party was willing to go "more than half way" to achieve it.

"As Americans interested in the preservation of our country, I think we should be able to work together in any area of foreign policy where we are in agreement," Senator Lyndon Johnson (Dem. Tex.) told the Senate.

Eisenhower entered the debate over bipartisanship with an assertion at his press conference that he thinks the foreign affairs of the United States are handled on a bipartisan basis as far as possible and practical.

Anglicans Scored For Neglect In North

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—"Why Indians in the Canadian North should remain so loyal to the Anglican Church which has so neglected them is beyond my comprehension," Canon A. H. Davis, field secretary of the church's missionary society, told the annual synod of Huron diocese here Wednesday.

He said in one area in the North there now are two clergymen ministering to Indians where there used to be six. Meanwhile other churches had moved in and men from three Gospel sects were equipped with planes.

"How long are we going to trespass on the loyalty of these Indians?" Canon Davis asked. "They are loyal to our church today, but will they be loyal tomorrow?"

He urged more money for mission projects.

Judge Rules Barcelona Stocks And Bonds Valid

TORONTO (CP) — Mr. Justice W. F. Schroeder of the Supreme Court of Ontario ruled Wednesday that stocks and bonds held by Canadians in Barcelona Traction, Light and Power Company are valid.

The decision came six years after Barcelona, a Canadian holding company, was declared bankrupt by a Spanish court and new issues of stocks and bonds were approved in Spain.

In a written judgment of more than 60 pages, Mr. Justice Schroeder said: "What has occurred in Spain strikes at the fundamental rights of all companies in this country which have made heavy capital investments in foreign countries."

COURSE OF MISCONDUCT

He said the Spanish action was a "course of misconduct which can have far-reaching and disastrous consequences to Canadian investors." The ruling was asked by the National Trust Company Ltd., owners of capital stock and bonds that once were the property of Barcelona.

Mr. Justice Schroeder decided that new stocks and bonds held by Spanish interests are worthless. He granted declatory relief to National Trust, "notwithstanding the fact that no consequential relief is, or could be, claimed."

The Spanish government seized physical assets of the companies in Spain, although Mr. Justice Schroeder noted that it was "rather astonishing that Barcelona, which has never sought the right to do business in Spain, has never carried on business there and has no assets in that country, could be declared bankrupt in that jurisdiction, its domicile and all its assets being in Canada."

Holiday Wardrobe Pickings In '38 Club's Style Show

The perfect holiday wardrobe — whether your vacation is to be spent abroad or right here in the Kawarthas — was there for the picking from a comfortable chair in the YMCA gym Wednesday evening.

'38 Club's yearly venture into the money-making field was this year a Holiday Fashion Show — and it probably originated with this group because they are all business girls looking foward to their "two weeks with pay" sometime in the next several months.

Probably for this reason too there was not one of the 75 outfits modelled that could not fit into the average Peterborough business girl's budget. For instance, this season's cotton dresses, adaptable to any time of day or night and in some cases with the luxurious look of silk, ranged in price from $10 to $40 but were mostly in the lower field.

Shorts and kool-tops, which a girl needs so many of on her vacation, were smartly styled and very low priced. The separates that make the small wardrobe seem big, were more striking and attractive than ever. An outfit that could come into this class, and one that had real "class" was a mist of sheer black nylon over a simple cotton print sundress—"daytime delight or evening enchantment" as suggested by commentator Miss Elizabeth Bruce, who expertly called attention to the style points throughout the show.

There was noticeable favoritism to dark colors in the summer dresses, though pastels were very much in the picture. Smoke grey will give black a good run for its fashion rights it seems. Grey could hardly be nicer than in the shirtwaist style cotton with semi-dolman sleeve pleated into turn-back cuffs, the black fullness held by a contour belt and the skirt full enough to float over petticoats. And then there was a stunning black linen princess coat dress with dashing white collar and cuffs and glimmering white buttons that would be outstanding in any company.

Showing the trend toward the "little girl" look there was a very sheer, lacy red cotton with wide skirt rustling over a swirling crinoline. Some of the cottons were just too nice to ever think of washing, but most of them bore labels saying that soap and water would not harm the fabric. This applied too to the mercerized cotton duster in natural shade, to wear over everything from bathing suit to evening gown.

And there were some smart beach coats shown with the new line of bathing suits, one a reversible grey denim and white terry, others all terry cloth, and a very feminine and pretty beach ensemble of white waffle pique suit with contrasting embroidery and trim of olive drab and the short box jacket of olive drab shiny cotton.

You find your outdoor fun in denims this summer, whether you prefer knee-length pants, shorts, or slacks, and you can have kool-tops, shirts, jackets and caps to match them. Plaids, stripes and plain denims were liberally mixed into the show. Fine cotton drill and imported tartans went into slacks teamed with gay sports shirts and sweaters.

Dramatic black embroidery on the sleeves of a white cotton man-shirt worn with a black cotton circle skirt had appeal for the sophisticate. Cotton paper taffeta made attractive sunny separates of yellow, scattered with polka dots and characterized with panels of grey.

For the girl who is going travelling on her vacation there were several of the uncrushable knitted suits. Very lovely with the boucle in petal pink frosted with white nubs. Another had gold threads running throughout.

The dress that probably everyone loved had sunbursts of white stitching on navy linen, and the deeply cut neckline was filled in with white pique vestee fixed to detach easily to make it a style for sunning. The sweeping skirt in large floral print of another versatile dress "brings to mind "Scarlet O'Hara who robbed the parlor of its draperies" remarked commentator Miss Bruce.

With fashions such as these available in Peterborough, there should not be anyone smarter than the local girls at summer resorts this season. The first 30 outfits modelled were selected for the show by Miss Leona Woods. The others were chosn from her stock by Mrs. Lyda Telford.

In the intermission between the two shows, there was something of a comedy show, produced by Madame Lenart, and entitled "The History of Make-up." In it, the several becoming ways of making-up milady's face and also the bizarre manner of the flapper era were presented by models wearing costumes of the period from 1900 to 1954.

Madame Lenart provided the small samples of face powder given as door favors and several draw prizes, as well as making up all of the models and arranging and commentating on her five-minute make-up show, stressing the lovely natural fresh look achieved by cosmeticians today.

Reply In Week To Invitation

There are patterns for the guests to follow in answering invitations to a wedding. The reply should be made within a week of receiving invitation, and it must state a definite acceptance or regret.

The acknowledgements to formal invitations are written on white paper or correspondence cards, and follow as closely as possible the wording of the invitation, meaning that it is written in the third person: "Mr. and Mrs. John Smith accept with pleasure, etc."

The informal invitation can be answered only by a cordial friendly letter of acceptance or regret. Be sure to repeat the place, time and hour of the wedding in your reply if it is one of acceptance, so that the hostess can correct any error that may have been made, and make sure you do not arrive at the wrong time, for a wedding that has taken place, or is already over.

The Procession To The Altar

Going up the aisle, the bride's father walks at her left so that when she is claimed by the groom, her father can take his seat in the front pew on the left—which is reserved for the bride's family.

The bride is immediately preceded by the flower girl, then by her maid of honor, then the bridesmaids in pairs or singly and ahead of them are the ushers, in pairs or singly.

At the altar the groom stands to the right with the best man standing a step behind and to his right. The bride, of course, stands to the left, her father a step behind her. Bridesmaids will be to the left again, or ranged on either side if there are a number, and the ushers stand behind them.

Coming down the aisle the bride and groom are followed by the flower girl, then maid of honor and the best man together and the bridesmaids take the ushers arms.

DOROTHY DIX

Husband Disturbs House Is Claim Of Mother-In-Law

DEAR MISS DIX: Perhaps you'll ignore my problem because I'm only 11 years old, but it's a serious one to me and I do wish you'd consider it. Our home is very pleasant, and my parents are just wonderful, but the trouble is they never talk to me seriously.

My mother certainly looks after me well, but she does not take me into her confidence. She has little interest in what I do in school, beyond my marks, and never discusses things that happen outside our home. For instance, my girl friend's mother, who has just returned from a trip to the city, told her daughter all the things she had seen or done—the plays, shopping, dinners in restaurants, etc. My mother would not tell me things like that. This may seem trivial to you, but I would do anything to have a closer relationship with my parents.

ANN

ANSWER: Your problem is not at all trivial, Ann, and perhaps the parental thoughtlessness that brought it on may profit from my reply.

Your parents, as well as those of many other youngsters your age group, would probably be greatly shocked to realize that they are failing in any way. They provide shelter, education, food, pretty clothes, and adequate supervision. What more, they might ask, is required of a conscientious parent? Here, out of the mouth of a babe, is the answer.

UNINTENTIONAL NEGLECT

The neglect of which Ann complains is not intentional; many parents simply don't realize that children want more than the necessities of life from them. No school, no friend, no outside influence can ever fill the void between a child and her unapproachable parent. Only the older folks can bridge the gap, and if they look forward to a close, mature relationship with their children in later life, the foundation certainly must be laid in childhood. The girl or boy, who has never been able to talk things over with Mom and Dad, will not acquire facility of communication in later life. Perhaps you parents who read this may regard as foolish the possibility of discussing grown-up things with your children, but, if you try it, you'll discover the youngsters have an amazing response, and their observations will amuse, entertain, and quite probably instruct you. Don't lose out on this important phase of child-rearing.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I am 16 and have a four-month-old baby. I love her father very much and would like to marry him, but whenever I mention it, he puts me off. I think his trouble is that he's not yet ready to settle down.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: You should have the help of someone older and better able to cope with problems like yours. If your father won't help you, consult your pastor, or a representative of the Family Service Association. You'll find their address in your telephone book. Someone must show the young man that he has acquired a responsibility that cannot be shirked.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: Shortly after my son announced his engagement, I gave his fiancee some sheets of very fine quality. Later, her mother told me I had broken a very serious rule of etiquette, since it was her place to give sheets and all other linen. I have been to several showers where the girl received gifts of linen, so I feel I am right.

MRS. Y.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: You certainly are right. Today's brides accept, with gratitude, gifts of anything to help establish a home—linens, kitchenware, etc.

THE MOVIE COLUMN:

Jocelyn Brando Making Third Hollywood Picture

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — At least one Brando is working in Hollywood these days. It's Jocelyn, pretty sister of muscular Marlon.

Jocelyn is playing opposite Randolph Scott, called "Old Reliable" because of his box-office potential, in a western named "Violent Men." It's her third picture. Unlike her brother, she likes making movies.

Jocelyn is an attractive, strong-featured blond with a firm will—a family trait, no doubt. When I began asking her questions about Marlon she replied with the natural concern of one who has sometimes been in the shadow of her more famous brother: "Is this going to be an interview about Marlon?"

"Partially," I answered.

She acquiesced. I asked her if she thought her brother was temperamental.

STRICTLY HONEST

"Not at all," she replied in strong defence. "He isn't the least bit temperamental. He's an honest boy who tries to be strictly honest with everyone he deals with. The trouble is that people are not always honest with him.

"He has great talent and integrity as an actor. This business about his being a character has been created about him. About the difficulty with Fox, that was unfortunate. But apparently it has all been resolved and the studio is happy now."

She referred to his beef with 20th Century - Fox, which complained because he failed to report for "The Egyptian." In fact, the studio complained to the tune of a $2,000,000 suit. But it was later settled after he agreed to play Napoleon in "Desiree."

MOTHER ACTED SHAW

I asked Jocelyn if it had been an accident that she and Marlon both chose the acting life.

"Not really," she replied. "My mother acted in stock in Omaha and was very good. She starred in plays like 'Pygmalion' 'Desire Under the Elms' and others. I think I am the only one in the family who ever saw her.

"When I was about eight I went to a performance of 'Pygmalion.' Henry Fonda was an usher at the theatre, and I remember sitting on his lap between acts. I was in love with him for years afterward."

She later appeared with him when he starred for three years on Broadway in "Mister Roberts." She was the only actress in the cast—the nurse with the strawberry mark.

Second Marriage Usually Quiet

A second marriage usually means a quiet ceremony, but that by no means indicates that it cannot be a lovely one. A colored dress is appropriate, she may wear white but not a bridal veil or orange blossoms.

In best taste, the widow will choose a ceremony in a small church or chapel with a few flowers for decoration. There are no ribboned-off seats, as only very intimate friends are invited.

There are no bridesmaids at a second marriage for a woman, but she may have a maid or matron of honor. There may be a family dinner afterwards, or the simplest afternoon tea. In any case the affair is at the bride's own house and the p[illegible] may either stay where they are and have their guests take leave of them, or themselves drive away afterwards.

Aux. Message By Rev. Smith

Monthly meeting of the Fraser Auxiliary of St. Paul's Presbyterian church was held Tuesday evening in the Guild Room. President Mrs. W. Cummings opened with the call to worship. "Break Thou the Bread of Life" was sung with Mrs. A. Shearer at the piano. Worship service was in charge of Mrs. R. McKenzie who read scripture and led in prayer. Miss Bessie Ross' secretary's report, and Miss M. Henderson's treasurer's report were adopted. The Rev. Gilbert Smith, of St. Giles' Presbyterian church, was the guest speaker and gave an inspiring and impressive message based on the 2nd Epistle to Timothy, first chapter. He spoke of the influence of two women in Timothy's life and said the spiritual influence of a good mother in a home provides far-reaching results and is never forgotten. "Some women take first place in their influence and others second place. We cannot all be good actors. Some are indispensable in small parts." Mrs. Cummings thanked Mr. Smith for his address and called upon him to say the benediction.

Sisters Of St. Jos. Give Reception Honor Graduates

The Sisters of St. Joseph's Hospital held a reception in the residence auditorium in honor of the 1954 graduating class, for their guests at the graduation exercises Wednesday afternoon, which had been held in St. Peter's auditorium.

Three tea tables were prepared for serving, each with a dainty centrepiece of spring flowers and candles. Decorations in the auditorium at the time had been put up by the graduates for their dance to follow in the evening. Tea guests took particular interest in their silhouette wall pictures which were skilful works of art to portray highlights in their lives while training for this graduation day.

All the dainty refreshments and tea were provided by the Sisters and prepared in the hospital kitchens, with members of the Ladies' Auxiliary acting as servers.

The girls were thanked by Mrs. A. Bacon on behalf of all the mothers.

Trinity BB Mothers Observe 15th Anniversary

Trinity Baby Band Mothers celebrated the 15th anniversary of the organization on Wednesday evening. A table centred with gay spring flowers displayed a huge decorated anniversary cake topped with 15 candles, each candle representing one year in the life of the group.

Special tribute was paid to Mrs. S. D. Carver, founder, who is currently ill and was unable to be present.

The following past presidents described highlights of their years in office and lit candles to correspond: Mrs. V. Skitch, '39, '40 and '41; Mrs. W. Corner, '42 and '43; Mrs. A. "Happy Birthday" was sung at the conclusion of this ceremony.

The happy home was the theme chosen for devotional. Mrs. M. Lowes read scripture and meditation. Mrs. W. Taylor led in prayer and Mrs. E. McWilliam followed with the mission study program.

The mothers were then favored with musical selections by recent winners of the Kiwanis Music Festival. Little Elizabeth Latimer played "Three Blind Mice"; Allan Jamieson sang "I'd Like To Sail," accompanied on the piano by his mother, Mrs. O. Jamieson; Anne Gordon played "A Wintry Wind"; David Donaldson and Dell Smith played two piano duets, "Minuet from Military Symphony" and "The Polka"; Ray Bacon sang "The Lord's Prayer" beautifully with his sister, Laureen Bacon, at the piano.

These talented children were thanked and congratulated on their recent achievements and given best wishes for continued success in the musical field.

President Mrs. Eearle Wellman conducted the business. A most favorable report was given by Mrs. Harold Wilson on the recent coffee party.

Delightful refreshments prepared for this occasion were served with the cake by members of the west end group.

Graduation Dance At St. Joseph's Follows Exercises

A graduation dance in honor of the 1954 graduates of St. Joseph's School of Nursing was an evening climax to their graduation exercises Wednesday.

The dance was held in the residence auditorium which the graduates had decorated themselves, creating a pretty ballroom effect with a ceiling of pastel colored streamers and a scheme of colorful flowers on pillars and window drapes.

Black silhouette wall pictures cleverly depicted highlights in the nurses' life during three years of training school and provided entertainment for the guests throughout the evening. "Before" and "after" pictures flanked the bandstand where stood a life-size model of a nurse in full regalia.

Patrons and patronesses of the dance were Mayor and Mrs. Norman Graham, Dr. and Mrs. W. S. Fitzpatrick and Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Paquette, and they received.

Members of the Ladies' Auxiliary to the hospital, who acted for the sisters as conveners of the dance, were Mrs. Grace Poole, Mrs. C. F. Cahill, Mrs. Wm. X. Blackburn, Mrs. M. Armitage and Mrs. J. J. Crowley.

Mother and Daughter Banquet, attended by approximately 175 CGIT girls and their mothers was an enjoyable event of Tuesday evening in the junior room of St. James' United church Sunday school.

The banquet was provided by the WMS with the CGIT assisting by arranging tables and taking charge of decorations, which were carried out in blue and white and bouquets of red tulips on each table. Mothers of the Baby Band were responsible for the table setting and girls of the Mission Circle served.

Mrs. L. Bird, WMS president, was chairman for the program which she opened by proposing a toast to the Queen. The toast to "Our Mothers" was proposed by Gwen Pearson and replied to by Mrs. N. Brown. The toast to "Our Daughters" proposed by Mrs. L. Gibson, was responded to by Carol Orvis. The toast to "The Children" was proposed by Molly Brown and the response given by Mrs. George Hewtit.

Mrs. Ron Davis led in a sing song. Worship service was presented by girls of the Explorer Group, Beth Collison, Eleanor Seabrook, Mary Curtis and Carol Anderson.

The iMssion Band Study Book was introduced by Mrs. I. Dantzer and six little girls in costume impersonated children of other lands, they had learned about in "The Round Window."

Five girls representing CGIT, Maglene Anderson, Jean Curry, Rosemary Dorrington, Judy Switzer and Ellen Brown, presented a short skit, cleverly written in rhyme on the aim and purpose: "To cherish health, seek truth, know God, and serve others."

Mrs. N. Borland introduced the speaker, Mrs. A. L. Shorten, who expressed her pleasure in the capable manner in which the girls had taken their parts, a result of Christian teaching, she said.

She based her remarks on the text "Submit yourselves unto God." Speaking first to the mothers, she reminded of their Christian responsibility in their homes, to give their children a faith in God. To the girls she said "make your life worthwhile and be an example. Dedicate your lives in His Service."

Betty Piercy thanked Mrs. Shorten and all those who had taken part.

Mrs. Bird closed with benediction.

Anna Marie O'Toole Wins Top Efficiency Award As 19 Nurses Graduate

St. Peter's auditorium was filled to capacity Tuesday for the St. Joseph's Hospital school of nursing commencement exercises at which 19 young nurses graduated and received their diplomas as registered nurses.

Most highly honored of the graduates for her accomplishments throughout the three years of training was Anna Marie O'Toole, to whom Dr. D. B. Kelly presented the medical staff bursary for one year post-graduate study in clinical supervision.

Guest speaker, Dr. L. T. Dayhaw of the University of Ottawa, stressed the importance of consideration and understanding for others in a nurse's career. Man is composed of body and soul, he said, and care must be given to both.

HUMAN RELATIONS

"You are now ready to set out in the world of human relations and your profession concerns the welfare of the whole of mankind. You must know your anatomy and chemistry, but also human relations and the need of the mind. Your most valuable asset is the capability of dealing with others —and a nurse must do it every day.

"A machine is a comparatively simple thing to handle. You can take it apart and put it together with all the parts in place. But, people are different; there are no two alike, and it is your job as nurses to solve the many unknowns of each personality."

Dr. Dayhaw listed some of the major human motivations which these graduates, as nurses should learn to evaluate. The financial incentive, he said, is probably, of itself, one of the most over-rated. Money is not a goal in itself, but a means of bartering for real values.

"As we grow out of our teens we normally undergo the process of maturing; the emancipation from external help. We mature mentally, physically, economically and socially, when we are capable of functioning on our own in these various capacities. But, every human being has a need for certain props. We experience this every day in our desires for a steady job, insurance, marriage and development of friendships. The urge for security is an essential consideration in a world of frustration and stress."

SOCIAL RECOGNITION

People need the feeling of belonging, of social recognition, and of self - accomplishment. They must have a feeling of self-importance, a knowledge that they are accepted and needed, and it is just as much a nurse's responsibility to fulfill these needs as it is to care for the body.

"It is a poor leader who saps the sense of self-importance from another."

Dr. Dayhaw further recommended positive, rather than negative action. A man should be praised occasionally for just doing what he is supposed to do, not just reprimanded when he fails. "A man is damned to hell if he does not obey his God, but, he will be given Heaven if he just complies with the rules."

"A kindly word is a wonderful thing", concluded Dr. Dayhaw. "It disspells the sense of rejection in others. 'Go thee unto the sick, doing good as ye go about' ".

Paquette; Mary McCarthy received the Steven's Co., of Toronto award for highest standing in theory, presented by Mrs. Frank Lynch; and, the Dr. R. J. George St. WA Entertains 500 Guests At Tulip Tea

When the Women's Association of George Street United church planned their Tulip Tea for May 12th they were sure the tulips would co-operate and be blooming everywhere.

But although unusually cool weather for May help the tulips back, there was an enthusiastic crowd of 500 ladies at the tea, and they found the tea room charming with make-believe tulips quite nicely taking the place of the profusion of real ones that might have been.

There were single potted tulips, real ones, centring each guest table and on the table were lovely variegated tulips effectively arranged in a high, rose-colored glass epergne of unusual design.

The wide base of the epergne was clouded in palest pink and green tulle into which were set very small china epergnes filled with fruit tree blossoms. Pink candles were in unique horn-shaped holders at either side of the bouquet, and the table setting, with embroidered white linen cloth, was completed with handsome silver tea services.

A small barrel filled with tulips and fruit blossoms fitted into the fascinating stage setting which provided a background for the tea drinkers. In this was featured a Holland windmill, scale model of course, and also an old-fashioned well and bucket.

Mrs. Charles Elliott's artistic ingenuity was in evidence in each window of the room where there were great big artifcial tulips in various colors. Also, each sale table had a green overskirt bordered with bright-colored tulip silhouettes, but on each table there were one or two bouquets of real spring blossoms.

General convener Mrs. Fred Horton portioned out the work of this big event to sub-conveners, putting Mrs. W. G. Benton in charge of the serving, Mrs. S. Wildman in charge of the sandwiches and cakes and Mrs. W. G. Connal of the relishes, and Mrs. Alex Rosborough was appointed to keep the teapots replenished. The serving was done by six ladies from each of the five groups of the WA.

President Mrs. W. H. Frise received the guests and was also one of the tea pourers, the others being Mrs. Arnold Mathews, Mrs. E. W. Rowland, Mrs. J. M. Beatty, Mrs. R. S. Hutton and Miss Mary Elliott.

Hosteses in the tea room were Miss J. Schaffer, Mrs. L. Taylor, Mrs. W. H. Girven, Mrs. J. M. Fanning, Mrs. J. A. Spencer and Mrs. W. P. Hetherington.

Quiet piano music was provided throughout the afternoon by Mrs. W. P. Purdy and Mrs. A. J. Weames.

Children were taken care of in an adjoining room where they were served party refreshments and shown films. The Explorer's leader Mrs. Foster took charge of this department.

Mrs. H. E. Helson, the WA treasurer, was taking tickets at the door.

One of the popular sale tables was the "parcel post" where mysterious packages were available from Mrs. J. H. Brown and Mrs. R. Bick. These ladies were also taking orders for pretty costume color earrings that they make with simple rick-rack braid, and also for their special brand of hand lotion.

The "white elephant" table, with wide variety of merchandise, was in charge of Mrs. Malcolm McIntyre and Mrs. Edith Yelland. Mrs. Roy Powell had a quantity of small plants for sale. Two large tables displayed the many hand-made print aprons for sale and were in charge of Mrs. H. G. McGinness and Mrs. Chester Carson.

Boxes of hasti-notes bearing a picture of the church were for sale by Mrs. Horace Coon. Next to hers was the candy table in charge of Mrs. A. G. Metheral.

The home baking supply was quite large and filled two tables in an alcove off the Sunday school hall. Mrs. Ray Stabler was in charge of the sales.

All ladies assisting at the tea wore tulip corsages.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Pressed Chicken For Wedding Reception

After having given you the first instalment on a series of wedding reception guides and foods last week, requests for just this type of information have multiplied.

So I'm glad I started early.

One mother of a bride-to-be is interested in serving jellied fowl, either chicken or turkey, so I'm featuring that today, and adding careful instructions for making a lobster salad loaf.

So you will have two moulded main course items to choose from, that may be made 24 hours ahead of serving time and kept icy cold —a wonderful advantage for those hostesses who are attempting to do the food preparations themselves.

NOTE: If the weather is very warm when you serve gelatine dishes I think it would be wise to increase the amount of gelatin slightly, so that the moulds will not wilt even if the temperatures soars to 90 deg. F.

PRESSED CHICKEN

(50 Servings)

Seven and one-half cups strained, skimmed chicken broth, 10 tablespoons plain gelatin, 10 cups diced cooked chicken, 10 cups cooked fresh or frozen peas, 2½ cups shredded blanched almonds, ¾ cup chopped gherkins or green relish, 5 cups mayonnaise (not salad dressing). The chicken broth should be strained, then chilled, then skimmed so that as little fat as possible is left. To 3 cups of it add the gelatin and let soak for five minutes, then in top of double boiler stir it over boiling water until it is dissolved. Add it to the remaining 4½ cups cold broth. Now add the chicken which is carefully and neatly diced, the barely cooked and chilled peas, the almonds and pickle. When this has cooled to room temperature, gently stir in the mayonnaise. Now pour into five 2-quart moulds or five loaf pans measuring 10 x 5½ x 3 inches. (If desired and you have the equipment it may be moulded in 50 individual mouls.) Chill until firm. This would be served sliced on lettuce leaf.

LOBSTER SALAD LOAF

(50 Servings)

Eight cups of breadcrumbs, eight 6-ounce tins lobster, four 8-ounce tins best quality red salmon, two cups canned mushrooms chopped, two tablespoons grated onion, 16 eggs, beaten, four cups whole milk, ½ cup chopped drained pimiento (or gherkins), salt, pepper. Drain the lobster and pick out any bones and flake it. Do the same with the salmon, removing any skin too. Add the lobster and salmon to the crumbs and mushroms. Beat the eggs, stir them in, then the milk, onion and pimiento. Add salt and pepper to taste and if desired some paprika to boost the color. Turn into greased loaf pans—about five —and bake in slow oven of 325 deg. Fahr. until set—when tried with knife inserted at centre, loaf is baked if knife comes out clean—it requires about 40 to 45 minutes. Cool at room temperature, then chill. Serve, sliced, on lettuce with garnish of parsley and lemon wedge and tomato wedge. (If desired all lobster may be used, but surprisingly enough the salmon is submerged in the lobser flavor and reduces the cost).

In the third instalment of this series next week, I will give you quantities for making sandwiches for 50 people.

Please remember to clip this column now even if your daughter isn't engaged at the present moment. You never know when a handsome young man will come along and snap her up—then you are in for a wedding reception.

The Bride's Table

At a formal wedding, the bride and groom and their party sit at the bridal table. At a smaller wedding the parents of the bride and groom, and also the minister, are asked to sit at the bridal table. They are seated so that a man sits next to each lady.

Plan the reception early so that it will be as perfect as the wedding. Remember the embarassment for one bride who had neglected to arrange for refreshments at her reception.

Furnishings For Small Quarters

Today's furniture is made to order for young people starting housekeeping in smaller quarters Double-duty tables, cabinets, and chairs, sofas convertible into an extra bed, and other such pieces are the practical, yet attractive items which make living in a small apartment or house almost as easy as in a larger place. Young couples shopping for their first-home furniture will do well to look into the selections offered by furniture departments. In addition, these pieces are made not only in modern styles and finishes, but in period furniture to fit in with any scheme.

Tailored Robe Most Practical

Fabrics for trousseau clothes are a matter of one's own choice. Rich dress fabrics can be used for hostess gowns. Flannel, velvet, lightweight wool, terry cloth, quilted satin or crepe are excellent for everyday robes. Satin or sheer materials are ideal for negligees. Whereas the negligee should be soft and dainty to the eye, a hostess gown can be cut in almost any style to suit the wearer. Well tailored robes are really the most practical, for frills and ruffles at the wrist or neck will soil easily.

RECIPES FOR SALADS AND SNACKS

By Elsie The Borden Cow

© T.B.C.

BAUMERT SALAD DRESSING

Here's a salad dressing that's really good —and different! It's super-delicious on a vegetable salad or with potato salad—or as a surprise stuffing for canned or fresh pears in a fruit salad. Combine two 4-oz. packages of Borden's Baumert Chive Cream Cheese with ¼ cup mayonnaise. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Mix thoroughly. Makes about one cup of dressing.

CHATEAU PINECHEESE PLATTER

Mmmm—how the family will go for this! Combine 2 cups canned pineapple cubes (well drained) with 1 cup diced celery and chill. Just before serving, add ¼ lb. of mellow-mild Borden's Chateau Cheese, diced into tempting bite-size morsels. (It slices as easy as it spreads and melts.) Serve on bed of lettuce in salad bowl or on chilled individual salad plates. Sprinkle top of salad with pecans. Serve with additional fruit dressing.

FOR SNACKS AND CANAPES

There's just no match for delicious Borden's king-size cheese slices. They're twice as long as other process cheese slices. No wasteful trimmings! Cut strips for sandwiches, frankfurter rolls or canapes. And see how wonderful mellow-mild Borden's Cheese Slices melt to make delicious grilled sandwiches! Remember—because Borden's Cheese Slices are king-size, you cut only what you need—the rest stays fresh in the wrapper for use later!

QUICK DESSERT

You're never stuck for a quick 'n' delicious dessert— if you have a Borden's Elsie Roll handy! Slice into mild, cheddar-flavoured slices—they grill beautifully between halves of small tea buns. Serve with pickled onions and olives skewered on toothpicks. You'll find Elsie Roll dandy and handy for those small round crackers, too!

MAIN DISH MAGIC

With Borden's Grated Cheese! Perfect for Spaghetti and Meat Balls. Try it in onion soup, too! You'll want to have the 4-oz. shaker-top canister on hand always!

Borden's Fine Cheeses

"If it's Borden's, it's GOT to be good!"

$500 For Gown Bride Of Fashion In 1850

The bridal vogue of the beautiful white dress and misty veil, hasn't always been with us. In Colonial days, for instnace, brides wore bright, flowered brocades and cherry-and-primrose damask.

But once white moved into the fashion spotlight for weddings, brides took to it with glee. By 1850, Godey's Lady's Book was able to announce that the bride of fashion must pay at least $500 for her dress. And that, this magazine added, was reasonable!

Price for the veil was a mere $125 and this was a strictly practical expenditure since the veil could turn up later for evening wear as a sort of draped overskirt, or scarf.

Once paid for, the veil was adjusted to the bride's head with a wreath or "chaplet" of flowers, a custom that had lasted since Anglo-Saxon days. A decade earlier, Queen Victoria's bridesmaids wore chaplets of white roses as they tripped down the aisle.

It was a Spanish beauty, Eugenie de Montijo, who held the unofficial title as one of the most romantic brides of this era. She became an Empress of France through her marriage to Napoleon III at Notre Dame Cathedral in 1853.

As his wedding gift, the Emperor handed Eugenie a 51-carat diamond and, not satisfied that this was enough, added a pair of pendant earrings with drops the size of almonds. These once had belonged to the ill-fated Marie Antoinette.

MARRIED TWICE

Eugenie was married twice to the same man. She went through both the religious and civil ceremonies. The gown she wore in church was white satin with a skirt tiered with five rows of frosty lace. The bodice was clasped and belted with sparkling diamonds.

This bouffant gown immediately set a fashion in this country and soon Canadian brides were wearing seven petticoats, each deeply flounced.

The really great wedding ceremonies reached a peak in this country in the last years of the 19th century when churches were huge. Homes were mansions, many of them large enough to shelter a thousand guests with ease. The champagne flowed, the music swelled and there were wedding souvenirs of solid silver for every guests.

During the 1880's and 1890's, it was the custom to carry bridal fans rather than bouquets. This was also the heyday of the orange blossom; brides even wore them in large knobs on their bustles as they glided altar-ward.

BIGGEST PRODUCTION

What was undoubtedly the biggest wedding production of the last century was staged at St. Thomas' Church in New York in the year 1895. It starred Consuela Vanderbilt, who became the bride of the Duke of Marlborough. The entire church was decked out in boatloads of rare orchids brought from the Duke's estate in England.

The Duke's gift to his bride was a diamond belt. Her parents handed over some pearls that had once belonged to Catharine of Russia. And among her other wedding gifts the Duchess found a pearl-and-diamond dog collar.

And, in that same decade, if you weren't a Vanderbilt but wanted to show off just the same, you could rent additional crystal, plate and clocks, together with gift boxes and tissue paper, in order to make a staggering display of wedding gifts to your friends!

INLAND WATERFOWL

The double-crested cormorant which inhabits some inland lakes is about the size of the loon, blackish in color.

Car Window "Pops Open"

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Police said an "unknown source" caused an automobile window to pop open and ripple here Wednesday, but a scientist said it was "natural and normal."

Matthew Rynkowski, a railroad brakeman, said he watched and listened while the rear wndow of his 1949 car sizzled, broke open and crumbled.

Dr. L. W. Phillips, chairman of the physics department at the University of Buffalo, said tempered windshield glass often shatters when it is scratched, even though it is tough.

But he had no explanation for the sizzling, or for a burning sensational Rynkowski said he experienced when the window popped open.

Rynkowski said nothing hit the window when it broke.

900 Students Clash With Police

SINGAPORE (CP) — About 900 students from two Chinese high schools clashed with police today in protesting against Singapore's part-time military service law. Thirty students were reported injured and 100 arrested.

Police said there was "an unquestioned Communist influence" in the demonstration. The students battled police barring their march toward Government House with a petition demanding exemption on the grounds the service would interfere with their studies.

All Singapore youths between 18 and 20 are required to register for national service. The training is only part-time — evenings and week-ends. Authorities have agreed to some deferments for students preparing for examinations.

All British soldiers on leave were ordered back to barracks and a heavy guard of military police ringed the servicemen's club.

Advise Appeal Against Ruling

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—The fruit section of the Ontario Food Processors Association will recommend to the Canadian Food Processors Association that serious consideration be given to filing an appeal against a ruling of the tariff board concerning the importation of fruit cocktail.

P. R. Robinson of Ottawa, secretary-manager of the Canadian fruit processors, told Ontario processors Wednesday that the tariff board has allowed an appeal by importers which would have the effect of reducing duty on fruit cocktail from the U.S. from 2½ cents to one cent a pound.

Frank Andres, of St. Catharines, reporting on a recent meeting in Hamilton of authorities interested in land conservation, said a primary problem is that centralization and sub - division of fruit lands in the Niagara peninsula is increasing the assessment of fruit-growers' land to the point where it is becoming uneconomical to produce fruit on it.

The association endorsed the program of the Conservation Council of Canada which is considering the matter.

Dog Catcher Causes Uproar

LEAMINGTON (CP)—This town 30 miles southeast of Windsor has a lady mayor and a lady dog catcher but the dog catcher was in the limelight at Wednesday night's council meeting.

Irene Ives will be instructed by letter that any further objectionable publicity will result in her dismissal. Miss Ives, said council members, a week ago discussed members of council in a letter written to the weekly Leamington Post and News.

She threatened to pick up Reeve M. R. Armstrong's dog the first time she saw it on the sidewalk, and battled with the reeve over a distemper case.

The reeve was angry. "The next time we hire a dog catcher, I wash my hands of the whole business," he said.

Mayor Grace McFarland had no comment.

Public Meeting To Discuss Unemployment

Tonight a public meeting on unemployment is being held in the Legion Hall and a joint trade union committee will bring in eight resolutions.

The Peterborough committee on unemployment was formed on April 19 and it consisted of three members from the Trades and Labor Council (TLC), the Peterborough and District Labor Council (CCL), and the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America (Indep.). This committee were given the job of bringing in resolutions that will be sent to city council and the federal government.

Just what part the Peterborough and Disrict Labor Council will play in tonight's meeting is open to question. This group consists of local unions affiliated to the CCL or directly chartered to the CCL. On Monday night they voted overwhelmingly to dissociate themselves from the joint committee. No reason was given in their formal resolution but it is no secret that the IUE and the Steelworkers, in particular, are strongly anti-UE and don't want to serve on any body which includes the UE.

ON THEIR OWN

If this is the case any CCL members appearing at tonight's meeting will be acting on their own, not on behalf of their labor council. Yet the CCL were one of the three groups that drew up the series of resolutions and publicized the open meeting.

How this awkard situation will be faced should prove to be a drawing card for the meeting that begins at 8 p.m.

The other labor council, the Peterborough Trades and Labor Council, have voiced no objection to UE. They want the committee, as originally formed, to go ahead and do the job.

Explaining their stand in a prepared statement issued today by John F. McPhee, president, the TLC labor council say in part:

"We first arranged meetings with the local CCL council (acting on a suggestion by the two parent bodies, TLC and CCL). The outcome of these meetings was a public meeting (April 19).

"This was done so that any and all local groups could have representation. The result . . . was the Peterborough committee on unemployment, originally composed of CCL, UE and TLC members.

"This body prepared a brief of eight resolutions to be brought before a public meeting on Thursday, May 13. There is only one issue to be dealt with—the unemployment problem in Canada.

"At this meeting tonight we hope to bring our original aims to their proper conclusion."

CCL members of the resolutions committee, appointed April 19, are William Triggs of Local 293, UPWA, William Yates of Local 19, NUPSE, and Ed. Humphrey of Local 434, UPWA.

TLC members are Henry Nokes of the firefighters' union, John McPhee of Local 248, ITU, and Peter McCombe, Local 248, ITU.

UE members are George Wallace and Carl Signorotti of Local 524, and John Whelan Local 527.

Two Soccer Teams Planned In Lindsay

LINDSAY (ENS)—Soccer may be making a comeback in Lindsay. It is reported today that Reg. Cox who formerly directed soccer efforts in the town has been trying to build a new organization to contine the game there. Some 15 players attended the first drill for the club and indications are that enough players may eventually turn out to have two teams. New Canadians make up the bulk of the squad to date, Mr. Cox said. Though Lindsay has not played in the Central Ontario soccer league for some years, Cox said he hopes to arrange exhibition games for the teams. First game between the two town teams has been tentatively scheduled for May 24. A large number of cricketers have turned out among the soccer enthusiasts and the possibility is being discussed of having a town cricket team operating this summer as well.

Seven New Members Elected To Board For Ross Hospital

LINDSAY (ENS). — A large crowd attended Wednesday night's first annual meeting of the newly formed Ross E. Memorial Hospital Association at the Lindsay Collegiate auditorium.

Main item of business was the election of seven representatives of the association to the new board of governors of the hospital. The new board of 17 members is now in charge of the operation of the present hospital and the planning and campaign for the expansion of the new building or erection of a new one.

Warden Robt. Bradt of Verulam township was chairman. The balloting for the seven governors was held among the members, C. E. Williams acting as returning officer.

Of the seven to be elected the top three will serve three years, the next two in voting two years and the last two one-year terms. Elected for three-year terms were S. A. Flavelle, Lindsay, former member on the board of governors who will represent the Ross Estate on the board; E. Roy Shields, Coboconk, and Mrs. D. M. Thomson, Lindsay.

For two years: E. N. Gregory, Lindsay, and W. R. Curry, Haliburton. For one year: A. W. Carew, Lindsay, and W. D. Murchison, Fenelon Falls. The seven will join the other ten members representing the Town of Lindsay and Victoria County the Hospital Auxiliary and the Medical Society, on the new board of governors.

MADE FIRST PLAN

Speaker of the evening was Dr. Harvey Agnew, hospital consultant, who drew up the first plan for expansion of the present hospital at the request of the board of governors and has continued to advise the hospital expansion committee during its tenure of office.

He pointed out the many deficiencies in the present hospital and said that a new hospital building with the present building being used for chronic patients would be ideal. The cost of expanding the presenting building would be low, he added but not as low as might be expected. He also urged plans for re-establishment of the nurses' training school when the enlarged facilities are available.

Dr. C. W. Service of the expansion committee reviewed the committee's work since a year ago when the board of governors called on the public to undertake the work of expanding the hospital. With the new board of governors now in office, implementation of the decisions is expected to come much more quickly. H. S. Johnston, chairman of the retiring board of governors, spoke on their behalf in answer to a motion from the floor thanking them for their work in maintaining the hospital since its inception in 1902.

565 MEMBERS

T. H. Eberlee, treasurer of the hospital association, reported a membership of 565 at the time of the meeting with receipts to date of $3,695 and expenses of $135. The funds of the association are to be held for later disposition probably after the building campaign has started. A note of special tribute to one of the longest members of the old board of governors was injected when Mayor A. E. Hick of Lindsay read an address on behalf of the town and Victoria County in appreciation of the long service of T. H. Stinson QC.

As a member of the board including a 20-year term as chairman the veteran hospital administrator received a standing ovation from the meeting. At the close of the meeting several motions were passed.

The hospital expansion committee was officially connected with the association in the future. The members of the former board of governors were made life members of the new association in recognition of their service to the community.

Blame Transients For Barn Fire

LINDSAY (ENS) — Transients were blamed for a fire that destroyed an unoccupied barn on the northern outskirts of Lindsay just before noon today.

The regular and volunteer firemen answered the alarm, but the fire had too much headway and burned the large wooden structure to the ground.

Chief Alex Wylie said the barn was owned by mortgage department of the Imperial Bank in Peterborough. He could not estimate the amount of the loss. The empty barn had been boarded up some time. But because it is isolated, it has been used some time by transients for shelter. No other buildings were endangered by the blaze.

2 Men Held For Robbery

TIMMINS (CP)—Two men are being held in connection with the robbery of 50-year-old Oliver Belleveau, Timmins taxi-driver, early Wednesday.

Roger Latendresses, 23, and Graham McQuirter, 23, both of Timmins were arrested in Matachewan last night.

Police said the charges will probably be robbery with violence.

Belleveau was seized by two passengers in his cab about 1 a. m. Wednesday as he was driving them to the Pamour mine, 12 miles east of here.

He told police he was placed in the trunk of the car, later robbed of $20 and then blindfolded before being put on to the roadway. His cab was driven away but he discovered it later abandoned by the roadside.

Bus, Car Collide 35 Nuns Unhurt

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — A bus load of 35 nuns from the mother house at Mount St. Joseph Orphanage escaped serious injury early today when their school bus collided with a car at Colborne and Regent streets.

The nuns, all teachers, escaped from the overturned bus through a side door.

One of the passengers, Sister Edmund, was returned to Mount St. Joseph for observation suffering from shock. Taxi cabs and private cars took the other nuns to their schools.

The car driver, Vern McGregor, 27, was admitted to St. Joseph's hospital with injuries. He was treated for facial lacerations. Bus driver Albert Heck escaped with a bruised left arm.

"Watchman" Strikes Woman Repeatedly

TORONTO (CP) — Evelyn Spooner, 46, says she lived through "20 seconds of terror" when a man she had mistaken as the night watchman of west-end Sunnyside amusement park turned on her Wednesday night and hit her repeatedly in the face.

She was out searching for her 11-year-old nephew, David Thomas, and decided to ask the man, about 26, if he had seen the boy. After grabbing and punching her, the man suddenly stopped, apologized, and ran away.

The man had been trying doors at the park when she approached him.

Major's Son Dies Following Accident

NEW GLASGOW, N.S. (CP) — Earl Hicks, 18-year-old son of Salvation Army Major Arnold Hicks, died in hospital here today from injuries suffered in a car accident a few hours earlier.

Major Hicks and Mrs. Hicks, both injured, were reported in good condition in hospital. Major Hicks was transferred to New Glasgow from Sydney last year.

The accident occurred at a New Glasgow intersection when the car operated by Major Hicks collided with another vehicle.

Denies Stevens Tried To Halt Investigation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Army Counselor John Adams denied today that Army Secretary Robert Stevens ever instructed him to try to halt the McCarthy sub-committee investigation of alleged security risks at Ft. Monmouth, N. J.

His testimony bore on two principal charges made by McCarthy and his aides.

The McCarthy camp contends that the present controversy arose from attempts by Stevens to halt the sub-committee hunt for alleged Communists in the Army, particularly at the experimental radar laboratories at Ft. Monmouth. It also has charged that Adams was employed "for the principal purpose" of persuading the McCarthy sub-committee to "cease its investigation."

Under cross-examination for the second day by special counsel Ray Jenkins in the 16th day of the hearings, Adams said that Army relations with the McCarthy subcommittee, as with other congressional groups, were part of his duties but were not the "primary" reason for his employment.

PRECEDE McCARTHY

Adams further denied that alleged security risks at Ft. Monmouth were suspended only because of the McCarthy inquiry. He said seven employees were suspended before McCarthy began his investigation last October.

Jenkins switched roles today to cross-examine Adamson his story that McCarthy and Roy Cohn badgered him for army favors for Pte. G. David Schine.

Right Place, Wrong Time

Magistrate W. R. Philp was confronted with the problem of a man and his car being in two places at once and gave Albert Batton, 744 George St., the benefit of the doubt.

PC William G. Scott testified that he clocked a car similar to Batton's at 36 mph on April 4 between Ware St., and the CNR crossing on George St. near Romaine. The licence number he recorded and that of Batton's car were the same.

Batton, and his brother, Jack, both testified that although they had passed the route identified by PC Scott, they could not have been there before 8:30 p.m. PC Scott had set the time at 7:54 p.m. The brothers said they had returned from Lindsay and noted the town clock read 8:30 just after they had entered the city.

"Are you sure our town clock is always accurate?" queried Crown Attorney John A. Bradshaw.

"No. But, I don't expect it to be out that much," replied Albert Batton.

Magistrate Philp: "Very well, Batton, you may go this time."

Cleaners Blame Buying Habits For Troubles

MONTREAL (CP)—E. W. Finlayson, managing executive of the Canadian Research Institute of Launderers and Cleaners, said Wednesday women don't know how to buy clothing.

Addressing the 21st annual convention of the institute, he said "they buy almost entirely by appearance, and hardly ever give a thought as to whether the garment will be serviceable or not."

As a result, Mr. Finlayson said, women find that the garments don't look the same after they are returned from the cleaners as when they were bought.

He said the most common troubles are poor color fastness, shrinkage, change in appearance and poor workmanship.

"Two years ago we made an offer to the textile industry to pretest their fabrics for cleaning before they put them on the market," Mr. Finlayson said. "We repeated the offer a year ago and got only one response."

New Asphalt Use

WATERLOO (CP)—City engineer E. E. W. Oke claims the asphalt curbs being built here as the first in Canada. They are considerably cheaper than concrete, said Mr. Oke. The next step will be asphalt sidewalks, hesaid.

Russia Makes Concession Offers Neutral Commission

H-Bomb Test Series Completed By U.S. Results Successful

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States has fired a final hydrogen explosion in the 1954 test series at the mid-Pacific proving ground.

A joint Atomic Energy Commission-defence department announcement Thursday night said the series has been completed and "the tests were successful in the development of thermonuclear weapons."

This was much like the language used to mark the end of previous test series and, like the previous announcements, it did not specify how many bombs had been set off. However, three previous explosions had been announced, a mighty blast March 1, another 26 days later and a third April 6, leaving open to speculation whether one or more than one detonation occurred after that time.

"Thermonuclear" is the scientists' term indicating a hydrogen explosion.

Announcement of the end of the series, which drew foreign protests because radio - active particles showered well outside the test area, came on the same day that a five-power conference opened in London aimed at ending the arms race and outlawing nuclear warfare.

There is some speculation of a connection between the timing of Thursday's announcement, continuing protests abroad and the London conference. Besides the usual laconic statement that a test series had been concluded successfully, the joint announcement by AEC chairman Lewis Strauss and Defence Secretary Charles E. Wilson also said of the 1954 tests:

TESTS SAID ESSENTIAL

"They were essential to our national interest and have contributed materially to the security of the United States and the Free World.

"The tests being concluded, within a few days sea and air traffic may be safely resumed within the 'warning area' which was set up for safety purposes for the time when the tests were taking place. Official notice to airmen and mariners will be published."

This could have been an indirect reply and assurance by the AEC and defence chiefs, with diplomatic guidance, to the complaints abroad.

Although the only foreign nationals actually injured by radio active matter drifting from the test area have been Japanese fishermen, some of the sharpest criticism of the tests has come from within Britain.

Head-on Crash Kills Two, Injures Three

HAMILTON (CP) — Two persons were killed and three injured in a head-on automobile crash early today on Highway 2 just west of the city limits.

Killed were Donald Davis, 21, of Hamilton, and Jean Blasdale, 17, of Brantford.

Injured and in hospital are Mrs. Evelyn Blasdale of Brantford, mother of the dead girl; Raymond Quinn, 43, of Windsor; and Leonard Graham of Hamilton.

Mrs. Blasdale is the most severely injured of the three. She suffered fractures of both legs, fractured ribs, a broken left arm and head inuries. Hospital authorities described her condition as "only fair."

Provincial police said a late-model car driven by Graham with Davis as a front-seat passenger was bound for Hamilton. It missed a sharp turn near the city limits, went out of control and collided head-on with a Brantford - bound car driven by Quinn, police said.

Davis' mother said her son had been in Brantford at a meeting held by the automobile dealer for whom he worked.

Quinn suffered multiple fractures, Graham deep cuts to the head and neck. Both were reported in fair condition.

Three ambulances were used to speed the dead and dying to St. Joseph's Hospital. Miss Blasdale died about an hour after she was admitted to hospital.

More Fish Radio-Active

TOKYO (Reuters) — Japanese scientists reported today that fish caught 2,000 miles from Bikini, the United States hydrogen bomb test site, have been found to be radioactive.

They were caught in waters east of Formosa.

After geiger counter tests the scientists reported that the radioactivity was weak on the exterior of the fish but internal organs had a count ranging from 300 to 400 a minute. Experts consider 100 counts a minute to be the maximum standard for safety.

Referee-In-Chief Billy Foulds Dies

TORONTO (CP)—W. C. (Billy) Foulds, referee-in-chief of the Big Four and long-time member of the Canadian Rugby Union rules committee, died suddenly in hospital today.

Mr. Foulds was quarterback of the University of Toronto Grey Cup winning teams of 1909 and 1910, later coach of Varsity and was president of the CRU in 1920 and again in the mid 30s. He has been connected with football since 1909.

Joins Queen's Escort Ship Embarrassed

LONDON (Reuters)—A 900-ton Dutch coastal vessel nearly got in Dutch today with 17 British warships escorting Queen Eliazbeth's yacht Britannia through the English channel.

The Dutch vessel suddenly appeared out of the morning mist and headed curiously through the ranks of warships straight to the royal yacht.

U.S., French Plan Talks In Paris

WASHINGTON (AP) — United States and French officials are expected shortly to hold talks probably in Paris, on the possibility of internationalizing the Indo-China war.

Plans for these talks, it was authoritatively reported today, grow out of American statements of conditions the French would have to meet before the U. S. government could consider entering the conflict, and French declarations of willingness to discuss the terms and conditions.

Will Stand Trial For 'Perfect Cime'

WELLAND (CP) — Bruce M. MacLean, 23, today was committed to stand trial for murder in the "perfect crime" death of his wife Aug. 22, last year.

His committal came after Sylvia Davies, 20, testified at a preliminary hearing that MacLean had threatened her and had told her that he had committed the "perfect crime" in the death of his wife, Elizabeth, who drowned in the Welland river last summer. Her death was termed accidental at the time.

Magistrate T. George Street committed MacLean following a hearing lasting about an hour. He will probably come up for trial at the next Assize Court sittings here in September.

Drillers Convene

OAKVILLE (CP)—The Ontario Water Well Drillers Association Thursday started its two-day annual convention. More than 250 delegates from as far west as Fort William and as far east as Ottawa are attending.

French Begin Airlift Of Wounded

Rebels To Release 450 Casualties, Only Half Expected

HANOI, Indo-China (AP)—The French announced that an airlift of their seriously wounded troops from Dien Bien Phu began today. But a transport plane scheduled to bring the first contingent here from Luangprabang failed to show up.

French army spokesmen said they had no news about the plane. It was reported, however, that the first group of about 16 wounded taken out of Dien Bien Phu by helicopter were in a critical condition with head and stomach wounds, and it may have been necessary for them to rest overnight at Luangprabang, the royal Laotian capital, 250 miles south west of here.

The French said earlier today that wounded had been landed at Luangprabang about noon.

Another factor that may have caused delay was the weather.

Indications from the Vietminh had been that about 450 of the fallen fortress' wounded would be released.

That figure was 250 less than previous French estimates of the number of serious cases. The Communist-led rebels had reported they captured 1,400 wounded in all when the Indo-China fortress fell a week ago.

Since only helicopters and small planes can use the war-battered, shell-pocked Dien Bien Phu airstrip, the French expect the airlifting of the 450 men to take at least two weeks. The planes can carry only up to six passengers each.

Because of the condition of the first evacuees, the French said they would allow no reporters to interview them for at least 48 hours.

Here in the Red river delta, meanwhile, the French counted new casualties suffered beating off an attack by 2,000 to 3,000 rebels Thursday, only 30 miles south of this major city.

The French admitted "serious losses" in repelling the assault near the town of Phuly. It was the biggest attack so far this year in the delta, major Vietminh target since the fall of Dien Bien Phu.

Reliable sources said Dr. Pierre Huard, Hanoi University medical dean who flew to Dien Bien Phu Thursday to arrange the airlift with the Vietminh, did not obtain any information on the fate of Brig.-Gen. Christian de Castries, heroic commander of the garrison, or Genevieve de Galard Terraube, French Air Force nurse who was the only woman in the bastion during the siege.

Ordered Take General Alive

HONG KONG (Reuters) — Vietminh rebel troops attacking the French Indo-China fortress of Dien Bien Phu had express orders to capture Brig.-Gen. Christian de Castries, the fortress commander, alive.

The Vietminh radio said this today during a broadcast description of the last hours of the fighting last Friday.

Rebel columns advanced on de Castries' headquarters from the east and west and French resistance crumbled as thousands of North African and foreign legion troops surrendered.

Meanwhile, two groups of rebels surrounded de Castries' dugout and dashed in shouting: "Hands up."

Vietminh radio said the whole French military staff surrendered, including 23 officers and de Castries.

STILL FIRST IN BEAUTY — Electric water pumps now used on a number of district farms may do the trick but they lack the beauty of an old-fashioned wind-mill, silhouetted against a deep blue sky, sprinkled with fleecy-white clouds. The old wind mill has looked drab in dull weather for the past fortnight but today's sun has considerably brightened the picture. —(Examiner Staff Photo)

28 Warships Escort Queen On Triumphal Trip Home

LONDON (CP)—Prime Minister Churchill hurried from London this afternoon to accept a surprise invitation from Queen Elizabeth to join her on her triumphal journey the rest of the way home.

The prime minister will go aboard the royal yacht Britannia off Southampton this evening, and will remain on it through the night as it completes its joujrney carrying the Queen through the English channel at the mouth of the Thames.

An announcement at the prime minister's residence said the Queen had invited Churchill to come aboard the yacht and to cover the last few miles of the six-month, round-the-world tour with her and the Duke of Edinburgh.

He will dine aboard the Britannia with the Queen and the Duke, and will sail around the southeast corner of England and into the Thames with them, but will come ashore a few hours before the royal family tomorrow, and rush around to Westminster bridge, at the Houses of Parliament, to extend an official welcome to the Queen.

As the Britannia moved majestically up the English channel, escorted by 28 warships and watched by thousands of Britons lining the shore, the Queen was on the bridge much of the time watching the naval and air display.

The battleship Vanguard thundered a mighty 21-gun salute as it neared the royal yacht, due in London Saturday.

A light wind blew the smoke from the saluting guns over the assorted collection of yachts, trawlers, pleasure steamers and even rowboats off the shore.

Overhead, RAF planes and a helicopter swept the skies.

Thousands of Londoners had risen before dawn and travelled by special buses to the south coast for a view of the homecoming. They stood on the shore or crowded into gaily-decorated steamers for a closer look.

Small boats, burdened almost to the water's edge with passengers, did a thriving business throughout the morning.

The 17 warships took only a few minutes to form up around the royal yacht before leading the triumphant progress up the channel to the mouth of the Thames river.

Earlier today the Queen had awakened in St. Austell bay, Cornwall, to her first sight of England since last November. She was on deck early to gaze at the golden sands and the small, quaint fishing village.

Laniel Wins By Two Votes

PARIS (AP)—Premier Joseph Laniel and his top military advisers faced up today to major questions on Indo-China policy, supported only by a two-vote majority in the National Assembly.

The vote of 289 to 287 by which Laniel won an assembly vote of confidence Thursday night indicated that the deputies might have booted the cabinet out had they not feared a government crisis would suspend the Geneva talks with the Communists on Indo-China and Korea.

It appears that only a major victory over the Communist - led Vietminh rebels, at the conference table in Switzerland or on the battlefield in Indo-China, can save Laniel once the Geneva talks are over. Neither victory is expected.

The major item on the government's schedule today was a meeting of the committee on national defence, made up of high military and civilian officials. Laniel warned the assembly that the committee will have to consider the making of important decisions.

Laniel gave the assembly no hint of the nature of these, but informed sources say they involve proposals to send draftees to Indo-China and possibly to extend the 18-month conscription period for certain categories.

Ronning Has Talks With Red Chinese

GENEVA, Switzerland (CP) — Chester Ronning, new leader of the Canadian delegation at the Geneva conference, has had informal talks with Communist Chinese delegates here, it was learned today.

The conversations were conducted in Chinese, which Ronning speaks fluently, and concerned four Canadian priests held in China. Three have been reported in jail and one unable to obtain an exit permit.

Porter Names Fuel Board

TORONTO (CP) — Attorney-General Dana Porter announced Thursday night the appointment of a three-man Ontario fuel board which will have full control of all fuels except Hydro.

Mr. Porter said the board became necessary in anticipation of the arrival of natural gas supplies this fall.

A. R. Crozier, with the Ontario department of mines since 1929, was named chairman of the board. T. H. Simpson, a Hamilton lawyer who has had long experience with gas-rating applications in western Ontario, is vice-chairman. L. R. MacTavish, senior legislative counsel in the attorney-general's department, is the other board member.

The board will have authority over the granting of distributing franchises to municipalities and to arbitrate any disputes over prices charged to municipalities.

Fire Damages Trenton Plant

TRENTON (CP) — A spectacular fire in a section of an apple barrel factory early today caused damage estimated at between $10,000 and $15,000.

The cooperage mills, owned by Liberal Senator W. A. Fraser of Trenton, have a capacity of nearly 400,000 barrels a year.

It is expected the fire in the crozier mill will cause only a brief interruption in the output of barrels. In the crozier mill, the barrel staves are bent. The mill is one of several buildings comprising the cooperage plant.

One theory is that the fire started from spontaneous combustion in shavings and sawdust.

France Proposes Withdraw Troops From Two States

GENEVA (CP)—Russia proposed today that any settlement of the Indo-China conflict be carried out under the supervision of a neutral nations supervisory commission. This represented a major modification in the Communist position.

Molotov conceded that the earlier proposal of Communist-led Vietminh did not provide for adequate supervision and then submitted his own proposal as a supplement to the Vietminh plan.

There was no immediate word from the Western powers as to whether the Soviet proposal would satisfy them on the question of supervision.

WITHDRAWAL OFFERED

Molotov made his proposals afew minutes before French Foreign Minister Bidault announced that France will withdraw her forces from Laos and Cambodia if the governments there approve and if the invading Vietminh forces are also withdrawn.

Bidault said France has recognized the independence of Laos and Cambodia. This question was independent of the problem of Viet Nam—largest of the three associated states and main battleground in the war.

"Once peace has been restored, the French government does not intend to maintain its forces in Viet Nam against the will of the legal government of that country," Bidault added.

ASKS SUPERVISION

He denounced the Communist Vietminh proposals for a political settlement, "as assuring the total domination of Vietminh over Viet Nam before elections."

He also declared that a political settlement should not delay a military settlement in Viet Nam.

Before today's session, Britain urged Russia and Communist China to agree on private meetings on Indo-China next week.

Foreign Secretary Eden made the proposal in visits on his own initiative this morning to the Chinese Communist premier, Chou En-lai, and Russia's Foreign Minister Molotov.

Eden, who has stepped up his trouble-shooting activities at the conference in an effort to break

Yacht Breaks Up Wood, 8 Rescued

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Gar Wood, 73-year-old noted speedboat racer, and eight other persons were rescued Thursday after Wood's "unsinkable" twin-hulled yacht Venturi broke up in heavy seas and sank in the Bahamas near Great Isaac light.

Wood, his secretary, Jean Berry, 24, and his housekeeper, Jodie Rodriguez, were brought to Miami by a coast guard helicopter which lifted them out of a lifeboat wallowing in the rough water.

The Venturi's captain, C. A. MacCallum, and five crew men all from Miami, were taken to Great Isaac, about 65 miles due east of Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

Admiralty Slaps Arrest Warrant On Russ Ship

LONDON (AP)—The admiralty slapped an arrest warrant today on the Russian ship Beloostrov, halting her scheduled sailing to Leningrad.

As a result, two Russian embassy air attaches expelled by Britain on charges of spying may have to look for another way home.

The warrant was issued on behalf of the owners of the 500-ton Dutch ship Marvic, who claim the Russian owners of the 2,916-ton Beloostrov owe them for damages the Marvic suffered when the two ships collided in the Kiel canal in October, 1952.

The Russian ship arrived in London earlier this week. The embassy attaches, Ivan Pupyshev and Andrei Gudkov, were due to travel home on her.

REDS RETALIATE

The Russians in turn banned the return to Moscow of Maj. Charles R. P. Landon, an assistant military attache at the British embassy there, on charges he engaged in espionage.

Britain denied the charge and asserted it was in retaliation for the ouster of the two Russian attaches. Landon is now vacationing in Britain.

A vessel can be cleared of an arrest warrant and leave port when a bond satisfactory to the claimant is posted.

Police Seek Missing Youth

BRACEBRIDGE (CP) — Police are searching the islands of Lake Muskoka for 19-year-old Roland Hillman of Milford Bay.

While his father slept on Acton island during a storm over the lake on Tuesday, Roland disappeared. The Hillman's truck was later found mired on a mainland road.

Late Wednesday, Rev. T. H. Hines on Fairhaven island heard a voice calling but was unable to locate the persen.

The Hillman's 16-foot motor boat was found Thursday beached but dry and undamaged on Gibraltar island and an empty gasoline can was discovered three miles away on Barbin island.

On Tuesday the boat had been seen zig-sagging near Wolfe's island where it struck a reef but skimmed of, apparently under control.

Roland was recuperating after being accidentally shot in the stomach six weeks ago.

Conservatives Suffer Setback

bor Party Wrests Control Of 13 Councils

LONDON (CP) — The Labor party surged forward today with a net gain of 509 seats in returns from borough council elections in England and Wales. The Conservatives suffered a sharp setback, showing a net loss of 385.

Results of Thursday's balloting showed Labor has wrested control of 13 borough councils, including York, Northampton, Reading, Colchester and Ipswich. All 13 had previously been dominated by Conservatives or independents.

The count showed Labor gained 543 council seats while losing 34. The Conservatives picked up only 60, and lost 445.

There was a similar swing to the Labor party in borough elections held last week in Scotland.

NATIONAL PARTY SPLIT

Despite the sharp swing, the local elections do not necessarily provide a key to the national political situation. Nationally the Labor party is badly split following left-wing leader Aneurin Bevan's rebellion against the endorsement by the party's moderate leadership of the Conservative government's "pro-American" foreign policy.

The local turnover still leaves Conservatives and independent groups ruling fully 70 per cent of Britain's local governments.

The swing to the left was greater than last year, but not as pronounced as in 1952. Conservatives profess themselves undistrubed by the results, which followed a post-war pattern.

Execution Delayed

Convict Novelist Dodges Another Date With Death

SAN QUENTIN, Calif. (AP) — Death, which Caryl Chessman anticipates in his best-selling novel as "a funny feeling . . . a tightening of the belly," has passed him by again.

The 32-year old author of "Cell 2455, Death Row" Thursday night was given a lengthy lease on life less than 24 hours before his scheduled execution in San Quentin's gas chamber.

Judge Thomas F. Keating of Marin county, where San Quentin prison is located, granted the convicted sex pervert a stay of execution. Chessman's counsel asserted that the transcript of his Los Angeles trial, as prepared for an appeal to the state supreme court, was faulty.

Judge Keating also ordered warden Harley P. Teets of San Quentin to bring Chessman into court at San Rafael Monday and show cause why a writ of habeas corpus should not be issued.

The stay of execution probably will prolong Chessman's life at least 60 to 90 days. Whatever happens to the show-cause order, the case will have to be sent back to the Los Angeles judge who tried him, and a new date of execution set.

Chessman thus dodged another date with death in a series of legal manoeuvres that has blocked his execution since he was sentenced six years ago.

He was convicted of kidnapping a 17-year-old girl and a woman of 35 for forcible sex perversion. Under California's "Little Lindbergh" law he was sentenced to die for abduction with bodily harm.

"I'm all ready, . . . I'm a million miles away. It's difficult to explain, but I feel sort of nebulous."

Told of the stay, he said:

"I'm speechless. I would have been far less surprised if you'd told me there was no further avenue open."

U.S. Syndicate Offers To Build Toronto City Hall

TORONTO (CP) — A United States syndicate has offered to invest $75,000,000 in construction of a new 50-storey skyscraper to house municipal and court offices in place of city hall, it was reported Thursday.

The proposal took the city's board of control by surprise and initial reaction was cool.

Norman Barnes, head of Norman Barnes Co. of Chicago and spokesman for the syndicate, said detailed plans will be submitted to city officials next month.

If the plan is accepted, the city hall would be demolished and the skyscraper would rise on the three-acre Bay street site, dominating downtown Toronto. The city hall is on the corner of Bay and Queen streets.

Mr. Barnes said the syndicate represents a powerful group of bankers seeking a haven for huge pension funds, both U.S. and Canadian, which have built up since the Second World War.

55 MPs Eligible For $3,000 Pensions

OTTAWA (CP)—The finance department reported Thursday that 55 members of the House of Commons now are eligible for maximum annual pensions of $3,000.

The statement was contained in a return tabled in the Commons on the operations of the Members of Parliament Retiring Allowances Act for the 1953-54 fiscal year.

Under the act, in force since Nov. 20, 1952, members qualify for pensions providing they have sat in at least three parliaments. They become eligible for the full pension after 17 years of service.

Contributions by member's amount to six per cent of the first $4,000 of their annual $10,000 indemnity to a maximum of $4,000.

Jury Convicts Costello Faces 15-Year Sentence

NEW YORK (AP)—Gambler Frank Costello, convicted of federal income tax evasion, faces a possible maximum penalty of 15 years in prison and a $30,000 fine.

Costello appeared on the verge of tears Thursday night when the jury foreman intoned "guilty". The 63-year-old defendant, who allegedly headed a national underworld syndicate in the United States for years, turned pale and buried his face in his hands. Trembling, he lighted a cigarette.

During the wait for the verdict he had put on a show of cheerfulness, bantering with reporters and friends about baseball and other things far removed from the business at hand.

Costello had been out of jail less than seven months when the threat of bars struck him again.

He was released last Oct. 29 from the federal correctional institution at Milan, Mich., after serving 14 months of an 18-month sentence for contempt of the Senate crime investigating committee when he refused to answer several key questions and twice stalked out of hearings.

FACES DEPORTATION

The Italian-born Costello, whose gravel voice grated the ears of millions during the televised crime hearings here in 1951, also faces deportation proceedings.

The federal jury of seven men and five women, which deliberated eight hours, found Costello guilty on three counts of income tax evasion. The figure involved was $39,015.

Judge John F. X. McGohey set Monday for sentencing and raised bail from $5,000 to $25,000. Costello had been free in bail throughout the case.

Defence counsel Leo C. Fennelly announced he would appeal.

deadlocks on both Korea and Indo-China, conferred with Chou for 40 minutes and with Molotov for only 10 minutes.

FRENCH ASK ARMED AID

At the same time, conference sources said France has made a new request to the United States for immediate military aid in Indo-China, where Vietminh rebels are threatening the French defence line on the Red river delta. It is understood President Eisenhower now is studying the request with the combined chiefs of staff.

The sources said the U. S. is also pushing its campagin here and in Washington for creation of a southeast Asian defence pact even if Britain stays outside it for the time being. Many interested countries are reported eager to go ahead without Britain.

The three Western powers met with the non-Communist Indo-Chinese delegates this morning to prepare for today's session on Indo-China.

NO NEW FORMULA

Meantime, the nine-member Allied Korea committee met for over two hours without finding a new formula to present to the conference.

South Korea's refusal to accept all-Korea elections under United Nations supervision has knocked out the Allied plans.

Two days ago, Eden urged the nine-power conference on Indo-China to avoid incendiary speeches and get down to the business of a practical settlement. Thursday he submitted a similar proposal to the 19-country talks on Korea.

His busy schedule this morning came before the day's session devoted to Indo-China. In his meetings with Chou and Molotov, he sought to get their answers to a series of carefully posed questions he asked two days ago.

Navarre Plan Written Off

WASHINGTON (AP) — France is reported to have asked the United States for high-level talks in an effort to determine what the U. S. is willing to do about intervention in the war in Indo-China.

Recent military developments, officials concede, have destroyed the Navarre plan as a basis of American and French hopes for eventual victory in Indo-China. In the American as well as in the French view, the emergency of Communist forces as regular military forces able to carry on more than guerrilla operations has made this a different kind of war from the one envisioned when Gen. Henri Navarre, French commander in Indo-China, laid out his program.

French and American officials say the French government has not formally requested American intervention yet.

INDEPENDENCE ESSENTIAL

The United States has laid before Paris officials the two major political conditions which would have to be fulfilled prior to any U. S. intervention. These are that France must give the Indo-Chinese states full independence in order to provide real motivation for native resistance to communism, and that a coalition of nations must participate in any intervention.

Actually the military situation is deteriorating so rapidly in Indo-China that there is increasing concern here over 1. Whether anything effective can be done to save the region or important parts of it and 2. Where intervention may be possible. Strong Red units are operating in the Red river delta around Hanoi.

French sources say the talks which Paris wants should "explore all phases of the situation" and that they should be at a government or cabinet level.

The Navarre plan was considered valid right up to the rebel assaults which finally overran the French stronghold of Dien Bien Phu.

NEW KIND OF WAR

It has been swept away chiefly by the Communist's action in recent weeks making the Indo-China war into what is now regarded here as a new kind of conflict. It is no longer simply a huge guerrilla conflict. The Vietminh rebels demonstrated at Dien Bien Phu that they have the training, equipment and will to fight standard military operations on a relatively large scale.

U.S. officials familiar with the Indo-China fighting say Chinese Communist military supplies and training, reinforced by Russian ideas, technical assistance and equipment, changed the nature of the fight. In addition, they are concerned over certain reported weaknesses on the French and native side.

More Sailors Joining Strike

MONTREAL (CP) — A deckhand aboard the 7,000-ton British freighter Mont Alta at Sorel, Que., said today the vessel's 25-man crew has decided to join the crews of two other ships in Montreal in a strike for better wages.

The deckhand, acting as spokesman for his shipmates, said the Mont Alta was scheduled to sail from Sorel, 50 miles east of Montreal, for Havre St. Pierre to pick up a load of iron.

But, he said: "We just can't make out on the money we get. So we decided to strike with the boys from the other two ships in Montreal."

Eighteen seamen from the coastal freighter Cibou and 18 others from the freighter Shelldrake have been charged in Montreal with failing to obey a legal order by their captain as a result of their strike.

Warns Surprise Attack Possible

TOKYO (Reuters) — Gen. John E. Hull warned today against a surprise hydrogen or atom bomb attack against free countries in the Far East.

The U.S. Far East commander spoke at a luncheon of the American Chamber of Commerce attended by Defence Secretary Charles E. Wilson.

Hull said that despite the shift in the "hot war" from Korea to Indo-China, "the area encompassed by the Far East command—Japan, Korea and the Ryukuy islands — remains a critical one."

"We must guard more closely against surprise attack, for in this day and age of the atom and hydrogen bomb, guided missile and jet intercontinental bomber, we can ill afford to be surprised," he warned.

Settlement Reached In Note Dispute

A settlement was reached Thursday in the Supreme Court action brought against Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Chambers of RR 1 Oshawa by a Peterborough warehouseman, Frank A. Montgomery of 701 Stewart St.

The Chambers in February 1949 were running a business, the Peterborough Fur Coat Storage. They leased vault space at 124 Robinson St., the warehouse operated by Montgomery.

Montgomery guaranteed a bank overdraft by the Chambers and later got two promissory notes from them. When he didn't get payment he sued for $2,222.65, plus interest and costs of the action.

The Chambers counterclaimed for $5,000. They claimed that Montgomery hadn't lived up to the terms of the agreement and they demanded an accounting of the records and monies involved in their business transactions with Montgomery.

In the settlement, judgment went to Montgomery for $1,400 without costs; the Chambers' counterclaim was dismissed; the original note was ordered destroyed; Montgomery is to obtain a release of liability to the Chambers executed at the Imperial Bank; and both parties release each other of all other claims.

The case was heard at the non-jury sittings of the Supreme Court, Mr. Justice King presiding. J. M. Greer was counsel for the Chambers, and John Corkery was counsel for Montgomery.

Australian Commissioner Says UN Doing Real Job

"What do you expect?" Sir Douglas Berry Copland, high commissioner for Australia in Canada, asked critics of the United Nations in outlining some of the organizations and accomplishments of the United Nations at the annual meeting of the UN Association in Peterborough in the public library Thursday night.

With good-humored hope, he said that the propagandists among the members of the United Nations who used the sounding board of the UN for spreading confusion, fear and suspicion would be defeated.

And it would be defeated by members from other nations exercising patience, tolerance and firmness in answering their charges and making criticisms of their own, but without bitterness and the cynical cunning of the Communist nations.

Sir Douglas recently represented his country on the economic and social council and the trusteeship council of the United Nations in New York. He reminded his audience tha tthe UN was not concerned primarily with settling disputes, although that was an important part of its work. It was conceived as an agency which would deal with all points of contact, those that made for differences and those that made for unity between nations.

BACKWARD COUNTRIES

The trusteeship council, he described as an agency concerned with the basic administration of backward countries. Six members of the council were administrative powers which held colonies.

His country, Australia, was one of these, with two island possessions. He reminded his listeners, that the administrative powers had entered the trusteeship willingly. He said the UN, with all the goodwill in it in the world, can be used for propaganda and villification to spread fear and suspicion. The trusteeship council, he described as the happy hunting ground of the governments who want "to play up the domination of colonies." He mentioned a Polish delegate who attacked the illiteracy in the colonies as an example.

"You stand this sort of thing for quite a long time," said Sir Douglas, and then you answer back." He quoted from the Bible for the gist of his answer: "He who is without sin, let him cast the first stone." He reminded the Polish delegate of the amount of illiteracy in his own land.

"Imagine the delegate from Poland talking to the delegate from Australia about democracy and the rights of man! Imagine the hide of it!" he exclaimed.

He said the Polish delegate protested that the council had a responsibility to two hundred million people of "non self-governing territories." Sir Douglas replied that he wished the delegate from Poland felt the same responsibility for those in his own country.

Half seriously and half jokingly, he pointed to Canada as the only nation that was "lily white" that had "clean hands".

POLITICAL GAME

He said the danger was that the problems before the trusteeship council might become a political football. He added the nations that had colonial possessions should not quail before the criticism. By and large, they were doing their best to help the lands under their rule and developing in them a sense of responsibility.

He said that if the trusteeship council fails, it will be because the volume of criticism heaped up by the Communist countries was successful in rattling the administrative powers. But he believed that the council would not fail to find solutions to the problems of colonial countries.

He turned to the economic and social council to outline some of its functions. With 18 members, five of them in practice permanent and 13 rotating, it did a great deal of its work through regular commissions, the commission for Europe with headquarters in Geneva, the commission for Asia and the Far East with headquarters in Bangkok, the economic commission for Latin America, the commission on human rights, the international monetary fund and the International bank. All these agencies contained concepts that were completely new in the world. They had to work out the details of their functions from scratch. The mere act of organizing to be able to approach some sort of action, was in itself a tremendous task, the speaker pointed out.

There had been criticism. For instance that International bank had been criticized as being too cautious. Of course it was cautious, he exclaimed. "Did they expect it to lend money to every yahoo in the world?"

As it was, it had lent money to 37 countries for urgent, specific projects.

"Of course, it was not enough, but what do you expect in eight years?"

The speaker mentioned the technical assistance offered through the council's agencies. There were thousands of experts working among the nations of the world by giving help. These experts were not nationals, but internationals whose interest was solely in helping the country they were working in.

Much was being accomplished through the United Nations, and people should not be discouraged by the tactics of the Communist countries. He said the other countries represented in the UN must continue to be tolerant of ignorance and the tactics of the Communists. He said they must keep challenging the Communists and carry the fight into the enemy's camp.

Asked about the situation in China, the high commissioner, made several succinct points. Communism as it is practised is a doctrine of power; the present Chinese government came into office, in the same way all governments of China have, by force of arms; China has a peculiar form of democracy that starts with the family and the village. If the Communist government's program "involves the destruction of the family, it will fail." But the west might as well get used to the idea, "the present government is going to be there an awfullly long time."

Sir Douglas was introduced by F. B. Smitheram and thanked by Dr. Louis Zacks, the incoming president.

Summer School To Help Lagging Students

A summer school, believed first of its kind in Canada will be held at Lakefield this summer to help slower students solve scholastic problems before they become insurmountable. The site will be on Lake Katchewanooka.

Aim of the school is to combine the recreational facilities of a summer camp with academic courses which will bring high school students up to par in their studies. Courses will be offered in mathematics (arithmetic, algebra, geometry) Latin, French, conversational French and English composition and literature. Students may choose any two of these five divisions.

Applications for admission should be sent before June 1 to, Harry E. Griffiths, principal of the school at 21 Cranbrooke Ave. in Toronto. All students from Grades 8 to 12 eligible for admission.

Fees, the prospectus notes, are payable in advance, and are steep for the six-week season. Room and board will cost $230, while an extra $100 is levied for tuition costs. The school will run from July 5 to August 14.

Co-directing the school with Mr. Griffiths will be G. Winder Smith, headmaster of the Lakefield Preparatory school, where summer school classes will be held. All members of the teaching staff will be university graduates.

FIT PROGRAM

Aim of the school is to fit the academic program to the needs of each boy. Thus the mathematics and language classes are individually tailored from department of education syllabi so that each student can pick up his studies at the point where he is having most trouble.

The conversational French classes are open to boys with a basic knowledge of the language. History, geography and social customs of France will serve as the basis for discussion groups.

Effective written expression and the development of sound reading habits, are the aims in the English courses. Instructors hope that foreign students studying in Canada will take advantage of classes in oral composition.

The recreational program includes planned canoe trips, swimming, canoeing, sailing, tennis and baseball tournaments and expeditions to discover some of the better fishing locations in the Kawarthas. Selected educational and recreational films will be shown, and students will be given an opportunity to visit the Peterborough summer theatre in connection with their English studies.

A typical day at the school is summarized as follows. 7:00, rising bell; 7:30, breakfast; 8:30 to 10.:45, classes; 10:45 to 11:00, classes; 11 to 12:20, classes; 12:30, lunch; 1 to 2, rest period; 2:30 to 5:30, recreation; 6, supper; 7 to 9, supervised study or a recreational evening.

Co-director Griffiths is a McGill graduate, and the manager of the University of Toronto stadium and arena. Others on the supervisory staff, in addition to instructors, are J. N. C. Sharp, mathematics supervisor at Upper Canada College and Arthur F. Killip, headmaster of the Hillfield school in Hamilton.

UNAFRAID—R. F. Petursson of Victoria says he is not afraid to return to Ontario to face charges of conspiracy to defraud the Ontario government in connection with the province's highways probe. Now supervising engineer for the trans-Canada highway in British Columbia, he is one of the 15 men who were connected with highway construction in the lakehead who are charged. He says there must have been a "mixup" and that he has "nothing to be ashamed of and nothing to be afraid of." —(CP Photo).

Frances Hyland Rusty On Cartwheels

By JOHN PATERSON

TORONTO (CP) — Frances Hyland is afraid she is a bit rusty on doing "cartwheels" but the Shaunavon, Sask., actress who left a London play to return to Canada, hopes it won't interfere too much with her work in this summer's Shakespearian festival at Stratford Ont.

"Before I left London another Canadian, Don Herron of Toronto, who played in last year's festival and is returning for this season's plays, told me to brush up on my cartwheels for Tyrone Guthrie's production of Taming of The Shrew."

Miss Hyland, five feet two inches tall, slender and with blonde, shoulder-length hair, has had probably the most success of any Canadian actress who went to London in the great invasion following the Second World War.

Raised in Regina and bitten by the theatrical bug while with the University Players from the University of Saskatchewan, she attended the Royal Academy of Dramatic Art in London. In her second year there she was seen at a public performance of academy players, given a role in a television play and jumped into a first-rate London hit, "Streetcar Named Desire," in which she played Stella, one of the feminine leads.

PLAYED SHAKESPEARE

She has appeared in six London shows including her only Shakespearian production to date, "A Winter's Tale," with John Gielgud. It was while she was performing this winter in Christopher Fry's latest play, "The Dark is Light Enough," starring Dame Edith Evans, that she was seen by Tyrone Guthrie, director of the Stratford, Ont., festival plays and signed for the roles of Bianca in "Taming of The Shrew" and Isabella in "Measure For Measure." In the latter she plays the feminine lead opposite James Mason, British and Hollywood film and stage star.

She returned to Regina a few weeks ago.

"It was my first visit home in 5½ years," she said in an interview.

"One of the first things I did was to go out and look at a grain elevator. I sat and watched one for an hour and a half, I imagine. I was raised in wheat country. But I was so nostalgic for the Prairies I got a lurch when I flew across them again."

A civil suit filed by the government also seeks $1,400,000 from him for allegedly unpaid income taxes, penalties and interest for 1941-48.

Calgary Play Impresses Adjudicator Hugh Hunt

By PAULINE KENNEDY

HAMILTON (CP) — A veteran drama group, Calgary's Workshop 14, brought The Lady's Not for Burning to the Dominion drama festival Thursday night, with great success.

The play, by Christopher Fry, England's modern-day Shakespeare, impressed adjudicator Hugh Hunt. He playfully paid tribute to the casts in his punning comment:

"The company has not burnt the lady, but they came close to Frying her."

The Workshop, organized by director Betty Mitchell in 1944, has won seven out of eight Alberta festivals and has attended the Dominion festival six times. In 1950, with The Gioconda Smile, the Workshop won three awards—for best actress, best supporting actress and best set design.

Mr. Hunt commended the Calgary group for the choice of play, which he said is worthy of a major competition. He praised the costumes made by the group.

However, he said the cast as a whole had a tendency to attack the play too hard.

Ron Poffenroth's interpretation of the soldier who tries to get himself hanged suffered from too heavy a hand, Mr. Hunt said. He had the right virility of voice but lacked poetry.

The performers who caught the play's proper note of beauty, Mr. Hunt said, were Edna Pozer and John Cotton. Miss Pozer has been picked to appear at this year's Shakespearian festival at Stratford. She is a Calgary school teacher.

SOME CRITICISMS

Mr. Hunt said he was more harsh with the Calgary group than with others because of their superior experience.

He criticized the set as too drab and too flimsy in construction. The direction by Miss Mitchell was good and the actors understood their parts.

Scheduled for tonight is a play by the Playcraftsmen Drama Group of Toronto—The Rose Tattoo by Tennessee Williams. The festival ends Saturday.

Campbellford Cadets Show Marked Drill Improvement

CAMPBELLFORD (ENS) — Major G. H. Free of Campbellford inspected the Campbellford High School Cadet Corps here on Wednesday afternoon at the annual inspection and ceremonial parade. Major Free, who is deputy reeve of the town, told the cadets that he noted a marked improvement in their drills over previous years.

Cadet Training Officer Lt. Rubens of Headquarters Eastern Ontario Area, Kingston, marked the cadets during the inspection and parade and later congratulated them on their fine showing. He watched displays of tumbling and gymnastics, signals, Bren gun and first aid.

Girls of Grade 12 and the commercial class demonstrated the first aid techniques. The bugle band who made an excellent showing, played throughout the parade and during the inspection of the various displays.

Chairman of District High School Board, W. Roy Loucks spoke briefly to the cadets, congratulating them on the quality of their displays, and also telling them that the afternoon had been declared a school holiday.

Two presentations were made during the day, one of the smartest cadet on parade and one for marksmanship. Marvin Dohaldson was picked as the smartest cadet on parade during the day. He received an award, as did Elmer Kelly, who had the highest score in rifle shooting during the term. Lt. Rubens made the presentations.

Mrs. Larke gave a short paper on stewardship.

Mrs. George Whitfield was in charge of the worship period. Mrs. Larke read a poem. After the scripture reading Mrs. Larke gave a commentary. Mrs. P. Johnson read a poem.

Downtown Parking Lots

Another Saturday of downtown traffic congestion is coming and it alone should lead Peterborough shoppers and drivers to encourage the City Council in its efforts to provide more and better parking facilities. Parking places will not remove the blockade to traffic, but they will help because the more cars there are off the streets the more room for movement there is of cars on them. We refer to off-street parking such as the old Market Square provides, and not to meters by the curbs. There are enough of those one-hour hitching posts now. The need is for parking lots off the street in which one may park for several hours at a time.

* * *

We consider that the Property Committee is acting well and circumspectly in its parking lot plans. For instance, the decision not to outfit the entire new lot on King street seems wise. Wait until the need is proved. The suggestion to provide a new off-street parking area near Hunter Street seems equally sound; there is an obvious need for one in that part of the business section to supplement the Market Square, which is always full at peak periods. The new lots should be metered, as the Market Square is, and made to pay their way. It is not fair to all sections of the taxpaying citizenry that special expenditures should be made for only two groups, shoppers in cars, and merchants in the business section. But since car owners are paying for the parking by their nickel or quarter in the slot, revenue from these meters should not go into general city funds, to the benefit of other classes of taxpayers. We believe that the buying, equiping and maintenance of parking lots should be financed out of meter revenue, and that a separate account should be established for this purpose.

* * *

Traffic congestion on George and Charlotte streets will continue, no matter how many parking lots are provided, so long as pedestrians do not obey traffic signals, drivers are discourteous or interfere with other drivers (by double parking, stopping where they should not, and not stopping when they should) and as long as there are so many incompetent drivers. If a driver does not know how to get away fast when the traffic lights change, does not know how to turn a corner, does not know how to drive quickly but carefully in heavy traffic, he should stay away from down-town Peterborough at rush hours and on Saturdays. At peak hours the police should be more active than they are in demanding that cars move instead of dawdle. The police seem to think that traffic lights can do all their work for them.

* * *

An easier and quicker flow of traffic and more parking space will assist the commercial life of the city. At present, so great is the congestion that out-of-town shoppers are deterred from shopping in Peterborough and some go as far as Lindsay or Port Hope to avoid the bother of trying to stop to shop in downtown Peterborough on busy days. The Council has a right to be concerned about the welfare of the commercial section of the city, for George and Charlotte Street merchants and building owners pay the highest taxes in the city.

Chronic Killers

Last week, the annual meeting of the Association of American Physicians convened in Atlantic City. The great strides of modern medicine were stressed, in the many papers read, but the main discussion among the delegates centred around the so-called "chronic" diseases, or ailments—the diseases of long duration with slowly developing or progressive symptoms. Arthritis, high blood pressure, coronary artery disease, and kidney ailments were only a few of the chronic ailments considered.

In the first half of the century, the infectious diseases were rated as prime killers. Before World War I, about 9 out of 10 children had or had had tuberculosis. Today, as a result of better knowledge concerning the disease, and conditions providing relief, tuberculosis, though still an important disease, is likely to become rare in the next ten years. Similarly, the ravages of diphtheria and pneumonia have been checked or alleviated by the discovery and use of antibodies and new drugs.

The drugs ACTH, cortisone, and hydrocortisonem, have anti-inflammatory properties, and therefore, injections tend to relieve rheumatoid arthritis, evaporatechronic and fatal skin diseases, and take the itch out of poison ivy. The effect of the new drugs on the chronic ailments can now be studied more intimately, as a result of their proven effectiveness in the treatment of infectious diseases.

In our age the tremendous advances in the science of killing have tended to obscure equally spectacular progress in the science of maintaining life. Today's laboratories and physics are not all devoted to improving the means of killing. Techniques in surgery, discoveries in physiology and developments in medical chemistry show that the scientific pursuit of health and life is at least as ardent and successful as the exploration of the possibilities of deadlier explosions. Proof? In the states decimated or most ravaged by two world wars, populations are greater and the people healthier than they were forty years ago when the first of the world wars began.

Too Much Bathing

Water is not the natural habitat of humanity and, as Disraeli said long ago, cleanliness and order are not matters of instinct: "they are matters of education, and like most great things—mathematics and classics—you must cultivate a taste for them". And so teachers spend interminable hours preaching that cleanliness is next to godliness and parents have daily wrangles with their young sons trying to get them into a tub. (By the way, why do girls take more easily to washing than boys; and since water is not the natural habitat of humanity, are girls therefore less human than boys?)

The pedagogical training, the parental discipline and the question of which sex is the less human may now be disregarded. Dr. Earl B. Osborne of Buffalo has asserted that daily bathing is the worst thing you can do for your skin, especially when you use soap. If this be so, how can

". . . thy mind's sweetness have its operation
Upon the body, clothes and habitation"?

How then convince a boy that the problem of washing behind the ears cannot best be solved by parents not looking behind his ears? How can the lad think otherwise than that a daily bath is merely a parental whim, and unhealthy at that? He can quote Dr. Osborne and face a grimy future joyously.

We are not entirely convinced that Dr. Osborne, the last word on the subject, is the best word. Isaiah was a man of sense, too, and he admonished "Wash ye, make you clean". On the other hand (the unsoaped one), many inhabitants of Isaiah's warm continent have racial suspicions against bathing in water too often. Some of them oil their skins, rather than soap them—a sponge bath in olive oil is recommended by even northern European faddists (a cult in opposition to the other northern European faddists who advocate daily baths). Travellers from the Middle East into this country are amused, if they have overcome their bewilderment, at the North American habit of bathing daily. The practice seems to the foreigner a reflection on the dirtiness of North Americans. If they were not dirty in habits and environment, why would they have to wash so often?

Perhaps the matter can be summed up as so many others are: practice moderation in all things, even in washing and the use of soap. Man is a land animal. There is no other animal on the face of the earth who washes his skin so often. Not even cats are as perverted; they wash only their clothes.

Pitfalls

Whenever a child falls into an abandoned well, canal, or excavations, there is a public outcry against such hazards being allowed to exist. But after the young person is rescued, dead or alive, the clamour dies down, and is not raised again until a new tragedy strikes.

The other day, in Hamilton, a boy was severely burned when he tumbled into a pile of burning lime and sulphur waste on a lot near his home. People have indignantly asked why construction companies should leave dangerous materials within the reach of children.

Here in Peterborough there are dangerous pitfalls. One sees cellar excavations, made in the late Fall or early Spring, which are filled almost to overflowing with rain water or melted snow. A wandering child or an unwary adult could easily stumble into one of them. They are unprotected by any form of railing or covering.

Parents, of course, should warn their children to stay away from dangerous pitfalls. But it is the natural bent for exploration that every youngster possesses that sometimes leads to his downfall. Surely the construction companies realize the danger of their excavations, ladders and hazardous equipment, particularly to small children. But the contractor's workmen are not always thinking of the potential hazards when they knock off work for the day.

There are municipal ordinances and provincial codes requiring construction firms to safeguard the public while building is in progress, but particularly on small jobs, these tend to be more honoured in the breach than in the observance. A sign "No Trespassing" or the fact that the job is being done on private property is not a safeguard. Children have the curiosity of sheep and an equally feckless disregard of signs. They must be protected against their wandering inclinations.

LONDON LETTER

Spring In The Air & TV Teeth

By KENNETH HARRIS

IN LONDON now one feels the first sense of Spring. Not that the weather is good—it is, even for an English May, wickedly unpredictable. But in spite of the lateness of the season, the buds and leaflets and the blossoms have at last dared the cold winds and have survived the long, dry period, and have shown up.

It certainly is about time. Farmers reckon the crops are about a month behind time; race-horse trainers say their horses are all three weeks backward. There are many colds about, and the old folks complain of still having winter twinges. Although it has been a remarkably mild winter, it seems to have gone on the devil of a long time, and it is nice to have a very real sense that the darn thing is over.

THERE REALLY is a springtime in the air, cold May breezes and warm hydrogen-bomb notwithstanding. With the Queen due to return on Saturday from her long trip around the Commonwealth, the newspapers here are cracking on the pace, and every day now the royal progress makes major headlines.

Since little Prince Charles and his royal sister went out to join the Queen and the Duke, the excitement has moved into higher gear. The papers are now discussing the arrangements for the welcome the Queen will receive when, triumphant from her world-wide tour, she sails aboard the royal yacht up the Thames, right into the heart of London; when she steps ashore, into the crowds, under the shadow of Big Ben, and the Houses of Parliament. There is a kind of "little Coronation" atmosphere here. And although the British people are not as crown-struck or royalty-bound as some of their friends overseas imagine, they are getting an agreeable kick out of the growing—well, if you like, fuss.

ON TOP of it all there is good economic news. Even the more staid newspapers have just announced that gold and silver are now "pouring" into Britain's reserves. The increase in the last quarter was by far the biggest increase registered in the last three years.

Opinions are divided as to the amount of significance this has for Britain's long-term economic situation. But there is no disputing that it is good news as opposed to bad news. And though the people around the Treasury are not behaving as though the spring sun had permanently come out from behind the clouds, they are at least reminding the British public that winter does not, by the nature of things, stay on for ever.

AT A TIME when the newspapers are talking about the rift in Anglo-American relations at Geneva, it is nice to be reminded that what a bunch of diplomats and politicians are talking about for the benefit of their constituents and election chances is not by any means the whole of the story. Just now, for instance, up at Blackpool, Britain's nearest approach to Coney Island, Anglo-American relations are being revived at the annual conference of the Rotary International, and all the Anglos and Americans up there seem to be getting on reasonably well.

The star of the occasion, incidentally, seems to be a witty young lady who hails from Kansas. "Does tolerance mean understanding?" she demands, making a plea for concentration on the former. "If we wait till we understand each other, we may wait a mighty long time. How many men can claim that they thoroughly understand their wives? By the time we get around to understanding each other it may be too late for tolerance. It may be too late for anything."

I hope this has been well reported in the Press of both countries — and in other countries, too.

✧ ✧ ✧

IN SPITE of the demands of some of its members, Britain's House of Commons is not going to restore "Maupygernon" to the dining-room menu. Questioned in the House recently as to whether he would do so, the chairman of the Kitchen Committee gave a polite and somewhat jocular "No."

Asked why it was no longer available, the chairman pointed out that the last time a "Mess of Maupygernon" had appeared on the Westminster menu was at the Coronation Banquet of King Charles II in 1660. King Charles, he said, "graciously accepted the dish, but after examining it more closely decided not to partake thereof."

Historians were divided as to the exact composition of the delicacy. According to some, said the chairman, it is "a comparatively simple decoction of chicken, heavily spiced with ginger and cloves. There is a much grimmer recipe, however, composed of hog's kidneys and flavoured with other ingredients suggesting the witches' cauldron in Macbeth."

"Let's try it," cried one Member.

"It would be too risky to try it out on Hon. Members, whose attendance is so sought after by the Party Whips," came the reply.

✧ ✧ ✧

THERE SEEMS no doubt now that in spite of publicity, which though not hostile has been a stringent, Billy Graham's work in Britain has been a considerable success. There has been no better indication, I think, of the interest he has worked up than the success of his visit to Cambridge. Cambridge undergraduates are, even as undergraduates go, a pretty critical lot, and are liable to give the bird to anything phoney or sloppy in a remarkable short and exciting time.

When Graham turned up to preach there recently four thousand of Cambridge's seven thousand students are reported to have gone to the service. Photographs have been displayed of their standing in queues by the hundred. They gave Graham a good hearing —those boys can give a mighty bad one, even in church — and he went away feeling the trip had been a great success.

✧ ✧ ✧

LATEST ADDITION to the crop of hazards which television is bringing to British youth is the particularly disturbing one of Television Teeth. If children sit watching television with their heads held between their hands, and press harder with their hands as they grow more tense, a serious harm to their teeth may result.

Such is gist of part of a report officially released by a committee of experts of the British Dental Association and submitted to the Minister of Health.

An American Opinion: "I AM THE LAW"

Letter To The Editor

NATIONALISM IN QUEBEC

SIR: On the grounds of a long and patient silence I wish to raise my voice in protest against the malicious spirit of nationalism and isolationism existing and thriving in the Province of Quebec.

A few of the things I have to say might be noted by the recent correspondent of The Examiner who signed himself as "Another Thinker," his expostulation of "Thinker" appearing in the edition of May 3rd. During the course of his rather impotent letter, he does not merely try to condone the existence of these incongruous elements in Quebec, but has the effrontery, or abstraction, to deny their very existence, in a manner which belies his adopted pen name.

No nationalism in Quebec?!? But did not Rene Chaloult, French-Canadian MP advocate that Canada break away from the Empire? Did not Paul Bouchard picture the Province of Quebec taking control of Canada, and mention a "Republic of Canada" at a later date? According to Paul Gouin, (leader of the Action Liberale Nationale Party) Cardinal Villeneuve first gave birth to the idea years ago. Why did the Hon. Louis St. Laurent, while Minister of Justice, appeal to French-Canadians over CBC to abandon an "illusive dream of a French State in America" for the time being "if not forever," if the movement found, as he claims, no support in Quebec? Questions such as abolishing appeals to the Privy Council, the insertion of a French Canadian song as National Anthem, and the choice of a Canadian flag may, in themselves be trivial, but even straws show which way the current runs.

The following appears in "Le Devoir," May 1, 1947:

"We are republicans because we know that the only practical way for Canada to release herself from the tutelage of London is to break the bonds which attach her to the British crown."

A resolution adopted by the council of the St. Jean-Baptiste Society of Montreal, urging the Canadian Government to adopt a design for a flag "which carries no sign symbolic of Canada's subjugation to any foreign nation whatever," was forwarded to Ottawa, L. A. Frechette, the society's director of public relations announced (Nov. 16, 1945).

The following paragraph is translated from a declaration of political faith made by the new editor of "Le Devoir," who followed in the footsteps of Henri Bourassa, the founder and former editor:

"Le Devoir will favour, therefore, with all its strength, the man, the movements, and the parties which pronounce themselves squarely for the Canadian Republic and which make it the object of their labours."

I now quote from "L'Evenement Journal," June 4, 1942:

"It is requested that the Union Jack should not be employed, nor the stars and stripes, nor any other flag which is foreign to us." Is the Union Jack a "foreign flag" in Quebec?

I have little doubt that by now some of the readers of this letter will have branded me as either an "intolerant bigot" or a "hatred spreader," but I realize that the truth is always received in that manner in certain quarters where it is either too disagreeable to face, or detrimental to someone's surreptitious plans.

I will, in closing, quote once more from "Le Devoir." The following nationalistic harangue was printed on Nov. 14, 1947, under the sub-title, "Why we ought to be republicans," it reads:

"Because it serves the ends of British imperialism, we must beware of monarchist propaganda, insidious and romantic." Outdated and absurd?! Of course, but it gets even more ridiculous as it goes on: "Because royalty serves the Empire, those who desire the true independence of Canada, must become accustomed to the idea of a republic. We must resolutely set aside abstract theories that can be argued on the superiority of the monarchical regime; we must get rid of the sentimental and unreasoned attachment that may be felt for the crown. For Canadians, allegiance to the king carries with it a camouflaged vassalage toward Great Britain. It is only by the proclamation of a republic that we can attain complete independence."

Either these tin-pot nationalists are labouring under the misapprehension that they are slaves, and are completely in ignorance of the Statute of Westminster, and of Canada's status in the British Commonwealth, or they are aware, but carry on their senseless tirades just for the sake of being heard. Either way, you can see the type of mentality we're dealing with.

The foregoing extractions give ample evidence that isolationism and nationalism are not pure imaginary words when applied to Quebec, and that some perverted minds of the province continue to preach cheap, insidious separatist propaganda, under the guise of emancipation, despite the fact that Quebec owes its liberties as well as its prestige to the British flag and all that it stands for.

Yours truly,
"CASSANDRA."

Bible Message

(From The Authorized Version)

These are the generations of Noah: Noah was a just man and perfect in his generations, and Noah walked with God. And Noah begat three sons, Shem, Ham and Japheth.

And God looked upon the earth, and, behold, it was corrupt: for all flesh had corrupted his way upon the earth. And God said unto Noah, The end of all flesh is come before me; for the earth is filled with violence through them; and behold, I will destroy them with the earth. Make thee an ark of gopher wood; rooms shalt thou make in the ark, and shalt pitch it within and without with pitch . . . And, behold, I, even I, do bring a flood of waters upon the earth, to destroy all flesh, wherein is the breadth of life, from under heaven; and every thing that is in the earth shall die. But with thee will I establish my covenant. (Gen. 6:9, 10, 12-14, 17, 18.)

✧ ✧ ✧

And the Lord said unto Noah, Come thou and all thy house into the ark; for thee have I seen righteous before me in this generation. (Gen. 7:1.)

Cease ye from man, whose breath is in his nostrils: for wherein is he to be accounted of? (Isa. 2:22.)

Humor

(Montreal Gazette)

Humor is a "blessed event in our lives, a factor in freedom, a bulwark against totalitarianism and the first casualty of dictatorship — long may it thrive." This opinion was given my Malcolm Muggeridge, editor of Punch, to the Canadian Club in Ottawa.

Mr. Muggeridge, in an interview here last weekend, was less helpful about what humor is. "What makes one man laugh will have no effect on another," he said. "In fact, there are a lot of things that go into Punch, I don't think are funny at all. But I am assured by others that they are intensely funny."

There is a further problem concerning humor, to which actors and other public performers will attest with deep sadness. Not only do people often laugh at the wrong times, it is generally difficult to decide whether they are laughing with the speaker or at him. This is why humor is not popular with dictators. They can never be sure if it's on their side.

To Drive Safely

(Kingston Whig-Standard)

A safety award winner gave this as his rule: "I consider everybody else on the road is a fool—he usually is, I never trust the other guy a minute."

That is a sweeping statement, yet few would care to argue that it is not a basically sound rule as long as there are so many persons who use the highways with little or no regard for the rights and safety of others.

And unless there is marked improvement in this respect, this year appears headed for an appalling new record of death on the highways of Ontario.

A BRITISH OPINION

Farmers Continue Rust War With New Variety Of Wheat

By AL VICKERY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WINNIPEG (CP)—Nearly 23,000 western farmers move into the front line this year in a battle with an old enemy that has been a scourge to North American grain fields for years.

The enemy is a deadly variety of stem rust, a fungus that withers plants in the middle of the growing season. It cost western farmers about $20,000,000 worth of wheat in 1951.

In the rust war, farmers will be sowing small quantities of the new rust-resistant Selkirk wheat. This fall's harvest should produce thousands of bushels of seed for further distribution.

PASSED ALL TESTS

A. B. Masson of the federal laboratory of cereal breeding here says 172,000 bushels of the new varjety is being distributed in Manitoba and Saskatchewan. Selkirk was licensed last December under the Canada Grain Act as a variety which farmers can plant.

The milling and baking tests which proved it equal in quality to Marquis wheat—used as a standard—climaxed a story that started 25 years ago at McConnell in southwestern Manitoba.

Malcolm S. McMurachy was harvesting wheat in a field heavily infested with rust when he spotted a single head that looked free from rust. He plucked it, found about 70 kernels and placed them in an envelope. But when spring came only 11 kernels were left. Mice had eaten the others.

PRECIOUS ORIGINALS

Mr. McMurachy sowed the 11 kernels, nursing them along slowly. The following year he sowed the resulting seed in the shelter of a bluff. But prairie chickens ate most of the wheat and he salvaged only a arful.

The wheat was improved in the next few years. In 1938, when the stem rust now called Race 15-B first became known in the United States, Canadian cereal breeders began looking for rust-resistant wheat. The McMurachy wheat showed it had such resistance.

The rust-resistant Selkirk strain was developed by crossing McMurachy wheat with two other varieties.

The new strain was multiplied at experimental stations and 700 bushels were available by 1952. That fall, to speed up production, 150 bushels were sown in California. The harvest from this crop, brought back to Canada in May, 1953, provided 6,000 bushels of seed.

SELECTED GROWERS

Last summer, this was increased to more than 170,000 bushels by growing it on government-irrigated land, on experimental stations and by selected seed growers, who agreed to return the product and any unused seed if it was not licensed.

One selected grower was C. A. (Pat) Sherlock, who farms a quarter-section in the Petersfield district, 25 miles northeast of Winnipeg. He nursed 40 pounds into 64 bushels last summer and now says:

"There's nothing that can take the place of Selkirk in my estimation."

Mr. Sherlock says he sowed his 40 pounds last year in a 1 1-3-acre plot of summer fallow, surrounded by a 60-foot wide isolation strip. He found it was not touched by Race 15-B stem rust which crept into his other wheat.

The 64-bushel yield was much higher than other varieties—the average is 16.2 bushels an acre—but experimental farm officials say any farmer who receives six bushels of Selkirk seed this year can be assured, given reasonable weather, of getting about 160 bushels of seed grain this fall.

OFFERED HIGH PRICE

The Petersfield farmer is reseeding all 64 bushels this year, although he was offered $20 a bushel from a man believed to represent United States interests.

Showing the large kernels to neighbor Charlie Carter, Mr. Sherlock remarked:

"If I had wheat like this all over my farm, maybe I could go to California this winter."

The seed is being sold at a government-established price of less than $5 a bushel, although officials report there have been instances where as much as $100 a bushel has been offered by American buyers.

Court Of Appeals Upholds Padlock Law Validity

MONTREAL (CP)—The Quebec Court of Appeals in a 4-1 decision Thursday upheld the validity of Quebec's controversial padlock law. The law permits police to padlock premises used for Communist activities.

The court ruled that the law deals with property and civil rights, matters coming within provincial jurisdiction. The court held the law does not encroach on federal jurisdiction over crime and punishment.

The law's constitutionality was questioned by John Switzman, whose rented premises were padlocked in January, 1949. Mrs. Freda Elbing, owner of the padlocked building, is suing Switzman for $22,170 on the grounds that Switzman was responsible for the rent until May, 1950.

MAIN ARGUMENT

In the majority decision, Mr. Justice Bernard Bissonnette said one of the main arguments against the law was that communism had not been defined.

"Is it necessary to define treason, war, pest, famine or fire?" He asked. "When a doctrine has for its basis the object of destroying the Christian religion and, at the same time, the organic structure of the state, the least one can say is that a national danger exists.

". . . Communism is only the expression of a living, subtle atheism and the liberty of expression that would be granted if the law did not exist, not only in this Christian province but in a Christian country, would constitute a tolerance of a treacherous enemy possessed of no other object than the provoking of a revolution."

The Quebec legislators knew they had no powers to adopt a criminal law but the present act was passed to meet the same end, he said.

Russ Dancing Called Superb

Aldwinckle was a member of the group of Canadians who were invited to view Soviet art and spent 25 days in Russia.

Originally, 12 artists were invited. But for health, business and other reasons many backed out.

"They missed a lot," said Aldwinckle, a writer and artist, in an interview.

"When we arrived we were swamped by Russian generosity. Life became a long round of galleries, theatres, ballet, dancing, music and talking through the interpreters supplied. I must say now that anything I have ever seen before I went to Russia is not dancing. Their standard is superb."

Modern art in Russia, says Aldwinckle, is 1925 vintage magazine illustration in the western world.

"They call it Soviet realism. I would call it story-telling by four-color photography, painted by hand."

Truman's Epithet

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (CP)—Former president Truman said Thursday the American economy is suffering from a sad case of "creeping McKinleyism." The epithet recalled both the charges of "creeping socialism" hurled by Republicans against Truman's administration in the last election and the policies of Republican president William McKinley in the 1890s. McKinley espoused the cause of high tariffs and was backed by business interests.

2 Montreal Lawyers Committed For Trial

MONTREAL (CP) — Charged in connection with an alleged black market in babies, two Montreal lawyers Thursday were committed for trial.

Judge Gerald Almond ruled that Herman Buller and Louis Glazer must stand trial on charges of falsifying civil birth certificates but he disallowed charges of forgery and conspiracy to commit forgery in both cases.

Myer Gross, counsel for Buller, said stories in the press that the alleged baby selling racket, first reported in mid-February, was on a $3,000,000 to $5,000,000 scale was "entirely false."

Police were quoted earlier as saying that babies were sold, mostly in the New York area to Jewish couples, for as much as $3,500 each during a 10-year period.

The Cascapedia river in Quebec, famous for trout and salmon, flows 75 miles to New Richmond on the Bay of Chaleur.

"AND THE TEARS FLOWED . . ."—Everything was watery down at Pier 90 in New York City and Leslie James Neale III, returning from a European visit, added his share. His mother didn't want her 17-month-old youngster to get lost, so she tied him to a trunk.

Roberts Retires 27 Men As Phillies Down Reds 8 to 1

By BEN PHELGAR, Associated Press Sports Writer

Will a present-day pitcher ever pitch a perfect game?

This old baseball debate was revived again today after the latest feat of near-perfection by Robin Roberts of the Philadelphia Phillies. Roberts gave up a home run to Bobby Adams, who led off for Cincinnati Thursday night, and then retired 27 men without another reaching first base. He won 8-1.

Except that it was a home run instead of a single, Roberts' game was virtually a carbon copy of one tossed a year ago this week by his buddy, lefty Curt Simmons. Simmons mowed down Milwaukee Braves in order through nine complete innings after Billy Bruton singled as the lead-off batter.

Neither Roberts nor Simmons was born when Charles Robertson of Chicago White Sox beat Detroit in April, 1922, in the majors' last perfect game—no runs, no hits, no base runners. Only three others ever have been recorded in the modern majors, none of them in the National League.

Two weeks ago Roberts pitched his first one-hitter, against Milwaukee. That time he walked three.

PHILLIES HOLD LEAD

The Phillies maintained their half-game first-place lead over Brooklyn Dodgers, who beat St. Louis 10-3. Milwaukee defeated Pittsburgh 4-2 and New York Giants whipped Chicago Cubs 6-3 in other National League action.

In the American League New York Yankees edged Detroit 5-3 in 10 innings on Yogi Berra's two-run homer; Boston beat Baltimore 9-1; Philadelphia Athletics defeated the White Sox 3-2 and Cleveland shaded Washington 8-7 in 11 innings.

The Cardinals lost in Ebbets Field for the 12th straight time in two seasons, this time to southpaw Johnny Podres who won his fourth in a row.

By beating Pittsburgh, Milwaukee moved ahead of both Cincinnati and St. Louis into the first division.

HOME-RUN BARRAGE

The Giants laid down a home-run barrage that left the Cubs staggering in the Polo Grounds. They hit five, including two by 'monte Irvin.

Home runs by New York ruined the evening for baseball's largest crowd of the season—50,916 at Briggs Stadium in Detroit. Trailing 3-1, the Yankees caught up in the eighth on Irv Noren's two-run homer and then won in the 10th when Berra slammed a round-tripper with one aboard.

The Indians beat Washington although they went into the last of the ninth trailing by six runs. Al Rosen touched off the late spree with a home run and doubled in the winning run in the 11th.

Helsinki Defeat Goaded Bannister On

NEW YORK (AP)—Roger Bannister's disappointing fourth place in the 1,500 metres of the 1952 Olympic Games at Helsinki was the goad that resulted in the miracle four-minute mile, he said Thursday.

"It's good to have a big disappointment. It did me a lot of good."

Any notion that Bannister's 3:59.4 performance last week was unexpected or accidentally was dispelled by the tall Englishman in a press conference at the Yale Club.

He worked hard all winter at training, went climbing mountains in Scotland at Easter time, and came back with stiff legs—"but this provided just the break I needed before I put the final edge on my speed."

The lanky runner will receive a sterling silver bowl—the Roger Bannister Trophy—at appropriate ceremonies today, after which it will be returned to a case in Los Angeles. International rules say amateurs must not accept such valuable trinkets.

The trophy already had one name on it—Denis Johansson of Finland, who won the Coliseum mile last year. When Bannister broke the four-minute barrier, the Southern California Olympic Games Committee decided he should get the big bowl.

WHERE SPEED COUNTS—Roger Bannister, the miracle mile man, needed that extra "kick" as he tried to beat the traffic light at 49th Street and 1st Avenue during his recent tour of New York City.

West Pinning Hopes On Hi Laude

TORONTO (CP) — Western Canadians, perennial sporting optimists, still are waiting to score their first victory in the Queen's Plate, the continent's oldest established racing classic. This year, their hopes are pinned chiefly on Hi Laude, a hard-running colt from Vancouver.

The West will have other representatives in the big race at Woodbine race track June 12 but Hi Laude's steady performances as a two-year-old entitle him to be ranked first among the horses which will invade Ontario. He now is being quoted at odds of 8-to-1 in the "future books" and there are indications his price will be reduced further.

Even eastern horsemen would be delighted to see a westerner win the plate. One prominent Ontario trainer said: "A western victory would be the finest thing that could happen to Canadian racing. Those fellows take all the worst of it. They ship their horses hundreds and even thousands of miles. They have a break coming to them."

APPLEBY ENTRANT

Accordingly, there will be widespread applause if Hi Laude carries Dr. L. H. Appleby's colors home successfully. Dr. Appleby has been trying to win Canada's greatest race since 1944 when he sent Cum Laude to Woodbine. Hi Laude is a son of that same Cum Laude, which finished fifth in 1944.

Hi Laude was Canada's second-ranking juvenile last year. He won three of 13 starts and only once did he fail to take home a piece of the purse. His earnings for the season totalled $12,767.

Dr. Appleby shipped Hi Laude to Woodbine early this month and only a few days later the youngster breezed a half-mile in 50 seconds. Since then, he has trained up to a mile in 1.46 under stout restraint.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

About once a year, usually in the spring, we get rather riled up at folks who call baseball by the odd name of "hardball"—and we know many diamond fans agree with us. Someone started the term to differentiate betwixt softball and baseball, but what's wrong with calling the latter "baseball"? After all, the spheroid used in the larger diamond game may be harder than a softball, but it's certainly not as hard as a billiard or golf ball. Try getting conked on the head with one of the latter two, and you'll readily agree. One never reads of the American or National Hardball League in the country which developed baseball. So, forget about hardballs, unless mayhap you refer to meatballs the missus left too long in the oven.

Manager Joe Lowrey hasn't decided yet what pitcher will get the Petes' starting assignment against Hosking Burners in Toronto on Sunday aft. It's the local club's opening game of the VOBL, or Viaduct Ontario Baseball League, the new six-club circuit embracing two Toronto teams, Oakville, Oshawa, Belleville and Peterborough. Could be Tony Kotowski or Junior Wert will toe the slab for the first one, with Jerry Frizzelle and Brian Wade also available. Joe still hopes to add one more hurler to the staff and feels then he'd have a contending club in this senior loop. If he gets the pitching, he'll do okay, as otherwise the lineup looks alright on paper to us. Opener here is May 24 against Belleville.

Opening OLA Season

Playing coach Bob Thorpe takes his Petes' Trailermen tonight to St. Catharines to begin the 30-game OLA senior "A" schedule with the bolstered Athletics of the Garden City. Can't say just who will be in Bob's starting lineup, though most of the hard core of last year's good team will trot out on the floor. The A's have strengthened by th ereturn of a few former Saints and by signing Powless and Smith of the 1953 Petes, as well as getting a husky Sarnia intermediate named Soper. But they were unable to sign so far a few of their last year's squad, and will find the Trailermen no pushover this campaign. After taking the Mann Cup title three times in a row, the Petes can't be sold short, even after losing several good players. St. Kitts play here May 21, though the Thorpe team has another game away first, in Mimico on Tuesday next.

Several important matters were settled at a meeting of the general committee of the Memorial Community Centre last night. The site in the north-east corner of Morrow Park was approved and passed on to the city council for final approval, which is expected to be forthcoming shortly. The resignation of D. A. McGillis as chairman of the general committee was accepted. In his letter, he gave no reason for resigning and, therefore, there was comparatively little discussion before the vote. Charles Ray said he felt that the general chairman should also be chairman of the executive committee, and he agreed to continue in the latter capacity only until a general committee chairman is named.

To Bring In Names

A five-man nominating committee shortly will bring in a name or names for approval as general chairman, this committee consisting of: Cyril Crowe, Claire Stuart, Don Loucks, Ald. Stan McBride and Alf Barber. It was agreed that the general committee chairman be notified of all sub-committee meetings and, if he cannot attend, be advised of what transpired. E. A. Outram pointed out that, as chairman of the site committee, he had advised the general secretary of all meetings of his committee, feeling that this information then was available to the general chairman. And now, as soon as the city council okays the site selected, the building committee can get to work on plans.

Sunny skies finally smiled on the annual PCVS field day in Morrow Park on Thursday aft and the student body ran off a raft of keen track and field competitions, the teachers acting as officials. Mary Raddon won the girls' senior championship, Bernice Callan took the intermediate title, and Jean Green was the junior lasses' victor. In boys' events, Doug Livingstone was tops for seniors, Dennis Hale took the intermediate crown, Bob Whitehill (with five firsts) romped to the junior title, and Bob Waddell was first among the juveniles. More should be head of these winners in district and COSSA meets coming up here next Tuesday and Saturday respectively in Morrow Park.

Olympic Committee Has Peaceful Meeting

ATHENS (AP) — The International Olympic Committee today considered 10 minor questions on the last business session of the "most peaceful meeting in years."

After that is out of the way, a party of 40 to 50 IOC men and their wives will make a pilgrimage to Greece's Peloponessus peninsula where the Olympics were born and the first revival of the festival was held in 1896.

The party will return here Sunday and then disperse to homes around the globe to meet again in Paris a year from now.

Two Champions Successfully Defend Titles

TORONTO (CP)—Two Canadian amateur boxing champions successfully defended their titles Thursday night in the opening round of the Canadian British Empire Games boxing finals. Another champion was forced to give way before the blows of a fighter he had defeated for the title last year.

Lloyd Lawrence of Toronto won a split decision over defending champion Paul Chyzy of Winnipeg.

It was the reverse of a decision last year when Chyzy won the title in Montreal. The small crowd booed Thursday's decision in much the same manner that Chyzy's victory had been disapproved last year.

The 19-bout program took four hours. All bouts were scheduled for three rounds. A total of 78 fighters, representing almost all sections of Canada, are entered in the three-day event. Finals will be fought Saturday night with the winners to represent Canada at the British Empire Games in Vancouver this summer.

ONE KO, THREE TKOs

Norm Jorgenson of Vancouver recorded the only knockout, over Jim Montgomrey of Montreal at 1:23 of the first round. There were three technical knockouts:

Pat Supple, Montreal flyweight titleholder, pounded Al Roloson of Simcoe, Ont., for a TKO early in the second round.

Middleweight Bill Demchuck of St. Catharines dropped Roy Symons of HMCS Cornwallis, N.S., three times in the second round before the fight was stopped.

In the 165-pound class, Fred (Pinky) Mitchell, RCAF, Ottawa, pounded out a unanimous decision over Wally Gordon of Montreal

BARBOIE WINS

Willie Barboie, Toronto, outpointed Gord McDonald of Vancouver in the 133-pound class. Barboie sweated off 1½ pounds in the afternoon to make the weight. Toronto's Hugh Lindsay outlasted Sam Hope of Niagara Falls, Ont.

In the 126-pound class, Bobby Crews of Toronto and Andy Millette of Montreal threw a barrage of punches at each other in one of the best performances of the night. Crews got the decision.

Benny d'Amico of Toronto threw a flurry of hooks at Montreal's Barto Emard for a decision in the 119-pound division.

The only flyweight fight, between Norman Hickey of Toronto and Steve McDonald of P. E. I. was filled with wild punches and clinches with Hickey getting the nod.

Athletics Dump Montreal 5-1

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Brooklyn's top farm club has been having rocky going all season and Thursday night fell below the .500 mark and into sixth place when the tail-end Ottawa Athletics scored a 5-1 victory.

The A's scored four runs in the fourth inning, and that was all Vince Gohl needed to wrap up his second triumph of the season. Ed Roebuck was the loser.

In the only other game of the night, Toronto Maple Leafs shaded Rochester Red Wings 6-5 on the fine relief pitching of Jack Crimian. He relieved starter Ed Blake with two out in the fifth and the bases loaded, stifled that rally by tossing out Allie Clark, then went on to get the triumph.

British Newspapers Blast Foreign Office

LONDON (AP) — British newspapers today heaped hot coals of scorn on the foreign office for plunging Roger Bannister, England's wonder miler, into an international athletic foul-up.

The Daily Mail said the great runer's "good relations" visit to the United States, which was beset with threats to his amateur standing because of his promise to appear on sponsored television shows, had turned into a "wreck of a mission."

The Daily Mirror demanded to know who in the foreign office "spiked the fastest man on earth by grossly mismanaging his goodwill trip to the States."

Britain's diplomatic brain centre "has made a perfect fool of itself" was the way the Daily Herald put it.

Calgary Captures Trophy Downs Quebec Aces 4-2

CALGARY (CP)—Calgary Stampeders and Quebec Aces have reached the end of the 1953-54 hockey season, with Calgary holding the Edinburgh Trophy and the Aces holding nothing more than their return train tickets to eastern Canada.

Stampeders took the trophy, emblematic of Canadian professional hockey supremacy, by defeating the Aces 4-2 Thursday night before more than 6,000 partisan fans in the sixth game of the best-of-nine series.

Stampeders won the opener by a crushing 8-1 count, but dropped the second contest 2-1. They rallied to win the following four games 6-5, 7-4, 2-1 and 4-2.

It was the first year the Edinburgh Trophy was up for competition.

PICTURE CHANGES

Immediately following the game the smaller silver cup was presented to Stampeder captain Gus Kyle by Al Leader, president of the Western Hockey League. Stampeders won the WHL crown to qualify for the east-west series.

Aces looked like winners in the early going of Thursday night's contest. They rapped in two quick goals in the first period but Calgary recovered to tie the score 2-2 before the end of the session.

Calgary went in front 3-2 in the second and held that lead until late in the last period when they scored an insurance marker into an empty Quebec net. Goalie Jean Marois had been pulled with a minute and 32 seconds remaining in favor of the extra forward but the strategy backfired.

STARTED WELL

Larry Regan and Buddy Boone scored the Quebec goals within eight minutes of the start of the first period. Steve Black and George Pargeter evened the count.

Sid Finney scored the winning goal at 1:49 of the second period. Pargeter got his second goal of the night at 19:28 of the third period.

Marois was outstanding in the Quebec net, after replacing Jack Gelineau who played the first four games. At the other end, Bill Brennan came up with an almost equal number of brilliant saves to hold off the goal-hungry Aces.

Steeplechase Bosses Refuse To Ease Race

LONDON (AP)—Bosses of British steeplechase racing have rejected suggestions that the Grand National—Toughest steeplechase in the world—be made easier.

Four horses were killed in the race last March.

In Thursday's issue of the "Racing Calendar" the National Hunt Committee stewards who govern steeplechasing said they met Monday and failed to find any reason for altering conditions of the historic race run on Aintree course, Liverpool, every spring.

Four other countries were recognized by the IOC—Ethiopia, the Dominican Republic, Malaya and Costa Rica.

TRIED ARRANGE RACE

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) — Wes Santee, Kansas University's middle distance star, Thursday said he has attempted to get in touch with Roger Bannister of England, holder of the world mile record, to arrange a so-called "dream race." But the American doesn't appear optimistic about the chances for such a meeting.

Bannister last week turned in a 3:59.4 mile effort at Oxford. Santee is the American champion with a best clocking of 4:02.4.

"I've never reached Roger personally, but I've talked with persons close to him," Santee said at his home near here Thursday. "The persons I talked to seemed eager for such a race.

"The only drawback is that I have to go into the marines June 13 and will be mighty busy between now and then. The time schedule is against us and I know Roger has a lot of commitments just as I do."

CAHA Hears Plea For Return Of "Old-Style" Hockey

By DON MATHESON

VANCOUVER (CP) — With an "all-out" plan to win Canada the 1955 world hockey title in the books and with a thought for economy in mind, the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association wound up its 38th annual convention here Thursday night.

Other highlights of the five-day convention were a plea for the return of "old-style" hockey, a plan to compensate two junior clubs for delays in playoff schedules and approval of east-west junior transfers.

Canada's 1955 world tournament representatives will be essentially an all-star club.

One team will be chosen to form the "backbone" then member branches will look for players able to make the overseas trip who are of a calibre to bolster the team.

Delegates felt the result would be a club of such strength to be equal to any senior A team playing in Canada.

They decided that no team would be bodily picked from a league and sent overseas. Any such move would break up the team's league, they felt.

But nothing but the best would be the order for 1955. Once Canada recovered the championship, lost in 1954, consideration would be given to the value of representation in the tournament.

ASK RULE REINSTATED

They voted to ask the National Hockey League, under the CAHA-NHL agreement, to return to the old icing-the-puck rule.

Renewal would make players carry the puck over the blue line. It would bring back the art of stickhandling and passing.

Other rule changes to be discussed with the NHL include a minor penalty for players attempting to freeze the puck against the boards to obtain a faceoff.

Delegates said there was too much rough play in modern hockey and the rule changes were to combat the trend.

A match penalty for any player leaving the ice or players' and penalty boxes to mix with spectators was approved.

Also passed was a measure allowing limited transfer of junior and juvenile players from western to eastern Canada, or vice versa. All clubs are allowed two imports. One of these may be from across a line drawn through the Lakehead.

BASIS FOR RENEWAL

The move was to allow professional teams sponsoring junior clubs to move players under different coaching. It was regarded as basic to renewal of the CAHA-NHL agreement expiring in 1955.

Finances closed the meeting. Delegates voted to trim the 1955 budget drastically, to return as much money derived from playoffs to the member clubs as possible. Playoff gate totals were fading and the problem of finances was regarded as "serious."

The final move was to vote that "just compensation" for Edmonton Oil Kings and Quebec Frontenacs for playoff delays.

TeePees Three Games Ahead Crush Edmonton In 4-1 Win

By JIM PEACOCK

TORONTO (CP)—Only 60 minutes and a few more bruises are between St. Catharines TeePees and the Memorial Cup, confident Rudy Pilous, coach of the eastern junior hockey champions, says.

"We'll win Saturday night—we'll win it in four straight," Pilous chirped after his TeePees defeated Edmonton Oil Kings 4-1 Thursday night to go three games ahead in the best-of-seven final.

"And if we had some good officials, we'd fill the net," he added, after complaining loud and long about the "rough play, hooking and slashing that's been getting by out there."

Oil Kings were dejected after taking a third licking—they lost the first games 8-2 and 5-3—but coach Ken McAuley was conceding nothing.

OIL KINGS NEVER WORSE

"These eastern guys just don't realize my club hasn't played this bad all year," he said. "What do you expect after 16 days without a game while we waited for this series to start? The only way the East wins is by stalling the West."

Brian Cullen, 20-year-old professional prospect in this last junior year, was TeePees' big gun, scoring three goals and assisting on the fourth by Hugh Barlow, also 20.

Kinasewich was both hero and goat in the second session. He opened the scoring after stepping from the penalty box at centre ice to take Gord Strate's relay and skate in alone on rookie Reg Truax in the TeePee net. Minutes later, a holding penalty to Kinasewich opened the way for two goals by Brian Cullen. Cullen slapped his own rebound past Al Jacobson from a scramble and 66 seconds later skated behind the net to push the puck under the Oil King goalie.

Kings ran out of steam in the third period and Barlow slipped the puck in from a scramble after seven minutes. Cullen fired a blazing shot from 15 feet out when left alone in front to end the scoring.

ONLY 3,000 CUSTOMERS

Play was ragged almost throughout, and the meagre 3,030 fans found little to arouse their vocal chords. Eleven penalties were called, seven against TeePees, including a 10-minute misconduct to Hank Ciesla for sassing the officials.

Pilous was confident TeePees would bring St. Catharines its first cup title in 12 years of junior competition. A victory Saturday would make TeePees the sixth straight eastern winner and mark the 20th time in 36 years that the title has eluded the West. Port Arthur was the last western champion in 1948. Barrie Flyers won last year.

Pilous was also confident his club will suffer a good many more bruises before their 95th game of the season ends Saturday night.

"They're down now and they'll probably play it rough," he said.

McAuley was depressed and angry with CAHA officials over the two-week layoff between the western and Memorial Cup finals.

"If we'd met these guys right after our own playoffs, we'd have beaten them easily," he said.

"Comeback Kids" Tie Series; Down Sudbury 6-4

KELOWNA, B.C. (CP)—No matter what happens now, the Penticton V's of the 1953-54 season will go down in hockey history as the "Comeback Kids."

They swept into this flood-stricken town Thursday night, spotted Sudbury Wolves two goals and came on in the third period to win 6-4 and tie up the best-of-seven run to the Allan Cup at three games each.

This is the team that faced elimination right from the Allan Cup quarter-finals. They came from behind to force an eighth game for the inter-league playoff with the Western International League Nelson Maple Leafs. Then, after a tie-filled series they won the semi-final against Winnipeg Maroons, —also in the eighth game.

SATURDAY DOES IT

Saturday night in Penticton, however, there will be no chance of it going eight games—it will be sudden-death play with the battered symbol of senior amateur hockey might going to the winner.

Thursday night's escapade saw Yacker Flynn, Lennie Speck, Tatter McClellan and Andy Milne scoring for Wolves, with Jim Fairburn, Grant Warwick with two, Doug Kilburn and Jack McDonald doing the damage for V's.

For Wolves, it was a second missed opportunity to take the cup—they were ahead 5-2 Tuesday with only 15 minutes to go when V's rose up for three fast goals and won 6-5 in overtime.

Both teams started off fast and Speck scored for Sudbury with the game just under five minutes old. Fairburn tied it up less than two minutes later on a Grant Warwick pass.

Flynn continued the see-saw battle for Wolves, slashing in a pass from Speck and McClellan after Penticton failed to clear. Again, two minutes later, V's tied it up—this one the first of two unassisted goals by Grant Warwick.

Back came Wolves and McClellan pushed on in to end the first period scoring with Sudbury up 3-2.

LAST WOLVES GOAL

V's captain George McAvoy picked up a penalty for high-sticking at 6:23 of the second and Milne scored what proved to be Sudbury's last marker of the game and the only goal of the period.

All the Penticton players except the goalie were forwards when they came out in the third and at 2:16 the strategy paid off with Warwick's second lone-wolf effort, Brother Dick picked up Grant's pass at 12:02 and the game was deadlocked.

Both Warwicks teamed up with Kilburn for the winning goal, then came the one that tore the heart out of Sudbury.

McDonald, trying to clear from Penticton's zone, banked a shot into the boards midway up the ice. The puck caromed into the Sudbury net seconds after Wolves pulled goalie Al Millar. It happened with the game 17 seconds away from full time.

Six penalties were assessed, four going to V's. Over the distance Sudbury outshot Penticton—Millar handling 19 to 38 for McLelland—a two-to-one margin that wasn't good enough.

RICOCHET TRANCE — Don Mueller of the Giants was caught in this dilemma against the right field wall at the Polo Grounds trying to grab his hat and/or the ball. The drive by Wally Post of the Redlegs eluded him for two bases.

Plan $10,000,000 Program For Shipbuilding

OTTAWA (CP) — A $10,000,000 shipbuilding program and a $10,000,000 airport spending program for this fiscal year were outlined to the Commons Thursday by Transport Minister Chevrier.

Leading off debate on his annual estimates, Mr. Chevrier reviewed a wide range of projects, practically all of which have been previously announced from time to time.

In airport construction and maintenance, Mr. Chevrier said, increased emphasis is being placed on new terminal buildings.

RUNWAY DEVELOPMENT

There would be substantial continuing work on runway development, including alterations to accommodate TCA's new Vickers Viscount aircraft at Windsor and the Lakehead airport.

For the St. Lawrence seaway—now apparently nearing a start—Mr. Chevrier listed $820,000 to meet expenses of surveys and drilling.

(The government already has authority under 1951 legislation to advance money for actual construction work.)

FLYING BLACKSMITH—Bertram Turp, rear, ex-Royal Dragoons blacksmith, planned on seeing the presentation of a new pennant to his old regiment at Tidworth, England, but was delighted when Field Marshal Sir John Harding, Chief of the Imperial General Staff, asked him to accompany him to the ceremony in his helicopter.

Editors Of World Press Call For Defence Of Newspaper Freedom

VIENNA (Reuters)—Editors of the world press Thursday unanimously adopted a resolution calling for vigilance in defence of press freedom.

Their meeting—the annual assembly of the International Press Institute—already had heard members give examples of direct or indirect pressure by governments on newspapers.

Then a resolution was proposed by Dr. Urs Schwarz of the Neue Zuericher Zeitung, Zurich, Switzerland. It read in part:

"The leading editors of the free press, united in the International Press Institute, declared that the limitation of the freedom of the press at any time and anywhere paves the way to the establishment of the rule of despotism and injustice even where restrictions were imposed for worthy reasons.

WARN AUTHORITIES

"The assembly warns the authorities in all free countries against any attempts to undermine freedom of the press since they would destroy the basis of their own existence, freedom and justice.

"It calls on the press to defend its freedom with the greatest vigilance. It demands that its secretariat should report regularly any attempt, direct or indirect, to influence the freedom of the press."

Eljas Erkko, former Finnish foreign minister, now editor of the Helsingin Sanomat, was elected president of the executive board. Copenhagen was adopted as next year's meeting place.

Belgium Builds First Navy

BRUSSELS (Reuters)—Belgium is making strides toward having a standing navy for the first time in her history.

For more than a century, Parliament and public opinion have boycotted every effort to provide the country with an efficient naval force, for which two world wars have at last proved the necessity.

The Belgian Navy has just celebrated its eighth anniversary. It is still a small force, for so far only about one-third of the program has been completed.

At the end of last year, the navy comprised six ocean-going minesweepers, 10 coastal minesweepers, a 4,500-ton troop transport, a convoy escort frigate and a squadron of motor patrol boats on the Rhine.

In all, abut 60 vessels, mainly minesweepers, are envisaged. Eight coastal and 18 river minesweepers are to be built in Belgium this year, while nearly 30 more ships of the same type will be constructed by the end of 1956.

The United States is helping to build up the new navy by providing 28 coastal minesweepers, of which several have already arrived here.

Kiwanis Hold Club Version Of Music Festival

Because no one plays the mouth organ quite like Gordon Hancock, the Kiwanis club on Thursday awarded him an all-expense-paid bus trip, a set of fishing tackle, and a purse of money for travelling and other expenses.

The awards, president Bob Bastable felt, were particularly appropriate in view of the fishing season now under way and Mr. Hancock's angling enthusiasm. The bus ticket provides the winner with return transportation to Little Lake, the fishing equipment cost possibly a quarter, and the money he will have for his very own is one thin dime.

Mr. Hancock led a parade of talent at a "music festival" held at the club's regular meeting. Judges Dr. Harry Dunham and Mort Golumbia felt he clearly outdistanced his other musical rivals.

Also rending the ozone were two barber shop quartets. One was composed of Ben Collis, Ken Wilson, Jim Lillico and Mort Knox, while the second featured the dulcet tones of John Line, Dick Raine, Bill Hughes and Norman Armstrong.

t Earlier, Wiwanians heard a recorded greeting from the Kiwanis club of Ames, Iowa. This record marks U.S.-Canada goodwill week and is touring all Kiwanis clubs in this district. It has just come from Oshawa, and nex stop is in Lindsay.

Justice Reserves Decision On Appeal

OTTAWA (CP) — Mr. Justice J. H. G. Fateaux Thursday reserved judgment on a motion for leave to appeal the murder conviction of Lieut. Peter E. R. Balcombe to the Supreme Court of Canada.

Lieut. Balcombe was convicted of the murder of Marie Anne Carrier of Bienville, Que. He was sentenced to be hanged May 25.

J. M. P. Kelly, Balcombe's lawyer argued that the court which tried Balcombe had no jurisdiction to hear the murder charge.

Mr. Kelly said that the theory that Miss Carrier was fatally stabbed in Quebec province is as consistent with the facts of the case as the theory that she was killed in Ontario. Balcombe was tried in Cornwall before Chief Justice J. C. McRuer and an Ontario Supreme Court jury.

Mr. Kelly said that Chief Justice McRuer did not bring to the jury's attention that Miss Carrier might have been killed in Quebec, outside the Ontario court's jurisdiction.

He also argued that there was no proven motive for the killing and that Balcombe's trial was prejudiced by pre-trial publication of articles in United States magazines.

Ask Government Help To Keep Skilled Men

MIDLAND (CP) — Officials of the Huronia and Georgian bay development commission have asked William Robinson, Liberal member of Parliament for Simcoe East, to press for government action to keep a number of skilled personnel in Midland shipyard.

Plans announced earlier to use Midland as a distribution point for pig iron from the Algoma Steel Company mills at Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., have apparently hit a snag because trucking costs are higher than expected. The shipyard is facing a shutdowd.

Mr. Robinson said he would discuss the situation with Trade Minister Howe.

Comic Book Case Held To May 20

TORONTO (CP)—The case of a comic-book publisher, charged with printing magazines depicting the commission of crime, has been adjourned until May 20 when the conclusion of arguments on both sides will be heard.

William Zimmerman, president of Superior Publishers Limited, had unsuccessfully sought dismissal of the joint charges against him and his company.

Crown counsel Herbert Langdon said Wednesday crimes committed by ghouls, werewolves, zombies and other fictitious characters which "all can speak and reason" like human beings can have just as damaging an effect on the minds of children as crimes committed by "natural" persons.

Break Up Riot

SINGAPORE (Reuters)—Police charged with clubs Thursday to disperse about 900 Chinese students who staged the worst riots seen here for two years as a protest against being drafted by the British army.

Time To Clean Up Inside And Out MOH Suggests

The city's medical officer of health, Dr. J. P. Wells, has suggested that this would be a good time for people to clean up their back yards, waterfront properties and any other places where children normally play.

The passing of winter usually reveals an accumulation of pieces of glass and other debris that can be a hazard to children. One case was reported by a private practitioner of a small boy who gashed his foot on a broken bottle during his first visit to the beach.

Dr. Wells has also received complaints from a number of mothers that children with contagious diseases are running loose in public where they are apt to contaminate others. One mother was reported to have sent her children to the movies when they were dismissed from school because they had chickenpox.

Last month there were 150 cases of chickenpox reported in the city, as well as a number of cases of infectious jaundice, bacillary dysentery, mumps and measles. Under the Public Health Act, it is the responsibility of the householder to report cases of infectious diseases to the local medical officer of health.

In the old days, a household where there was a case of infectious disease, was quarantined. This is no longer required, but every attempt should be made to isolate the child having the disease from the other members of the family.

Dr. Wells admits that it's a big problem for a mother with a number of children to keep one of them in a separate room, especially during the balmy spring weather. But an attempt should be made, he advises.

Isolation also includes washing the patient's dishes separately from those of the rest of the family. This helps to prevent the disease spreading to other members of the family and eventually to the rest of the community.

For the honest-to-goodness facts on big-car value...

ask these questions:

Q Will you be charged extra for an automatic transmission?

A On most cars, yes—maybe as much as $200 extra! But on all Chrysler models, including the moderately priced Windsor De Luxe, the automatic transmission is standard equipment at no extra cost. What's more, Chrysler PowerFlite is the newest and finest of all fully-automatic transmissions.

Q Are you paying for a "big-car" name, but getting a "small-car" body?

A Many luxury cars include one or more models with "small-car" bodies. These bodies are either the same, or practically the same, in interior size as those of the smallest cars in the manufacturer's entire line!

The beautiful Chrysler Windsor De Luxe, on the other hand, is one of the biggest cars on the road. It measures more than seven feet (85") from instrument panel to back of rear seat—longer than any other Canadian car of comparable price! Check this point before you buy.

Q Are you getting the quality you should expect in a big car?

A In the luxurious Chrysler Windsor De Luxe, you'll find quality features such as foam rubber seat cushions in both front and rear, back-up lights, horn ring, wheel covers, oil-bath air cleaner, oil filter, etc. You'd be surprised at some of the cars in which many such items cost you extra.

For another quality test, tap your fingers against the Windsor roof lining and feel thick insulation all the way to the back seat where many manufacturers leave it out. And also notice the beautiful, long-wearing baked enamel body finish.

A Electric windshield wipers that never slow down under acceleration, Safety-Rim wheels that help prevent an accident in case of a blowout, rivetless Cyclebond brake linings and two hydraulic cylinders at each vital front wheel brake are safety features that every family man should insist upon. Make sure you get them.

Q How can you be sure of the smooth performance and the smooth ride that are the mark of a truly fine car?

A Only by getting behind the wheel, can you really appreciate the wonderfully smooth performance of the thrifty Windsor Spitfire engine, teamed with the new PowerFlite fully-automatic transmission. Only then can you appreciate the difference that a really long wheelbase, a big box-section frame, Oriflow shock absorbers and extra-long springs can make in riding comfort.

Compare the Chrysler ride with that of any other car. It will spoil you for anything less!

OPERATION HATCHING—These children at a Ft. Leavenworth, Kan., school may not become farmers, but they are interested in the hatching project of their teacher, Mrs. Opal Kendall. Industrialist On Death Bed Buys Canadian Real Estate To Escape Succession Duties

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Vancouver Sun said Thursday that an English industrialist, believing he was near death, converted a large part of his fortune into Canadian and American real estate property to escape crippling British succession duties.

The newspaper said in a news-page story that real estate men involved in the $1,000,000 deal would not divulge the name of the industrialist concerned but said the deal was completed "recently."

The newspaper gave this sequence of events:

The deal, one of the largest in the city's history, was touched off when Stan Smith, assistant manager of the Royal Trust Company and now chairman of the British Empire Games, received instructions to buy up $1,000,000 worth of real estate within four hours.

Three real estate firms and a battery of lawyers and salesmen were put to work.

Telephone wires crackled to Arizona while another salesman sped 200 miles into the interior to return that evening with titles and deeds to other property.

HIGH DEATH DUTIES

Under British taxation laws, the estate would have been liable to duties of between 80 and 90 per cent when the industrialist died, as all monies would be taken to England.

The Canadian property purchased would have been liable only to Canadian death duties of about 40 per cent.

Within four hours, sales were closed on four commercial properties and three apartment houses worth $1,000,000. Commissions amounted to about $40,000.

And then the industrialist arose from his deathbed and bought another $400,000 worth of Vancouver property. He is, by the way, still alive.

"STUBBORN AS A MULE"—They're burros, not mules, but the family trait is the same. Buttercup, left, and her son, Sunflower, stopped dead in the centre of the Concord Turnpike in Lincoln, Mass., while traffic piled up behind them. Owners Warren Carstenson and his wife respectively pulled and pushed, to no avail. Snafu was eased when a farmer trotted out a pony, which the burrows willingly followed across the road. Traffic was tied up for 45 minutes

Poor Planning Aggravates Sewage Problem

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Lack of foresight and proper urban planning brought the discharge of "raw" sewage into rivers and also restrictions of water consumption, the Western Ontario Water Works' Conference was told Thursday.

Hugh Lamb of the London Planning board and western Ontario construction supervisor for the Veterans Land Act, told the 110 delegates that persons with the necessary foresight "unfortunately" were not heeded.

"Disorganized decentralization is becoming an increasing nuisance for rural and city authorities alike," he said. "Yet, this decentralization directed by proper planning can produce a wholly desirable integration."

The conference accepted Windsor's invitation for the next general meeting and election of officers Nov. 12.

Delegates came from Elgin, Essex, Huron, Kent, Lambton, Oxford, Middlesex and Perth counties.

National Health Service In Britain Now Settling Down To More Peaceful Existence

By BRUCE RUSSELL

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain's national health service, which had a stormy beginning five years ago, now has settled down to a more or less peaceful existence.

The controversies which it at first aroused have died down. Even those who were bitterest opponents now accept as a fact that the conception of free, or almost free, medical attention for everyone from duke to street clearner is here to stay.

Three classes of people still grumble about the service:

Dentists complain that they have to work too long and too hard for insufficient rewards under the scheme;

Labor party politicians are angry because the Conservative government introduced some charges to the public instead of keeping the service entirely free; and Economic experts watch with anxiety as the cost of the services increases year by year.

During the present financial year, the cost may rise for the first time over the £500,000,000 mark.

DEDUCTED FROM WAGES

The sum he is likely to think about is the 10 pence a week automatically deducted from his wages to help finance the scheme. He probably decides that he is getting a good bargain.

Once he has registered with a local doctor, he and his family can get all the medical treatment they need for nothing. If the doctor decides to send him to a hospital or to see a specialist, that will be free, too.

Medicines supplied by the druggist on the doctor's prescription cost the patient the nominal sum of one shilling.

If his teeth are giving him trouble, he is expected to pay only up to the first £1 of the dentist's bill. False teeth are supplied at half price. Spectacles from the optician are also provided at half price.

Free pre-natal services are provided for his wife and the baby will be delivered without cost.

PAID THROUGH TAXES

But he is paying another share of his health bill every time he purchases heavily-taxed cigarets, drinks a glass of beer, or buys his wife a washing machine with a high purchase tax.

The first five years of the national health scheme cost the nation £1,667,000,000.

In these five years, 42,000,000 people registered with doctors. Dentists gave 43,000,000 treatments. Sixteen million patients passed through the hospitals and 156,000,000 visits were made to out-patient departments. More than 10,000,000 sets of false teeth were issued, 28,000,000 pairs of spectacles, and 305,000 hearing aids.

The British Medical Association has maintained a wary and constant watch over the service. The association worried at first that there might be government interference with the professional freedom of the doctor. That has not happened.

Moreover, few doctors have suffered a drop in income under the scheme. A general practitioner, treating the maximum of 3,500 patients allowed under the National Health Act, clears about £2,200 ($6,160) a year after paying income tax and expenses.

This is more than many doctors made before the service was introduced.

NO ONE "NOSE" WHAT'LL HAPPEN — Comedian Jimmy Durante walks into a lion's cage to rehearse for a television program in which he's scheduled to appear as a lion tamer. Whether he'd appear with the lion on the program was problematical as a Hollywood, Calif., insurance company has refused to accept the risk.

Tactics Rough in Army Row McCarthy Future at Stake

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP)—Ugly. It's probably the best word to describe what to expect now in the Senate hearing on Senator McCarthy's row with U.S. Army officials.

McCarthy has tried to minimize the importance of the hearing, calling it a burlesque and a circus. Now that it's due to go on to the bitter end his political life may be at stake.

Army Secretary Robert Stevens was willing to put his public career on the block. He refused to agree to shorten the hearing by letting the whole business disappear from public view once McCarthy had testified.

He took the position that not only McCarthy but the senators' two aides in the case, Roy M. Cohn and Francis P. Carr, should have to face the same kind of cross-examination he did. Stevens was a witness for 14 days.

SAME ON STEVEN' SIDE

This meant of course the same treatment for the other two principals on his side of the case, army counsel John G. Adams and H. Struve Hensel, assistant secretary of defence.

More and more as the days passed, McCarthy has been acting like a man who thought he was surrounded by enemies.

He accused two of the senators —Democrats Symington of Missouri and Jackson of Washington —of trying to obstruct his hunt for Communists.

He turned on a fellow-Republican on the committee, a man he himself had nominated, Senator Dworshak of Idaho, and told him he was sorry he had chosen him.

BELITTLED SECRETARY

He repeatedly insinuated Stevens was lying and belittled the secretary's intelligence. Twice he accused Joseph N. Welch, counsel to Stevens and Adams, of breaking agreements which Welch said never existed.

And he tried to humiliate Hensel, who hadn't said a word, by suggesting that army officers sitting near him were lending him a dignity he didn't deserve and should move away.

His tactics have become rougher as the days pass. If he has reached this point while the cards were still all in his hands, what's his mood going to be when he and Cohn and Carr have to stand up, maybe for weeks, under army cross-examination?

Old Railway Dispute Hampers Hamilton

TORONTO (CP) — A dispute with the railways years ago may prevent Hamilton from becoming another metropolitan Toronto when the St. Lawrence seaway brings ocean shipping to inland waters, officials of the metropolitan government's planning department said Thursday.

While metropolitan Toronto is expected to gain stature as a commercial shipping centre of the western world, Hamilton will lose out because of the railway conflict, they said.

Hamilton refused to give the railways certain right-of-ways in its early days of development as a city while Toronto did and became an important rail centre.

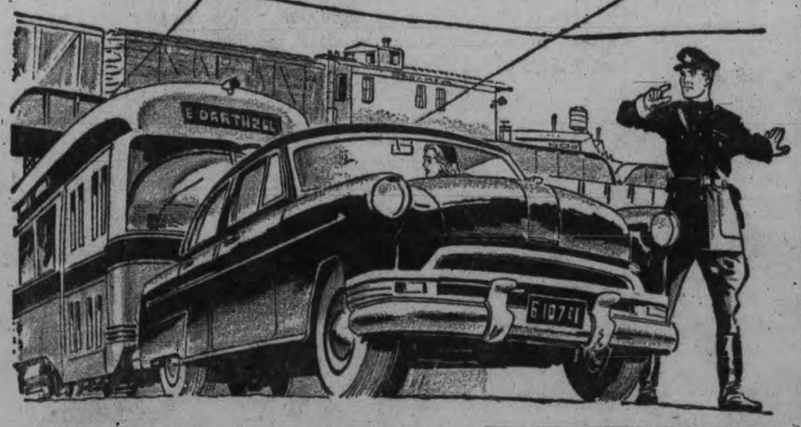
HOW TO PREVENT BACK CRAWL IN HEAVY TRAFFIC



If stopped for more than a few seconds, pull on hand brake.

- Shift into first gear, press accelerator and let up on clutch as in normal starting.
- Release hand brake as you let up on clutch. This transfers force smoothly from brakes to engine without interruption.
- If you are stopping for only an instant, use clutch to brake your car. Shift into first gear, let clutch out partly and press accelerator slightly.

DIGNITY THEY LEARNED from wartime hardships is exhibited by Korean Children's Choir members as they accept a gift from a crippled child at N.Y. Institute of Physical Medicine.

Choir Of Korean Youngsters Capturing Hearts Of People

NEW YORK—(NEA)—In Korean, "bongsunwha" means balsam flower. It is also the name of the Korean Children's Choir, a group of young balsam flowers which is fast capturing the United States.

The choir's 22 little girls and three boys, whose ages range from six to 13, already have invaded the White House to sing for President and Mrs. Eisenhower.

They stole the show on their first network television appearance.

And when they appeared at a New York luncheon club of editors, writers and other personalities accustomed to more sophisticated entertainment, they left many a spectator wiping damp eyes after songs like "Jingle Bells" and "Twinkle, Twinkle Little Star," sung in both Korean and English.

Now they're on the road touring 550 major U.S. cities to help campaign for $10,000,000 for the rehabilitation of their homeland.

They will appear on radio and TV and hold impromptu concerts in bus stations, on city hall steps, and in public squares.

The choir was organized by two voluntary secreatries of the YM CA in Seoul ,Ahn Byoung Won and Kwon Gil Sang, who are with them on the tour.

When the Reds invaded South Korea, some of the youngsters were killed or lost. The rest were hustled of to Pusan, and later placed in custody of the Korean Navy, which still takes care of them. They were favorites with GI audiences.

Says Comdr. Dal Bin Chung, Chief of Chaplains of the Korean Navy:

"They have a wonderful dignity. It's because they've seen so much war, hunger, unhappiness and poverty. They rarely cry or fret."

Chinese Show Might

GENEVA (Reuters)—Communist China Thursday showed her armed might to the Western world — on celluloid. Some 500 reporters crowded into a small Geneva theatre to watch tens of thousands of goose-stepping Chinese troops, hundreds of rumbling Stalin tanks and jet fighters in a color movie shown for the first time in the West.

Douglas Le Pan, who won the poetry award is a counsellor at the Canadian embassy in Washington. He was born in Toronto and is an honors graduate of University of Toronto Schools and the University of Toronto.

During the Second World War he was Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton's personal adviser on education. He served throughout the Italian campaign with the 1st Field Regiment, R.C.H.A. His experiences there are what he recalls in "The Net and the Sword."

After the war Mr. Le Pan joined the department of external affairs and was for some time first secretary at Canada House in London. His first volume of poetry, "The Wounded Prince" appeared in 1948.

John F. Hayes, winner of the 1953 juvenile award also won the 1951 award with "A Land Divided."

Born at Dryden, Ont., 49 years ago, he worked at many jobs and in 1923 came to Toronto to enter the publishing business as a copy and layout man. His rise in the publishing field was rapid, and he is today vice-president and general manager of the Southam Press, Montreal, and director of the Southam Company Ltd.

Mr. Hayes began writing fiction in his spare time. "Rebels Ride at Night" is the fourth of his books to be published.

British Editor Builds Up Self-Portrait Of Churchill

By FRASER WIGHTON

LONDON (Reuters)—A British editor has built up a self-portrait of Sir Winston Churchill based on his most telling speeches, maxims and pronouncements.

There are more than 1,200 quotations in this pattern of words, which ranges over most of the prime minister's long career. The chirpings of the fledgling Churchill jostle for position with the wartime leader's historic exhortations to the British people. His character is reflected in its sombre and gay sides, its alternating pugnacity and humility, and its inexhaustible variety.

The book "Sir Winston Churchill—a Self-Protrait" (Eyre and Spottiswoode, London) was compiled by Colin R. Coote, editor of the London Daily Telegraph, with the approval of the prime minister.

Appropriately, it quotes in the first few pages a remark which Churchill made to Parliament nine years ago:

"I have no intention of passing my remaining years in explaining or withdrawing anything I have said in the past, still less apologizing for it."

READILY ACCEPTED TASKS

A chapter devoted to the prime minister "on himself" is studded with examples of acute self-analysis.

For example: "Looking back with after-knowledge and increasing years, I seem to have been too ready to undertake tasks which were hazardous or even forlorn."

"I have a tendency — against which I should, perhaps, be on my guard — to swim against the stream," he admitted when accepting the leadership of the Conservative party in 1940.

A random dip into the self-portrait yields philosophies on subjects ranging from drink to daring, love to hate, valor to cowardice.

"Courage is rightly esteemed the first of human qualities . . . because it is the quality which guarantees all others," Churchill said in his book "Great Contemporaries."

NOT A GOOD HATER

"Hate is a bad guide. I have never considered myself at all a good hater," he told the House of Commons some years ago.

His philosophy on drinking was compressed in a sentence of his book "My Early Life," in which he said: "I have been brought up and trained to have the utmost contempt for people who get drunk."

But when, at luncheon one day, he asked his doctor, Lord Moran, whether he could have a cointreau, and Lord Moran inquired whether he "wanted it or needed it," the prime minister could not resist this quip:

"I neither want it nor need it. But I should think it pretty hazardous to interfere with the inveradicable habit of a lifetime."

The Sir Galahad and the wag alternate in his reference to women: "It is hard, if not impossible, to snub a beautiful woman. They remain beautiful and the rebuke recoils," he said in his novel, "Savrola."

When, two years ago, an American feminist asked him what the role of women should be in the future, he beamingly replied:

"The same, I trust, as it has been since the days of Adam and Eve!"

SCIENCE TAKES KNOCKS

Science has taken some knocks from the prime minister. He once wrote: "Science buries its insulated head in the filth of slaughterous inventions."

On idealism, he says in his war memoirs: "The human race cannot make progress without idealism, but idealism at other people's expense, and without regard to the ruin and slaughter which fall upon millions of humble homes, cannot be regarded as its highest or noblest form."

On personal habits, he describes unpunctuality as "vile."

And this is his recipe—included in his war memoirs—for ordering one's day:

"When one wakes up after daylight one should breakfast; five hours after that, luncheon. Six hours after luncheon, dinner. Thus one becomes independent of the sun, which otherwise meddles too much in one's affairs and upsets the routine of work."

IS THE MAKER PREPARED?

Of death, he told friends on his 75th birthday four years ago: "I am ready to meet my maker. Whether my maker is prepared for the great ordeal of meeting me is another matter."

Acknowledged "grand master" of the English language, he has said these things about it:

"Personally, I like short words and vulgar fractions. . . ."

In a preface, author Coote says Churchill's claim to greatness is "that he has achieved a towering eminence in spite of a usually preponderating and always latent unpopularity."

SELDOM SHOWED DISPAIR

"Only twice, I think, in his career has any cry of despair escaped from him. The first was when he was hounded from office after the Gallipoli failure; the second was when he heard of Mr. Anthony Eden's resignation (from the post of foreign secretary) in 1937.

"The first was wrung from him by blatant injustice, not so much towards the one fertile strategic idea which emerged from the First World War. The second was prompted by the knowledge that Mr. Eden was the only prominent member of the Chamberlain government who shared and strove for his conception of the German danger."

MP Says Canada Needs To Keep Merchant Marine

OTTAWA (CP) — A Progressive Conservative spokesman says Canada should maintain the nucleus of a merchant marine, built around modern, fast cargo ships, even if it requires government aid.

Howard Green (PC—Vancouver-Quadra) said in the Commons Thursday night that Canada's deep sea merchant marine is disappearing. He urged the government to take another look at its shipping policy.

"Even Switzerland has a merchant marine, and it's going to be bigger than the Canadian merchant navy by the end of June."

The merchant marine was the main topic as the House studied transport department estimates.

The fleet has been dwindling since the government allowed shipowners to transfer their vessels to British registry to benefit from lower operating costs. By the end of next June, there will be only 21 deep-sea ships under the Canadian flag, compared with 147 in 1947.

Mr. Green said that of the remaining 21 ships, only 14 are in the deep-sea trade and there were rumors that eight, owned by Canadian National Steamships, would be sold. Seven other vessels were in the coastal trade.

SUGGESTS SUBSIDY

The Vancouver member, a consistent advocate of a Canadian-flag merchant fleet, suggested a subsidy of $100,000 a year for each vessel.

He criticized the government's stand that in wartime it could get back 90 ships which had transferred to British registry. If Canada counted on a ship pool under the North Atlantic Treaty Organization in another war, she would have a weak voice with only the 90 ships, all of which were old.

If a merchant navy were regarded as a wartime necessity, he asked, "what's the use of building a big escort navy when we haven't got any ships to escort?"

Last year, Germany and Japan ranked behind the United Kingdom in ship-building and even Switzerland, an inland country, was building a merchant fleet to protect her interests in time of war.

Canada relied on trade more than any other country and needed her own fleet to protect it against whims of other countries. There was also the necessity of maintaining Canadian shipyards.

Keene WA Meets

KEENE (ENS)—The Women's Association of the United church held their monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. Fred Hall, who was acting hostess for her mother, Mrs. Coward. All 17 members were present.

The theme of the meeting was the influence of the home on the family. Mrs. H. Wright gave the lesson thoughts and Mrs. R. Adamson read the scripture. Mrs. H. McFarlane led in prayer.

A vote of appreciation was given to the social committee for all their good work; it was decided to loan the church dishes to the Women's Institute, should they have need of them, and it was agreed to purchase twelve dozen bread and butter plates to add to the dishes already in the church kitchen.

Mrs. S. Comrie and Miss Plunkett gave readings, and Mrs. H. McFarlane played a piano solo. Mrs. Hall and her daughter Mary, served delicious refreshments.

THREE TEACHERS RESIGN

Resignations of three teachers from the board of education staff were read Thursday night at the May meeting of the board. Miss Phyllis Moore, primary supervisor, is leaving to join the staff of the Peterborough Teachers' college. Also resigning are Mrs. Joan Armstrong and Mrs. Elizabeth Shearer of the public school staff.

Charles Ray Resigns As Chairman

Says Same Person Should Head 2 Centre Committees

For the purpose of eventually electing a permanent chairman, the general committee of the Memorial Community Centre appointed a nominating committee of five members Thursday night at the city hall.

They are: Don Loucks, Claire Stuart, Alf Barber, C. H. Crowe and Ald. Stan McBride. It was suggested that the committee might be in a position to report within a week.

Charles J. Ray acted as temporary chairman of the meeting. Incidental reference was made to the recent resignation of Don A. McGillis, the original chairman. As to reason for his action, Mrs. W. E. Fanning said: "The only thing this committee or the executive has to work on is the letter of resignation from Mr. McGillis. In that letter there is no word as to why he resigned. All that we might know about that is what has been published in the press."

Al E. Adams emphasized that the general chairman was an ex-officio member of all committees and entitled to attend them.

As chairman of the executive committee, Mr. Ray said it was found to be a difficulty that the chairman of the general committee was not also chairman of the executive.

"For that reason I wish to resign from the chair of the executive committee," Mr. Ray said. He remarked that the dual chairmanship should be automatic as it appeared to be in all respects the only fair way. "I shall be glad to act as chairman temporarily, until the chairman of the general committee is appointed, and he would become automatically chairman of the executive."

REPORTS TO SECRETARY

E. A. Outram said that all the reports and information reaching the site committee were forwarded to the secretary, the course that was commonly followed. "That is the place where such reports should go, and thereby be open and available to all the members."

Myer Cherney suggested that the meeting should proceed with the business on the agenda. "We could spend the whole evening and get nowhere, instead of making some progress with what we know we have to do."

Bud Labranche stressed the fact that the first general chairman was chosen by the general committee, and it should proceed to appoint a nominating committee, instead of leaving it to any one member to propose names from which a choice and election could be made. It had been suggested that Mr. Ray might take a few days to think about the vacancy and bring in some recommendations for succession.

The nominating committee was approved by the meeting. As to parking space, Mr. Ray advised that it should not be entangled with the question of site.

The site committee's recommendation that the Centre be built at the northeast corner of Morrow Park was endorsed in a motion by Alf Barber and Bud Labrance.

It transpired that additional parking space may not be available within the frontage property of Peterborough-Brinton Carpet Co. The members declined to delve into the matter for the present, and were content with the primary question of the site.

Johnny Russelle enquired whether the broad property of the Children's Shelter could be considered. Mr. Outram said it was entirely a responsibility of the Children's Aid Society.

"The Shelter could get considerable revenue from parking," Mr. Russelle commented.

The committee accepted the resignation of E. V. O'Toole who wrote that its membership was already unwieldly in its number.

City's Industries To Be Visited By General Nye

The first United Kingdom High Commissioner to Canada ever to visit Peterborough, Lieut.-Gen. Sir Archibald Nye will spend two days visiting three of the city's principal industries next week.

Due to arrive in the city by train late Monday night, Sir Archibald will tour the CGE works Tuesday morning, the Outboard Marine and Manufacturing Co. in the afternoon and the Canadian Nashua Paper Co. Wednesday morning before returning to Ottawa.

At noon on Tuesday, His Excellency will be the guest of honor of city council for luncheon at the Kawartha Golf and Country Club. A civic reception will be held at city hall from 4.30 to 5.30 p.m., to which representatives of various civic organizations and industries have been invited.

TO ADDRESS INSTITUTE

On Tuesday evening, the high commissioner will be guest speaker at the dinner of the United Services Institute.

Born in Dublin April 23, 1895, the son of a soldier, Sir Archibald ultimately rose from the rank of army private to that of Lieutenant-General and a senior United Kingdom High Commissioner.

As a boy, he attended the Duke of York's Military School at Dover, which is reserved for the sons of non-commissioned soldiers. At the age of 18, he left school to enlist in the ranks of the famous Irish regiment, the Leinsters.

In 1915, he was made a second lieutenant, being commissioned in his own regiment in the field and remaining as an officer. He was wounded and won the Military Cross.

Following the First World War, he devoted particular attention to the then new technique of ground and air co-operation and, from 1926 to 1928, he was GSO3 for Air Co-operation at Aldershot, England. The following years were spent with Eastern Command, at the War Office (1931-32 and 1936-37) and at the staff college (1932-35).

Mrs. Jas. Wharry Re-elected President Of Children's Aid

Social welfare is a partnership between governments and the people, and within the community between laymen and professionals, Mrs. James G. Wharry told the 60th annual meeting of the Peterborough Children's Aid Society at the YWCA Thursday night. Mrs. Wharry was unanimously re-elected to a second term as president.

Foster-parents and adopting parents, members of the Children's Aid Society board, professional workers and citizens of Peterborough are the four cornerstones of successful community relations, said Mrs. Wharry. Each must work in co-operation with the other three if the needs and interests of children are to be protected adequately.

Thursday's meeting was focussed on foster and adopting parents, many of whom were in the audience, and it was to these that Mrs. Wharry directed many of her remarks. The society is "proud of the tremendous contribution" of foster and adopting parents who realize that taking a child into their homes is "not a hasty decision or one to be lightly regarded."

It is the members of the board of directors who make final decisions as to policy, and for budgeting for funds, and Mrs. Wharry paused to pay tribute to these. Also on the executive slate for 1954-55 with Mrs. Wharry are vice-president M. Norman Crook, secretary J. E. R. Munro and treasurer J. Blake Bell.

Key person on the professional staff, said Mrs. Wharry, is the superintendent "who can make or break a society." She felt the Peterborough organization was particularly fortunate in having Miss Rachael A. D. Young as superintendent, assisted by a corps of competent social workers and office staff.

But vital as these elements are, none could function "without the generosity of doctors, dentists, teachers, merchants, clergy, other welfare groups, sewing groups, the press, the provincial welfare department" and all those citizens who subscribe to the community fund and otherwise help to keep the society functioning.

Miss Veronica Franck, field supervisor, brought the best wishes of the provincial department of public welfare.

Turning to a review of 1953, Mrs. Wharry noted several significant changes affecting the work of the local group. The department of public welfare has established an office in Peterborough under Fred McNeeley. The Ontario Society for Crippled Children has also recently opened an office here with Miss Marion Rudd as district nurse.

PSYCHIATRIC SERVICES

"Long-needed psychiatric services" have been established at the Civic Hospital. Director of the hospital's new mental health clinic is Dr. John S. Pratten, who was chief speaker at Thursday's annual meeting.

Within the society, 1953 saw the death of Miss Muriel Morrison, who for many years was the only member of the society's clerical staff. Miss Dorothy Metcalfe, Mrs. Isabel Murray and Mrs. Gina McKenzie left during the year, but were replaced by five new girls, thus bringing the complement of workers to full strength.

New appointments to the society staff recently are Miss Jean DeNure, Miss Mary Bark, Miss Elaine Kimber and Miss Kathryn Carnegie.

Mrs. Wharry also paid tribute to the work of various committees of the board of directors. Singled out for praise was Mrs. Keith Lech's sewing group, which mended 1,582 articles and made 114 new ones. Mention was also made of Norman Crook's personnel committee, which hired new staff members, and of the house and property committe s headed by Mrs. M. J. Swanstor and Fred Ash.

Five members left the board with the close of this business year, while W. B. Gordon resigned earlier and was replaced by Hugh Waddell. Tribute was paid by Mrs. Wharry to these five—Douglas Vaisey, Peter Moore, Mrs. Ernest Trueman, Archdeacon W. P. Robertson, and Mrs. Paul Irwin.

Summer Theatre Offers To Install Cooling Unit

The board of education are considering a new proposal from Michael Sadlier, manager of the Peterborough Summer Theatre, that would permit the installing of an air cooling unit for Queen Mary school auditorium.

Mr. Sadlier now proposes that the summer theatre should pay the full cost of the unit (about $3,500) and it would only be used by the summer theatre group. The mobile unit would be disconnected between seasons.

Previously the board had turned down an offer to go halves on the cost of the unit, with the inducement that the board would eventually own it. The trustees decided they didn't want it; they had no use for it.

The cooler would be installed in the basement and would cool the air in the fan room which would then be circulated through the auditorium's ventilating system.

Purpose of the unit, Mr. Sadlier said, was to allow summer theatre audiences to see the plays in comfort during the hot spell. He outlined his newest plan Thursday night at the May meeting of the board.

"If you're operating close to the line this expenditure would hardly be worth while, would it?" asked Ernest McWilliam.

Mr. Sadlier said he had given the matter a lot of thought. True, the unit wouldn't be paid off in a single season but it would make a 20 per cent difference in attendance, he estimated.

In a discussion at the general business session the board decided to invite Mr. Sadlier to bring a technical adviser along to a meeting of the property committee to explain the unit's operation.

Woman Hurt As Cars Collide

A 30-year-old Peterborough woman suffered slight head injuries in a motor-collision at the CPR tracks, George St., on Thursday. She was Mrs. Edward Whatman, 8 Wallace St., passenger in a car being driven by Wilfred Whatman.

Driver of the other vehicle involved was Allan R. Williams, 46 Ware St. His panel truck sustained about $200 damage, while damage to the Whatman car was estimated at $250.

Constable W. A. Scott investigated.

City Workers Seek Solution To Unemployment

The United States, with 3,671,000 workers reported unemployed, is attempting to "export its depression" by cutting down production in Canadian subsidiaries and increasing exports of manufactured products to Canada, it was charged at a public meeting on unemployment in the Legion Hall Thursday night. Almost 150 people attended.

George Wallace of Local 524, United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America (Indep.) said he had been told by Michael Starr, Oshawa MP, that the General Motors Corporation was increasing the supply of parts from the United States to its Oshawa plant, which would gradually become a mere assembly plant.

The Page-Hershey Co. had dropped plans to establish a mill for the manufacture of metal tubing in Welland, Mr. Walace said.

"I suggest the Canadian government has a responsibility to see that this type of thing is stopped." Mr. Wallace said. He admitted that there was not a great deal of unemployment at the CGE, where he worked, but 200 people had been laid off, "and for them it's a real depression."

Another speaker charged that the production of refrigerators at CGE had been cut down, while imports of refrigerators from the United States had been stepped up.

ON SHORT TIME

William Triggs of Local 293, United Packinghouse Workers of America, said workers at the Quaker Oats Co. were on short time and some had been laid off. While last year's wheat crop had not been all sold, the Quaker Oats flour mill was not working to capacity.

Mr. Triggs suggested Canada's policy shoulyd be "trade plus aid" and recommended increase in foreign trade as well as increased assistance to Southeast Asia under the Colombo plan.

Harry Gordon said in the past two weeks 15 of between 150 and 160 employees of the Peterborough Lock Co. had been laid off some of them with seniority dating back to 1947. He suggested they would not be unemployed if there were an adequate housing program and increased foreign trade.

Cold water was thrown on the suggestion that Canada should cut down on imports by raising tariffs by Peter McCombe of Local 238, International Typographical Union, who also criticized a proposal to initiate a "Buy Canadian" program.

"If we just buy Canadian goods, who's going to buy our wheat?" Mr. McCombe asked. "Unemployment in other countries is our problem, too, whether it's the industrial worker in Europe, the low-paid Chinese coolie, or the Stakhanovite worker in Russia. It's one world. We should press the United Nations to study the whole problem of unemployment at the international level and see if something can't be done along that line.'"

IMMIGRATION

Another problem that aroused differences of opinion was the government's immigration policy. Henry Nokes of the Firefighters' Association, who acted as chairman, said the Trades and Labor Congress of Caanda had asked for a "temporary halt" to immigration, but other speakers suggested the country still needed immigrants in certain professional groups, such as doctors.

Several speakers who had emigrated from the Old Country condemned the immigration department's policy of "selling a bill of goods" to prospective settlers.

George Wallace finally settled the differences by phrasing a recommendation to the government to adopt an immigration policy "consistent with the present employment situation in Canada, and that immigrants be given a true picture of conditions in the country before coming to Canada."

In answer to a telegram to Labor Minister Gregg from the previous unemployment meeting, Mr. Gregg replied, in a letter read at Thursday night's meeting, that an extension of Unemployment Insurance benefits would necessitate a revision of the Unemployment Insurance Act and might involve a change in the actuarial provisions under which the fund operates. The act was undergoing special study by the Unemployment Insurance commission, Mr. Gregg said.

County Farm Notes

Grain in Storage Still an Asset in Saskatchewan.... Millbrook Spring Fair Wed., June 9.... Turkey Broilers Extend Their Market....20 Year Old Angus Cow an Auction Novelty....Junior Farmers Coming From Britain.

The Ottawa report of a 14% decrease in the Saskatchewan net farm income in 1953 is not so grim as appears, according to L. J. Suttie and Alex Gilliland, managers of the Searle Grain Co. and the northern Wheat Pool respectively.

The decrease was from the peak of 1952, and obviously records could not be broken every year. Mr. Suttie recalled that most of the 1952 crop was delivered that year, and in 1953 the elevators became plugged. Consequently deliveries dropped off. In those conditions grain farmers were bound to take a decline in income. However, the large stocks of grain held by farmers was potential income for either this year or in 1955.

Mr. Gilliland said there was undoubtedly a scarcity of cash among Saskatchewan farmers due to curtailed deliveries and the fact that an interim payment had not been made to date on the 1953 crop.

The interim payment for the 1952 crop was paid in October that year at 12c a bushel. It boosted the 1952 income, and the lack of an interim payment in 1953 lessened the income from that year, contributing to the 14% decrease, he said.

The grain now held in store on farms would be a "Godsend to the province", Mr. Gilliland said, if there was a near crop failure this season or in 1955.

Seeding has been widely retarded in the prairie provinces, and a late report indicated that a week or more of sunshine would be required to dry out the land for operations.

Juniors From Britain

Four Junior Farmers of England and Wales who arrive in Canada May 28 for a two months study of agricultural organization and practices in Ontario, will live on farms in various sections of the province.

They are: Roger D. Cox, Manor House, Ilchester, Somerset; John Hidderley, Marston Hall Farm, Wolston, near Coventry, Warwickshire; Jean H. Davies, The Cottage Farm, Evenjobb, Presteigne, Radnorshire; Daphne P. Yates, The Rise, Walton on the Hill, Stafford. They are representatives of the National Federation of Young Farmers' Clubs of England Wales, and will be guests of the Ontario Department of Agriculture and the Junior Farmers' Association.

100-Acre Farm Only In Grass

Remember Albert Seiling of Elmira, speaker at a poultry producers's meeting here a few years ago? This brief story relates to his farm:

"A new pole barn 45 ft. x 60 ft. has recently been erected at a cost of $2,300. The south side of the barn is open. It acommodates approximately 50 cows running loose. About 200 ft. south of the barn there is a pit silo 11 ft. wide at the bottom, 15 ft. at the top, and about 100 ft. long. This pit is designed to hold 200 tons of grass silage.

"A barrier was placed across the silo, with openings through which the cows help themselves to the silage, and, when satisfied, return to the pole barn for baled hay. The cows are being fed a mineral supplement, but no grain and were in grand breeding condition.

"One man is looking after the herd of 60 head (Aberdeen-Angus), brood cows and young cattle, and fitting the show cattle.

"Mr. Seiling is enthusiastic about grass farming. He plans to seed the 100-acre farm entirely to grass, and believes he can so operate that he will have sufficient pasture in summer, and grass silage and hay for winter feed to care for 100 Angus.

"He is firmly convinced that this method of operation will reduce labor and machinery, and make for the most economical and profitable animal husbandry. Certainly the layout of a pole barn and cafeteria-style pit silo looks like a sound and sensible way to care for a herd of beef cattle."

Albert Seiling told his Peterborough audience the story of how he began his poultry operations with a couple of hatching hens in a spare bedroom. He is today one of the leading poultry producers in the country, is self-taught in genetics, developed a herd of Holsteins, and is in beef cattle, too.

ECONOMICAL LAYOUT

This article from the April letter of the Canadian Meat Packers' Council, continues, only in part: "A traditional barn housing fifty cows would cost today several times the $2,300 figure mentioned above. The very low capital cost of under $50 per animal house, would provide economical housing even for a commercial beef herd. In this case it is being used for a top herd of registered cattle.

"Used in conjunction with a 'help yourself' horizontal silo and with a tractor manure loader used for cleaning once or twice a year, it is quite apparent that Mr. Seiling's pole barn layout can be operated with a minimum of labor during the winter feeding season. Tying in, as it does, with his grass farming program, it should be a real cost cutter."

New Booklet On Soybeans

Varieties of soybeans recommended for the counties comprising zone 4 in a map prepared by the Ontario Department of Agriculture are: late, Mandarin, Capital and Hardome; medium Flambeau and Capital; early, pagoda and acme.

The southern townships of Durham and Northumberland are shown in zone 3, and the northern townships in Zone 4.

This information is quoted from a new booklet issued by the Department entitled: 'Soybeans as a cash crop. Copies may be obtained at the office of F. C. Paterson, agricultural representative.

"Soybeans should be planted about the same time as corn. Experiments at Guelph and Ottawa show that the yield of soybeans planted from May 14 to June 1 is practically the same. The Dominion experimental station at Harrow, Ont., emphasizes the ned for warm soil and adequate moisture at planting time. In this area, the last two weeks of May and the first week of June are recommended as the best planting time. These dates will vary according to location in southern Ontario, but the range will be approximately the same. The earlier the planting, the earlier the crop will mature.

4-H Club Activity

Only one of its 28 4-H Club boys missed the tractor club session on Wednesday night at the office of the Department of Agriculture. Ralph Gregg of Lindsay, district agricultural engineer, gave the young folks an hour's practical talk on tractor ignition.

That almost perfect attendance is a challenge to the other Clubs for next week.

Ken Best has arranged for a meeting of the 4-H Swine Club Monday, May 17, at the farm of Esmond Story, in Emily township. Norwood boys are asked to get in touch with Charlie Lobb who will help with transportation. Program inccludes: election of officers and discussions on judging, feeding and season's affairs.

Mr. Lobb and Jack Roberts are Club leaders.

The Peterboroough East 4-H Dairy Calf Club is going to the farm of Earl Doris Thursday evening, May 20. Keith McIntyre is Club leader.

Wednesday, May 19, the Norwood dairy calf club is meeting at the farm of Milton Cornish at 8 p.m.

Spring Crop Of Turkeys

Turkey broilers that averaged 8.492 (8½) pounds at 13½ weeks are mentioned by Gord Hern of Co-Op as an accomplishment in feeding and generally getting ready for market.

John Franks of Emily township raised 1077 poults in a substantial batch that totalled 9150 lbs. in the report from the processor at Schomberg. The size of these birds in a little over 13 weeks was considered by Mr. Hern as quite a job.

This experience of Mr. Franks is just another evidence of departure from old ideas aad norms. Until quite recently turkeys were regarded as being a one-crop bird, prepared mainly for Christmas holiday season. It didn't take long for the industry to break away from that long established restriction and narrow thinking once somebody showed the way.

High Scoring Brothers

Harry brothers, Douglas and Frank, of Trenton were again prominent in Hastings county livestock judging competition Monday.

In the senior group, Douglas compiled 632 points to win the Warden's trophy for the top score, and also the county Hog Producers' swine trophy. Frank Harry was second with 605 points.

In the intermediate group, Ted Burnside of Madoc RR 3, with a score of 624 was only three up on Douglas Burnside, 621. Ted was the winner of the dairy cattle trophy, and Lyall Leavens, Corbyville won the Hastings county Junior Farmer Association trophy in sheep and beef cattle judging.

Douglas Detlor, Stirling RR 4, turned in the high score card in the novice group of 31 boys and girls. Total attendance was 55. Ken Best of Peterborough assisted in the examination of the 4-H Club members.

$3,100 Ayrshire Top

At the Grand National Ayrshire sale at Boston, Mass., cows and heifers averaged $751 with a top of $3100, others selling from $2600 to $1000. High price for heifer calves was $1,010, their average being $652. The top priced bull was from Canada, the imported (Scotland) Carnell Safe Approval from the Burnside herd of R. R. Ness & Sons, Howick, Que. It sold for $1600. Canadian President, Wyman MacKechnie of Wyman, Que., was a head table guest at the convention dinner preceding the sale.

Hereford Sale Prices

Thirty-three Herefords brought $9,230 for an average of $280 at the Huron Hereford auction at Clinton Tuesday. Three bred heifers sold for $500, $430 and $375 respectively. Top priced bull went for $330. Eleven bulls grossed $2,880, an average of $261; and 13 bred heifers averaged $290. Six cows averaged $340. W. S. O'Neil of Denfield was auctioneer.

Angus Average $375

Thirty-one head of female Aberdeen-Angus cattle averaged $375 at the Western Ontario A-A Association's second spring sale at Ilderton, Saturday. The Peterborough average a week earlier was $289. Top price was $750 at Ilderton for a cow bred by Fergus Turnbull, and second highest was $710.

A 20-year-old female sold by Alex Colthart of Rodney was believed by officials to be the oldest of any breed auctioned in North America. She sold for $210. The cow, Blackcap Empress of Anoka III, has one calf whose progeny have been valued at $20,000.

Achievement Day At Orono For Durham Homemakers

The 4-H Homemaking Clubs Achievement Day for Durham County was held in Orono Township Hall on Saturday, May 8th, 1954. Fifty-three 4-H club members completed the project "Meat in the Menn".

After a series of at least eight work and study meetings, the members showed their knowledge of wholesale and retail cuts of beef and pork as well as proper methods of preparation. Each member was asked to identify cuts of meat and state a method of cooking. They also planned dinner menus to comply with Canada's Food Rules.

The following leaders received badges in recognition of their faithful work with the club members during the past winter.

RECEIVE CERTIFICATES

Fifteen certificates of achievement were presented for the completion of two projects to the following club members:

Joan Morton, Bethany; Patsy Foster, Rieta Bosgraaf and Wilma Martinell, Kendal; Joy Degeer, Lifford; Marilyn Flintoff, Vaughn Stephenson, Hazel Webber, Maple Grove; Freeda Brown, Doris Powell, Lois Seward, Millbrook; Jean Montgomery, Solina; Marion Holman and Mary McHolm, Welcome.

A county honor certificate and pin was presented to Mary McHolm of the Welcome Club for the completion of six homemaking club projects.

Attractive teaspoons were presented to every club member who successfully carried on the "meat in the menn" project. Leaders and assistants each received two teaspoons in appreciation of their work.

The clubs voted to take the project "What Shall I Wear?" for 1954-55. This is a wardrobe study, how to plan and buy it satisfactorily. Each club member is to make a blouse to suit her wardrobe.

CLUB EXHIBITS

The afternoon program was presented by the club members. Each club set up an excellent exhibit showing some phase of its work. Posters were well made to tell the name of the club and explain the many meat dishes on display.

A club member gave a short comment on each exhibit. They were: June Wright, Bethany; Irene Inch, Kendal; Ruth McKinley, Lifford; Hazel Webber, Maple Grove; Jean Hubbard, Millbrook; Shirley Quantrill, Sixth Line; Donna Vice, Solina; Margaret Aiken. Welcome.

Skits and demonstrations were given by Kendal, Lifford, Maple Grove, Sixth Line and Welcome Clubs. "Vary the Meat in Your Menu" was the topic selected by all five.

The entire program was conducted by Mrs. Marion Montgomery, Home Economist, Ontario Department of Agriculture, assisted by Mrs. Mabel Borgstrom and Miss Leslie Wall, Home Economist. The Durham group bade farewell to Miss Jean Noble former home economist of the district, and presented her with gifts.

60,308 Cattle In Victoria Show Only 53 TB Reactors

The third general TB test of the cattle of Victoria county, now virtually completed, has disclosed only 53 reactors, Dr. George R. Penhall, V.S., district inspector for the health of animals branch of the federal Department of Agriculture, told the Examiner yesterday.

"We found two beef herds pretty badly infected," Dr. Penhill said. "Without them the number of reactors would have been around 35 for the entire county. I think those figures, 53 head showing presence of bovine tuberculosis out of the total of 60,308 examined tell an emphatic story of the advantages of this practice of general county inspection."

About 200 head are all that remain to be tested in the completion of the work within another week.

Up to May 8, Department inspectors examined 2018 herds comprising 60,308 cattle, beef and dairy. The 52 reactors were found in 18 infected herds.

Comparative figures for the two previous general inspections provide impressive evidence of the broad gain in animal health throughout the county.

In the first general TB test in 1938, total of cattle examined was 55,613 head in 3,319 herds; and the number of reactors was 1559.

The second general test was in 1949, disclosing 55,231 head in 2188 herds, and 274 reactors. And, the present figures with only a few remaining head to be inspected:—2018 herds of 60,308 head and 53 reactors.

"We had to increase our staff two months ago to get the work completed before the cattle were on the grass," Dr. Penhall said. "Since the first of March we have examined 26,000 head in a little over two months."

Dr. Penhall said the cattle owners of Victoria county were entirely co-operative, and particularly in the round up of range cattle as a facility for the inspectors.

Peterborough and Haliburton herds are accredited until 1956.

Incidentally, the trend of the third general test in Victoria is likely to show in the final report more cattle but fewer herds.

FAO Rice Mill To Liberia And As Herebouts Natives Demand White Rice

People of Liberia, Africa, and Ontario, have one dietary notion in common, but not exactly for the same reason—they all prefer white rice to brown.

However, this is a little story from the Federal Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, that relates the kind of good deed by FAO (Federation of Agricultural Organizations) which this part of the western world likes to hear.

Eighteen months ago, FAO sent Theodore Hagan, an American rice milling expert, to Liberia, Africa. He imported and set up a mill at Suakoko, about 125 miles from the Liberian capital of Monrovia. It was bought and equipped with funds supplied by the government of Liberia and FAO. Its milling capacity is 10,000 lbs. a day, the equivalent of the hand work of 180 women. The mill went into operation early this year.

THE WORK OF WOMEN

In that country the outer shell, or bran, has had to be pounded off rice grains by hand, using a stick and hollow log. It is done by women at the rate of 10 minutes to shell one pound of rice.

As living standards rose in Liberia it became increasingly difficult to find women to pound rice at wages farmers could afford to pay. The result was a threatened drop in the rice production. This could be serious in a country that has to import between 5 and 10 million pounds a year to supplement its domestic production.

Farmers in the Suakoko district have shown a great interest in the mill, and many who had thought of reducing their acreage are planning to increase it. Rice mills will no doubt be established in other parts of the country if this first one proves successful.

A SOCIAL FACTOR

"Experiments are being made to find out how small a degree the rice can be milled and yet sell in the Liberian market. Only the hard outer shell, or husk, should be milled off rice grain to provide the most nourishing product. This, however, leaves a brown rice grain which is not acceptable to the Liberian population because it is the rice fed to inmates of Liberia's prisons, and is classed as 'prison food.'

"Tests are now being made to determine how brown the rice may be left from the mill, and yet sell and be eaten without further pounding at home."

Peterborough district farmers may smile at that Liberian objection to what they call "prison food." But, how many homes hereabouts buy brown rice in the stores instead of the white rice?

IS POLISHED WHITE

It may be that Ontario people, in the main, believe that white rice is the grain as nature produces it. Actually, the brown coating is milled away, just as the bran and shorts are stripped from wheat. In recent years there has been a marked increase in the purchase and consumption of brown breads.

At any rate, you can buy brown rice by the package down town, and perhaps elsewhere, if you ask for it. And as the Ottawa item stresses significantly: "Only the outer shell (or husk) should be milled off rice grain to provide the most nourishing product."

Liberians scorn brown rice because to them it is "prison food."

If you buy a package of it, you will probably never want the insipid white polished and partly denatured product again. Only two years ago the manager of one chain store, and a clerk in another, both said they had never seen brown rice.

RICE PRIMARY FOOD

Apart from that dietary digression, this is a story reflecting some of the useful work FAO is doing far afield.

There is still a humorous aspect to it, in the advantage the Liberian prisoners have been getting in their rice with only the outer and containing husk removed.

"Rice is the most important food product in the world," F. C. Paterson, agricultural representative, said yesterday.

Canadians think in terms of wheat, milk, beef, bacon, and so on down their established diet, but the millions of Asia, areas of Africa, and islands of the Pacific depend on the rice crop.

FIRST 30,000 POUND HOLSTEIN COW of 1954, finishing a 365 day record, is Dixie Jemima Governess, owned by Robert F. Brown, Paris, Ont. Her production of 30,181 lbs. containing 983 lbs. fat was an official ROP test. This is equal to 12,072 quarts of milk. It is a third largest record for milk ever made in Canada on twice-a-day milking. Dixie was the first prize aged cow at the Brant Black and White Day last fall. She produced 112 pounds (45 quarts) during her best day on test, and for more than a month averaged better than 100 lbs. daily. Mr. Brown says she will eat anything put before her. A recent son by Spring Farm Fond Hope, three times All-Canadian, will be retained as a herd sire.

Commission Fired, Hold Last Meet

SARNIA (CP)—The final meeting of Sarnia's nine-man hospital commission—fired May 3 by city council—was held here Thursday night.

Chairman H. L. Humphrey told the commission: "There is nothing in our record to be ashamed of. We can walk out of this room with our heads held high."

A new commission, appointed by council May 11, will take over the affairs of the recently-expanded $2,700,000 hospital Monday.

The retiring board, in a statement, denied charges it had failed to co-operate with council. Counter-charges were made the commission had found co-operation of council "sadly lacking."

Union Fight May Force CNE Alter Plans

TORONTO (CP)—Hiram E. McCallum, general manager of the Canadian National Exhibition, said Thursday the CNE will be forced to stage a different grandstand show from that which is now planned unless two unions in the entertainment field settle their dispute by May 21.

Mr. McCallum said he does not know what kind of alternate show the CNE executive plans but thinks it will be "top flight" but "less Canadian than shows in the past."

Mr. McCallum's announcement followed a meeting of the CNE executive to discuss the dispute between the powerful Petrillo-led American Federation of Musicians and the American Guild of Variety Artists.

REFUSE TO PLAY

The musicians union has refused to play for any AGVA members unless they renounce their membership in the guild and become members of the musicians' union. The union, however, has agreed to play for AGVA members with whom the musicians had previous contracts.

AGVA recently announced it will boycott entertainment organizations in Toronto, Hamilton and London unless the organizations agree to sign contracts with AGVA. Both unions are AFL affiliates.

The feud threatens to disrupt plans for a show featuring United States cowboy star Roy Rogers who is a member of AGVA.

Partial Business In Strike, Not Allowed Tax Rebates

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Court of Appeal ruled Thursday that companies which carry on some business during strikes are not entitled to tax rebates.

The court upheld an appeal by the City of Hamilton against a ruling by the Ontario municipal board which said three firms had not carried on business for a whole year within the meaning of a section of the Assessment Act.

The decision means the city will receive $16,000 in taxes. The companies which had been granted refunds were Firestone Tire and Rubber Co. of Canada Ltd., Hamilton Cotton Co. Ltd., and Cosmos Imperial Mills Ltd., all with plants in Hamilton.

HIT BY WALKOUTS

They were hit by walkouts in 1952 Firestone was closed for 118 days, Hamilton Cotton for 42 days and Cosmos for 69 days. In each case there was no production, nor were there outgoing or incoming shipments.

In a written judgment, Mr. Justice R. E. Laidlaw said it could not be held that the companies "did not carry on business during the period of the strike."

He added:

"Employers had no intention of giving up business but, on the contrary, kept their organizations together insofar as was possible. Under the circumstances, there was simply a temporary interruption in certain departments and a provisional suspension in production."

No Limit Set To Amount Of Fusel Oil In Spirits

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Provincial governments which administer liquor sale in Canada set no limit on the amount of fusel oil in spirits, but the consensus is that it's low.

Fusel oil, the stuff of which hangovers are said to be made, came into the news when Ontario's Health Minister MacKinnon Phillips told the legislature liquor sold in the province contained up to 10 per cent of it. He called it a "deadly poison."

Premier Frost later said Mr. Phillips had been wearing his bifocals and got the decimal point in the wrong place. But by that time distillery interests and Ontario's chief liquor commissioner, Arthur Welsh, had come to bat for the purity of liquor.

LOW CONTENT

Carl T. Carson, a vice-president of Hiram Walker and Sons, claimed Mr. Phillips was 1,000 times wrong, that Canadian whisky contains only 10 to 17 parts of fusel oil per 100,000. Mr. Welsh said the highest fusel-oil content of liquor is about 80 parts per 100,000.

On the basis of Mr. Carson's figures, a 26-ounce bottle of Canadian whisky would contain less than a small drop of fusel oil.

The Encyclopaedia Britannica labels fusel oil—always present to some degree in distilled alcohol—as a poison.

Chemists call it "higher alcohol," meaning it is a more complicated member of the family of which ethyl alcohol—the kick in liquor—is one. Unlike drinkable ethyl alcohol, fusel oil has a strong taste and enough of it can poison you.

LITTLE TO FEAR

A cross-country check of provincial liquor commissions indicates drinkers have little to fear from fusel oil. Neither the provinces nor the federal government have laws restricting the amount of it in liquor but the provinces that check their beverages say the proportion is low.

The Quebec liquor commission, which since 1922 has been checking the liquor it sells, states fusel oil and other by-products of fermentation and distillation, in their "natural proportions," actually give character, body, aroma and taste to liquor.

Quebec's figures, based on analysis of every shipment, show that dry gin has the lowest average proportion of fusel oil—just traces. Cognac and Jamaica rum, averaging 72 and 70 parts per 100,000 respectively, have the highest. Canadian whisky averages 20 parts.

Ontario, which checks suppliers' samples and tests bottles from liquor-store shelves periodically, gave the figures: Canadian whisky 20 parts per 100,000, scotch 34, rum 37.

Saskatchewan, whose provincial analyst makes occasional spot checks, had figures available only for Canadian whisky, 10 to 17 parts per 100,000.

CHECKED BY CHEMIST

Alberta, which employs a consulting chemist to check its beverages, gave as "a very approximate estimation" these figures in parts per 100,000 of absolute alcohol: Canadian whisky 90, scotch 110, rum 80 and, gin 30.

On the basis of the actual bottled liquor which in Canada is only 40 per cent alcohol Alberta's figures work out to: Canadian whisky 36 parts per 100,000, scotch 44, rum 32, gin 12.

British Columbia merely said a recent check showed the proportion of fusel oil in liquor sold in that province is "very low."

Other provinces, although they may check the products they bottle themselves, leave detailed analyses largely to the federal government or depend on the distilleries for quality.

Th federal government sets no limit on fusel oil, although the Food and Drug Act allows no harmful ingredients in food. For purposes of the federal act liquor is listed under foods.

Federal officials say, however, that the proportion of fusel oil is "extremely small."

One food and drug official had a word for old-time drinkers who shake their liquor in the idea that it will get the fusel oil off the top and spread it through the bottle. It's useless, he said, because what fusel oil is there is always evenly distributed through the liquor.

Hydro Commission Begins Soil Tests

CORNWALL (CP)—The Ontario hydro commission has started field tests to determine soil conditions and other characteristics on the power house site of the St. Lawrence power development project, Hon. George H. Challies, vice-chairman said Thursday.

Testing, on the mainland opposite Barnhart island about five miles west of here, is part of preliminary work on the project, said Mr. Challies.

Information now being obtained will result in "a considerable saving in time, . . when construction gets under way," he added. It will assist engineers in deciding what type of construction is required.

Late Premier's Dream To Lead 100 Pipers

OTTAWA (CP)—One of the last wishes of the late premier Angus L. Macdonald of NovaScotia was to lead 100 pipers playing "Road to the Isles" across the completed strait of Canso causeway.

Thursday night in the Commons John Dickey, parliamentary assistant to Trade Minister Howe, asked Transport Minister Chevrier to make the ceremony possible at the scheduled opening of the causeway in December next year. He suggested that Mr. Chevrier lead the pipers.

Judge To Give Ruling On Witnesses

ROUYN, Que. (CP) — Judgment in a test case to determine whether Jehovah's Witness is to be considered a religion will be rendered by Mr. Justice Eugene Marquis in Quebec Superior Court.

The judgment, expected in July, concerns a three-year fight between Paul Emile Perron, a Rouyn miner, and the local Protestant school board which has refused to admit three of Perron's children to a Protestant school.

Perron, who describes himself as a "part-time minister of the Gospel," renounced the Roman Catholic faith in 1950 after three of his five children were already baptized as Roman Catholics.

He said one of his children, who had been refused admittance to a Protestant school "time and time again," has not attended school for three years. Perron is asking $1,000 damages from the school board.

Glen How of Toronto, Perron's lawyer who is contesting his case against the school board, said Perron "should be treated as a person on the Protestant tax roll."

Said Paul M. Cuddiny, attorney for the board:

"How can the trustees guess he is a Protestant when he does not say so?"

H-Bomb Increases Fire-Fighters' Role

MONTREAL (CP)—The war role of Canada's fire-fighters will be made heavier by the hydrogen bomb, Finance Minister Abbott said Thursday night.

"We all hope that there will be no war," he said in a speech prepared for delivery before the annual meeting of the Dominion Fire Prevention Association.

"But we cannot avoid it by refusing to face the need to be prepared."

The H-bomb's "destructive powers appear to be so immense that it is hard for the imagination to grasp their meaning," said Mr Abbott.

". . . around any bombed area there would always be a belt in which fires rage and in which people may be trapped in buildings or in need of medical attention."

Alberta Approves Gas Export To East

By GRAHAM TROTTER

EDMONTON (CP)—The provincial petroleum and natural gas conservation board was to issue a permit today to Trans-Canada Pipe Lines Ltd. for export of Alberta natural gas to eastern Canada and the mid-west United States.

The green light for the eastern flow of 4,350,000,000,000 cubic feet of southern Alberta's gas surplus over a 25-year period through Trans-Canada's projected $300,000,000 pipeline was given Thursday night, when Premier Manning announced his government's approval.

The gas is to start moving across the Alberta border no later than Dec. 31, 1955. N. E. Tanner, Trans-Canada president and former Alberta mines minister in charge of oil and gas development, indicated previously that pipeline construction will start early in 1955.

The long-awaited cheap utility is expected to be feeding Winnipeg by late 1955. Toronto and Montreal are to be hooked up the following year. When the pipeline reaches Montreal, stretching its length to 2,240 miles, it will be the world's largest.

SERVES U.S. TOO

Besides servicing the big eastern Canadian markets and intermediate points, the sprawling line will branch south from Winnipeg to tap the Minneapolis area of the U.S.

Including distribution systems in the east and gathering lines in Alberta, the over-all cost of the export project will approximate an estimated $500,000,000.

Word of Alberta's approval of gas export to the east was "good news" to Trade Minister Howe who played a leading role in making the project possible.

But he reiterated at Ottawa a previously-expressed stand that the federal government will not allow the export of gas to the U.S. until it is sure that the all-Canadian line to eastern Canada has been financed and is on the way to construction.

Asked if the federal government would let gas go to Minneapolis once the main line reached Winnipeg, Mr. Howe said that would have to be decided at the time.

THREE HURDLES YET

Trans-Canada still has three hurdles to surmount, but Premier Manning indicated these would be no problem. They are: (1) approval of the federal board of transport commissioners on the pipeline's route and economics; (2) an export permit from the federal department of trade and commerce for sending gas to the U.S.; and (3) approval of the U.S. Federal Power Commission for importation of the gas into the U.S.

Biggest contributor to the export line will be Canada's largest gas area, the Pincher Creek field 85 miles southwest of Lethbridge. One well there, when flowing wide open can yield 164,000,000 cubic feet a day.

The fact that only residue dry gas will be exported, after removal of by-products such as sulphur, propane, butane and wet gasoline, is seen by some quarters as the birth of a multi-million dollar petro-chemical industry for southern Alberta.

Premier Manning also announced the government had instructed the conservation board to issue a 20-year export permit to Canadian-Montana Pipe Line Co. This gas, 386,000,000,000 cubic feet, is surplus to the needs of the Trans-Canada line and the requirements of Alberta consumers for the next 30 years.

Churches Seek Rooms In School For Youngsters

Two city churches have asked the board of education for Sunday school accommodation.

This is a stop-gap measure to provide spiritual training to children in the rapidly-expanding north end of the city.

At the May meeting of the board Thursday night letters asking for a room in Queen Elizabeth to be used as a Sunday school were received from the Rev. J. L. Hockney, Church of the Open Bible, and from Leo W. Copp and Quirt McKinney of George Street United church.

G. Wilson Craw, chairman of accommodation, said that while he favored granting permission for use of Queen Elizabeth on Sunday he would like to know what building plans are being considered by the churches themselves.

W. B. Gordon said that in the land assembly area there is provision for church property, but he doubted if any specific building plans were yet underway.

The two requests were referred to the board's supervision committee.

Retailer Needs Chamber C Of C Needs New Members

A retailer who does not belong to the chamber of commerce is a "lost voice crying in the wilderness," president Sam Whitehouse told a meeting of the membership committee of the chamber Thursday1. About 20 businessmen, under committee chairman Howard Powell were gathered to launch a two-week membership drive.

Retailers "won't get anywhere" with city council and other organizations, without strength and unity, Mr. Whitehouse continued. He said that retailers have the least proportionate membership in the chamber, whereas they should have at least 75 per cent of Peterborough retialers on their rolls.

To be effective, the chamber of commerce "must be the voice, and a strong voice of all industry and business." The membership of the chamber is now in the neighborhood of 400, but Mr. Whitehouse felt at least 500 members are needed to ensure that a "true cross-section" of the community is represented,

Stressing the unity theme, Mr. Whitehouse said that "if I were a laboring man, I would join a union, because I would need representation." Similarly, he said, those now in the chamber should stress to new prospects the personal and business advantages of belonging to the organization.

TIGHT FINANCING

Mr. Whitehouse also stressed the dollars-and-cents need for more chamber members. Although "we don't waste a penny" the chamber is in financial difficulties. Financing is tight, but with a $17,000 budget, the chamber is running into the red. More members might help to lower the deficit.

It should not be difficult to sell prospects on the desirability of joining the chamber, said Mr. Whitehouse, citing what he felt were concrete benefits to the community and to business and professional men individually. He placed particular emphasis on the work of the Business Protective Service (Better Business Bureau), group insurance, and tourist promotion.

The business protective service protects citizens against "fly-by-night gyp artists" who sometimes bilk citizens and undersell local retailers. It also acts as a clearing house for complaints against firms in Peterborough and in other cities.

Membership in the chamber, said Mr. Whitehouse, makes it easier for smaller businesses to compete with large industries which offer attractive fringe benefits in labor contracts.

This group insurance, facilitated by the chamber, means that small businesses are less likely to lose workers to industry and so "do not have to scrape the bottom of the labor barrel."

TOURIST SERVICE

"Thousands of inquiries" come to the chamber each year in connection with tourist attractions, said Mr. Whitehouse. He suggested that all, particularly retailers, have a personal stake in the tourist business and pointed out that some retailers make up to 75 per cent of their reevnue in the four months of the tourist season.

"If you are sold yourself, you will have no difficulty" the speaker concluded. He observed that chamber membership is $20, an increase of only $5 in the last 25 years. Mr. Whitehouse doubted if any other good or service had shown so little increase in cost.

The membership drive should "not drag out" and thus lose its effectiveness, Howard Powell warned. He said that canvassers would be mobilized, under classification chairmen, with a view to adding another 100 to chamber rolls before June 1.

Canvassers will be equipped with folders which illustrate pertinent statistics about the chamber, and atempts to answer some of the commonest criticisms against the group, (for instance—Does it do anything? My business is too small The chamber is just an agent for a national group.) Later Les Reichardt illustrated techniques for conducting interviews with membership prospects.

Tom O'Connor suggested that canvassing might be more effective if "representatives of big business" visited prospects. He felt that sales talks could be best consumated if prospects were "in some awe" of bigger businessmen. The group voted to incorporate this suggestion into its program.

Business Communities Appear More Cheerful In Spring Season

By FORBES RHUDE
Candaian Press Business Editor

Lilting notes may be heard these days in the Canadian and United States business world, relieving the more sombre theme of the winter months.

From across the border the May letter of the National City Bank of New York says spring developments have had a cheering effect through the business community; and on the Canadian side, the Purchasing Agents Association of Toronto says the downturn in business activity appears, for the time being, to have abated.

The bureau of statistics adds its bit by saying that department stores increased their sales in the first quarter of the year compared with the corresponding period last year.

COMPETITION MORE NORMAL

The purchasing agents association, in its analytical comment, says readjustment to a more normal competitive situation has been at least partially effected; competition remains very keen in both domestic and foreign markets; while the trend of export trade is downward, prospects are for equal or even higher expenditure on construction; employment has shown some improvement, and bank deposits remain high; optimism continues in the steel market.

The New York national city bank letter, in its review of the U.S. scene, said April strengthened March impressions that the U.S. decline in business is flattening out.

The letter said consumer purchases appear to be running ahead of factory output, indicating that the corrective process of adjusting supplies to consumption is going ahead.

Court Reserves Decision On Reece Appeal

TORONTO (CP)—Decision on an appeal against the murder conviction of 48-year-old Harry Reece of St. Catharines was reserved by the Ontario Court of Appeal Thursday.

Reece was sentenced last March by Mr. Justice Wilfred Judson to be hanged June 6 for the knife-murder of Mrs. Florence Ricker last Oct. 21. The woman's body was found in a pool of blood after a wine-drinking party at St. Catharines.

Defence counsel W. C. LaMarsh based his appeal on the grounds that the trial judge misdirected the jury to the prejudice of the accused.

Evidence at the trial last March was that a high alcohol content showed in the blood of the accused and of two other women in the house at the time of the murder. The other women were Mrs. Evalena Embury, 38, and the landlady, Mrs. Inez Martin, 41.

RECOMMEND MERCY

Thursday Chief Justice J. W. Pickup and Messrs. Justice R. E. Laidlaw, W. D. Roach, J. A. Hope and J. K. Mackay appeared concerned about the extent of drunkenness of the accused and the possibility of intent to murder.

Mr. Justice Laidlaw said he was struck by the way the trial judge had repeated during the trial that "the case for the crown is that this man knew what he was doing."

Mr. LaMarsh said the term should have been that Reece was "capable of forming an intent." Crown counsel W. C. Bowman said the terms were synonymous.

Mr. LaMarsh also said the statement Reece gave to police was indefinite and in places could have referred to Mrs. Embury as much as to the deceased. He said the accused was not capable of making a proper statement and of appreciating what was going on.

CLAIMS NOT OBSERVED

He said the doctor called to assist the accused had not properly observed Reece's behavior.

At the time of the trial the judge described defence counsel as having made a "fanciful, far-fetched" argument that Mrs. Embury could have committed the crime. He said it was "verging on the absurd."

Mr. LaMarsh also said the trial judge skimmed over the arguments of the defence counsel when he was charging the jury.

His final argument was that provincial expert Dr. Nobel Sharpe had testified to Reece's alcohol-blood count being high enough to make him dead drunk at the time the crime was committed.

"The general tenor of the charge throughout," Mr. LaMarsh concluded, "was such as to lean toward the prosecution and not give fair play to defence evidence."

Protest Indo Build-up

TAIPEH, Formosa (AP) — The Chinese Nationalist interior ministry's Ta Tao news agency today said Red China is pouring artillery, anti-aircraft guns, ammunition and trucks into Indo-China for a Vietminh offensive in the Red river delta region. The agency claims extensive underground contacts on the Red-held mainland.

Wide Area Darkened

KENDAL, England (Reuters)—An area of 450 square miles in northwestern England was plunged into darkness Thursday night when an explosion followed by fire blacked out a power station here. Flames leaped 50 feet into the air as the fire raged for two hours in 15,000 gallons of oil in a newly-installed transformer.

Leaves Tiny Estate

NEW YORK (AP)—Fritzi Scheff, the once-great opera star, left an estate of less than $1,000—a pittance that wouldn't even keep her in perfume in the days of her glory. The Vienna-born actress and singer was found dead in her apartment last April 8 at the age of 74. She left the tiny estate to a cousin.

Children's Aid Society's First Aim To Keep Families Together: Miss R. Young

The primary aim of the Children's Aid Society is to create as few foster homes as possible, society superintendent Miss Rachael A. D. Young told the 60th annual meeting of the society at the YWCA Thursday.

A common misconception about society work is that the children of disrupted homes are automatically channelled to foster or adoption homes and the society is thus a glorified clearing house. Actually, Miss Young pointed out, the first aim is to keep homes together.

If this fails, children are temporarily removed and efforts are made to help parents re-establish a home. Only if neither of these solutions is workable, and if it is in the best interests of the child, is he placed for adoption.

Work with foster and adopting homes is, however, vitally important. In 1953, the superintendent recalled, 49 more children were placed than in the previous year. But 23 of these were placed in adoption homes by sources other than accredited agencies, a matter "for some concern, because we frown on private placements."

Of these 23, 15 were requests for adoption of a child in the homes of relatives. The other eight were of "particular concern" because there is always the danger that children may be innocent pawns in baby adoption rackets.

The Child Welfare Act which becomes effective January 1, 1955 may reduce the number of private placements. It requires registry within 3 days of all children placed for adoption anywhere, and provides a $2,000 fine or a three-year jail term, or both, for "any person who gives or accepts money in consideration of the adoption of an infant." Under these circumstances "even eight placements are far too many" at the private level.

EVICTIONS

Another statistic Miss Young hoped to see reduced to zero was evictions. As a result of evictions, 13 children were cared for by the society in 1953. "None of us should be satisfied," said Miss Young, "until we see that this no longer happens."

Although Miss Young's approach to her annual report was a statistical one she noted that "statistics have no meaning unless they are interpreted." Similarly, she said, "ideas are funny things. They don't work unless you do."

A total of 960 children were helped by the Society in 1953. Although last year was the first since the inception of the family court, that the society has not been responsible for probation services, Miss Young's report notes almost no changes in the number of families in for consultation. Some statistics showed significant increases over the previous year.

On the credit side, 83 children were able to leave the care of the society during the year, and 43 children from 20 families were returned to their parents. Miss Young particularly stressed the point that whenever possible children should be reunited with parents, acknowledging that there are usually strong emotional ties which must be severed if the child is otherwise placed. There is even an occasional time, Miss Young noted, when a child's best interests are probably not best served by being returned to parents, "but we do not have sufficient evidence to prove this in court."

Last year showed an increase in the work done by the society with unmarried parents. Here Miss Young stressed the therapeutic value of the society's counselling, not only in providing the best possible environment for the child but in helping to correct emotional disturbances usually characteristic of unmarried mothers. Babies born out of wedlock, said Miss Young, are usually products of the young mother's disruptive home life.

ATTRACTIVE HOMES

But however much social workers may counsel, there will always be a need for attractive homes. Miss Young felt that Peterborough children were especially fortunate in this regard. Local foster and adoption parents are, collectively, "affectionate towards the children, respect them, are proud of their successes and helpful in their failures. They are loyal to the society and always willing to help us in emergencies."

Citizens cannot afford to be ostriches about callousness and neglect right here in Peterborough, Miss Young continued. She cited examples of children stating in court they would prefer to be with the society than return home, teenagers told to get out of their "home," and parents callously indifferent to children's emotional, social, and academic progress.

Miss Young also discussed some of the fringe benefits performed by the society. It makes investigations for family allowances, makes reports under the Matrimonial Causes Act in regard to divorces where there are children under 16 and contributes to the well-being of underprivileged homes.

In this connection, the society si greatly concerned with unemployed employables for whom there is no plan of shared relief. This question will be studied by the community welfare council of Ontario, but in the meantime the society does all it can to help.

A feature of the 60th annual meeting, attended by an unusually large crowd of nearly 200, was a film showing the learning process at all levels of a child's development. The film was shown by Dr. John S. Pratten, director of the Civic hospital's psychiatric clinic, who also conducted a discussion group in questions arising from the film.

In his introductory remarks, Dr. Pratten declared that "children's aid societies can do more than any psychiatric clinic" in promoting the mental health of youngsters. He sympathized with the space and staff difficulties experienced by the society in 1953, observing that similar difficulties at the Civic "are proving very frustrating to my own mental health."

The central theme of the film, as amplified by Dr. Pratten, is that adults often misinterpret the behavior of children in terms of their own experiences. Children must experiment, must develop bodily and mental skills, and must be imaginative and imitative, even if this sometimes proves a bit of a strain on parents.

MOH HECKLES

In answer to a floor query from medical health officer Dr. J. P. Wells, one who seemed detrimental to Dr. Pratten's own mental health with his clear and lucid heckling, the psychiatrist assured his audience that he was not advocating elimination of discipline in a child's daily routine.

"One of the most widespread misconceptions about psychology and psychiatry, said Dr. Pratten, is the belief that mental health workers are "anti-discipline." On the contrary, he said, discipline is essential though it must be limited and intelligently directed.

The audience, too, took an active part in debate. Some of the issues discussed, with no clearcut solutions reached, were whether or not children should play with matches, even if trained to handle them, the effect of motion picture "thrillers" on impressionable minds and to what extent learning is an intrinsically social process.

Dr. Pratten's main thesis was that parents are obligated to provide children with equipment and encouragement to proceed from one stage of development to the next. But they must not push. They must not say: "You have now reached the stage where you can hammer a nail, so go to the basement and hammer."

Building Of Seaway Example For World

NEW YORK (CP) — The New York Times says today there is "something that sweeps the imagination" in the spectacle of two countries controlling a boundary river by joint labor and joint contributions for their mutual benefit.

In an editorial prompted by the signing of St. Lawrence seaway legislation Thursday by President Eisenhower, the Times says the signing ceremony stood for the warmest friendship between Canada and the United States.

"Hands across the river is an excellent supplement to hands across the sea," the editorial continues. "And in this case we may be able to say that though blood is thicker than water, water can still unite us."

PPP Official Defiant

GEORGETOWN, British Guiana (Reuters)—A district secretary of the left-wing People's Progressive party declared in court here Thursday: "The time will come when we will meet force with force, gun for gun, bullet for bullet." The party official, whose name is Nazrudeen, was sentenced to six months imprisonment on charges of holding an illegal procession on May Day.

Shipowners In France Like Seaway

PARIS (Reuters)—French shipowners are looking forward to the completion of the St. Lawrence seaway.

Most enthusiastic is Gabriel Villars, 32-year-old traffic manager of the Fabre Line, founded only four years ago at Marseille and the first French line to send cargo into the heart of the American continent.

"Until the seaway is ready, our special fleet of nine shallow-draught 2,500-ton vessels will remain the service which we started in 1950," he told Reuters. "But when ocean-going ships can penetrate into the lakes, we shall start building 10,000-ton ships.

"Other French lines, which now have to transfer their cargoes from ocean-going ships to barges at Montreal, will then be able to compete with us on equal terms.

"But our initiative in building ships which can sail right through to Lake Michigan will have won us the advantage of 10 years' unrivalled experience in the Great Lakes trade."

GIVES RATES

Villars stressed that, although Fabre's freight rates for lake-bound cargoes were 40 shillings ($5.60) a ton-month compared with 14 shillings ($1.96) for ocean-going vessels, their customers do not have to pay expensive transshipment charges at Montreal.

"Moreover, our small ships, built specially for the Great Lakes trade, are uneconomical for other merchandise during the four months of the year that the lakes are frozen over. But, when we can bring big ships into the lakes we shall be able to use them on other routes during the North American winter."

Villars said that the present flow of cargoes will probably be maintained in both directions when the seaway opens. Tractors, cars, steel, synthetic rubber, and aluminum form the bulk of eastbound cargoes. French wines, Italian nuts and marble, and Spanish olives are the most popular westbound merchandise.

"But we shall also probably be able to ship grain and iron ore straight from the lakes for the first time instead of loading them at Montreal," he said.

Nun Raises Alarm

CHELSEA, Mass. (AP)—A nun awakened by choking smoke in her third floor room aroused eight other nuns early today and helped them flee from the Assumption Roman Catholic Convent. Sister Eugenie Marie said the convent was thick with smoke when she awoke in a fit of coughing. She first woke Mother Marie Madeleine and together they went through the convent waking the other nuns.

Sues For TV Profits

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Suit for half the $3,500,000 estimated past and future profits from the TV show, "This is Your Life," was filed Thursday against its producer, Ralph Edwards, by Mel Vickland. Vickland contended that he conceived the idea for the show in 1946 while in hospital with polio, and that Edwards, a close friend, promised to share the proceeds equally with him but didn't.

Taste Of Water Annoying Citizens

BRANTFORD (CP)—A group of citizens dissatisfied with the taste of Brantford water have decided to check into the fluoridation experiments.

They formed the Brantford Better Water Association Thursday night and appointed G. W. Chinnery as acting chairman.

The citizens passed a resolution asking the city to take immediate steps to get a purer source of water supply and grant a referendum to Brantfordites on whether they are satisfied with the fluoridation experiment. The experiment started here seven years ago.

British Miler Returns Home A Wiser Man

By ED CORRIGAN

NEW YORK (AP)—Roger Bannister, who—it turned out—made a 3,000-mile round-trip from London to New York to give out some interviews, headed back today to his Oxford University medical studies, a wiser young man.

The great 3:59.4 miler arrived here Wednesday morning, was confused and reconfused by the edicts of British and American amateur authorities and wound up making some tape recordings before rushing to Idlewild airport for a plane for home.

He probably was more tired and certainly more bewildered than the day last week when he became the first human to run the mile in less than four minutes.

Originally he came to appear on some television programs at the request of the British foreign office. It was to be a goodwill gesture. The trouble was that the foreign office apparently forgot that television is commercially sponsored in the United States and amateurs jeopardize their standing by appearing on such programs.

IDEA VETOED

So while Roger was winging his way over here, the idea was vetoed after some hurried transatlantic telephone calls.

Roger shrugs off the entire snafu with the observation that he didn't want to come in the first place.

Before beginning his trip back he said:

1. He won't try to break Mal Whitfield's 1:48.6 world half-mile record.

2. He won't race against American Wes Santee because the Kansas student can't run in Europe this year because of violations on his trip last summer.

3. He won't run against the clock in an all-out effort to improve on his record.

Dangerous Driving Charge Is Laid

CORNWALL (CP)—A charge of dangerous driving has been laid against William Watson, 47, of nearby Wales.

Police reported Watson was the driver of a car struck by an eastbound Canadian National Railways freight in front of his home April 14. His wife Elizabeth, 42, son Groulx, 14 and a fellow CNR section worker, Harvey Martin, 37, died in the crash.

Watson, severely injured, was in hospital several weeks.

Unknown Polio Virsuses May Exist

TORONTO (CP) — A research doctor says there is the possibility that polio viruses exist and have not been identified as being in the three known types for which a vaccine has been developed.

Dr. Andrew Rhodes, director of the Research Institute at the Hospital For Sick Children here, said Thursday night that of 105 viruses recovered by the institute, 95 could be classified as among the known types. The others were a mystery.

Dr. Rhodes was speaking at the annual convention of the 4,000 member Ontario Medical Association. The convention ends today.

Delegates elected Dr. Frank Mills of Toronto as president of the association's surgery division. Dr. Archie Grace of London, Ont., was named vice-president and Dr. William Magill of Guelph was elected secretary-treasurer.

BEST OPPORTUNITIES

In another speech Thursday, Dr. H. G. Hall of Toronto said the greatest opportunities for medical research lie with the general practitioners.

He said that "doctors in training see disease in the advanced stages, but the early phases seen every day by the general practitioner are not being studied extensively."

Dr. Lloyd Payne of Dresden, Ont., warned that drugs containing barbituric acid and tonic or laxative pills containing strychnine should be kept out of children's reach.

"In 1952 there were nine accidental deaths attributed to barbiturates in Ontario, and it is quite possible that most of these were children."

Words of welcome were extended by Mrs. V. Gilbert.

Courtesy committee appointed was composed of Mrs. Gordon Mann, Mrs. W. A. Poast and Mrs. Herriott.

The president in her address urged her listeners to show their colors as an abstainer, "Science is on our side and not the moderate drinker. We should protest against liquor advertisements in all places. This struggle against alcohol is a life time job".

Mrs. T. M. McKay W.C.T.U. field worker for the province led in a questionaire who criticized the chocolate candy in form of liquor bottles containing two per-cent alcohol.

Mrs. McKay gave a very inspiring and informative address stating that secret agents are at work to see who are ahead of the promotion and sale of narcotic drugs. The city of Hamilton has taken a definite stand against children smoking in public schools. Blood donors having disease caused by the drinking of alcohol beverages are giving their blood which cannot help but spread disease.

India is fast banishing alcohol from its country. We send Missionaries over to other countries Mrs. McKay said if our country is soon not cleared of this curse, we shall have missionaries coming over from those countries to help to make this a better place in which to live. England is selling alcoholic ice cream to create an appetite. The great baseball player, "Babe Ruth" turned down an offer three times as great by the liquor industry. Among movie stars who are abstainers are Marjorie Main who plays the part of Ma Kettle, Doris Day and many other notables mentioned. Mrs. McKay paid great tribute to our school teachers, many of them have to be mothers as well, in their own classrooms. Children who have no home life due to broken homes through the liquor traffic and teachers looking after poor little children who do not want to go home.

Gin is made for 9c a quart sells for 40c an oz. 1 quart will make twenty servings the profit of $8.00 a quart, what other business thrives so rapidly? Let us earnestly pray that our government be led to take steps to rid this country of disease impurities, drug addicts and the problem of alcohol.

DOROTHY DIX

Closer Relations With Parents Girl's Wish

DEAR MISS DIX: One doesn't hear much about meddlesome sons-in-law, but I sure have one. He and my daughter have been living with us since their marriage a year ago, and he is so nasty that my sister won't come to see me anymore. He has a vile temper and can't be pleasant to anyone. He makes but a small financial contribution to the household — [illegible]gh to take care of himself and his wife. I hate to hurt my daughter, but her husband is such a trial that he's turning us all into nervous wrecks. My husband and I have worked hard all our lives; now, though we have very little of this world's goods, we do feel entitled to peace, conentment and the pleasure of entertaining our friends, S. K.

✧ ✧ ✧

SURLY TYRANT

ANSWER: Isn't it appalling how one surly person can spoil the happiness of a whole household, making everyone bow to his bidding, and exhorting the homage due a king when what he deserves is a well-placed kick?

He has you on the horns of a dilemma, because he will take out on your daughter anything you do against him. If you force them to leave, you face the probability that the girl will lead a miserable life with this tyrant. If you, your husband or any relative had the strength or character to give this minor depot a good tongue-lashing, it would be effective. But you are too mild a person to do it. Unless your daughter is very young, you would be justified in making them leave.

No young man should be permitted to take on the authority your son-in-law has assumed. Try to take a firm stand against him and give him a choice of improving his disposition or leav[illegible] your home. Furthermore, you should demand a more adequate compensation for their keep. This whole situation is one that can become enormously complicated unless checked, with everyone suffering through one person's outrageous conduct. Your daughter should have something to say about it, too, but apparently the young man has her completely befuddled. Realize, and remember, that it's your right to run your home as you wish, not as someone else dictates. The fact that it is your home should be impressed on all comers.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: Is it possible to have a wedding anniversary party when one of the parties has passed away? My sister always had a big anniversary party — this year would have been the 25th. Unfortunately her husband died two years ago, but we would like to observe the day anyway. J. K.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: I'm sorry, but it would be in very poor taste to have a celebration under these circumstances. A wedding anniversary is a day of remembrance for husband and wife, rather than for the families of either one. Spend the day with your sister, and do what you can to make her happy. Talk to her of her husband and let her relate some of her happy memories. That would be the kindest thing you could do to keep alive the true meaning of a wedding anniversary.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I am a widow, 36 years of age, still attractive and good company. Yet people tell me I'll never have a chance to remarry because of my two children. They are teen-agers now, and I know it won't be long before they marry and I'm left alone. Is there really no hope of future happiness for a widow. Lola.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Statistically, widows have a tremendous record of remarriage, so don't give up hope. And don't put yourself into a wheelchair yet. Thirty-six is still young, and you apparently haven't let old age get even a faint hold on your life. Keep your good spirits and your attractive personality. You won't lack friends.

Not A Crime For Women To Fib On Ages

MONTREAL (CP) — Should a woman be allowed to fib a little about her age—even on official documents?

Montreal judges think it's no crime. One says it's "almost criminal" to ask a woman's age.

The judges presented a cross-section of opinion on a New York case in which Mrs. Muriel Nicholson, an attractive blonde, told a panel of three judges that "a woman's age is always kind of secret and anyone should not probe too far when she has passed the 32-year mark."

The panel, which included former New York mayor Vincent R. Impellitteri, quashed a charge that Mrs. Nicholson had given three different birth dates on her automobile registration.

Montreal judge Eugene Lafontaine, noted for his crack-down on speeding drivers, went a step further.

"U.S. judges may consider that it is not a crime but I think that it is almost criminal to request a woman's age from her," he said. "It's a serious indiscretion."

FUND REPORTS

MONTREAL (CP) — Burial for 14,931 indigent veterans of Canada's armed forces has been arranged and paid for by the Last Post Fund during its 45 years of existence, reported Norman Holland, president of the fund's Dominion council and Quebec branch Thursday. The council and Quebec branch are holding a joint annual meeting here.

THE EXPERTS SAY:

Toronto Is Fast Becoming Fashion Modelling Centre

By PAULINE KENNEDY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP) — Three top fashion model experts, Dorothy Fleming and Eleanor Fulcher, agency directors, and Margaret Morison who employs models for a department store, took a long hard look at modelling in Toronto.

Their conclusions:

Toronto is fast becoming the fashion modelling centre of Canada in the opinion of all three. Simulation has come from advertising, television demands for commercial models and trade fairs and exhibition which lean heavily on fashion shows.

For the first time a market has opened up here for high fashion models, those exaggeratedly slim, tall and elegant clothes horses typical of New York.

The city has a limited number of top-notch fashion models and many more are needed.

LACK AMBITION

Eleanor Fulcher says Canadian models have what it takes to compete with the most sophisticated in New York, but she criticizes them for lack of ambition.

"Canadian girls don't take modelling seriously enough — they should train more and work harder," she said. "Then they would not find fashion photographers importing models from New York right under their noses."

Mrs. Morison said that New York's John Robert Powers likes to train Canadian girls. He says they have that "wholesome glowing look."

Qualifications for the job are two parts the result of nature and one part of training. A girl had better stick to her typewriter unless she is at least five-foot-five or taller, slim as a willow reed and finished with a face of the finest structure; preferably with high cheek bones.

MUST BE PHOTOGENIC

To get into the more lucrative photography end of the field she must be photogenic too. Another essential is an adequate wardrobe for appearances at special functions. No particular education is necessary.

Being a glamor gal is remunerative if you're good. Rates vary but fashion show work is usually set at $20 a show, with $10 an hour for fittings. In picture work it is $10 for the first hour, and $7.50 for each succeeding hour. Department store modelling varies from $60 to $125 a week.

A really scarce commodity here is the mature model, that handsome-looking older woman, trim of figure with fresh white hair.

For older women who are interested, the prerequisites are pure white hair, a size 16 to 18 figure and height ranging from five-foot-seven up. She should have a fresh, youngish face and weigh about 130 pounds.

Readers' Friday Column By Mary Moore

QUESTION: Here I am at last after being a fan of yours for years. Thank you so much for help and enjoyment your column has been with its original recipes, helpful hints and peppy spurs toward good nourishment. What's more you don't think we're all millionaires. Your column is a "must". Daddy says Mary Moore can be Mummy's favorite cook as long as Mummy will be his. I claim your home town as my home town. Keep on telling us about Pete and Marianne. Most of us have children ourselves. It makes you one of us and not a stand-offish "efficiency expert." You sound like a happy busy family. I have a few little hints to pass along. Being on a low-sugar diet I wonder how many mothers do prunes my way: I fill a quarter sealer ½ to 2/3 full of prunes, a few shavings of orange or lemon peel and juice of either, then fill the jar to the brim with boiling water and seal. The jar is left handy for 2 or 3 days so it can be given a good shake to loosen the prunes and allow better absorption of liquid. Or boil up leftover juices from canned fruits and pour over prunes). They become plump and soft and come clean from stones. I chill them before serving. About wheat germ: some mothers in our neghborhood have been wondering how to give it to their families other than in porridge. I'm sure they saw your two recipes the other night and will make good use of them but here are a few ways, my fussy family approve: (1) I replace the breadcrumbs (or rolled oats) in meat loaf with the same amout of fresh wheat germ. (2) Replace ½ cup of bran called for in bran muffin recipe with the same amount of wheat germ. (3) When making two of our favorite desserts, apple or rhubarb crisp, my topping is made thus: ⅓ cup flour, ⅓ cup wheat germ, ¼ cup quick oats, ½ cup brown sugar. Cut in ⅓ to ½ cup m[illegible]rine and a pinch of mace, nutmeg or cinnamon. Also try ¼ cup molasses over the apples instead of sugar for a different but delightful flavor and a handful of raisins or chopped dates in with the rhubarb for richness and to help cut down on the amount of sugar. Some lady wrote to you about using milk as the liquid in pastry for nourishment. An English trick that is. I wonder how many of your readers have tried using lemon juice as their pastry liquid when making lemon or apple pie, or your delicious cottage cheese pie? Or orange juice for raisin, mince, date or chocolate pie pastry. There's a few more vitamins—or do they bake away in the oven? I hope not. Would you please tell your readers once again that fresh wheat germ is mild in flavor and odor without any strong or rancid taste or smell. A neighbor of mine was unlucky enough to get a package that was far from fresh and it has put her and family off wheat germ "forever". I have to keep my sugar and starch consumption to a minimum; not allowed pastry. If I made graham-cracker crust for gelatin-fruit pie, what is the [illegible]m in sugar and margarine [illegible]e and still have it tasy for my family? Do graham crackers have as good food value as whole wheat bread? Please tell Marianne another of her mother's fans wishes her all the happiness possible, she and her future husband both, as it takes two to make a marriage.—Mrs. J. R.

ANSWER: Now what can I tell a gal like you about cooking? I can say this: I really blushed to reprint your complimentary letter and thank you for your good wishes to Marianne and Herbie. Prospects for a happy marriage are tops. One of my recipes for graham cracker crust uses as little as ¼ cup each sugar and melted butter or margarine to each cup of fine graham cracker crumbs. You could try cutting that down to 3 tablespoons each sugar and butter to 1 cup crumbs. If it is ice cold when cut I don't think it will crumble. No, weight for weight, graham crackers are not as good as whole wheat bread, but I think you are splitting hairs. A 2-inch piece of graham crust, fruit gelatin pie, three times a week instead of an allowed slice of whole wheat bread, should not adversely effect your diet routine. Write again. You give me a wonderful lift.

Railway Battle Called 'Pipe Dream'

HAMILTON (CP) — "Somebody is having a pipe dream," commented city clerk James F. Berry this morning in completely discounting a statement by a metropolitan Toronto planning official that "because of a battle with the railways years ago, Hamilton may be prevented from becoming another metropolitan Toronto when the St. Lawrence seaway brings ocean shipping to inland waters."

"I have never heard of any conflict, and to the contrary it is well known that the city bonused the T. H. and B. to come here," said Mr. Berry, who is acknowledged at city hall as an official with an encyclopedic memory of the history of civic business.

Mr. Berry said Hamilton is a natural geographic centre serving the rich southwestern areas of the province while Toronto serves limited areas east and west and nothing to the north.

Honorary members of the Children's Aid Society are Senators J. J. Duffus and Iva Fallis, parliamentarians Gordon K. Fraser and Harold Scott, jurists John DeN. Kennedy and W. R. Philp, Mrs. W. H. Gibbs, R. H. Parsons and Mrs. J. H. Vernor.

A financial report brought in by Blake Bell showed the society carried out some deficit financing in 1953. Expenditures of $58,609 exceeded receipts by $1,784, but this was balanced against a surplus of approximately the same amount in 1953.

In addition to a film commented on by Dr. John S. Pratten, the evening featured vocal selections by Mrs. N. D. Patterson, accompanied by Mrs. J. DeNure. Both Mrs. Patterson and Dr. Pratten were thanked by J. E. R. Munro.

On hand Thursday night was a delegation from the Lindsay Children's Aid Society. Here were superintendent A. Blewett, assistant Mrs. M. Fitzsimmons, social worker William Cummins and M. A. Collins, a member of the Lindsay board.

Refreshments were served after the meeting by members of the executive.

City Workers

fund, which he thought was sufficient to raise the maximum benefits to $40 a week from $24. Mr. Triggs said recent figures on unemployment had not revealed the number of people dropped from supplementary benefits, which had been cut off April 15.

With certain amendments, the meeting adopted eight resolutions prepared by the resolutions committee and added four more from the floor. They will forward them to both the federal and provincial governments as well as city council. The latter body will also be asked to adopt them.

Some of the resolutions apply to policy at all levels of government but the bulk are obviously aimed at the federal government. They are:

1. Adequate legislative protection against "dumping" on the Canadian market, resulting in unemployment for Canadian workers.

2. Ecourage and assist the development of new industries to process in Canada the greatest possible quantity of Canadian raw materials.

3. Immediate increase in unemployment insurance benefits to the top of $40 weekly, other rates proportionately and continuation of supplementary payments while the need exists. Unemployment insurance benefits to be paid from the first day of unemployment, coverage to be extended to include many categories of workers not covered by the act.

4. Allocation of government contracts to offset seasonal unemployment.

START SEAWAY

5. Commence immediate construction of the St. Lawrence seaway (with a rider, proposed from the floor, to include the power development part of the project).

6. Public works program to be speeded up wherever possible.

7. Government housing program to meet current annual need and eliminate estimated 700,000 unit shortage over next five years, to be subsidized to provide housing units for rent and purchase for lower income groups (with a rider, added from the floor, to place an amortization on mortgages held by owners who could not make payments because they were unemployed).

8. Financial grants to enable municipalities to adequately provide for those in need.

The following resolutions were added from the floor:

9. Lifting restrictions on foreign trade.

10. Increased assistance to south-east Asia under the Colombo plan.

11. An immigration policy consistent with the present employment situation in Canada and that immigrants be given a true picture of conditions in this country before coming to Canada.

12. To demand that the board of governors of Civic Hospital extend Unemployment Insurance benefits to hospital employees.

Ed. Humphrey acted as secretary. Ald. Gordon Powell represented city council and spoke briefly.

COUNCIL CONCERNED

"We on council are just as concerned as you are but possibly we are not as well-equipped as you to discuss some of these problems," Ald. Powell said. "I think it is a wonderful thing for us on city council to have such an intelligent group as you to discuss your own problems. Possibly you can find the solution better than we can.

"You have no idea how much I appreciate your efforts to obtain work and wages rather than a program of public works."

Gus Faux, president of the Peterborough Liberal Association, said he was attending as a private citizen but commended the committee on resolutions numbers 2, 8 and 4. He pointed out, in connection with number 7, that the federal government had made it possible to construct rental houses by joint co-operation of all three levels of government but so far, the provincial government had co-operated only to the extent that 1,170 houses had been built.

Irvin Yeo, president of the Peterborough CCF, said he was present "just to listen."

Messages were received from both Gordon K. Fraser, MP, and the Hon. Harold Scott, MLA, regretting it was impossible to accept invitations to attend.

Francis Taylor High Winner In Vocal Class

LINDSAY (ENS) — The vocal section of the Victoria county music festival was completed Thursday night with a fine night of singing by Lindsay and district and Peterborough talent. Nearly all those appearing in the final classes were pupils of Robert Cutt, Lindsay teacher. Francis Taylor, young baritone member of the Maple Leaf Quartette registered the highest mark awarded in the festival to date.

Another outstanding class was the operatic solo in which John Moore bass and Joy Nesbitt contralto tied for first place ahead of Mr. Taylor and Robert Trotter.

At the conclusion of the evening adjudicator Dr. G. Roy Fenwick in his final remarks said the Lindsay area apparently had a fine musical tradition which is being maintained by excellent teachers and "more than their share of good talent."

Glass Orders Suffered Only Minor Delays

The Hobbs Glass Division of Pittsburgh Industries Ltd., which was burnt out in a $150,000 fire early last Friday morning, has moved to temporary premises. For the time being "business as usual" is being conduted from the former Shell Oil building at the corner of Lansdown and Armpur roads.

Manager James S. Hendry said today that his firm had gone all out to get things going again after the fire. In most cases orders had suffered only short delays. Since the fire new stocks had been brought in and everything was running reasonably smoothly, he said.

Mr. Hendry was not able to give any information regarding a proposed new building for the company.

Two Firemen Burned In Tool Shed Blaze

HAMILTON (CP) — Two firemen were burned and one injured while fighting a fire at a tool shed on the Steel Company of Canada property at the foot of Ray street late Thursday.

Lorne Henderson and Earl Pearson suffered burned hands while Jack Spurgeon received an elbow injury when he was hit by a steel chain swinging from a crane.

Damage to the shed is estimated at $10,000.

THOUGHT ABOUT LAW

In 1928, at the age of 33, Sir Archibald decided to take up Law. He passed his examinations and in 1932 was called to the bar and became a member of the Inner Temple. But his chief interest remained in the army. He secured his permanent majority in 1930 and became a lieutenant-colonel in the Warwickshires in 1937.

In 1939 he was made colonel, temporary brigadeer, and given command of the Nowshera brigade in India. He returned to the War Office as director of staff duties, with the rank of major-general, in 1940. In 1941, at the age of 45, he was appointed Vice-Chief of the Imperial General Staff. His promotion to the rank of lieutenant-general followed shortly after.

COMMISSIONER TO INDIA

During the post-war years he was selected to be Governor-General of Madras, India, a position which he held until 1948, when he became Britain's first High Commissioner to the new republic of India.

Sir Archibald is married and has one daughter, Harriet, 7, and a stepdaughter, Miss Sheila Stevenson, 23. Lady Colleen Knox is the daughter of General Sir Harry Hugh Knox, former ADC to the King and Adjutant-General to the Forces.

His Excellency's visit to Peterborough arose out of his meeting with Ald. John Dewart at the Royal Winter Fair in Toronto, when Ald. Dewart asked him if he would speak to the United Services Institute. Sir Archibald expressed a wish to visit some of Peterborough's industries and selected three from the list submitted to him.

The official invitation was extended last year by former mayor Hugh Waddell. Ald. Gordon Powell, chairman of city council's legal and reception committee is in charge of arrangements.

London Gives Sovereign Tumultuous Welcome

Guns Thunder Noisy Salute, Crowds Pack City

LONDON Reuters—A huge, cheering crowd today welcomed Queen Elizabeth home as she drove in state through the gates of Buckingham Palace at the end of her six-month world tour.

A roar greeted the open carriage carrying the Queen, the Duke of Edinburgh and their two children from Westminster pier in the shadow of the Houses of Parliament.

A flood of people stormed across the wide square in front of the palace once the carriage had gone inside and chants of "We want the Queen' began.

In a few minutes the Queen, the duke and their children came out on a balcony on the palace facade and waved. The cheering mounted to a new pitch.

Drizzling rain failed to dampen the crowd's enthusiasm as London refused to let the festive day end.

HOST OF OFFICIALS

A host of officials, including Prime Minister Churchill, welcomed the smiling, sun-tanned sovereign who had arrived on the royal barge — a small power cruiser — shortly before nearby Big Ben struck 3:30 p.m. (10:30 a.m. EDT).

The 79-year-old statesman is the centre of renewed speculation that he will soon retire from the premiership. August has been mentioned as the probable time and Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden as his likely successor.

Churchill has said only that he intends to stay in office as long as he feels able. He looked very fit today.

Marciano Denies Wife In Hiding

Anonymous Letter Threatening Family Blamed For Visit

NEW YORK (CP)—Al Weill, manager of heavyweight champion Rocky Marciano, said at the fighter's training camp today that Marciano's wife and infant daughter are in Canada "just to see friends."

He said that there was no connection between the visit and a threatening letter Marciano received "several months ago" that his family will be harmed unless he throws his title match with Ezzard Charles June 17.

Weill, pointing out that the champion's wife is never present while Marciano is training, said that it was just a friendly visit and that he had paid no attention to the threat.

ANONYMOUS LETTER

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto Star says today that an anonymous letter to world heavyweight boxing champion Rocky Marciano, threatening his wife and baby unless he throws his June 17 fight with Ezzard Charles, has driven his wife to take refuge in Ontario.

The newspaper says in a front-page story that 23-year-old Mrs. Barbara Marciano and her 17-month-old baby, Mary Anne, arrived "four days ago to visit some old friends living in Ontario."

The newspaper gave no clue as as to the Marciano's whereabouts but Star staff writer Angela Burke quoted Mrs. Marciano as saying today "she had never seen her husband so concerned before over an anonymous letter."

"Rocky has received a lot of crank letters and he doesn't get upset easily," Mrs. Marciano was quoted as saying. "But this is the first time he has ever been sent one in which the baby and I were threatened. It has scared us both to death."

MRS. MARCIANO ARMED

The Star story says that where she is now living Mrs. Marciano has handy a revolver "that would be used against any and all intruders." It adds that though there is no armed guard posted near, she "is constantly surrounded by her friends and their servants."

The threatening letter to the world champion was made up of words and letters clipped from newspaper type. It was mailed from Philadelphia, delivered to the Marciano address at Brockton, Mass., and forwarded to Rocky at his training camp.

The Star says that on receiving the letter Marciano informed the police and telephoned his wife in Mexico to come home at once.

Order Investigation

PARIS Reuters — France today ordered her military chief of staff to make an immediate on-the-spot investigation in Indo-China. Gen. Paul Ely and Gen. Albert Salan, inspector-general of territorial defence, were given the emergency assignment by the national defence comittee in Paris. Gen. Salan was commander in Indo-China before Gen. Henri Navarre took over a year ago.

Will Allow Deductions On Alterations

OTTAWA (CP) — The income tax appeal board has ruled that costs involved in making certain alterations to commercial buildings can be deducted as an expense for income tax purposes.

It granted in part the appeal of Boyd Building Ltd., owners of a Winnipeg building in which the Sovereign Life Assurance Co. of Canada is a tenant.

The Boyd company claimed $11,425 as an expense in its 1951 tax return, representing costs in making building alterations to provide the insurance company with more space.

The revenue department rejected the claim, ruling that the costs involved are not expenses but capital outlays, subject of capital cost allowances rather than deduction from income.

R. S. W. Fordham, income tax board member who heard the resulting appeal, said he found the principle involved so important that he referred it to the full four-man board.

He ruled and his colleagues concurred, that "where an owner has to make alterations that cannot benefit the building as an entirety and will only be of use to the immediate tenant, it seems meet and proper to allow their cost — with certain exceptions — as a deduction in the year in which this was incurred."

"In such a situation," he said, "I do not consider that the cost should be regarded as a capital outlay."

He allowed $9,330 of the $8,425 claimed as a deductible expense.

French Ask Evacuation Speed-Up

Wounded Report Decent Treatment From Their Captors

HANOI, Indo-China (AP)—The French high command asked the Vietminh today to speed up the repair of the shell-torn main airstrip at Dien Bien Phu so that Dakota transport planes could land there and expedite the evacuation of 450 French wounded.

The French mission, headed by Dr. Pierre Huard, flew back into Dien Bien Phu today from Laos carrying with it instructions from the French high command to seek agreement of the Communist-led rebels on speeding up the removal of wounded.

The French had mobilized all available helicopters and light planes to help speed the evacuation.

The first contingent of wounded arrived here Friday. They included French paratroopers, Algerians and Foreign Legionnaires.

DECENTLY TREATED

PARIS (Reuters) — The first French wounded evacuated from Dien Bien Phu reported they had been decently treated by the Vietminh rebels, reports from Indo-China received here today said.

Communist doctors and medical orderlies behaved "coldly but correctly" when the French helicopters landed Friday in the ruins of the northern Indo-China fortress, according to reports from Hanoi.

The wounded men were brought to the waiting planes in trucks, accompanied by Vietminh medical orderlies, while doctors followed in jeeps.

SPOKE FINE FRENCH

The doctors, who spoke perfect French, shook hands with the French pilots and an air force nurse, Monique Gilles, who had come to Dien Bien Phu.

No other Frenchmen were seen apart from the wounded who were to be evacuated.

The rebels appeared to lack most medicines except sulfa and anti-malaria drugs. But they changed the wounded men's bandages and gave them emergency treatment.

The French said the helicopter which brought out the first load from Dien Bien Phu was "blocked in" for hours by bad weather. The Fly Sailors From Britain To Handle Ship

MONTREAL (CP)—The British freighter Shelldrake, strike-bound in Montreal for a week, sailed early today with a replacement crew flown from Britain.

Shipowners declined to disclose destination of the ship.

Meanwhile, two other British ships engaged in the Canadian coastal trade remained tied up by the strike for higher pay. There were reports the strike might spread to another British ship during the week-end.

The walkout started last Saturday when 18 men of the Shelldrake claimed they could not work in Canada at the prevailing British wage. They said their minimum pay is approximately $77 a month compared with a Canadian minimum of $204.

REFUSED TO SAIL

The men were arrested for allegedly refusing to sail the ship out of port. They pleaded not guilty in court and were ordered to appear May 18 for trial.

The strike spread Monday to the Cibou, another British ship engaged in the Canadian coastal trade. A third ship—the Mont Alta—was deserted in Sorel, Que.

There were reports on the waterfront that the strike will spread to the Rushwood, a British collier due here during the weekend.

Eleven Arabian firemen and engine-room hands of the Cibou returned to work Friday but the ship remained tied up at the dock. The ship's remaining 18 crew members were charged in court with being absent without leave. They pleaded not guilty and were ordered for trial May 18.

Strong Earthquake Shakes Up Seattle

SEATTLE (AP) — A strong earthquake, which set telephone poles to swaying and buildings quivering, shook this city at 5:02 a.m. PST (9:02 a.m. EDT) today.

The tremor was felt in all sections of the city.

There were no immediate reports of damage.

The Washington state patrol said its officers reported the quake was felt as far south as Olympia, some 65 miles from here.

Seattle police said they had received reports from all parts of this city of 550,000 persons, although there had been no reports of damage or injuries.

Worried About Differences

WASHINGTON (AP)—Differences appear to be developing between the United States and France over Indo-China as Communist gains in the Asian war impose new strains on U.S. and French nerves.

Diplomatic authorities here are concerned about the danger of injury to French-U.S. co-operation in Europe as well as in the Far East.

The problem they foresee is how to keep forthcoming talks on the Indo-China policy of the two countries from turning into exercises in blame-fixing for the unfavorable course of the fighting.

The private talks are to take place in Paris initially between U.S. officials and French leaders. A French spokesman here said it is "imperative" to have the discussions in order to determine just what U.S. policy toward the Indo-China war is.

The talks will be concerned with the possibility of internationalizing the war, which means bringing a number of other powers into it, notably the United States, and with U.S. conditions for considering intervention.

State Secretary Dulles told French ambassador Henri Bonnet a week ago that conditions which Dulles had outlined in a recent speech were basic U.S. policy. Wednesday Bonnet notified Dulles that the French government, then facing a confidence vote, would like to consult with the U.S. government about the situation. The way was cleared when Premier Joseph Laniel got a narrow confidence vote Thursday night.

FULL FLEDGED FORCE

Meanwhile military reports make it clear that the Communists in northern Viet Nam are no longer operating as guerrillas but are a full-fledged military force. This puts enormous pressure on the French and U.S. governments.

The danger which some diplomatic experts now see is that the officials may engage in recrimination against the French.

There is already evident in French quarters a tendency to talk about the failure of the U.S. administration to do anything but talk so far. There is a tendency to emphasize the U.S. turn-down of a French request for air aid in bombarding the Communist attackers of Dien Bien Phu last Easter. The French then argued that U.S. air strength could save the fortress.

Doctors Develop Artificial Heart

TORONTO (CP)—Two Toronto surgeons are collaborating on an artificial heart and "deep freeze" technique which could give new hope to poor-risk patients in heart operations.

Dr. W. G. Bigelow told delegates to the closing sessions of the Ontario Medical Association convention Friday night of how he reduces patients' body temperatures drastically to lower the demand for oxygen in heart operations. This gives poor-risk patients better chances for survival.

Dr. W. T. Mustard explained a series of operations using an artificial heart machine perfected by a group at Toronto's Hospital for Sick Children.

Using the artificial heart, Dr. Mustard performed a successful operation on a baby last month. The machine takes over the heart's task of blood circulation and also oxygen requirements supplied by the lung. In the operation, Dr. Mustard stopped the function of the heart for five minutes even though it continued to beat.

Only monkeys and dogs have been used as patients in the deep-freeze and heart machine union so far. Although the mortality rate of hypothermia, the deep-freeze medical word, has been only 25 per cent, it gives no indication of the method's success.

Baby Born, Heiress Dies

PARIS (Reuters) — A baby girl was born to Mrs. Isabela Goldsmith, 18, Bolivian heiress whose runaway marriage captured the world's interest, before she died in a private clinic here Friday night.

The director of the clinic said the baby was doing well.

The baby was named after her mother, and the birth was recorded this morning at the mayor's office in Neuilly, a Paris suburb.

The baby was born at the American Hospital shortly before the heiress was transferred to the Hartmann clinic across the street.

The former Isabela Patino won headlines all over the world last January.

She and 20-year-old James Goldsmith, son of a hotel owner, defied her father's efforts to prevent their marriage and eventually got his consent to it.

Isabela, youngest daughter of Bolivian tin magnate Antenor Patino, was found lying unconscious in a Paris hotel room last Thursday. She was trasferred to the hospital in suburban Neuilly and operated on for a brain haemorrhage. Her husband was at her bedside when she died.

The newlyweds recently had been vacationing on the French Riviera.

Gangland Shots Kill Caduto

CHICAGO (AP) — Gangland bullets Friday night cut down Frank Caduto, 47, a member of a huge narcotics ring, just as he had feared.

He was slain in the same violent manner as was the leader of his gang last month. At that time he told police he was marked for death. He was right.

Police said at least two other members of the gang have received death threats and "are afraid of their own shadows."

Caduto was shot in the back of the head as he drove his car Friday night. His body was left sprawled in the middle of the street.

"Apparently he was shot by someone he knew and trusted," a police officer said. "He shot him from the back seat of the car, the same as Anthony Pape."

Women Help Get Valdmanis Bail

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Dr. Alfred Valdmanis, the former director of economic development in Newfoundland, was granted bail Friday when two women signed bonds for $25,000. Valdmanis himself put up personal bail of $50,000.

The mother of his defence counsel, Gordon F. Higgins, and Mrs. E. P. Kavanaugh, the wife of a St. John's doctor, signed the bonds.

Valdmanis has been under arrest since April 23 when he was picked up in New Brunswick and charged with defrauding the Newfoundland government and a German machine company of $420,000.

Premier Smallwood announced in the legislature that the government had taken out a writ of summons against Valdmanis for $270,000.

Valdmanis will appear in court again today.

Two Miners Burned To Death

MINTO, N.B. (CP)—Two Minto miners were burned to death early today when fire destroyed their shack.

They were tentatively identified as Lawson Flewelling, 32, and Roddy Lawrence, about 40.

The fire, of unknown origin, broke out at three o'clock this morning and quickly levelled the flimsy structure. The charred remains of two men were found by RCMP.

Frost Told To Relax 2 Weeks In Lindsay

TORONTO (CP)—Premier Frost of Ontario, under treatment for an old war wound in his left hip, is expected to leave hospital Sunday and has been ordered by doctors to spend a leisurely two weeks at his home in Lindsay.

Mr. Frost entered hospital last Thursday for treatment of a bullet wound he suffered in the First World War.

He said he has managed to carry on with much of his government business while in hospital and intends "to keep my fingers on things" while resting at his home about 65 miles northeast of Toronto.

Commenting on rumors around Queen's Park that a fall session of the legislature is being arranged, Mr. Frost said it is "wishful thinking." He said no thought has been given to such a move.

Pacific Hydrogen Tests So Successful Can Now Put Bombs In Variety Of Sizes

WASHINGTON — (AP) — American scientists are reported to have learned so much from the just-concluded Operation Castle tests in the mid-Pacific that they now are prepared to put hydrogen bombs in a variety of sizes into standard production.

It was for this reason that the United States was determined to complete its scheduled series of experimenal hydrogen shots, despite demands in Britain and elsewhere that they be halted. Evidence indicates that five tests were made—the three announced shots beginning with March 1 and running through the explosion of April 6, another about May 1 and a final shot within recent days.

This does not mean there will be no more hydrogen weapons tests at the Eniwetok-Bikini proving grounds in the Marshal islands. Refinements in future design and manufacture must be proof-tested.

But the days of big task forces for conducting tests—of thousands of men, hundreds of ships and a sizeable force of aircraft—are finished.

A nucleus of a permanent task force-key scientists, management personnel and some executives—now is maintained instead of creating an entirely new task force for each test.

Farmers Fear Mass-Produced Chicken Dinners

OTTAWA (CP)—A new way of mass-producing chicken dinners, the development of large-scale "broiler factories," has sparked a ripple of fear among poultry farmers.

The Canadian Federation of Agriculture said Friday that the development "bids fair to wreck poultry production as a farm enterprise."

With Canadian diners' taste for chicken increasing, output last year was estimated at $160,000,000 and the industry is still growing.

But the industry now is turning to mass operations through packing plants and feed companies, the federation said.

"They search for men who will work for wages for a few months and who have an idle building which might be converted for the purpose and to whom they provide the chicks, the feed and the medication.

"The wage rate is generally figured out at a few cents a bird. At the end of the season the corporation concerned takes over the marketing of the birds, and the business is at an end until the next season. . . .

"This is something which could well invade the field of other farm-produced commodities, such as hogs, with even more serious implications for farm people."

Duplessis Gives Settlement Hope

QUEBEC (CP) —Premier Duplessis Friday held out hope of a settlement in the dispute with the federal government over income tax rights and indicated he is ready, under certain conditions, to discuss the issue with Ottawa.

Mr. Duplessis told his weekly press conference he is willing to talk over the situation with federal authorities "at an appropriate time, appropriate place and under proper conditions."

However, he declined to state what the "proper conditions" for the meeting would be.

It was the first indication that a settlement was possible in the long-standing dispute that has resulted in Quebec residents being doubly taxed.

A new provincial income tax, equivalent to about 15 per cent of the federal tax, went into effect April 1. Only five per cent of it is deductible from the federal levy under the existing law.

Ottawa, while insisting on federal rights in the field of direct taxation, has said it is willing to talk over the situation.

Shipped His Tackle Customs Is Closed

On this bright and balmy Saturday, George L. Groombridge of the customs department thought he would shingle his roof. Customs operates on a five day week, and Mr. Groombridge seized this opportunity.

On this bright and balmy Saturday, several hundred miles away, M. L. Wise of Uhrichsville, Ohio, thought he would grab a spot of fishing in the unsurpassed Kawarthas. Happily he took his private plane aloft, forwarded his clothes and equipment (including 1,500 pounds of fishing tackle) to Peterborough and headed for the wide, blue yonder.

But when Mr. Wise landed at the Peterborough airport. he was frustrated. The customs office was locked for the weekend, and he had but one short weekend to see if Kawartha fish are as good as the chamber of commerce claims.

To the rescue charged James M. Fraser and the chamber of commerce. Mr. Groombridge came Mr. Wise's aid. Mr. Wise is now happy and the first complaint of the new tourist season has been settled.

"With my humble duty to Your Majesty I beg to send you madam on behalf of the people of Canada my deep and heartfelt good wishes on the safe return of Your Majesty and His Royal Highness the Duke of Edinburgh from your great and memorable Commonwealth tour which we have followed with so much pride."

Cragg of Sydenham United church, Kingston told the graduating class at United Theological College here. He said it was essential to keep the standard of sermons high.

Report Nurse Alive, Well

HANOI (Reuters)—French nurse Genevieve de Galard Terraube, the "angel of Dien Bien Phu," is alive and well, according to Vietminh rebel authorities in control of the Indo-China fortress.

Nurse Monique Gilles said today she received this information Friday from a Vietminh officer after flying to the fortress to help evacuate the wounded. Nothing had been heard of the 29-year-old Genevieve, only woman in the fortress, since Dien Bien Phu fell to the rebels eight days ago.

MAIN STREET TOPICS

QUITS THE THROTTLE

H. C. Batchelor, 45 Crescent Ave., Belleville, CNR locomotive engineer who brought his train to a last stop under his control Thursday arrived in Peterborough in 1911 from Worcestershire, Eng. He worked for two weeks at the CGE, and decided that factory employment was not for him. He had been five years on the Great Western Railway in England, and with that background he went to Lindsay, and got a job as fireman with the old GTR. By 1915 he was an engineer, and eventually "worked" the mainline to Fort Erie and Sarnia. He will reside in Belleville.

BLOSSOM SUNDAY

Wild cherry trees along many of the fence lines in the Peterborough countryside are in bloom. If there were a blossom Sunday in this section of the province it should be this weekend, although the extent of flowering does not merit that special designation. What is commonly called the choke cherry has a delicate beauty of its own,but most of the petals will be gone in a week. Apparently caterpillars are few.

Atomic Peace Plan Hits Old Deadlock

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (AP) — State Secretary Dulles disclosed in a speech here today that his efforts to negotiate an atoms-for-peace plan with the Soviet government has hit the same stone wall of deadlock into which all other recent talks with the Russians have run.

Dulles referred to the matter somewhat indirectly, but at Washington officials confirmed the impression his speech gave and said the negotiations will go on because the Soviet attitude is not regarded in the state department as "final."

President Eisenhower proposed Dec. 8 in a speech at the United Nations that the United States, Russia and other atomic powers set up a world atom pool for peaceful purposes. Dulles has negotiated on this directly with Foreign Minister Molotov at Berlin and Geneva and through the American embassy in Moscow and the Soviet embassy here.

Between the Berlin and Geneva conferences he presented the Russians with a general outline of how such an international organization could be formed. At Geneva he talked further with Molotov and got the latest information on the Russian position.

This position, which apparently formed the basis of Dulles' comments here today, was continued insistence on U. S. acceptance of a ban on atomic weapons. The U. S. is only willing to banish atomic weapons as the end result of a series of measures designed to prevent violations and assure peace.

GOOD FAITH

Dulles declared that so far this year "we have negotiated in good faith with the Soviet rulers in relation to the use of atomic energy and in relation to Germany, Austria, Korea and now Indo-China."

In a speech prepared for delivery at a celebration commemorating the Virginia resolution for American independence and the Virginia bill of rights, Dulles continued:

"Always there is a consistent pattern. Never will they relax their grip on what they have."

Dulles said negotiations are necessary to find out what the Russians might be willing to do, but there had been no compromising of liberty on the part of the free world, and no relaxtion of vigilance.

Deny Battle By Jet Planes

HELSINKI (AP) — A Helsinki newspaper told today of an air battle between jet planes of unknown nationality over northern Finland. But the Finish foreign ministry deied any such fight had taken place.

The paper, Uusi Suomi, said residents of Lapland, in northern Finland, had heard jets shooting and added "it is possible that American and Russian planes had been involved." The paper said the alleged battle took place May 8.

(A spokesman at U. S. Air Force headquarters in Wiesbaden, Germany, said no American planes have been in the area named by the paper. He said his headquarters had no knowledge of any such incident.)

Delegates Study Russian Shift

GENEVA (AP) — Western delegates took advantage of today's recess in the Geneva talks to give careful study to Russia's sudden shift in position on an Indo-China peace settlement.

The Allied group also took time out to chart its strategy for a series of private bargaining sessions with the Communists on the Indo-China issue. The first closed-door meeting is set for Monday.

Western sources voiced hope that the Soviet switch and the closed-door talks next week will bring the three-week-old parley to the hard bargaining stage and discourage the Reds from using it as a propaganda forum.

Foreign Minister Molotov uncovered the new Russian position Friday. He agreed to international supervision of any Indo - China peace settlement.

Molotov proposed supervision by a neutral commission without naming the countries he had in mind. Previously the Russians had backed Vietminh proposals for a mixed commission of Communist and non-Communist Indo-Chinese.

Western spokesmen reacted cautiously to the Russian move although a French delegation source said it represented a concession on "a most important" point.

MP Charges Post Office Using Political Patronage

OTTAWA (CP)—A CCF member of Parliament has charged the post office department with practising political patronage and has advised Postmaster-General Cote to "chop some heads off".

Alistair Stewart, Winnipeg North Centre, made the charge in the Commons Friday, basing his case on a file of government correspondence concerning appointments of sub-postmasters in his constituency. The correspondence was tabled in Parliament recently by the government.

Mr Stewart read a series of letters, requests to individuals to nominate suitable people for sub-postmasters.

In most cases, he said, the letters went to defeated Liberal candidates Peter Karaska and Frank Chester in Winnipeg. He said many were signed by R. H. MacNabb, director of the post office department's operations branch.

Mr. MacNabb, he said, was a "sort of political commissar for the Liberal party."

CONSIDER APPLICANTS

The letters, written at various times in the last few years, also said that if there were no nominees the department then would consider those who had applied for the jobs.

Mr. Cote, who has been postmaster - general since February, 1952, said that for years the department has asked advice on appointments from many people, including the Canadian Legion, defeated candidates, members of Parliament and people in the locality.

There was a considerable difference between a recommendation or suggestion and the actual appointment, which was made only after an objective study by department officials.

Mr. Cote said he does not know Mr. Karaska or most of the others mentioned in the correspondence file.

Mr. Stewart said he has never been asked to recommend any individual for a post office job and doesn't want to be. It was a bad system. Department officials knew much better where appointments should go.

Speaking during consideration of post office estimates, he said when he first raised this question of patronage Mr. Cote was pained, astonished, astounded and horrified and said there is none in the post office.

The Rev. Dan McIvor (L—Fort William) said that he was not consulted when a new postmaster was appointed in Fort William recently.

"I had enough good sense to sit back and let the civil service pick its own man," he said. The city's deputy postmaster was chosen.

"AS CAESAR'S WIFE"

Said Mr. Stewart:

"The minister protests his innocence; he is virtuous; he is as above suspicion as Caesar's wife . . . I have never seen such innocence. . . .

"I have given my honorable friend all the details. He may not have known about them but now that I have told him his eyes will be opened and he can go into the post office now, take a very sharp cleaver and start to chop off some heads. If he does that we might have a post office in this country without patronage."

Mr. Stewart said letters asking for job nominations also were sent to John Sinnott, Liberal member for Springfield, Man., in the last Parliament, and to D. W. W. Ravie of Winnipeg, manager of the Manitoba Liberal Progressive Association.

Mr. Taraska was an unsuccessful Liberal candidate in 1949 against Mr. Stewart in Winnipeg North and in 1953 against CCF member Stanley Knowles in Winnipeg North Centre. Mr. Chester, unsuccessful Liberal candidate in Winnipeg North last year, since has been appointed chairman of the Canadian farm loan board at Ottawa.

FOUNT OF LIBERALISM

Mr. Stewart said in one case the department apparently did not like the nominee of Mr. Chester and went "to the very fount and origin of liberalism in Manitoba"—to a cabinet minister from Manitoba. He did not name the minister.

(Justice Minister Garson is the only Manitoba member with a cabinet post. He was not in the House when Mr. Stewart spoke.)

Wallace Nesbitt (PC — Oxford) said former Liberal members or defeated Liberals are often chosen to announce government plans to build public buildings. He quoted a newspaper report that A. C. Murray, his Liberal predecessor in the Commons, had announced that the government planned a new post office in Beechville, a town in the Ontario constituency of Oxford.

Mr. Nesbitt said the newspaper story quoted Mr. Murray as saying he had received word from Postmaster-General Cote of the plans.

OTHER CRITICISMS

The postmaster - general faced other criticisms, and complaints during the day's sitting.

Donald Fleming (PC — Toronto Eglinton) accused the department of glaring inefficiency and inexcusable delays. The post office should jack up its service if the government insisted on postal rates so high they were resented by the public. His reference was to the April 1 rate increase, including an increase of one cent an ounce on letters.

Mr. Cote said postal service is done by humans and errors are unavoidable.

HAMILTON (CP) — St. Joseph's Hospital authorities report that the three persons injured in Friday's fatal car crash here are in fair condition.

Anti-Gambling Squad Raids House On Chemong Road

He and his squad are reported to have found some gambling equipment, and McMasters was arrested and charged with keeping a common gaming house. Cash bail of $50 0was raised for him and he was remanded to May 26.

The large residence allegedly used for gambling purposes is on the old Sanderson property, just inside the city limits.

The anti-gambling squad came up from Toronto for the raid. It is understood that no games of an illegal nature were in progress but some equipment was seized.

The royal party reached Buckingham Palace 20 minutes later after a triumphal drive through the streets of London. Thousands of persons along the route gave the tanned, smiling Queen a welcome rivalling the Coronation scenes 11 months ago.

SIRENS SHRIEK

Sirens of scores of river boats shrieked a welcome and church bells tolled in London and throughout the land as the royal barge touched the shore. Thousands crowded around the pier and thousands more lined the route to the palace.

The Queen's barge slid smoothly to the dock after a one-mile trip upriver from Tower bridge where the royal yacht Britannia had arrived earlier on a voyage from Tobruk, North Africa.

Aboard the barge were the Duke of Edinburgh, Prince Charles, Princess Anne, Queen Mother Elizabeth and Princess Margaret.

As the Queen stepped ashore to a thunderous welcome, the Duke of Gloucester, her uncle, stepped forward and kissed her hand and cheek. Other members of the royal family then stepped forward for a series of homecoming kisses and handshakes.

The Queen had removed a head scarf worn through the 50-mile triumphant procession up the Thames in face of a blustering wind, and stepped ashore wearing an orchid pink suit and hat.

Calm and smiling despite the battery of cameras and crowd excitement, the Queen laughed over a quip from Churchill as he greeted her officially as prime minister.

JOKES WITH CHURCHILL

Actually, the 79-year-old prime minister had donned a natty yachting uniform and climbed aboard the Britannia Friday night. He unexpectedly remained aboard until the royal yacht reached Tower Bridge.

After joking with Churchill, the Queen moved forward to shake hands with the Commonwealth high commissioners and other lines of officials from church and state.

Prince Charles, 5, and Princess Anne, 3, showed discipline beyond their years as, dressed in yellow coats, they stood obediently still for the official ceremonies.

THOUSANDS WATCH

It was a warm hazy day. The hills were green after recent rains.

Ships and buildings along the river were decked with flags. Naval vessels were drawn up on both sides as the royal yacht steamed slowly past.

Whistles shrilled a welcome and guns thundered a salute from positions on the shore.

The Queen, with the Duke of Edinburgh, stood on a platform before the Britannia's wheelhouse.

The slight haze partly obscured the view of the thousands of watchers as the ship passed Southend and moved up stream through the sooty factory districts and docks.

SUNNY IN LONDON

Many Londoners waited through heavy rain during the night for front-row positions at the Queen's state drive from Westminster pier to Buckingham Palace.

Long before the Britannia entered the river, the crowds outside the palace were so dense that it was impossible to move. Many had come from distant parts of Britain. Scores of foreign tourists joined the crowd.

The sunny weather brought a cheer. It poured on Coronation Day—June 2, 1953—and rain has also marred many other of the Queen's state appearances.

Cockneys in suits and dresses heavy with pearl buttons — the pearly kings and queens—made gaudy splashes of color in the drabber crowds.

People boiled tea over camp stoves, ate sandwiches, dozed on the sidewalks, gossiped with their neighbors and joined in sing-songs to while away the hours.

50,000 LINE UP EARLY

Police and troops lined the processional route from Westminster to the palace. Six hours before the Queen's arrival it was lined with more than 50,000 people.

Some found the strain of waiting too much, and there was a bustle as first aid workers treated them.

St. James' Park, on the Queen's route to the palace, was bright with beds of massed red and yellow tulips. Another popular gathering place for crowds was at Tower Bridge, where a launch waited to take Queen Mother Elizabeth and Princess Margaret to the Britannia.

The destroyer escort left the Britannia in the river mouth between Whitstable and Sheerness. The Queen signalled to HMS Duchess, last of the destroyers to drop behind: "Goodbye and thank you for your escort from Gibraltar."

PRINCE, PRINCESS, WAVE

Prince Charles and Princess Anne, wearing bright canary yellow coats, waved goodbye to the Duchess as she turned away.

The Queen was then wearing a brown coat and had a scarf over her hair. The duke wore the uniform of an admiral of the fleet.

As the Britannia entered Gravesend reach, running dead on schedule, ships sirens screamed a welcome. For a full 20 minutes tugboat sirens blasted out their famous "cock - a - doodle - doo" signal which they reserve for special occasions.

Ferry boats and other vessels sounded their hooters. Amid the din a solemn note was struck as one large section of the crowd on shore sang "God Save the Queen."

At Grayfordness the convoy was joined by launches of London's metropolitan police.

Every available inch of space on shore was taken up by watchers. They scrambled for newspapers which reported the early stages of the trip up river with headlines which proclaimed: ". . . And So She Came Home" and "This Happy Day."

PM CHANGES PLANS

Prime Minister Churchill apparently was overwhelmed by the occasion. He had planned originally to slip off the yacht, which he had joined in the channel Friday, and hasten to London for the official greeting at Westminster pier. But this morning he changed his mind and remained with the young Monarch for her triumphal ride up the 50 miles of river.

Children among the crowds along the river yelled with excitement as they glimpsed Prince Charles and Princess Anne with their parents on the saluting platform. High-ranking naval officers stood nearby and kept an eye on them.

In the wake of the Britannia, the normal life of the river returned.

JOSTLE FOR PLACE

As dawn broke, hundreds of small craft, yachts, motor boats and even rowing skiffs, jostled for places in the Thames to watch the Queen go by.

The first morning trains and buses brought thousands more people into London to join those who kept the all-night vigil. They headed for vantage spots by the river or streamed into Whitehall and the gaily decorated Mall, the two main streets on the Queen's brief route from the pier to the palace.

Most of the all-night crowds were women. Some carried babies. Warned by the rain - drenched rigors of camping out for the Coronation last June, they came prepared with blankets and flasks of hot tea and coffee. The first arrivals claimed places at Westminster pier 21 hours before the Queen was to land.

Before the sea fog closed in Friday night, thousands flocked to the channel coast for a glimpse of the trim yacht and its majestic escort of 17 warships, which skirted within a few miles of the shore. Hundreds of vessels of every type and size dotted the channel. Later, bonfires gleamed on cliffs overlooking the sea.

Excited Charles Nearly Overboard

LONDON (Reuters) — Prince Charles was so excited at homecoming celebrations today for his mother that the heir to the throne nearly tumbled in the drink.

As the royal yacht Britannia arrived at Tower Bridge, the five-year-old tot spied Queen Mother Elizabeth, his "granny," waiting to come aboard.

The prince hauled himself up on a deck rail but before he got any farther the Duke of Edinburgh pulled him back with faterly firmness.

The Queen frowned momentarily and leaned over the side, as if picturing what would have happened if Charles had wound up in the river.

Howe Predicts Great Future

SARNIA (CP) — Trade Minister Howe said today the future of the petroleum industry "promises to be even more spectacular than its past."

He was speaking at the official opening here of a $15,000,000 refinery built by the Sun Oil Company Ltd. on a 196-acre site on the banks of the St. Clair river.

The petroleum industry, he said, is typical of Canada's more progressive ones in that it has always been concerned with research and development. Improvements in the nature and variety of its products were among its greatest assets.

"Doubling its output every eight or 10 years is no mean accomplishment in any line of endeavour."

Product pipe lines to Hamilton and Toronto had meant lower prices than would have been obtained with older and less efficient refining and transportation facilities.

delay caused rumors that the Vietminh rebels were raising their price for carrying out the evacuation agreement reached between French and rebel negotiators at Dien Bien Phu Thursday.

(Informed military and civilian sources in Saigon voiced fears today that the Vietminh commander, Gen. Vo Nguyen Giap, is trying to gain important military advantages from the evacuation operation. This interpretation stemmed from Giap's insistence that the French refrain from bombing 70 miles of strategic highway from Dien Bien Phu to Sonla, east of the fallen fortress. The Vietminh said their own wounded are to be moved along that road.)

As a result of French and Vietminh negotiations at Geneva, Giap agreed that 450 French wounded could be evacuated from Dien Bien Phu.

Final Returns Confirm Labor Victory

LONDON (Reuters) — Final revised returns from Thursday's balloting in 395 English and Welsh local boroughs confirmed the Labor party's victory over the Conservatives, but trimmed the extent of the leftward swing.

Labor claimed Friday night a net gain of 430 seats in the 3,548 that were at stake, although Conservative headquarters put the figure at 409.

Earlier returns had given Labor a net gain of just over 500 seats.

Morgan Phillips, Labor party secretary, hailed the results of the election as a "definite indication" that Britain is swinging "even more decisively away from the government."

Labor's position on borough councils now is "stronger than ever before in the history of the party," he declared.

Labor, which formerly controlled 106 boroughs, ranging from small towns to big cities, captured majorities in another 11 Thursday, final figures showed. But other parties wrested control from Labor in four of the small councils.

With local elections fought largely on national issues in Britain, Prime Minister Churchill's supporters had hoped the contests would give a favorable guide to their chances in the event of an early general election.

Conservatives and their supporters professed themselves little disturbed by the results, noting that they still rule fully 70 per cent of Britain's local government.

Acclaim Recreation Group On 'Night With the Puppets'

The lights dimmed and Queen Mary's auditorium was silent. Popo the puppet began to sing about his accomplishments and from that moment on, every child in the packed auditorium was enraptured with the stringed mimics.

"A night with the puppets" was presented Friday evening by the Peterborough puppet group under the direction of Mrs. G. C. Pilon. The group, a division of the recreation commission, have been operating for less than a year, yet the production Friday evening was void of amateurish touches.

EVERY SEAT TAKEN

A number of children, accompanied by the occasional adult, were turned from the door. Every seat in the house was booked. The seats, however, in many cases were used intermittently as young children, boys and girls hopped and twitched and skipped in the aisles, delightedly. Mothers, child in hand, were noted making frequent journeys in and out of the auditorium.

The puppets and their antics seemed to please everyone. Their attire was colorful and effective, their operation relatively lifelike, and the settings, for the most part, were surprisingly realistic. It was amazing how closely their singing voices resembled popular commercial singers, though.

Included in the program were skits, vaudeville acts, and short dramatic sketches. Everything from a lively shoe-shine boy to a more lively (or nervous) skeleton, made appearance. There were lovers, and slaves; nice girls and witches; princes and tramps, and even a huge wet frog croaking his love for the fair princess. Her exclamation of love returned the sorry frog back to life as a handsome prince and the couple, sharing a kingdom, lived happily ever after.

Operators of the puppets were: A. Edmondson, M. Green, J. Henderson, L. Littlefield, B. Mathews, F. Scott, and G. Pound; scenery by, Y. Munroe, P. Tuck; lights directed by Y. Munroe; stage manager, M. Green, and sound and publicity, M. Callaghan.

Tracings Of History Discovered

North of Peterborough and at the top of this and neighbouring counties, prospectors are looking for—and finding—valuable ores in the Kawartha rocks, some of which make Geiger counters jump. This week three mining men from the Nepheline Mine at the head of Stony Lake were taking a look over some of the land south of their company's property and discovered more than limestone and nepheline. On outcroppings in South Burleigh township they found some carving; petroglyphs dating possibly from years before the first white man set foot on Canadian territory. There are outline pictures of birds, and symbols of other animals and of people; some fifty in all. They may not be hieroglyphs, picture-writing, but drawings carved in the soft limestone for the sake of ornament, although ornamentation on stone of an approximate area of 200 square feet in this rough rocky country is an unusual place to find art for art's sake. There may be a saga behind the weathered engravings. Our reporter's story and photographs in today's issue present as full an account of the findings as it is now possible to give.

* * *

Obviously the rock-carvings descend from a much later period than the era of the prehistoric Mound Builders of Rice Lake. The limestone is too soft for engraving in it to have endured for a millenium. This country's recognized relics of early times are few and it behoves us in this district to preserve what is possible from human depredation, and archaeologists in Toronto to establish their authenticity and period. We hope that Queen's Park, the Provincial University or the Royal Ontario Museum will send some competent persons into the rather difficult area to investigate the discovery. We urge that this be done immediately. It may not be possible to identify or explain the drawings; we remind our readers that the origin of the ancient rock carvings in Petroglyph Park on the east coast of Vancouver Island is still unknown. On the other hand, some relationship may be found to the carved ciphers on boulders near Rock Lake in Algonquin Park.

* * *

When we have a mystery such as this at our own back door we are impatient to have it explained or established as a veritable mystery. The Examiner has already been in touch with the chief archaeologist of the Royal Ontario Museum. We think that public interest and history will be served if experts are sent down to examine the carved pictures and symbols. Let there be light on our past.

Canada An Elongated Frieze

The celebrated English art critic Eric Newton recently traversed Canada from coast to coast, on a lecture tour. He was able, he says in his article in the current edition of the magazine Canadian Art, to get a bird's eye view of the artistic life of the Dominion. In his article "Canadian Art in Perspective" he cautiously remarks that although the bird's eye view "may have the advantage of completeness (it) lacks precisely the quality that makes any view endearing, namely the quality of intimacy". Yet from Mr. Newton's account, one senses he has got beneath the skin (or the canvas) of this country's cultural endeavours. One paragraph we wish especially to bring to our readers' notice:

One safe generalization, at least emerges from a bird's-eye view—that Canada's geographical shape and, to a less extent, her size, make the word "Canadian" almost meaningless as a descriptive adjective. Canada is, as it were, an immensely elongated frieze stretched across the northern frontier of the United States. Taken as a whole, the frieze certainly has a recognizable flavour which is neither that of Europe nor of the United States, yet the traveller who follows its course across the continent finds that it changes its character at least four times between the Maritimes and the coast of British Columbia. Nova Scotia and New Brunswick have developed a "Maritime style" just as different from that of the Prairies as English art is different from that of France. There are artists in Vancouver who would seem strangely out of context in Montreal. Environment does count. Within the framework of what has been termed the "international" contemporary style in painting and sculpture, which originally radiated from the Ecole de Paris, all kinds of local variations occur. Indeed, those variations and among the healthiest signs observable in Canadian art today.

It is the description of Canada as "an immensely elongated frieze" which interests us. The geopolitical notion of Canada as a rather narrow band above the U.S. border stretching from Halifax to Vancouver is not new, and it is still a true expression, despite the opening of our northern and central frontiers to mining and the military. When the description is also applied to Canada culturally it is something of a shock. Not because the band is long and narrow but because Mr. Newton sees it—in relation to Canadian painting—as a frieze; a horizontal series of related decoration or sculpture, each panel distinct from the other, but all running in a harmonious band. Mr. Newton makes his point succinctly in following paragraphs of the article, finding significant differences in four regions, four sections of the frieze.

A similar examination of other cultural activities would, we think, support Mr. Newton's description and make it applicable to other arts in Canada. Is there, then, no "Canadian culture" because of this country's geographical shape (the shape of its populous parts) and because of her size? Is a "Canadian culture" impossible?

Herein lies the value of Mr. Newton's "bird's eye" tour. He has been able to see and distinguish the separateness of regional cultural activity, but his eye has gone quickly and deeply—with an artist's sensitivity to the whole as well as to the parts—over the entire country. "The frieze certainly has a recognizable flavour which is neither that of Europe nor of the United States". There is something which he can recognize as of Canada, if not "Canadian". And the virtue and beauty of the frieze lies in the fittingness of the separate groups to the theme or purpose of the whole. Regional developments are good, for it is out of local flavour and provincial colour that the whole achieves validity. An authentic culture is the sum of many parts, greater than each, but impossible without them.

It is thus that painting in Canada has developed into the most important, nationally-speaking, or our arts. Mr. Newton remarks that while the Group of Seven found their most rewarding subjects among lakes and mountains, "their type of energetic symbolism could hardly cope with the featureless immensities of the Prairies, still less could it cope with a Canada settled and tamed by human beings".

Mr. Newton's intense but broad view suggests what we have long suspected: that there will never be "the great Canadian novel", the great Canadian poem, the great Canadian painting, and that there can never be. The country is too big, its geography and society too varied, and the frieze is over the architrave of the United States. There can be, however, a great painting, book or poem which is Canadian, done by a Canadian, in his own idiom out of his own region. And these will be the pillars of Canadian culture.

Flying Saucers

The furore over "flying saucers" of the past few years seemed to have died down. Only occasionally was it reported that the usual unknown object of tremendous speed—circular in shape had been observed. In the July issue of Man's Life, there is an article entitled America's First Flying Saucer. As late as August 1953, it was reported that Russia had developed—and flown—"a circular wing aircraft"—a flying saucer.

One of the most disappointing experiences to man, is the explaining, or de-bunking of something that has hitherto been veiled in mystery or plashed by intrigue. The reports of flying saucers and the prospect of an invasion from outer space (an invasion from Mars) have inspired several popular songs, and served as a theme for both radio broadcasts and motion pictures. However, the inventor of America's first Flying Saucer dismisses them with . . . "I am yet to be convinced that they were space ships from another planet".

The article is fascinating—resembling something out of a Jules Verne novel. But the prospect of an aircraft that can take off vertically, fly at speeds in excess of 2,000 miles per hour, and make our present super-sonic jet planes obsolete, is truly a terrifying one. The fact that a potential adversary possesses weapons superior to ours, (even though they fall short of a saucer) will undoubtedly act as a stimulus to greater effort on our part, and, incidentally, tend to justify the enormous sums spent on research.

NOTES AND COMMENT

On some courses golfers are now being driven from shot to shot on small motor vans. But until they invent a thing which hits the ball for you we intend to leave the game alone.

Last week Mr. Aneurin Bevan, fire-eating Left Wing British Labor Member of Parliament said: "I have always made it a rule never to make personal attacks on any of my colleagues". Nye seeing pie in the sky?

"I have had forty-one years of married life and I have never spoken a word of English to my wife yet", Lord Macdonald of Gwaenysgor boasted recently The language of love can probably do without Byron, Shelley and Shakespeare, but how does the good Lord ask his wife to turn off the TV set? And what's the Gaelic word for H-bomb?

Scientists And Bombs

By J. BRONOWSKI

Ed. Note: Dr. Bronowski is one of the leading British writers on scientific affairs. At present director of the National Coal Board's Central Research Establishment, he is primarily a mathematician, but has always been recognized for the wide range of his scientific interests. During the last war he joined Sir Reginald Stradling's team at the Ministry of Home Security, set up to study and predict the physical and economic effects of bombing. He was a member of the Joint Target Group in Washington and of the Chiefs of Staff Mission which went to Japan to report on the effects of the atomic bombs on Hiroshima and Nagasaki.

LATE in July, 1945, when they learnt that the atomic bomb was to be dropped on Japan, many scientists who worked on it at Los Alamos were deeply distressed. They sent a round robin to President Truman, urging that the scale and implications of the bomb were too grave, and should be demonstrated in some less deadly way. The then Secretary of War in the United States has since published the military reasons why their scruples were over-ruled.

Alas, history has not been kind to his narrow tactical reasoning. But neither has history healed the divided minds of scientists who shudder at the monsters which they themselves have conjured. When the physicists went to Los Alamos, they had, of course, no doubt of their duty. They guessed that the Germans were working on nuclear energy; they believed that such work would lead to a bomb; and they feared that the bomb—a monopoly of the bomb—would inflict instant defeat. This is the heavy gist of the letter which Einstein, after a lifetime of pacifism, wrote to President Roosevelt a month before the war. And in all these guesses the dutiful scientists were right. Nor can they be blamed for overrating the skill of the Germans, in science and in war.

THIS was not how the matter looked to the world, however, in August, 1945, when 120,000 Japanese had been killed in two blinding moments. The survey which Mass Observation made then in this country showed that public opinion was stubborn and hostile. "They ought not to invent such thing," said men and women. "We want nothing to do with them." And the most outspoken simply said—"Scientists—I'd like to drown the lot."

The hydrogen bomb has not brought the same cry in this country; people are less ready to shirk their own responsibility now. But I think the old hatred of the scientist still shrills and hisses under the records of Congressional investigations in America. For the American nation has always had a sense of guilt about Hiroshima and Nagasaki, which Britain has not caught. This vents itself on the figure of the scientists, powerful yet fragile, a scapegoat for a world that helplessly conspires its own doom.

FOR of course, the scientists, anywhere in the world, is only the scapegoat for the nations that set him his task. What are the choices open to him in the age of the hydrogen bomb? He can, early in his career, turn his back on his talents, if they happen to be for nuclear physics. The nucleus today offers as exciting a field for fundamental discoveries as the atom, fifty years ago, offered to Rutherford. It is therefore hard for brilliant young men to put it out of their minds, together with the lavish laboratories which Governments endow for its study. Yet the signs are that some young men, at least in America, are now reluctant to enter this cloistered work and are moving to other sciences.

There are older men who worked on these matters during and after the war who have since left them. They cannot lose their old secrets, but they can themselves refuse to make or share new ones. Each such choice is individual, an objection to war-work on grounds of private conscience. The scientists has the right to act so, as a conscientious objector. But he has no right to commit the whole nation by his individual act.

✧ ✧ ✧

THIS IS the crux of the matter. And this is why the community, in its turn, has no right to protest that. "They ought not to invent such things." To ask the scientist not to make, or not to tell us, the discoveries which we as a nation have commissioned from him, is to go back on our word. The responsibility for having research done on uranium or hydrogen, the resonsibility for having research done on death, is a communal responsibility. We cannot shift it to the shoulders of the man we depute to do it. He does our bidding as the soldier does, and we cannot ask him also to be the social conscience, and to judge on our behalf what should be done with his findings. If a scientist were to decide, single-handed, what should be done with the work his fellow citizens have asked of him, for good or ill, he would be doing what Dr. Klaus Fuchs did: he would be betraying his fellows.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE SCIENTIST, in short, is a member of a society like any other. Like anyone else he takes a share in the decision of society, but he must not override them. Has he then no greater responsibility? Yes; as a specialist, he has, I think, one special responsibility of enlightenment in scientific matters—just as every doctor has in teaching a community what is health, and every writer in forming its taste. But it is the responsibility of knowledge, not of power; help the community to form and to know its own will.

The deep responsibility of the nuclear and it must act not to impose the will of the specialist on the community, but to scientists, then, is to illuminate for all men the choice which his work offers them. He knows at first hand what his discoveries imply, how they change the scale of our lives, what can be made to flow from them if they are turned to war or peace. Outside his laboratory, his task is to educate us in what goes on inside it, and to give it a meaning for us. In a world in which statesmen as much as voters are ignorant of the simplest implications in science, this is a formidable responsibility. And it is the only democratic responsibility that the scientist can take. He has no other choice today but patiently to become a teacher, in a world in which distrust and prejudice is free, while much of his knowledge is secret. The disgrace of Dr. Robert Oppenheimer, who tried to advise statesmen in committee, suggests that he will do best to speak out to voters in public.

An American Opinion: SPRINGBOARD

Letters To The Editor

DAGGER AT THE ARTS

Sir: John Average Citizen seems to think that all the tax-payers money should be spent on sport. I presume he is one of those city dwellers who have never paid money for education. There are hundreds of people in Peterborough who pay dearly for education and pay taxes also. I regret he has no time for so-called culture.

Is it not through culture—we get the best of roses?

Please Mister John Average Citizen, by writing—do not thrust a dagger at the arts, for by so doing, you only abuse your own poor pen.

SIMPLY CITIZEN

WOMEN SHOULD STICK TO THEIR KNITTING

SIR: It seems everybody has a solution to the present unemployment problem but no one has the courage to say what the actual reason is that so many men are without jobs.

We will never have anything approaching full employment in this country until women once more return to the only place they were ever intended to work: in the home.

There are more than enough jobs to take up all the manpower in Canada, if the women would only stick to their knitting. How many children are going hungry and inadequately clothed today because their father's job has been usurped by some female who has never looked inside a cook book? The answer, Mr. Editor, would be in the thousands.

Don't think the women are alone to blame, Mr. Editor. Actually, no woman is smart enough to replace a man on the production line. It's just that they are the only pool of cheap labour left in the civilized world.

That's why I have to laugh everytime I read that some frustrated female is lobbying in Ottawa or Queen's Park for equal pay for equal work for women. Perhaps, when the poor things have to compete with their superiors on equal footing they'll find out that smart employers know just who is really able to produce. In that way this whole problem may be solved by legislation.

No, Mr. Editor, don't blame the women entirely. The present situation is just as much the fault of the men. There was a time when life was happier and healthier in every way, when no self-respecting husband would permit his wife to lift her finger to earn a cent. The mere suggestion would have been a blow to his pride.

What do we find today? Just the reverse. No sooner are the young married couple back from their honeymoon than the wife returns to her former employment in bank, office or factory.

And for what? So they can spend their evenings sitting nightly before a television set, passively absorbing the inanities of American entertainers; so that on Sunday's they can have a car to get away from the "home" that is not a home but a sort of two-person dormitory.

And when does the wife learn her domestic duties to cook and sew and prepare for a family? Don't be a goon. That stuff is for the birds. Anybody can dump the contents of a can into a saucepan. And who wants to wear patched clothes? No one but a drip.

By the time the children have arrived, the habit has become so entrenched that a change would mean too drastic a cut in the family budget. In fact with a child in the home, it costs more to live and it becomes more necessary than ever to have the wife working.

With no mother to supervise his recreation periods during the day, the child has no recourse but to hang around undesirable places and develop unsavory acquaintances. If you want to find the reason for mounting juvenile delinquency and the increase in divorces, Mr. Editor, just compare the statistics of the number of married women working with those before the war.

It is really humorous, Mr. Editor, to notice the unions making a big squawk about unemployment when they have been chiefly to blame for this situation. More than any other organized group, they have been screaming about equal rights for women. Why don't they wise up? Or are they just cynically opportunistic?

What has happened to our men? Have they no self-respect? Any man who would let his wife work is a spineless parasite, an economic pimp! If he feels the wages handed to him on a platter by his union are not enough, let him work for promotion like any self-respecting male instead of watching the clock.

Let us put the women back in the home.

"HOUSEWIFE."

Bible Message

(From The Authorized Version)

"And Jacob went out from Beer-sheba and went toward Haran. And he lighted upon a certain place, and tarried there all night, because the sun was set; and he took of the stones of that place, and put them for his pillows, and lay down in that place to sleep.

And he dreamed, and behold a ladder set up on the earth, and the top of it reached to heaven: and behold the angels of God ascending and descending on it. And, behold, the Lord stood above it, and said; I am the Lord God of Abraham thy father, and the God of Isaac: the land whereon thou rest, to thee will I give it, and thy seed . . . And behold, I am with thee, and will keep thee in all places whither thou goest, and will bring thee again into this land; for I will not leave thee, until I have done that which I have spoken to thee of.

And Jacob awakened out of his sleep, and he said, Surely the Lord is in this place; and I knew it not . . . And he called the name of that place Bethel . . . And Jacob vowed a vow, saying, if God will be with me, and will keep me in this way that I shall go, and will give me bread to eat, and raiment to put on, so that I come again to my father's house in peace; then shall the Lord be my God. (Gen. 28:10-13, 15, 16, 19, 20, 21.)

O magnify the Lord with me, and let us exalt his name together . . . The angel of the Lord encampeth round about them that fear him, and delivereth them. (Ps. 34:3, 7.)

How Britain's Bells Will Ring

(U.K. Information Office)

Bellrings throughout Britain are making plans to welcome the Queen with "Merry noise" when she returns today. Britain has about 40,000 voluntary bell ringers, men and women. A relay system seems likely to ensure that ringing of bells will be continuous across many parts of England for hours after the Queen's approach. In the City of London for instance, the leader of the bell ringers at St. Michael's Church, Cornhill, intends to assemble a team of 10 or more who will go the rounds of St. Michael's, St. Botolph Without in Aldgate, St. Botolph's of Bishopgate, St. Olave's in Hart street and St. Batholemew the Great of Smithfield, ringing for half an hour at each in turn.

Adhesives Should Adhere

(Montreal Star)

We recommend a glance in due course at the adjacent Letters-to-the-Editor department, in which a plaintively good-natured criticism of our newest issue of postage stamps is made.

The Post Office has been the target of many attacks lately, has admitted the justice of some of the more vigorous of them. It may be surprised then to learn that it has again failed completely to please.

The complaint is forceful and pointed. There may be differences of opinion as to what should appear on the face. There can be none about the essential of what is spread on the back. Taste in mucilage varies, but flavor is immaterial really. There are other moistening devices than the tongue. What is imperative is that the stamp, licked or sponged, stay put. The stamp that does not may be a thing of beauty but it is no joy forever. It is anathema.

Alcoholics Find And Take Roads To Recovery Even If There Is No Cure

By AN ALCOHOLIC ARTICLE V

Recovery or rehabilitation, rather than cure, is always referred to in the treatment of alcoholism, for there is no cure—at least to date. A cure would mean that the compulsion or drive underlying alcoholism would be removed. It would also mean that the victim could safely resume drinking without any damage to self or others.

All evidence, thus far, rules out the possibility of an alcoholic's ever becoming a controlled drinker. Once an alcohplic always an alcoholic, just as the diabetic always remains a diabetic. Both can and do recover, but it is a conditional recovery. Neither can ever forget what must be done to maintain recovery.

Treatment of alcoholism means stopping the drinking, getting the patient in good physical condition, and then guiding him out of his wilderness of mental confusion in which he has wandered so long. He has to be helped to see himself as he is, not as he thinks he is. Sobering up the drinker is only a minor part of the overall task.

UNDERSTANDING DOCTOR

In all cases of acute alcoholism, it is best to place the victim in the hands of an understanding physician as soon as possible. After a complete physical and laboratory check-up, the doctor will be able to determine if there are any serious organic ailments which might be contributing to the drinking urge. Or, he may decide that the excessive drinking is due to unhappy home environment, financial insecurity, or undue emotional strain. All of these aspects must be considered in determining treatment procedure.

There are many treatments available for alcoholism. However, no one of the methods is the answer to all cases. Among these treatments are: Alcoholics Anonymous, psychiatry, clinical care, institutional confinement, religious conversion, aversion treatment, and antabuse. The seriousness of one's condition, his financial state, and the general background of the alcoholic all play an important role in the treatment to be prescribed.

Psychiatric treatment helps the patient to understand his real problems, to undersand himself in relation to these problems, and then to help himself. The psychiatrist becomes a medical explorer, father confessor, friend, and advisor. He helps the patient to remove the snags and blocks of the mind which have prevented him from being a happy, useful person. This treatment reduces the patient's drive to prefer alcoholic unreality to sober reality.

The clinic approach is fast gaining acceptance in Canada where alcoholism is being recognized as a community health problem. These clinics are staffed with understanding personnel skilled in handling every phase of the alcoholic's personality problems and the factors having any influence on them. Clinics are helping many victims heretofore neglected. Jails and workhouses have miserably failed as remedies. Punishment merely aggravates the condition of any ill person.

Of all the known treatments of alcoholism, that of Alcoholics Anonymous stands out as the most effective, most dramatic, and most available for the greatest numbers. It is a source of unusual inspiration, guidance, and help to those needing and wanting help with their unmanageable drinking difficulties. The history of A.A. is packed with exciting chapters of recovery for thousands of alcoholics — men and women, rich and poor—once exiled beyond all hope of help.

There is no cost to this treatment—only the sincere desire to do something about one's uncontrolled drinking and disordered living. The door is open to any man or woman who has come to the conclusion that drinking has interfered with one's life, or threatens to.

The program of A.A. is based on the experiences of alcoholics, together with what has been learned from medicine, psychiatry, and the spiritual principles common to all creeds. A.A. is not a group of reformers, crusaders, or "holier-than-thou" characters at war with alcohol. Anyone may call A.A. for help, but it is essential to bear in mind that the person needing help must be sincere in wanting it. The sincerity of the victim's family or friends won't count, if the alcoholic isn't sincere.

There is no disgrace in seeking help when one finally admits that he or she is an alcoholic. To admit it is to be courageous, and it marks the beginning of the end to the disgrace which has undoubtedly been attached to one's drinking career. In trying to recover what has been lost through years of uncontrolled drinking, it usually happens that one gains more than he or she ever had. This is what happens to thousands of men and women in A.A.

NOT EASY ROAD

The road back to sanity and sobriety, usefulness and happiness is not always a smooth one. Where there is life there will be troubles. The alcoholic must always be alert to his personality failings, lest he return to his disordered way of thinking and acting—the formula for a return to drinking.

The following practices can be of untold help for anyone seeking a sober, happier way of life.

The alcoholic must be convinced from experience that alcohol for him means an impossible, unhappy way of life. Moderate drinking for him can never be realized, once a victim of compulsive drinking. Sober reality must be preferred at all times to alcoholic unreality. There must be complete honesty with self and others. One must learn to handle success as well as failure, and control self by judgment rather than emotion.

Self-criticism should always be preferred to criticism of others. It is indeed wise to try to understand others rather than forever seeking to be understood. Since worry is a major factor in the alcoholic's make-up, he should worry adequately about troubles at the right time rather than inadequately all the time. He should learn to concentrate on what he is doing rather than on what he is going to do next. Impatience is fatal!

Last but not least, it should never be forgotten that but for the Grace of God, a recovered alcoholic is only one drink away from a drunk, disaster, and despair.

Men and women of all ages and from all strata of society are referred to Brookside Clinic (operated by the Alcoholism Research Foundation of Ontario), for treatment by their family physicians, by employers, relatives, friends, and social agencies. Treatment services are available to any resident of Ontario who has a problem with alcohol and who has a genuine desire for help in solving it. Your inquiries are invited by the Alcoholism Research Foundation, 9 Bedford Road Toronto, 5, Ontario, or its branch at 221 King St. East, Kingston.

European experts on alcoholism last month studied the problem of what makes a person an alcoholic and came up with a different answer for almost every country.

The accepted South German habit of drinking alone, for instance, would brand a man as an alcoholic in France and Britain, according to the experts meeting at Nordwijk (The Netherlands), under the auspices of the United Nations World Health Organization.

South Germans in wine-growing districts, on the other hand, suspect a man of being on the downward path if he is seen drinking frequently in public, the report said.

Experts gave the following summation of what is considered to constitute alcoholism in various countries:

Australia—When a man is drunk once or twice a month.

France—When he is drunk daily and drinks alone.

The Netherlands—When he has seven or eight drinks and makes a nuisance of himself.

Italy—When he is drunk "frequently."

Britain—When he drinks alone, gets drunk at home, drinks in secret or beats his wife.

Winged Eye Over 12 Million Acres

Our Outdoors Editor Takes A Hop With 'Hap' To Survey Woods And Streams From The Air

One afternoon this week regional forester W. B. Greenwood of the South Eastern region of Ontario's department of lands and forests boarded Beaver seaplane CF-OCT at Chemong Lake. It was to be a district reconnaisance flight on an aircraft temporarily allotted to his region.

Pilot "Hap" Hoar took off at 3 pm with some trepidation about the weather. He had come down from Toronto after lunch ahead of a gathering weather front which was already spreading east from Kinmount to the Ottawa River. Shower patches send down pillars of rain and it was gusty flying under the 2,500-foot ceiling. The flight would of necessity be a short one.

The aircraft went over Bobcaygeon, turned east south of Kinmount and passed over Wilberforce, Gooderham, and Maynooth. Well below Lake St. Peter "Hap" turned south towards Tweed. The weather showed a clear patch in that area, but visibility was not good enough, by far, to pinpoint the boundaries of the vast South Eastern region.

In a rough rectangle bounded by Bowmanville, Kinmount, Renfrew and Hawkesbury, the area comprises more than 12 million acres in which there are 16 county forests, two river valley authorities and two township forests. There are also two provincial nurseries that raised and distributed 21 million transplant trees in 1953, and four fish hatcheries and several rearing ponds that sewed the great vacationland with 81 million gamefish fry last year.

It is a region where 205,000 muskrats and ten thousand beaver were trapped during 1952-53 and where 173 forest fires were detected from 20 fire towers, and sppressed, 90 per cent of the fires due to human carelessness.

None of the major pieces of equipment used to keep the region green, transplanted and restocked was noticeable from the air although Mr. Greenwood knew from his statistical records that there were 14 builldozer-tractors, 85 trucks, 50 canoes, 40 portable power fire pumps, 12 miles of linen hose, 75 outboard motors and other items on like scale.

The city of Peterborough, with its Lands and Forest's department regional office, is the top executive establishment. It has three district offices, three chief rangers' headquarters and five deputy-chief headquarter buildings, manned by a total of 200 employees.

W. B. GREENWOOD
Regional Forester

JAMES RUXTON
Tweed, District Forester

A casual air observer of the scene might wonder why this vast region of Government Big Business was necessary.

The main reason is that it is largest vacation land in the province of Ontario; Lindsay district last year rang up more summer resort sales than any other section and still has much suitable ground for sale. The cottagers must be protected from their own carelessness in the matter of forest fires; the Department protects them. They want to fish and fish hard; the Government supplies them from her hatcheries and ponds. People want to erect buildings on their vacationlands and the Department keeps the forests green through fire control to make the lumber available.

An observer might also think that some parts that he flew over were beyond saving. They had been burned over through the scant topsoil till nothing but the ribs of rock ridges showed through. Even these badlands were thought to contain wealth one day, for some areas are pitted with old mining shafts and dumps.

Owners of these properties had the same dreams as mining men have today at the bustling open-pit iron property at Marmora, the traprock quarries and mills near Havelock and the white scar of the nepheline deposits at Blue Mountain 16 miles north of the village.

Playgrounds, timberlands, mining properties: the south eastern region is wealthy. The Department of Lands and Forests as custodian just has to be Big Business.

A·F·I·E·L·D with NICK NICKELS

Four bear hunters from Detroit blew into town last weekend bound for the b'ar country 'round Bancroft. They needed licenses but they couldn't be procured although the C of C boys did all they could to help them (such as arranging with Lands and Forests for them to go ahead, licenses to follow).

They went their way, hunted and came back to Peterborough and left money at the C of C offices to cover the required licenses which were forwarded to them in Detroit. Though they got no game they said they enjoyed their holiday and were good sports about everything. We like the cut of such visitors.

Thousands of lures were cast into the dark waters of the Kawarthas this morning at 12:01 a.m., the opening of the pickerel season. Warming weather of the past few days and falling water levels augurs well for fishing success though fishermen crowded each other shoulder to shoulder on water control dams and along the banks below them.

Pickerel are the fish for the common man and are probably our most flavoursome, including the lordly trout. They are heavily fished and, being prolific, bear the brunt of Southern Ontario's tremendous fishing pressure.

We hope in the first mad frenzy for fishing pickerel, the boys will remember that the legal length is now 15 inches, that they anchor their boats and fish only with natural bait, and that they don't tote home more than six fish per day. We may hear of a few large ones being caught but these types seem to be taken in midsummer from deep, cool holes.

We Went Thataway

Everitt Davis of Jack's Creek owns a '29 Model A truck that is 25 years old. It saw its shiniest hours when it delivered furniture and rough boxes for an undertaker in Havelock. Its cab is cockeyed, its hood is loose, but the motor still gives forth with a full-throated roar, full of power.

Everitt took us for a short trip through the bush one day this week and we brought back proof and bruises to testify that the Model A will outstrip a mountain goat for getting places in a mountain goat country.

We started off on a fair bush road, sometimes hitting 15 miles an hour, in high gear. When the road disappeared Everitt wheeled through the bush guided by the blaze marks on the trees. There were boulders, cracks and windfalls along the way and though our pace was slowed to two or three miles an hour, in growling low gear, the car never stopped.

At one spot we climbed a granite ridge and ground along the top of it and dropped off a ledge in a perilous corkscrew turn.

"Might Have Trouble Getting Back"

Then we hit a mud hole. By the time Everitt shuttled the car back and forth in the gumbo to make track, the running boards were just awash. The Model A was not giving its best mud performance, Everitt regretted to say, and wished he had not been so hasty in taking off his nobby treads . . .

More blazed trail brought us to a clear, flat area that was the best piece of travelling on the whole route. We swung into a tight turn and stopped. After getting out and walking 50 yards or so it was clear why it was the end of the trail for the Model A. There was a steep precipice with a long beaver dam at the bottom.

"What Did You Think of the Ride?"

Everitt had us guessing with that question. We couldn't come up with a ready answer for the moment. It was better than walking, certainly. But we were tinkering with plans to have an international military observer corps convene at Jack's Creek sometime soon to observe how a tank can be handled in rough country and to pin a medal on the best doggone rough-country driver in Canada.

What that tired, bored, beat-up jalopy would do to a prim load of brass hats is amusing to contemplate. On second thought they had better not be taken for a ride. They might clap Everitt in the digger for doin' just what comes natchilly.

Pioneer Hardships And Death In The Wilds To Lakefield

By THE REV. L. J. DELANEY, BA., BD.

In September they were surprised and delighted to hear that Samuel Strickland's sister Catherine, now Mrs. Traill, had come to Canada and was in Peterborough. In his eagerness to greet them he decided to run the rapids by canoe with his brother-in-law, though it was nearly dark. It was a risky business indeed since they had never done it before and they were totally unacquainted with the rapids and sunken rocks. The family reunion in Peterborough was truly a joyful meeting.

The Traills were able to purchase the lot next to Strickland on the north (near A. D. Newson's). The account of their trip and early experiences are recorded in Mrs. Traill's book "The Backwoods of Canada." It is one of the epics of pioneer life in the new world, full of home-spun philosophy and the will to make the best of life as they found it.

The other sister, Susanna, Mrs. Moodie came to Canada in the same year and later moved to land just north of Lakefield in 1834. The Moodies ended their trials and tribulations in these parts by moving in January 1840 to Belleville, where 12 years later she published her well-known "Roughing 'it in the Bush". Let us see something of the hardships others endured at Nelson's Falls. In time progress there would make life easier for those who lived in the backwoods.

Mrs. Traill many years later in "Pearls and Pebbles" gives us an interesting picture in a chapter entitled "Alone in the Forest". This tells of a poor woman being lost in the woods and well-nigh frightened to death. The acocunt begins as follows.

"The first impetus that our neighborhood received was the putting up of a saw-mill at the Falls of the Otonabee, about a half a mile below my brother's house, and the building of a bridge to connect the townships of Douro and Smith, thus giving a better access to the town of Peterborough, then (1833) the only market for our produce and for the purchase of household necessaries."

"The proprietor of the mill was an adventurous young Scotchman, very ambitious and sanguine, but who illustrated the truth of the Italian proverb, "His beak is longer than his wings".

"He went home on speculation for a wife, and succeeded in persuading a young lady who had some money to accept him and return with him to Canada. Accustomed to the enjoyment of all the comforts which independent means enabled her to command in the Old World, it was little wonder that the young wife beheld with dismay the homeliness of her new surroundings in the backwoods.

"She had felt the fatigue of a journey through the sombre pine forest, and turned with deep disgust from the unsightly prospect of half-cleared fields, disfigured by charred stumps and surrounded by scorched and blackened trees, in the midst of which lay her new home."

ONLY A SAWMILL

"Where was the charming rural village her husband had spoken of with pride and delight? Here was only a saw mill — never a pleasant sight— heaps of newly-sawn boards, all the debris of bark and chips, and the skeleton frames of unfinished buildings scattered without order over the rough ground. The stone house to which she was introduced as her future residence consisted simply of two rooms on the ground floor and two small bedrooms above, with a kitchen, a wide barrack-like lean-to-built of boards against the main office.

"Yet, though very miserable at times, she clung with passionate affection to her husband. With womanly devotion she made all sorts of excuses for him; . . . . This love as it grew stronger, upheld her in the sad reality of utter ruin, for truly misfortune like an armed force came soon upon them, and every fair and flattering prospect vanished. Unable to command the money to meet the claims of importunate creditors, or to satisfy the workmen clamoring at his door daily for their wages, her husband was obliged to give up under a sheriff's warrant all the property he possessed, and to find himself a prisoner in his own house. Only on Sundays was he free to go abroad."

At least he could help her with the house and look after the baby. One day she went to Peterborough expecting letters from Scotland and on the way back took the wrong turn in the path. Her frantic wanderings far into the night were mercifully ended when she came upon an Irish family's shanty. After a most interesting visit, one of the boys, Mike, brought her safely home the next day.

FIRST DEATH IN CLEARING

From the same book there comes a touching account of "the First Death in the Clearing," (April 6th, 1834).

"One lovely morning, early in April, I was standing at the window that overlooked the lake and its dark fringed shore, watching the wild-fowl that were gathered in flocks about the pools of blue water where the warm sunshine had melted the ice My little boy was in my arms evidently enjoying the lively movements of the birds as they dashed and splashed the water over themselves. There were wild geese, ducks and herons, and above them hovered a big bald-headed eagle ready to swoop down upon any luckless fowl that he might mark for his prey.

"I was so interested in the scene that I did not hear the step of a barefooted child behind me uptil a little figure, wrapped in a faded tartan shawl, laid her hand upon my arm and in a strong Scotch accent said "Mistress, ye maun come awa' the noo wi' me to see the wee ane. The mither is aye greeting and sent

Trailermen Take First OLA Tilt Against The A's

Peterborough Trailermen, despite the loss of several key players from their 1953 championship roster, came up with a tremendous lacrosse game last night to edge St. Catharines Athletics 10-9 in St. Kitts. in the opening game of the 1954 season.

Backed up by the super-strong goal-tending of Moon Wootton and paced by the four-goal sniping of Russ Slater, the Petes overcame an early Athletic lead to register their win. The Athletics, with ex-Peterborough players Ross Powless and Roger Smith in the lineup, led 2-1 in the first period and 6-4 at the half. Goals by Derry Davies and Ted Howe early in the third quarter gave the double blue club a healthy 8-4 margin but that's when the Trailermen started clicking.

Harry Wipper moved from end to end in Garden City Arena to cut the lead to 8-5 and Russ Slater scored two consecutive goals to slice it back to 8-7, rookie Bob Curtis tied the score at 11:06 and in the last two minutes Slater scored his third goal of the period to give Petes the lead. Early in the fourth the fast-stepping Slater scored goal number four and while Al Frick did put the A's back in contention with a bounce shot later, Trailermen gained possession of the ball and kept the home club well out of range of their net.

BOTH GATED

One brawl developed in the game. During the third quarter, Don Ashbee of Petes and Doug Smith of the Athletics were given minors together for slashing. They clashed on their way to the penalty box and continued their fight for almost five minutes. The pair were finally separated and assessed double minors and match misconducts.

Russ Slater topped the Petes with four goals while two each went to Bob Curtiss, Harry Wipper and Denny Peterson. Derry Davies and Al Frick each scored twice for the Athletics.

Saunders Scores TKO In Second To Make Finals

By KEN ROMAIN

TORONTO (CP)—Jim Saunders, a burly, two-handed puncher, fought his way into the heavyweight finals of the Canadian British Empire Boxing championships here Friday night with a second-round technical knockout over Bob Richardson of St. Catharines.

Saunders will meet Montreal's Gerry Buchanan tonight in the finals of the three-day event. Winners in the 10 classifications will represent Canada at the British Empire Games in Vancouver.

Buchanan had stopped Pete Piper, the man who stopped Saunders in the Manitoba Provincial trials. When Saunders didn't make the provincial team he hitch-hiked from Winnipeg to defend his Canadian amateur heavyweight title won last year.

Saunders pounded Richardson along the ropes with a vicious flurry of blows. The St. Catharines fighter was on his knees when the bell ended the first round. The referee didn't allow him to start the second.

THREE KNOCKOUTS

The 24-bout three-round card on the second night of the trials produced three knockouts, four technical knockouts and some bruising fighting. The final 14 bouts will be fought this afternoon.

Montreal's Mickey Bergin upset Willie Barbeie of Toronto with an unpopular split decision in the lightweight class.

Welterweight Bill Stone of Vancouver, who twice picked himself off the canvas in the first round, let go with one looping right to catch Nick Tynes coming off the ropes. The RCAF whirlwind puncher from Greenwood, N.S., was counted out at 2:09 of the opener. It was the only punch that Stone had thrown in the fight.

Steve Phare star d British Columbia off on a perfect night when he knocked out Nova Scotia's Joey Aitkins in the second round. Five men from the British Columbia team won matches.

STOPS POWERS

Vancouver's welterweight Norm Jorgenson picked up his second technical knockout of the trials when he stopped Gene Powers of Toronto. The western coast team still has eight of 11 fighters in the finals.

A technical knockout was also scored by Charles Gilhuly of Melfort, Sask., over Tom Palmer of Champion, Alberta, in the third round. It was the same for Edmonton's Wilf Greaves over John Pope of Louisbourg, N.S., in the second round of their bout.

An unpopular split decision gave Des Archer of Regina the nod over Lloyd Lawrence of Toronto. The night before Lawrence had stopped light middleweight champion Paul Chyzy of Winnipeg.

The decision was strongly protested by the crowd as was Toronto's Hugh Lindsay's decision over Fred Deegan, of Nova Scotia.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

Andy Milne and the other Sudbury Wolves must have felt a little little after their last two Allan Cup reverses at the hands of Penticton in B.C. Up 3-1 in the series and leading in the fifth game, Maxie Silverman, Wolves' pilot, had a plane chartered to fly 'em back after the game to Sudbury, and they had 50 sandwiches ordered from a cafe, besides having given up their hotel Bingo! The jinx went to work pronto, and they lost that game and the next, the series being tied up at 3-all. They took a terrific panning from fans, press and radio, as they cancelled the plan, paid up for the sandwiches and begged back into the hotel. 'Twas like Cobourg grid Ghosts having a victory banquet laid out for 'em before the group final with our Orfuns last fall. Orfuns didn't co-operate, and the defeated Ghosts sadly paid for the spread but didn't attend it.

Petes' senior ballsters open their Viaduct Ontario Baseball League tomorrow aft in Millen Stadium, Toronto, against Ed Hosking's Oil Burners, champs of the Viaduct Loop last season. First time the Petes ever played ball on Sunday, but it's legal now in Toronto and they stage regular twin bills up there on several parks through the summer Sundays. While it knocks the local players' weekend all to smithereens, at least there's one advantage—no time is lost from work, and thus expenses are kept down some. The VOBL opener in Riverside Park will be May 24 (a week Monday) with Belleville Batas the Petes' opposition.

* * * * * *

He'll Make 'em Hustle

In playing manager Joe Lowrey, the club has a hustling skipper. Not only on the base-paths—where he leads in pilfering sacks—but as a pilot. Like Knotty Lee, who put the game over big here in the middle 30s with his hustle, Joe knows that fans get fed up on draggy duels and listless players. He is fully aware that the boys must run on and off the field, hustle all the way and talk that ball game up throughout. That's what makes a diamond game interesting, and it also peps hte players up, keeps 'em on their toes and ready to cash in fast on any lapse by the opposition. From early workouts, we think the Petes will be a hustling, scrappy squad worth watching in action.

* * * * * *

Following the first fray Sunday, Lowrey should have a good slant on his material. He has Junior West, Tony Kotowski, Jerry Frizzelle and Brian Wade for pitching, and hopes for one more hurler. Bill Huntley and Jack Donlevy are set for catching, with one taking his turn in the outfield. Infielders include Bill Edger, Freddy Garvey, Ed Redmond, Gary Kearns and Clare Ferguson. Outfielders could be Lowrey, Keeler, Bryon Young, Larry Foley and possibly one or two more good prospects. A lot of real hitters in that list, a team well balanced with experience on one side and youth on the other. They should do okay in the six-team VOBL this campaign.

Petes Travel Upstream

Only the game fish swim upstream. We've said it before of the Petes' Trailermen, and it bears repeating in view of their 10-9 opening OLA senior win in St. Kitts last e'en. Short several key players — and with others far from being in the pink — they came up with a great fighting display to earn the duke over the bolstered Athletics. Canny Russ Slater was the big gun for Petes with four markers, while other scoring standouts were Denny Peterson, Harry Wipper and Bob Curtis with two apiece. Goalie Moon Wootten once again showed St. Catharines' fans why he tops Favelle and Johnston as the best lacrosse netminder in the country. Derry Davies and Al Frick counted two goals each for the disappointed A's. This win will give Petes and their rooters a big lift. The team treks to Mimico Tuesday and has St. Kitts here next Friday.

Taylor Horse Good Bet Around Tracks

TORONTO (CP) — Horse racing has more than its share of maxims, adages and superstitions but, around Toronto, smart race-trackers say: "Never bet against a Taylor-bred in the Queen's plate."

There's justification for this new but potent adage. E. P. Taylor, Ontario sportsman - industrialist, has bred the last five winners of the Queen's Plate. He holds a strong hand again this year with six home-bred colts and fillies still eligible in the Canadian turf classic at Woodbine June 12.

In his barn at Woodbine, Taylor has a colt which may prove to be the fastest horse ever to set hoof on a Canadian track. The name of this chestnut flyer is, Queen's Own and, although he hasn't yet made an official appearance before a Canadian crowd, he is being quoted at only 3 to 1 in the future books.

To understand all this enthusiasm for Queen's Own, it is necessary to go back to the first start of his career at Belmont Park, New York, last Oct. 10.

When Queen's Own went to the post that day he was opposed by 22 rivals over the six - furlong course. Queen's Own finished second behind a phenomenal equine named Mister Gus.

CLOSE TO WORLD RECORD

They whizzed down that straight chute in the almost-incredible time of 1.08 2-5, only one-fifth of a second behind Bolero's world record for the distance.

Queen's Own was beaten but there is little doubt that he ran the fastest six furlongs ever recorded by a Canadian-bred of any age—not to mention a Canadian-bred two-year-old.

In all, the Taylor colt started only four times—all in the United States. In his second start, he finished second again, beaten by Supercolossal. He then was shipped to the Jamaica course and Hedley Woodhouse of Vancouver rode him to win by a nose from Chrysolite.

Throughout his short two-year-old campaign, Queen's Own was trained by Charlie Shaw who handles the American division of the extensive Taylor stables. Since returning to Canada, he has been conditioned by Gordon (Pete) McCann who already has won two renewals of the Queen's Plate with Major Factor and Canadiana.

Football Men Across Canada Pay Tribute To Foulds

TORONTO (CP)—Football men from all sections of Canada today paid tribute to W. C. (Billy) Foulds referee-in-chief of the Big Four Football League and pioneer worker in the Canadian Rugby Union who died early Friday.

The 66-year-old football executive suffered a heart attack last Tuesday and failed to rally in hospital.

Dr. W. A. Campbell of Kingston, president of the CRU, said Fould's death is "a terrible loss to Canadian rugby."

Roy Robertson, president of the Big Four and of the Montreal Alouettes said he knew of no one who could replace the referee-in-chief.

"There just isn't anyone I can think of who can take his plac. . . Evry time I had to call on him he was there, ready to help with his vast experience in the game."

MOST RESPECTED

Norm Perry of Sarnia, past president of the CRU, called Foulds "one of the most respected football men in Canada."

"He will be greatly missed," said Ken Montgomery, president of the Edmonton Eskimos of the Western Interprovincial League.

Arthur Chipman of Winnipeg, CRU past president, said Foulds "always had the best interests of football at heart."

Ottawa's football fraternity was shocked to learn of the sudden death.

J. P. McCaffrey, a veteran Ottawa football club official, said Foulds was one of the main framers of the rules of the CRU for the last 30 years and that it would be "difficult to find a man to replace him who would take the interest and the time that Billy Foulds did."

"GREAT ENTHUSIAST"

"Football has lost a great enthusiast," he added.

Dave Gill, president of the Ottawa club, paid tribute to Foulds as a "very capable and hardworking official" and expressed deep regret at his passing.

D. Wes Brown, secretary of the Big Four, said he had been a close friend of Foulds both as secretary of the club and secretary of the union.

"He knew his business. He was thorough and fair, and he'll be greatly missed around the league."

-Harry McBrien of Toronto, secretary of the CRU, said Foulds' death was "a terrible loss to football generally, and to the Canadian Rugby Union."

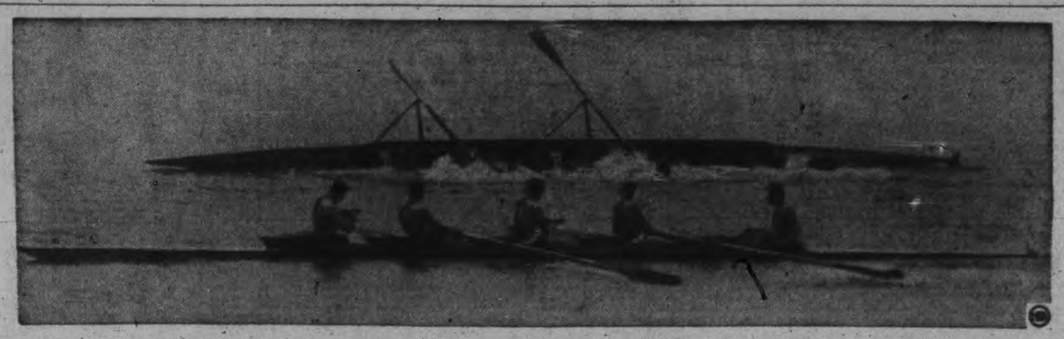
"He was a great man and a wonderful friend."

ORIGINAL CHAIRMAN

Original chairman of the rules committee, Foulds was president of the CRU in 1921 and again in the mid 30s. He was star quarterback on the University of Toronto teams which won the Grey Cup in 1909 and 1910. Later he played for Toronto Argonauts.

Surviving are his widow, a daughter, Margaret, and a son, William.

Funeral services will be held here Monday afternoon.



YOUNG MEN OVERBOARD—Oarsmen of Hyde Park's Roosevelt High School look on as Poughkeepsie High's junior varsity spills into the Hudson River barely six feet from the finish. The crews were racing evenly when two sweep-swingers caught crabs simultaneously, causing the shell to capsize. The boys were fished out by the coaches' launches. Poughkeepsie, long known as the capital of rowing, now has three schoolboy crews.

Yankees Bounce Detroit 6-4 In Only Day Game

By BEN PHLEGAR, Associated Press Sports Writer

With the major league pennant races just into their second month, nine of the 16 teams find themselves better off than they were at this stage a year ago.

Two are all even with their 1953 pace. Even the five who have fallen behind aren't too far back of where they were after the first month of last season.

Based on games behind first place, Detroit Tigers have made the biggest gain. A dreadful last at this point in 1953 when they were 12 games behind, the Tigers now find themselves only a game and a half off the pace of the first-place Chicago White Sox in the American League.

In the National League the most improvement has been made by Cincinnati Redlegs with the surprising New York Giants a close runner-up. The Redlegs were last, seven games behind. Now they're only one game back, even though they are laying fifth in the tight race.

SIXTH STRAIGHT

The Giants, who moved Friday night into a virtual first-place tie with Philadelphia by winning their sixth straight, are 5½ games better off than in 1953.

The Yankees trimmed Detroit 6-4 in the only day game Friday. In night action Cleveland beat Washington 5-2, Baltimore thumped Boston 7-2 and Chicago shaded Philadelphia 4-3 in the American League.

The Giants defeated the Cubs 9-6, Brooklyn absorbed a 10-1 thrashing by the Cardinals, Cincinnati edged the Phillies 1-0 and Pittsburgh broke a seven-game losing streak at the expense of Milwaukee, 3-2 in 10 innings, in the National League.

A run in the ninth inning on singles by Cass Michaels and Minnie Minoso plus an error enabled the White Sox to beat the Athletics and pull a full game in front in the American. Don Johnson, with two two-hit shutouts to his credit as a starter, picked up his fourth victory while working relief.

KAYO GROMEK

The Yankees kayoed Steve Gromek, who had won five in a row for Detroit, with a dozen hits in the first six innings. Gene Woodling led the barrage with a double and a triple.

Bob Turley won his fourth game and raised his league leading strikeout total to 53 by fanning 11 as the Orioles whipped Boston. Five runs in the eighth inning broke up a 2-2 tie.

A grand slam home run by George Strickland against Washington made it easy for Bob Lemon to win his fifth of the year. The Indians scored all five of their runs in the first inning.

It was a long time in coming, but when the Cardinals scored their first victory at Ebbets Field since September of 1952 they did it in fine style, with 14 hits. Stan Musial hit his 11th home run and drove in three tallies.

Al Dark and Don Mueller combined for nine hits in the Giants' success against Chicago. Dark hit a home run and four singles in five times at bat and also stole two bases.

Art Fowler of Cincinnati blanked the Phillies on eight hits as he protected a one-run lead from the first inning.

Allan Cup Goes On Line

PENTICTON, B.C. (CP) — The Allan Cup will be on the line here tonight when Sudbury Wolves and Penticton V's tangle in the seventh and deciding game of a slam-bang series that has seen the V's stage another of their miracle comebacks.

Each team has won three games and tonight's tussle will decide the issue.

The amazing V's, darlings of this hockey-crazy peach city, rule as slight favorites to take their third straight win in the best-of-seven series and the Canadian senior amateur hockey championship.

Faced with what seemed to be almost certain defeat when the rugged Wolves grabbed three of the first four games, the Warwick brothers led V's back with a pair of desperation wins to tie it up.

Sure Teepees Will Take Cup

TORONTO (CP) — The money boys were just about ready to close shop on junior hockey today and give St. Catharines TeePees the Memorial Cup for the first time in history.

That's how the form experts sized up things as TeePees prepared for their fourth game against Edmonton Oil Kings in the best-of-seven final. They lead the series 3-0 and Oil Kings will have to come up with some classy hockey to extend it.

Edmonton coach Ken McAuley, who guided Oil Kings to a glittering record of 61 victories in 65 games in the western Canada league this season, was still confident his boys could get back in the series. Oil Kings dropped the first three games 8-2, 5-3 and 4-1, the worst record they've had all year.

"We're not going to lose this thing four in a row," McAuley said at the team's motel headquarters. "I think we can still come back. If we didn't have that 16-day layoff, we'd murder those guys."

Not so, says Rudy Pilous, TeePee coach. He comments:

"If it is at all possible, we'll wind it up in four games. I know my players want to get it over with as soon as possible and if we ever start playing like we can, I don't think Edmonton will have a chance."

Keen Competition At Field Day Kenner Collegiate

Split seconds and fractional inches in many cases marked the difference between first and second places in running and jumping events at the annual track and field meet of Kenner Collegiate on Friday afternoon at the school grounds. Keen competition was a feature throughout the well-run program; students who weren't competing aided the teachers in an official capacity.

Winners were declared in two classes each for girls and boys, Grade 9 for the younger ones, and Grades 10 and 11 for the others. There are no upper grades as yet in the comparatively new south end high school. First and second-place winners in the various events at Kennet will compete in the district field meet Tuesday at Morrow Park.

LYON, France (AP)—Otto Bickenbach and Eugen Haagen, German doctors, were sentenced to 20 years at hard labor Friday for using French concentration camp prisoners in poison gas experiments during the Second World War. They were senteced to life in prison on the same charges last December but the trial was set aside because of errors.

A REASON WHY—Harvey Kuenn gives you an idea of why the Tigers have proved so rough in the early going. The Detroit shortstop does a jack-knife swerving around White Sox catcher Sherman Lollar's attempt at a lunging tag to successfully slide and score after tagging up on fly.

Council Agrees To Meeting With Firemen

The committee of the whole city council has agreed to a meeting with representatives of the Firefighters' Association, bargaining unit of city firemen.

Council previously turned down a request to bargain with the firefighters' negotiating committee on their 1954 contract, when the firemen charged that council's negotiating committee had not bargained in good faith.

Although some council members at that time expressed a willingness to have the firemen "state their case" it was held that this would not be consistent with normal bargaining procedure.

Council accordingly voted confidence in their negotiating committee and informed the firemen that they had been kept informed at all times of negotiation proceedings. But they turned down the request for a meeting with the firemen.

RECEIVED LETTER

However, the finance committee received a letter from the Firefighters' Association saying they were not satisfied with council's interpretation of clause 6b of the 1953 contract and charging that council were not living up to its provisions.

Clause 6b reads: "Any employee acting in the capacity of an officer, or any officer acting in the capacity higher than that for which he was hired and in which he normally serves, shall, when he is acting in such higher capacity or as an officer, for a minimum of one complete work shift, be paid for the higher rank or as an officer so long as he shall serve in that capacity."

ASK FOR DATES

Ald. Art Burrows proposed that the firemens' negotiating committee should be asked to meet the committee of the whole council and name the dates on which council had failed to live up to this clause in the 1953 contract. Ald. Bob Knox seconded his motion, which was passed.

Ald. Burrows said the meeting would definitely be for the purpose of negotiating a new contract.

RCYC TO CHALLENGE

TORONTO (CP) — The Royal Canadian Yacht Club is going to challenge this year for the old, dust-covered Canada Cup which it put up and first raced for against American challengers in 1896.

The cup, which hasn't been raced for in 20 years, now is held by the Rochester Yacht Club. RCYC officials are mapping plans for a series of elimination races to choose a Canadian challenger.

Havana Sweeps Twin Bill From Syracuse

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Havana's Cuban Sugar Kings are throwing their weight around the ball parks in their first year in the International League.

The Kings moved to within half a game of the second-place Rochester Red Wings as they swept a doubleheader from Syracuse Chiefs 2-0 and 5-4 Friday night. Havana now is only one game off the pace-setting Chiefs.

Montreal Royals dropped the Red Wings 5-2 while in the only other game Toronto Maple Leafs defeated Ottawa Athletics 8-5. The Buffalo-Richmond game was postponed because of rain.

BLANKS CHIEFS

In the second game Havana came from behind to score three runs in the eighth to gain the victory.

Outfielder Sandy Amoros banged out a ninth-inning home run that touched off a four-run rally and gave Montreal its first victory over the Red Wings.

Bill Powell gave up three Ottawa home runs but Toronto managed to gain 13 hits off three Athletic pitchers.

Appointed Secretary

OTTAWA (CP)—Dan Wallace, 43, formerly of Halifax, has been appointed chief secretary of the defence department. He succeeds W. R. (Dick) Wright of Montreal, now assistant to Donald Gordon, president of Canadian National Railways.

Senator Insists Complete Story On Conference

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator McCarthy today demanded the "complete story" of any part the United States justice department played in triggering army charges that he sought favored military treatment for Pte. G. David Schine, a former aide.

And Senator John McCellan (Dem. Ark.), senior Democrat on the Senate investigations sub-committee, said that if the Eisenhower administration blacks out details of a Jan. 21 top-drawer conference on the dispute between the army and the Wisconsin Republican senator it will have to "take the responsibility for denying senators the facts."

The double-barrelled demand on the administration came on the heels of testimony Friday, 17th day in the televised proceedings, that the executive branch of the government has clamped a secrecy lid on the now-famous huddle in the justice department.

Attending the January meeting there were Attorney-General Herbert Brownell and the deputy attorney-general, William Rogers; the White House chief of staff, Sherman Adams; and White House aide Gerald Morgan, United Nations ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge and army counsel John G. Adams.

SAYS SILENCED

John Adams, who testified to this Wednesday, said Friday that he has been silenced by higher-ups and can't go beyond his previous statement that Sherman Adams suggested compiling a written record of the army's troubles with McCarthy's office over Schine. This record later grew into part of the army's charges against the senator and two of his assistants.

McCarthy, referring to the presence of Brownell and Rogers at the January get - together, told reporters after the hearing was recessed for the week-end:

"I think it is important to know everything that went on at that meeting. The sub-committee must know the complete story of what part the justice department took in getting this case started, since the department is being called on daily to pass on vital questions."

The senator noted that it will be up to Brownell to decide whether perjury has been committed in contradictory charges made under oath, and whether there are grounds for contempt charges.

France's Slender Grip On Delta Shaky

By BORIS KIDEL

PARIS (Reuters) — France's slender grip on the Tonkin delta, her last remaining foothold in northeastern Indo-China, has become more shaky than ever since the defeat at Dien Bien Phu.

With at least 90,000 Communists roaming in virtual freedom through the delta's 6,000 square miles, French staff officers admit freely that the situation in this rice granary is grim.

And they also concede that France would be unable to defend it singlehanded against an all-out Communist offensive.

But they still hope that the monsoon rains, which last until September, will avert an immediate Vietminh assault against the principal French bastions in northern Indo-China, Tonkin's capital Hanoi and its supply port Haiphong.

About 40,000 Communist elite troops with a powerful array of artillery and anti-aircraft batteries now are free to launch out against the delta after finishing off Dien Bien Phu.

GLEAM OF HOPE

The only gleam of hope is the belief that these troops were so badly mauled during the 57-day siege of Dien Bien Phu that they will need six or eight weeks respite before going into action against Hanoi, 180 miles from their present location.

By then, the French high command reckons, some solution may have emerged from the Geneva conference—either a cease-fire or internationalization of the war with direct American participation.

But meanwhile the estimated 75,000 French Union troops, the majority of them Viet Namese, are watching helpless the increasingly daring exploits of the Vietminh inside the delta. Whenever they venture out from their defences the Communists vanish among the brown-clad peasants tilling the soil.

FRENCH CONTROL LIMITED

Gen. Rene Cogny, the French commander-in - chief in northern Indo-China, is in fairly solid control of only the main cities, such as Hanoi, Haiphong, Kienan and Nam Dinh. In the rest of the vast delta plain, including the immediate outskirts of towns, the French hold is limited to their defence outposts and day-time control of the main roads.

When darkness settles over the hundreds of villages of the delta and the French Union troops have returned to their barbed wire-protected strongholds, the Vietminh rules most of the area. Communist regulars emerge from their hiding places to join local guerrillas in sabotage operations, in drives for new recruits among the villagers and in requisitioning rice and other food.

The whole weakness of the French position was shown up a few weeks ago when Vietminh commando units raided Hanoi's two airfields, Gia Lam and Bac Mai, and destroyed about 20 planes on the ground despite French security precautions.

REBELS CUT LIFELINE

Another sign of French impotence is the fact that Vietminh regulars have been cutting vital Hanoi-Haiphong road communications almost nightly during the last three weeks. In fact the French authorities dare to use rail and road communications between the two cities only during daylight.

Gen. Cogny hasn't sufficient men to patrol in strength every inch of the road, to search and occupy the villages dotted along it, or enough bombers to raze to the ground the fortified Communist hideouts in the rice fields.

CCF Campaigns For Canadian Bill Of Rights

OTTAWA (CP)—The CCF has opened a drive to have Parliament define and protect the rights of Canadians through amendment of the British North America Act.

M. J. Coldwell, CCF leader, Friday gave notice on the Commons order paper of a resolution to that effect. The proposed constitutional amendment would spell out protection of freedom of speech, worship and communication through the press and other means.

It also would prevent excessive cruelty or unusual punishment for Canadians or subjecting them to unreasonable interference.

MIGHT LIMIT LIBERTIES

Mr. Coldwell said that a colleague, Stanley Knowles (CCF—Winnipeg North Centre), has pointed out that amendment to the Criminal Code, now under parliamentary discussion, spell out certain offences "which might limit civil liberties."

"It is therefore urgent that we have a companion measure, a bill of rights, setting out in positive terms the rights and liberties of Canadian citizens."

John Diefenbaker (PC — Prince Albert) has for years attempted to get a similar bill of rights adopted by Parliament.

Report Favors Hydro Plan

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian and United States governments, it was learned Friday, have received an International Joint Commission report favoring a $200,000,000 hydro power development in the Saint John river basin.

The government is studying the project, which involves rivers running through New Brunswick, Maine and further south in the United States.

The basin is regarded as having a potential hydro capacity of well over 1,000,000 horsepower, comparing with 2,200,000 to be developed from the Hydro phase of the St. Lawrence seaway at a cost of $600,000,000.

Newspapermen Watch Opening For Tenders

TORONTO (CP)—Highways Minister Doucett Friday broke precedent by calling in newspaper men to witness what he described as a typical meeting to open tenders for Ontario highways department contracts.

He read 182 tenders received for 48 contracts.

Four senior officials of the department were present. One took down each figure read for immediate checking for mathematical errors.

The invitation to the press followed published criticism of the alleged "secret" method of opening tenders.

Former Postmaster Given Easy Chair

WARKWORTH (ENS)—Oscar Phillips, former postmaster, was pleasantly surprised on Monday afternoon upon returning from a drive with Arthur Page to find an easy chair placed for his use in his home by his friends of the Warkwerth and community in appreciation of his service to the public as postmaster for 32 years.

Mr. Phillips, a veteran of World War 1, retired during the year and his successor is Mr. Fred Reisberry.

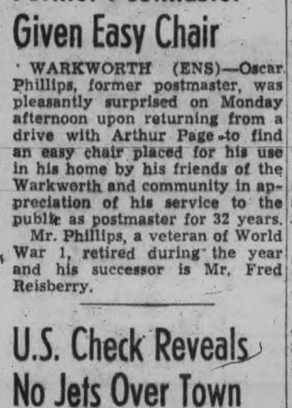
U.S. Check Reveals No Jets Over Town

DETROIT (CP) — Col. W. S. Patterson, operations chief of Selfridge air base, said today a thorough check of Thursday's flight charts showed that no planes from Selfridge flew over Wiarton, Ont., nor over any Canadian area during the day.

He was asked about a report that a plane which "buzzed" Wiarton might have come from the U. S.

The RCAF said it apparently was not an RCAF plane.

Startled residents of Wiarton described the craft as a jet plane. There are no privately-owned jets in Canada.



CHARGED — George Norgan, millionaire Vancouver distiller, is one of nine men, including two others from Vancouver, charged with evading $17,400,000 in taxes on profits made from the sale of Canadian whisky in the United States. Pioneer Hardships me ower to bid ye come to see till't."

"And who is that sent you?" I asked.

"The mither of the sick wean, Mrs. P., at the Falls."

When Mrs. Traill reached the house she found Jessie's infant deathly sick. There were further difficulties in the situation. "Jessie's husband was the overseer of the busy workmen employed at the buildings then being erected at the mills, and the wife had to cook for all the men. The master was young and had little sympathy for the poor young mother. What was a babe of the overseer's to him! The ready meals for the men must not be neglected, and she must attend to and fulfill her covenanted duties, babe or no babe. But some of the more sympathetic men tried to cheer her by saying the child might yet recover, and though they knew the hope was not to be realized, it was kindly spoken."

Mrs. Traill kept vigil that night to let the mother rest. "The first grey streaks of morning light found me still a watcher. The frosty air blew bleak and chill through the chinks in the imperfect wooden walls of the barrack-like building. Carefuly replacing my sleeping charge in the cradle, I opened the door and went forth to look upon the face of the earth and the heavens, for my eyes were weary and my heart was sad."

"Truly a lovely sight it was that met my view. The frosted ground was gemmed with countless mimic stars, glittering beneath as brightly as the stars in the blue sky above were gleaming ere they paled before the saffron light of the dawning day now streaking the eastern horizon. The mist was rising in clouds from the river where the rapids were tossing their white-crested heads beneath the shadows of the pines that clothed the opposite shores, grand and beautiful, untouched by the hand of man. What a contrast to the confusion spread around the recently erected mill and the half-finished, unsightly buildings, where heaps of refuse, piles of chips and bark strewed the ground!

"No one was awake or stirring—not a sound was heard save the wild rushing sweep of the restless river as it dashed over its rocky bed, unchecked in its downward course by mill-dams or saw-logs, its clear waters unpolluted by sawdust or bark, nor ploughed and stirred by steamboats and the rafts and cribs of the lumbermen.

"I turned once more to the contemplation of human suffering. Without all was joy and life; within was sorrow and death."

She describes the mourning for Jessie's first-born, the simple funeral preparations, and the little procession across the river to the burial ground.

"I watched them as they crossed the bridge and ascended the opposite bank, till the white pall was lost among the dark pines that marked the forest road, and then with heavy heart retraced my steps to my own house."

BRIDGE CARRIED AWAY

The little community had its glad days and sad days, its ups and downs. For instance, the bridge was carried away by a log jam in the spring flood. About 1839 "Herriott's and Thompson's Mills" were burned. Children grew up and new faces appeared. People died and families moved away. The Traill's moved to Ashburnham and thence to Rice Lake, to return in later years to Lakefield.

On December 8, 1849, the provincial land surveyor, John H. Roche, reported on the local situation to the commissioner of crown lands. He said that on the south half of Lot 17 (present main street, and waterfront) there was a small village site laid out. The north half of the lot was swampy but there weer ample facilities for drainage. The timber consisted chiefly of cedar, tamarac and pine. A mill was operated by Reid and Strickland. After giving further details as to property values, he stated that the success of the village would depend on a grist mill for which there was ample water power, and on the establishment of communication with the other side.

The village was due to see flourishing village days and new developments. Among these, long-desired, was a church.

Poet Laureate Welcomes Queen

LONDON (Reuters)—Poet Laureate John Masefield Friday joined the rest of Britain in welcoming home Queen Elizabeth from her six-month Commonwealth tour.

To mark the occasion, he wrote a poem, entitled: "On Our Sovereign Lady's Return to These Islands."

It read:

Once, when the sign of England was the rose,
She bore immortal roses, white and red.
What is she bearing now for Man's delight?
What rose, red or white?
Alas, what flowers blossom under snows
For barking foxes in a winter night?
We have a radiant rose, our royal head,
Now coming from the summers of our kin
After such welcome few have ever seen.
She is our rose, our Queen.
O soul of England, waken from the dead,
Let a land worthier of her reign begin,
A land at one, for harvests springing green,
In all wise ways a garden for the rose.

Quints Given Car As Birthday Gift

NORTH BAY (CP)—The Dionne quintuplets will be 20 May 28. All five famous sisters will be away from the family home at nearby Callander for the celebration.

Marie, tiniest of the quints at birth, will mark her birthday in the Quebec City convent of the cloistered Holy Sacrament order. She is studying to become a nun and will take her temporary vow and become a novitiate May 24 at a ceremony to be attended by her parents. She is scheduled to take her final vow in 18 months.

The other four of the quintuplets—Annette, Cecile, Emilie and Yvonne—will probably celebrate the birthday at Nicolet, Que., as all five did last year.

Annette, Cecile and Emilie are taking a domestic science course at the Institute Familiel in Nicolet. Yvonne, studying art at the Notre Dame Congregation in Montreal, and the parents, Mr. and Mrs. Oliva Dionne, plan to travel to Nicolet for the celebration.

EXPENSIVE PRESENT

The quints birthday present from their parents this year will be the most expensive gift they have ever received—a gleaming new automobile for their own use. It will not be entirely a surprise, however, for their parents gave them the keys to the grey coupe with blue leather upholstery when they were home at Easter.

The car will remain at the Callander home for the girls' exclusive use when they are home on holidays. Yvonne and Cecile already know how to drive.

All the quints except Marie will arrive home in June for their summer vacation. They plan to spend part of the holidays at the Dionne summer home at Trout lake, near here.

In the fall, Yvonne and Cecile will enter a Montreal as nurses-in-training. Annette, a gifted musicia, intends to take up the study of piano as a career, also in Montreal. Emile expects to continue her domestic science studies.

The girls' decision to move to Montreal resulted in part from a desire to be with their sister Pauline, 11 months older than the quints. The younger girls are extremely fond of Pauline, now on her third year of an art course in Montreal.

"FINE GIRLS"

In an interview, the girls' father said the quints are "fine girls in every way." He said he and Mrs. Dionne are confident the girls will make a success of their lives and will be happy.

Regarding Marie, he said she apparently has no regrets over her decision to become a nun. Her parents have not seen her since she entered the order but they correspond with her regularly.

"The three girls at Nicolet visited her just before Easter and they told me Marie seemed to be very happy."

He said that, as far as he knows, the quints have no boy friends but they are free to make their own [illegible].

"I have enough faith in their judgment to leave this matter entirely up to them."

Board Hires 5 New Teachers

Five teachers have been hired by the board of education and will join the staff at the beginning of the school year in September.

Paul de Souza, now teaching at Sault Ste. Marie, will go to PCVS.

Grant Rielly, now teaching at Gananoque, will go to Kenner collegiate.

Ontario Highways Inquiry Will Begin Second Session

TORONTO (CP)—Round two of Ontario's highways department investigation opens Monday and opposition members of the Ontario legislature's select committee are expected to come out fighting.

Their attack on the alleged irregularities within the department was fired last week by the laying of conspiracy charges against 11 m[illegible] and three contracting companies.

However, the Progressive Conservative government is due to make the first move Monday; the committee will receive the reports of provincial auditor Harvey Cotnam and J. D. Woods and Gordon Co. Ltd., Toronto management consultants, appointed by Premier [illegible]ment.

Chairman Kelso Roberts (PC—Toronto St. Patrick) said the committee would sit for three days.

OFFICIALS TO TESTIFY

Departmental officials are expected to testify.

The committee met initially April 14 and adjourned after a day-long hearing to May 17.

Albert Wren (Lib.-Lab.—Kenora) last month drew out the first evidence of irregularities heard by the committee from C. A. Robbins, chief engineer of maintenance for the department, who told of 70 cases of payroll and other irregularities in the maintenance division at the Lakehead during the last three years.

Developments in the last two weeks added more fuel to the opposition's fire.

Premier Frost announced the appointment of J. D. Millar, deputy highways minister since 1943, as deputy-minister of public works. He was succeeded by Mebourne A. Elson, 4-year-old mining engineer.

ASKS RESIGNATION

Opposition Leader Farquhar Oliver branded the move a demotion for Mr. Millar, and, at a meeting of the Toronto Liberal Businessmen's Association Tuesday, he called for the resignation of Highways Minister Doucett.

Donald C. MacDonald, Ontario CCF leader, sent a letter to Mr. Frost asking for a royal commission inquiry into the department's activities.

Mr. Wren said he had uncovered other irregularities on his own and would testify under oath "at the proper time." Other committee members indicated they would ask Mr. Wren to take the stand.

Last week, three companies—Tomlinson Brothers Ltd., of Winnipeg and Fort William, Standard Paving Ltd., of Toronto and Bergmann Construction Co. Ltd., of West Hill—were charged with conspiracy, reportedly in connection with six contracts totalling between $2,000,000 and $4,000,000.

Remanded in Fort William to May 31 on similar charges were W. S. Tomlinson, vice-president of Tomlinson Brothers; C. W. Taylor, Tomlinson official; and Arthur M. Mills, suspended engineer of the highways department's Fort William division.

To appear in Whitby court again June 1 are Harry Phipps, retired highways department engineer; Walter Bergmann, president of Bergmann Construction; John A. West, superintendent of the company; Cecil H. Nelson of Port Hope, former chief engineer of the highways department; Donald S. Patterson, suspended Huntsville division engineer for the department; and William Bredin, highways department instrument man at Huntsville.

SCHEDULED TO APPEAR

Elmer Birdsall, vice-president of Standard Paving Company, and R. F. Petersson, federal government highways construction supervisor, are scheduled to appear in court in Toronto Tuesday.

The investigation began last fall when the department itself uncovered irregularities in the Fort William division. Five department employees were arrested. The books of nine contracting companies were seized. Mr. Patterson was suspended at Huntsville, as was C. Dubeau, patrolman at Ottawa.

The federal government withheld payments on trans-Canada highway contracts in the Fort William division.

During the spring sitting of the legislature, Premier Frost announced the formation of the 11-man select committee.

Kitchen In Front Of House Saves Hundreds Of Steps

The modern "porchless" housewife may scoff at her Victorian ancestors who settled unabashedly on the front porch to watch all the comings and goings of the neighborhood. Yet just watch how interested she will be in peeping out at the neighborhood happenings through the windows of the front porch. Whether she admits it or not, it's fun, too, and interesting to have the kitchen looking out on to the street.

From the utilitarian and work-saving viewpoint, though, is where the greatest advantages of the front kitchen are most apparent. Just think of the hundreds of steps it will save between the kitchen and the front door! The service-entrance variant of the old-style back door, can still be retained, but placed near a front corner of the house.

MORE ACCESSIELE

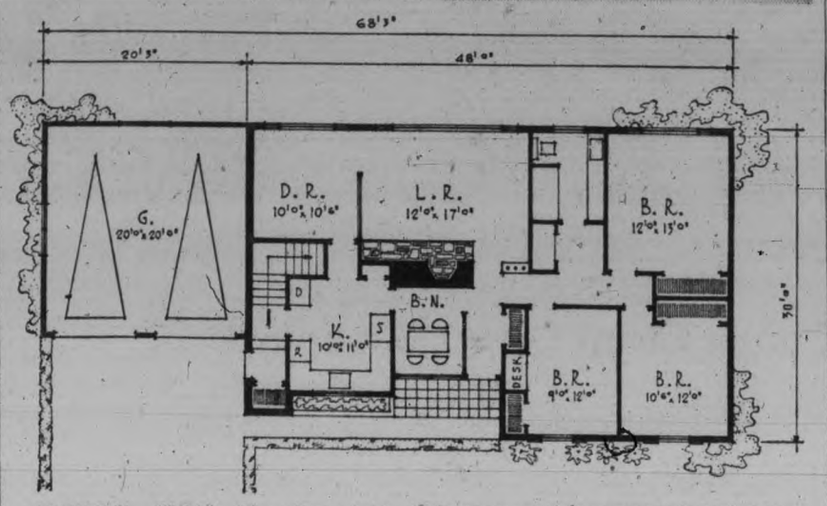
By placement of the kitchen at the front and in conjunction with the garage, you'll have another important advantage in that a shorter driveway will be required, affording not only a monetary saving but a saving in the land as well. Not only will more land be available at the back of the house, but the garage at front will usually lend added privacy to this yard area. And how your delivery men will respond to the added convenience of a service entrance near the street.

Savings are also often made possible with the kitchen in front as a less expensive plumbing installation will be required since the length of plumbing lines will be shortened when bathroom and laundry fixtures are similarly placed towards front of house.

MANY MORE ADVANTAGES

While many home builders may decide on the front-of-house kitchen for the reasons already mentioned, perhaps the most commonly desired feature that it affords is the greater space allowed at the rear for privacy, better exposure and less noise in living and sleeping quarters. This was undoubtedly the aim of the first builder who broke away from the time-honored position of the kitchen at the back of the house.

Gone are days of the old kitchen with its smoky coal range and miscellaneous clutter . . and here is further reason for approval of the front location. The old-style kitchen with its variety of odors and general unattractiveness naturally set its location as far as possible from the "dressed up" part of the home. With the modern kitchen's pleasing lines and freedom from smoke and odors, with its blend of livability and efficiency it's now another matter, however.



HOUSE No. 63-214—Clean lines of this contemporary styled home of brick and white siding show to advantage against a beautiful wooded background. Since taking the above photo, shutters have been applied to the bedroom windows, providing the final finishing touch to a most attractive exterior. One big convenience feature is the side entrance to the kitchen directly adjacent to the garage, with basement stairs and an extra closet alongside. Sheltered front entrance is another very desirable feature—and notice, too, how the hall space provides complete privacy for every room. Built with single attached garage, this home would go on a 65' lot. Contains 1,325 sq. ft. without the garage. Farm Wife Would Rather Forget Oft Used Term 'Good Old Days'

By AL VICKERY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

PETERSFIELD, Man. (CP)—Mrs. Charles Carter of this Red river valley farm area is one person who would sooner forget "the good old days."

Wife of a typical Petersfield district farmer, Mrs. Carter says she used to hate farming. But now, even with the busy seeding season under way, she says it's like living in a different world.

"At least it is for the women, and probably for the men too," she says.

Main reason for the change was the advent of electricity about six years ago. Labor-saving farm machinery also was a boon to the home.

UP-TO-DATE HOME

Now, she has a home which would be good in any city—including a model kitchen with electric stove, refrigerator, built-in cupboards, and a tiled bathroom with a shower which gets much use after the family spends a hard day in the fields.

It's a far cry from the 1930s and 40s when Mrs. Carter had to cook over a hot wood stove, especially at harvest time when about 15 extra men were on hand.

"They had to be well fed and bedded down," says Mrs. Carter. "I had to get up around 4:30 a.m. to make breakfast. After straightening up the house, making dinner and supper, I didn't have much pep in the evenings. I used to hate it."

Even with a hired girl to help during harvest, she found there weren't enough hours in a day. Three times a week, she baked about nine loaves at a time. Then there was butter-making, milking and other necessary chores, leaving little time for fall canning.

"Now, I can do it all myself," says Mrs. Carter. "And with only mother, Charlie (her husband) and Glenn (her 24-year-old son) to cook for, I have no inclination to leave the farm. We have all the conveniences enjoyed by city folk."

She hated the old threshing machine with all the harvest hands it needed.

"I was never so glad to see a machine go out of use as I was when the threshing machine was replaced by the combine," she says. "I still can't stand to look at even a picture of one."

TIRED AT WEEKEND

They recall too that they were "pretty tired" to get even much enjoyment on Saturday nights in the old days.

"We used to stay home most of the time listening to a battery radio. And more often than not there was a battle royal to get a hot bath. We had to heat the water on the stove and it was some chore," said Mr. Carter.

Now, they still listen to the radio but often drive their late-model car into Selkirk to a show or, in the fall, into Winnipeg, 25 miles away, to see a football game.

While most farmers do not go on daylight time in the summer, Mr. Carter admits he's "a bit of a traitor" and switches his clock with the city.

"We listen to the radio a lot and the programs are set up in the newspapers by fast time," he says. "Gosh, if we didn't keep the program times straight, old Ma Perkins might drown in her own soap suds and Ethel (his wife) wouldn't know anything about it."

Sole Blame For Accident Put On 1 Driver

Mr. Justice King today found 24-year-old Michael Palanuik of Belleville the sole cause of an accident on April 8, 1953, that caused extensive damage to two cars and injured three people, including himself.

He awarded Louis Roy Varty, 23, of Cromwell Ave., Oshawa, $1,617.25 damages and costs of the action, and dismissed a counter-claim without costs. The case was heard at the non-jury sittings of the Supreme Court.

The accident occurred on Highway 28 at the eastern entrance to the Rockhaven Motel, about 7:30 p.m. on April 8. It was dark at the time and there was conflicting evidence on whether or not the headlights of Varty's car were on.

Palanuik was driving west on the highway with his wife and started to make a left turn into the motel driveway when he came into collision with Varty's eastbound car. Both Mr. and Mrs. Palanuik were given outpatient treatment at Civic Hospital for cuts and scrapes.

Varty received head and chest injuries and was taken to hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Palanuik said that they didn't see Varty's oncoming car until it was too late to avoid an accident. They said he was driving with no headlights. Varty denied this and Mr. Justice King found as a fact, that his lights were on.

HARD TO UNDERSTAND

"It is difficult to understand [illegible] defendant failed to see the plaintiff's motor vehicle sooner than he did, even if (as he says) the plaintiff's lights were not on," said Mr. Justice King. "He might have seen the plaintiff's car with his own headlights."

Varty said he had just come over a hill and was some 70 feet away from Palanuik's car before he saw it, straddling the white line. He told the court that he turned right so his right wheels were running along the shoulder of the highway, but the two front ends of the cars collided.

"The defendant was not keeping a proper lookout or he would have seen the plaintiff's car," said Mr. Justice King "and I find that there was negligence on the part of the defendant."

He added that there was nothing to indicate Varty had been speeding; so he accepted the evidence that the plaintiff had been going 45 to 50 miles an hour just before the collision.

Palanuik's damages were assessed at $1,078.

Donald W. Bark was counsel for Varty and W. J. Arthur Fair, QC, was Palanuik's counsel.

Adams Balks At Giving Parley Details

WASHINGTON (AP) — Army counsellor John G. Adams today balked at giving Senate investigators further details about an Eisenhower administration conference on the McCarthy-army row. His legal adviser said Adams had been instructed by the "executive department" not to discuss it.

Chairman Karl Mundt (Rep. S.D.) ruled that since Adams himself had first brought up the subject he could not now refuse to answer questions about it.

Finally Mundt gave Adams until after the noon recess to try to determine whether he could say just where these instructions came from.

Adams had said his instructions came to him through deputy defence secretary Robert P. Anderson. Adams said he understood Anderson's role was that of merely "transmitting the instructions."

FULL REPORT ORDERED

On Monday, Adams related then that on Jan. 21 there was a meeting in the office of Attorney-General Herbert Brownell and that Sherman Adams, assistant to the president, suggested at that time that the army counsellor prepare a chronology of the army's difficulties with Senator Joseph McCarthy and Roy M. Cohn, general counsel to McCarthy's investigating sub-committee, over Pte. G. David Schine.

Adams earlier described as "nothing short of fantastic" the pressure he said was applied for McCarthy and his aides in demanding special treatment for Schine. While it came chiefly from Cohn and McCarthy, Adams said, he regarded Francis P. Carr as a "co-participant."

LOOK ALIKES—Resembling a cross between "Whistler's Mother" and the "Laughing Cavalier," this portrait of "Pearly Queen" Mary Ellen Tinsley looks almost identical to the original "Queen." The painting was done by Molly Guiron, of New Rochelle, N.Y., who became fascinated with the pearl buttons worn by entertainers in the music halls and on the sidewalks of London suburbs. Completed in three days, the portrait is part of the artist's exhibition, "Pageantry and Tradition of Great Britain," now showing in the U.S.

Drama Festival Will Be Held In Regina In '55

HAMILTON (CP) — The Dominion Drama Festival will move west next year to Regina, the board of governors announced Friday. It is scheduled there from May 7-14.

New festival president elected Friday is Mr. Justice D. A. McNiven of Regina, and the immediate past president is Mrs. L. T. White of Ottawa.

Governor-General Vincent Massey remains on the executive as patron, and new honorary president is Hon. William J. Patterson of Regina, lieutenant-governor of Saskatchewan. He replaces Ontario's Lieut.-Gov. Hon. Louis O. Breithaupt, who moved on to be one of the honorary vice-presidents with D. Park Jamieson of Sarnia.

Those newly elected to the executive committee include: John F. Brook, Simcoe; Col. P. Holt, Ottawa; D. Park Jamieson, Sarnia.

Only two changes were made in the ex-office chairmen of the 13 festival regions. J. R. Finlay took over for Manitoba and Miss Elsie Thomson will be chairman of western Ontario.

Gov't Doesn't Plan Intervene In Dispute

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government as yet has no plans for intervening in the contract dispute between the railways and their non-operating unions that has a general strike threat throwing a shadow over the deadlock.

At this stage, a federal informant said Friday, the cabinet is not planning any move, in the hope that the disputants will work out their differences between themselves.

The current situation is that the railways and unions representing 145,000 non-operating employees are as far apart as they were before the labor department set up a conciliation board early this year to deal with their deadlocked contract negotiations.

Your Garden:

Choose Your Mower According To Type Of Lawn

By HENRY PREE—

A popular question is which type of lawn mower do you recommend — the old - fashioned reel mower, or the recently introduced rotary-type mower?

The reel mower operates on the principle of revolving blades cutting against a stationary knife bar, while the rotary type features a single blade revolving at a high speed.

The answer depends upon the conditions involved. For the home owner who is fussy—the old-fashioned reel mower is recommended because it cuts more cleanly and evenly.

However, for an impartial opinion the old gardener refers to a series of tests conducted last year by James Tyson, head of the Soils Science Department at Michigan State College, and an authority on lawn care

Tyson points out that the arguments of both groups must be judged in the cold light of proven results.

"Before beginning this experiment, I believe that both types of power mowers had definite merit but that the decision to buy one type over the other depended greatly upon the situation in which they were to be used," said Tyson.

Setting aside several test plots near the college in which growth conditions could be carefully watched, Tyson and his assistants tall weeds and dandelions approximating the kind of lawn area not too well tended.

One half of each area was cut with a reel-type mower, and the other half with a rotary mower. Each machine was factory new to guarantee maximum performance for the tests, and eliminate the possibility of unfair advantage of one type over the other.

Basically, Tyson found that for areas where the lawn is allowed to grow higher than four inches and contain fast-growing tall weeds, such as at a place in the country visited only on occasional weekends, the most satisfactory power mower to buy is the rotary.

On the other hand, he finds that for the average lawn that is planted one area with a fine quality Merion Blue Grass to simulate the "nice" lawn.

Another area was planted with a common variety of lawn grass which soon became infested with mowed frequently and is made up of such grasses as blue grass, fescues and bent, which are sown for their carpet-like appearance, the reel-type mower, with its superior cutting qualities, is generally recommended.

"The test swaths cut by the reel-type mower had an even, healthy appearance, whereas the swaths cut by the rotary mower appeared comparatively ragged and with a pronounced whitish-brownish cast that remained for as long as 48 hours," he said.

"However," he concluded, "the rotary will give excellent performance for 'problem' lawns."

Plan More Aid For Veterans

OTTAWA (CP) — The government plans to provide more financial and technical assistance for war veterans who want to build their own homes.

It placed on the Commons order paper Friday a resolution proposing amendments to the veterans' Land Act.

It is believed the new legislation will benefit veterans who want to build their own homes and are prepared to put their own time and labor into construction. On a rough estimate, a veteran would be able to build a $10,000 home for about $8,000 or less.

The Commons Friday gave a desk-thumping sendoff to Works Minister Winters who sails from New York today for Spain and Portugal where he will help negotiate trade treaties.

Man Liked Bosses So Much Remembered In Will

NEW YORK (AP)—In an era of labor-management friction, Louis Rascovar stood out as a man who loved the bosses for whom he worked. So in death he willed them about a third of his small estate.

He retired 12 years ago on pension from [illegible] lithographing firm and died April 12 at the age of 96. Once a week before his death he used to visit his old shop where he worked for 50 years.

In a will admitted to probate Friday, Rascovar left from $25 to $50 each to his five grown children. The bulk of his $3,000 estate went to a sixth child, a son with whom he lived.

To the three men for whom he had worked so long — Sig Stern, Herbert Hirsch and Arthur Staib—Rascovar willed $300 each "as a token of my appreciation of the many kindnesses and courtesies extended to me by my said employers during the years it has been my pleasure to have been employed by them."

Although Rascovar's children did not object, Hirsch spoke for the three bosses in announcing:

"While we appreciate the compliment implicit in the bequests, we are waiving the bequests so that the money will go to members of the family."

Saves Child

HAMILTON (CP)—A 17-month-old girl was pulled to safety from Lake Ontario Friday after she toppled from a breakwater. Mrs. Rita Rocklyn said she found her daughter, Lucia, floating face down 20 feet from shore. She waded into the lake up to her waist to reach the child.

Kenner Students Tell Board Of Activities

Five Kenner collegiate students, speaking on extra-curricular activities at their collegiate, were heard Thursday night by the board of education.

This continues a policy, tried last month for the first time, of having the students come to board meetings and personally tell what they are doing in their various clubs and groups.

The five were Sally Reynolds, president of the public speaking club; Margaret Bowman of the library club; Lorraine Middleton, a capella choir; Raymond Johnson, editor of the "Acta", the school year book; and Terry Northrop of the camera club.

Miss Reynolds spoke first on her group and then introduced the others to the members of the board. Each spoke for about five minutes.

Last month students from PCVS were heard.

Fine Day, Good Car Young Driver Takes Off

Itchy feet, a lovely day, and a red pedal-car proved incentive enough for three-year-old Anna May Wheeler, when she decided to head for parts unknown early Friday.

Anna May, who lives at 294 Stewart St., was noticed to be missing from her home at 9:45 a.m. Her parents notified the police, and a cruiser spent over an hour in a vain search for the young wanderer.

Shortly before 11 a.m. the youngster's father found her gaily pedalling along on Simcoe St.

And that was when Anna May decided to pedal home again.

Cough Medicine Gives Him Glow

TORONTO (CP) — Cough medicine drunk by Dr. Ward Smith, director of the Ontario attorney-general's crime laboratory, gave him "a pleasant, mellow glow," he said in court Friday.

The doctor testified at the trial of a Toronto firm, Luscoe Products Ltd., charged with "having and selling" intoxicating beverages. The cough mixture is an exhibit in the case.

Dr. Smith said he mixed the medicine with soft drinks and found the intoxicating effect double that of ordinary whisky.

Evidence was the medicine contained 56.4 per cent alcohol. Ontario standard liquors contain 40 per cent alcohol.

The case is continuing.

Unveil Big Plane

SEATTLE (AP) — Boeing unveiled its "$15,000,000 gamble" Friday—the sleek, swept-wing plane with which it hopes to capture the world's commercial jet airliner market. The prototype model, built as a military tanker-transport, can easily be converted for commercial use.

Jury Discharged

NEW YORK (AP)—A jury deadlocked Friday after some 30 hours in the thievery trial of Joseph P. Ryan, a shaggy old boss of New York waterfront unionism. The panel was discharged. Ryan was continued in $3,500 bond in case the state decides to retry the case.

Seek Nurses

OTTAWA (CP)—The army will start recruiting next month for its first regular force women since the Second World War. The Royal Canadian Army Medical Corps wants 90 nursing assistants.

Buckhorn WI Holds Annual Banquet

BUCKHORN—Friendliness characterized the annual banquet held by the Buckhorn Women's Institute and their families in the community hall Tuesday evening.

Colorful bouquets of spring flowers were most attractive.

Mrs. H. Shearer introduced the guest speaker, Miss Marion Parks of Peterborough. In conjunction with her talk Miss Parks showed beautifully colored pictures that she took during her visit in the Old Country at the time of the Coronation, and also pictures of interest that she took while in many other European countries.

Miss Ruth McColl introduced the girls of the Supper Club, who gave a skit, written by Miss M. Ross, entitled "Food Makes a Difference." Those taking part were Misses Florence Woods, June Gordon, Mary Frelick, Dorine Churchill, Gale Simpkins and Meredith Ross.

T. Mason entertained the gathering with piano music. During the evening Mrs. Shearer made an announcement that a cheque for $50 had just been received from the Dramatic Club, sponsored by the Community Club.

Votes of thanks were tendered by Mrs. Bronscombe, Mrs. B. Hall and Mrs. W. H. Pearson.

Tips On Safe Use Of Power Table Saws

By MR. FIX

The bench or circular saw is generally the first of the larger power tools a home craftsman buys It enable him to make accurate rips and crosscuts and it helps make wood joints used by profession cabinetmakers. It saves time, labor and money.

But learning to use a circular table saw is sometimes a painful experience. Experience is a fine teacher, but a few pointers on safe techniques for basic ripping and crosscutting operations should be a lot less distressing.

Here they are, as spelled out by power-tool experts of the Rockwell Mfg Co.:

RIPPING

Ripping is the operation of making a lengthwise cut through a board, with the grain of the wood. On the saw, one edge of the work rides against the guide fence, and the bottom of the work rests on the saw table. These contact surfaces (fence and table) must be reasonably straight and true, or the wood will buckle and kick back.

The saw blade should not project more than an eighth of an inch above the thickness of the stock to be cut.

Stand behind the saw in a position that seems most comfortable, feet solidly placed, hold work with both hands and push it into the blade with pressure against the fence. Use a push stick if distance between the blade and fence is less than two inches.

In ripping long boards use an out-feed table or roller some distance from the machine so that the board will remain on a level with saw table throughout the cut.

CROSSCUTTING

Crosscuts are made by placing the work against a mitre gauge and advancing gauge and work toward the saw.

All crosscutting operations should be worked with a mitre gauge fitted with an auxiliary wood facing. Besides its safety factor, the facing also comes in handy while short pieces are being cut to length. The facing should be at least an inch wider than maximum-depth cut of saw blade, and should extend 12 inches or more on either side of the blade.

Keep wood stock tight against the mitre gauge and feed it into the blade slower than in ripping. While advancing the mitre gauge, also hold the supported piece of wood, NEVER the piece that is being cut off. Extremely short work is always dangerous to handle and extra precautions should be taken for safety's sake. Use a wooden block to hold the work down. A wide piece of wood is best handled by reversing the mitre gauge.

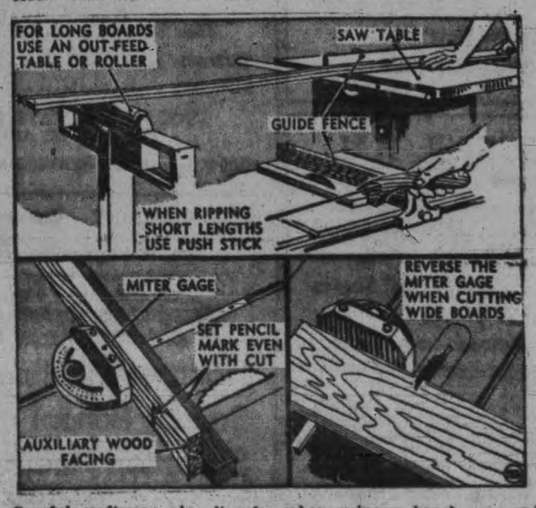
CUTTING TO EXACT LENGTH

In many cases crosscutting is done to pencil mark. To position the work quickly, set the pencil mark even with saw cut in the wood facing on mitre gauge. When more than one piece is to be cut to the same length, the length should be set by the standard stop rod on mitre gauges or by a block attached to the wood facing strip.

FIX-IT FORUM

Q Is it necessary when glueing two pieces of wood together to put a lot of clamping pressure on them? Also, what kind of glue do you recommend for wood?—K.R.M.

A—Use just enough pressure to hold two pieces together firmly. Too much squeezes glue out of the joint. Try a casein glue—a powder which you must mix with cold water—or a recorcinol resin glue if the joint must be waterproof.



Careful craftsmen play it safe when using a bench saw and adopt these safety-first techniques.

WHAT YOU SHOULD KNOW ABOUT NEW

TITAN WHITE

ONE COAT HOUSE PAINT

$8.30 PER GAL.

A beautiful white — a brand new paint, Lowe Brothers TITAN WHITE has extra high Titanium content that actually gives it the hiding power of two coats of normal paint over previously painted surfaces. No need now for those high repainting estimates. You can do the job yourself simply by cleaning the surface and brushing on one coat of TITAN WHITE, saving half the time and labour expense of normal 2-coat repainting. And TITAN WHITE's new warm tone contrasts attractively with harsh, stark whites.

SELF-CLEANING . . . STAYS WHITE

Season after season Titan White retains its original beauty and whiteness. Microscopic particles of paint film are gradually washed away by rain, carrying with them surface dirt and grime. A controlled chalking process ensures that only enough of the paint film is washed away to keep the surface free of dirt . . . the surface is still adequately protected for the life of the paint film. The gradual wearing away of the paint film keeps the surface smooth and free from checks and cracks . . . eliminates burdensome surface preparations before eventual repainting.

WHAT'S BEST FOR YOU... ONE COAT or TWO?

If you are painting over previously painted surfaces in fair condition, one coat of TITAN WHITE will give completely satisfactory hiding and surface protection. When painting new wood or badly weathered surfaces Titan White or Lowe Brothers High Standard House Paint should be used over a coat of 260 Primer. This provides scientific protection by means of 'controlled penetration'. The specially compounded oils in the 260 Primer seal all porous surfaces, whether wood, brick, concrete or plaster — penetrating the immediate sub-surface just far enough to ensure firm anchorage of the prime coat. Enough oil is left on the surface to form a tough, elastic film, providing an ideal foundation for the finish coat and preventing its essential oils from being absorbed.

Christian Church In Jamaica

By REV. A. C. FORREST

PORT MARIA, Jamaica, B.W.I. —Church for me last Sunday was a little different. I've been having the rich privilege of a quick swing through some of these wonderful tropical islands, and have been humbled to learn how little I know of their geography, history and people.

We planned Sunday morning to attend the Presbyterian church in this pretty little village which looks to ease from the beautiful trade-wind cooled north shore. It seemed significant to me that when I mentioned church in the dining-room a guest quickly said: "Oh, you are a Catholic?" Later I asked the clerk at the desk about church services, and he said: "Do you want to go to the Catholic church?" The same thing happened when we told our driver that we wished to go to church. I wonder why it is that when you are on a holiday and plan to attend church on the Lord's Day, that others presume you must be a Catholic. I think I know the answer.

The native population along this shore seems almost completely colored. Their broad English accent given their own twist of dialect combined with their soft voices is just a little hard to understand. We were a little hesitant in planning to go to their church, but we have been greeted with such courtesy and have found such graciousness from them all that we accepted the invitation when they said tourists would be most welcome. Actually, before the Sunday was over, we attended Presbyterian and Methodist churches, sat in on an evangelistic street meeting for a little and listened outside a very crowded little Church of God, where with open windows and doors, and wide cracks in the split cane walls we could hear and see what went on.

WINDING ROAD

We made our way along the ancient winding road through the lush plantations of coconut, sugar cane and bananas, and enjoyed the brilliant flowers. We haven't seen a mosquito and scarcely a fly in Jamaica and the temperature seldom falls below 72 and rarely goes above 85, winter and summer.

Our taxi-driver was a little irritated by the numbers of adults and children along the way, swimming at the beaches and out fishing. Ten years ago he said they would all have been in church. But as prosperity grows, education advances, and more self-government is attained, more folk stay away from church. He was well-read and very intelligent, and loved to talk politics, and is all for economic and political advancement. But he suspects that it isn't doing much for church life. He did not suggest that it might be the church's fault.

In my lack of knowledge I suppose I expected that there would be a pretty spontaneous service, with not too much form and order, and some exuberant singing. I was surprised to find that the dignified minister, with his gown, clerical collar, and cultured accent conducted a service more formal than my own. In the hotel we had been told we could dispense with coats and ties, but we wore them anyway. We would have been out of taste without them. Every man and boy was dressed up for the Lord's House.

There was a good sermon, and long announcements of the many activities of the week. One of the boys of the congregation had been chosen to represent the Presbyterian church of Jamaica at a great gathering of boys' brigades in England this summer. A baby was baptized. The mother stood alone, for her husband had not come.

ATTRACTIVE CHILDREN

In front of us there were five little girls in a row sitting quietly in their pew swinging their legs and keeping still, much more so than little girls in my church. They were well scrubbed and brushed, in bright organdy dresses and colored straw hats. They stared at us curious strangers with big brown friendly eyes. I felt they

VOL. CVII. No. 115 SATURDAY, MAY 15, 1954

Main Street Topics

DELEGATE TO OTTAWA

E. A. Adams, 545 Arndon Ave., a member of the Peterborough Air Cadets, is among the 125 delegates attending a meeting of the RCAF association in Ottawa.

BOARD HIRES STENO

Miss Myrna Wannamaker, of 275 Lake St., has been hired by the board of health as clerk-steno. Dr. J. P. Wells, MOH, said that her salary will be covered by a grant from the federal department of health.

BOOKLET TO STUDENTS

A 48-page booklet, sketching Canada's history, economics, natural resources and vocational opportunities will be distributed by the chamber of commerce to 350 members of the PCVS graduating class and older students at Kenner collegiate.

ANNUAL MEETING

The annual meeting and election of officers of the Peterborough Women's Liberal Association will be held in Hooper's restaurant, 414 George St., Tuesday at 8 p.m. Guest speaker will be Gus Faux, president of the Peterborough Liberal Association. A film will be shown and refreshments will be served.

MOH ATTENDS MEET

Dr. J. P. Wells, MOH, has been instructed by the board of health to attend the annual meeting of the Canadian Public Health Association in Quebec City, May 31 to June 2. And K. G. Spencer, sanitary inspector, will attend the dominion conference of the Canadian Institute of Sanitary Inspectors at Kingston, June 17 to 19.

DANCES ON TV

Dianne Snell, formerly Dianne Childerhose of Peterborough, who recently completed an international tour as a member of the national Ballet Company, will be one of the two principal dancers in the first North American television performance of Johann Strauss' operetta Die Fledermaus over CBLT, Channel 9, Sunday, from 10 to 12 p.m.

EXPLOSION RIPS TANK

Residents as far away as three blocks were alerted shortly after 6.30 p.m. Friday when an old oil tank exploded in a yard next to St. Cecelia's convent, 459 Reid St. The blast tore out one end of the old tank but caused no other damage. Nobody was injured. Boys playing with firecrackers and matches around the tank are believed to have set it off. Firemen used a booster tank to put out a grass fire around it.

LOUADA FARMS ROUTE

Unless someone performs a miracle in the meantime, the Shorthorn breeders of the district will likely have to go around to Buckhorn to reach Louada Manor Farms on Pigeon Lake for the field day at Lou Cadesky's place. Connection of the new causeway with the Ennismore shore offers no indication of early completion. The field day is in June. The Buckhorn route is around Sandy lake, and not much farther.

City's Bylaw On Stabling Said Invalid

Bylaw Passed In 1917 Never Received Approval Of Dep't.

The city's bylaw dealing with the stabling of horses and other animals in the city is invalid, Dr. J. P. Wells, MOH, admitted Friday afternoon.

Bylaw 2016, passed by city council in April, 1917, was never approved by the department of health; so it has no legal basis.

This puts the board of health in an embarassing position. On December 30, 1953, in response to complaints from McGill St. residents over horses stabled in the exhibition grounds, the board passed a motion to regulate this stabling.

EXCEPTION MADE

The gist of it was that no more horses or animals were to be kept in the exhibition grounds after January 31, 1954, pending compliance with the bylaw, except when the annual exhibition was on. After some controversy an exception was made of some horses belonging to Hugh Stewart because they were stabled there as a result of an agreement between Mr. Stewart and the exhibition board. But these horses were taken out well before the deadline of April 15 set by the department of health.

ADVISE BOARD

At the board meeting Friday afternoon Dr. Wells introduced a motion that the exhibition board be officially advised that the bylaw is invalid. He added:

"At the same time we request the co-operation of the exhibition board in maintaining the highest possible standard of sanitation, including the discontinuance of the use of the present floorless wooden manure box, and the utilization of the cement box with a proper lid for same."

(This is more of a courtesy than anything else because the exhibition board have known for some time of the bylaw's invalidity. Dr. Wells said that six horses are stabled down in the barns at present.)

"Well, we don't want to be sailing under false colors," said Alderman J. A. Dewart, chairman of the board.

At the same time Alderman Dewart wanted to know if it wouldn't be a good idea to revise the bylaw and have it properly passed.

Dr. Wells said that the exhibition board are in no position to do any construction work (such as a new barn with a cement floor) this year. And in the meanwhile a general overhauling of board of health bylaws is going on.

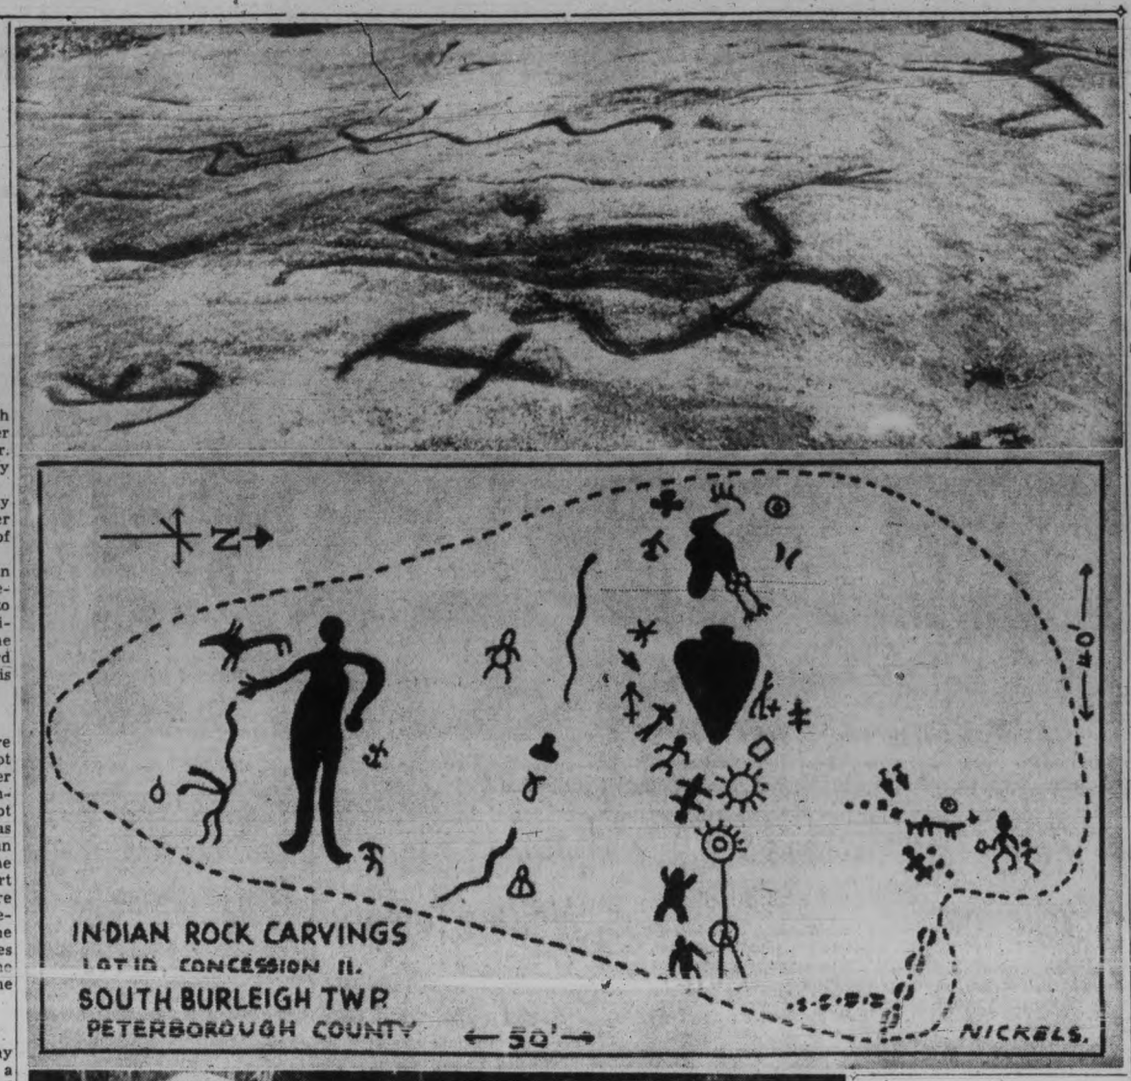
Request Permission For Private Cemetery

Sister Mary Immaculate of the Monastery of the Precious Blood has applied to the board of health for permission to establish a cemetery on the monastery's property, 716 Maryland Ave.

A city bylaw governing the establishment of cemeteries must be amended before a new cemetery is permitted.

At their Friday afternoon meeting the board of health approved the application. It will be recommended to city council and the Ontario department of health will also have to approve the amending of the bylaw.

Details of the cemetery's boundaries will be supplied later on to Dr. J. P. Wells, MOH.



PREHISTORIC INDIAN picture-writing, believed to be one of the rarest finds in the province of Ontario, if not in Canada, was discovered a few days ago on the Peterborough Crown Game Preserve, Burleigh township. One of the co-finders, Everitt Davis, is shown beside one of the picture "panels" of indented cut-out limestone. Symbols have been charcoaled for photographic purposes. A sketch of the symbols is shown in centre.—(Examiner Staff Photos

Rare Indian Picture-Writing Symbols Found Carved On Rock Near Stony Lake

By NICK NICKELS

A large limestone panel of prehistoric Algonkian picture-writing symbols was found in South Burleigh township a few days ago by three mining men.

American Nepheline Mines general manager Ernest Craig, his geologist Charles Phipps and workman Everitt Davis were out for an afternoon of prospecting about one and one-half miles south-west of their mining property boundary.

They may not have found mineral wealth but a short rest period on a crystaline limestone outcrop revealed a life-size carving of a heron and more than 50 other symbols of recognizeable forms.

It is probably one of the rarest finds of Indian petroglyphs in Canada and certainly the only one located to date in south-eastern Ontario. This is the opinion of Dr. Kenneth Kidd, head of the department of archeology, Royal Ontario Museum. He knows of three other finds; a carved boulder located near Rock Lake on the southern edge of Algonquin Park, Cree or Ojibwa stone picture-writing in the Lake Nipigon country and more at another spot near the Ontario-Manitoba boundary in Ontario.

The Burleigh rock carvings were cut in the soft rock in an area shaped roughly like a broken arrow head; it measures 50 feet by 40 feet across and dips about 15 degrees southwest. It lies in a northeast-southwest direction.

Its location is roughly two miles north of the east end of Stony Lake, five miles south of Jack's Lake and about two miles south-west of the mining property. The country is rough, forbidding and, in parts, heavily wooded, which will discourage a pilgrimage of amateur archeologists to examine the find at the present time. And if rough travel alone will not discourage them, the blackflies will.

The symbols appear to be arranged in such a manner that they tell a story. There is a symmetry of connecting patterns that may be roughly divided into three picture "panels." Only experts will be able to decipher the story but the carvings are obvious. There are several figures of people in various poses —one of them almost life-size; a sun with rays; serpents; moose and rabbit tracks; a deer; an owl and a turtle. A large notched arrowhead appears to be a central theme with smaller ones arranged near it.

At the base of the incline where water may have gathered there are several other symbols that have been dissolved and weathered. They cannot be deciphered.

If, as archeologists conjecture, these carvings were made by Algonkian people, they could have been done well prior to 1600. Folklore of the Kawarthas tells of a powerful local chieftain called Handsome Jack—because he was so ugly—who met and discouraged the first white settlers. He may have been jealously guarding this ritual mound of his people. This, too is conjecture, but it lies on a possible portage route between Stony and Jack's Lake.

It has caused a great flurry of interest at the mine at the present time, to finders and a few of the staff who have trekked through the bush to see it. Others, busy with new mining and railway developments at the property, are not so concerned.

When an Examiner reporter called at their mine office the other day they wanted to know who next the "Boss" was going to "put the Indian Sign on."

Four Suffer Minor Injuries In Two Traffic Mishaps

Four people were injured early today in accidents on district roads.

Keith Fontaine, 25, of 24 Aylmer St. was admitted to Civic hospital at 1.45 a.m. with a cut forehead and right arm. He is also under observation for head injuries. His condition today is satisfactory.

Fontaine and a girl passenger were driving along Highway 28, near the five-mile turn, when they swung over to the left to pass a transport truck. The left wheels hit the soft shoulder at the edge of the highway and their panel truck rolled over several times.

The truck was heavily damaged.

Both Fontaine and his passenger, Miss Evelyn McQuade, 28, of 46 Gilchrist St. were taken to hospital. Miss McQuade was treated in the outpatient's department for bruises and scrapes and then was allowed to go home.

OPP Constable Don Lacombe investigated.

Two drivers were injured about 4 a.m. when their cars collided on the Buckhorn Rd., at Ray's cemetery, a mile north of the junction with Highway 28.

A 1946-model car, driven by Clare Pearson, 21, of RR 1 Lakefield, was in collision with the left front of a 1937-model car driven by Norman Coons who lives on the Lakefield highway. Coons was coming home after pickerel fishing.

His vehicle received about $300 damage and the Pearson car was wrecked. When OPP Constable Emmett Crough arrived to investigate both vehicles were facing west across the highway, some 18 feet apart.

Pearson received a cut leg and Coons scratches, bruises and a possible broken ankle. Both men were treated by Dr. H. E. Gastle of Lakefield.

Dock Adermen Missing Special Meeting

Ald. Gordon Powell's legal and reception committee have been tossed the problem of whether or not council members should have $10 docked from their pay when they fail to turn up for special meetings.

The matter came up at a recent meeting of the finance committee. Ald. Stan McBride said he was aware that there should be a penalty for missing regular meetings, but he didn't think it should apply to special meetings.

City Clerk E. A. Outram said his advice from the city solicitor was that the matter of penalties for non-attendance was one that should be included in the bylaw covering annual allowances to council members. Any amendment to the bylaw would have to be approved by the minister of municipal affairs.

SHORT NOTICE OFTEN GIVEN

Ald. Powell pointed out that while there might not be any excuse for missing regular meetings, it was often impossible to attend special meetings, especially on short notice.

"It seems unfair," Ald. John Dewart commented.

"I don't think it's fair," Ald. McBride agreed. "Nobody is on council for the money. In fact, most of us are out money in the long run."

The committee approved a motion by Ald. Bob Knox, seconded by Mayor Norman Graham, to refer the matter to the legal and reception committee.

Aldermen receive $500 a year.

NAVAL PARADE

Fishermen Line River Banks At Midnight To Open Spring's Pickerel Offensive

Very Few Anglers Failed To Get Fish And Many Had Quota Within Hour; Several Seven-Pounders Were Caught

At midnight last night war was declared . . . this time against the pickerel. At all the lock sites, along the river banks and at every promising pool, a veritable army of fishermen gathered for the big Spring offensive.

Friday night must have been one of the most ideal nights ever experienced by anglers. A three-quarter moon gave life to the busy scene, there was no breeze and the air was comfortably warm. And what is more important, the fish were biting, and, they were big ones in excellent condition.

FISH FOR EVERYONE

No one can be certain just how many pickerel were out and about last night, but at some points their numbers must have been challenged by the vast array of rods. Yet, a three-hour tour of the district by the Examiner, made in the small hours of the morning, showed that nearly everyone had managed to land at least one fish. There were many enthusiasts who had landed a limit bag before first light.

One of the first pickerel landed within the city area was a two-pounder brought in by Ernie Fowler of George St., a few minutes after midnight down at the lower locks.

Ernie told the Examiner: "Got him on my third cast . . . had nothing since". It was then 12.20 a.m.

The words were hardly out of his mouth before Gavin Saxby, 708 McKeller St., hooked one and landed it.

Walking back up the lock we came across a Toronto visitor, Jim Russell, who was busy disengaging the plug from his first pickerel for 1954.

LIKE A BEEHIVE

The scene at Burleigh Falls made one think of a beehive. Fishermen, and fisherwomen too, were perched all over the rocks. The air was full of flying minnows, plugs and flies. A quick poll showed that the pickerel were not being particular about lures or bait. Almost anything was being snapped up.

A number of Americans, who crossed the border early Friday in anticipation of a good night's sport, were hard at it on a little jetty and had landed several good ones by 2 a.m.

Although everyone seemed to be having his share of luck, the Examiner was right on hand to see youthful Helen Hogarth of Burleigh Falls, diminish the fish population by one. She did it with a red and white jointed plug.

Two of the most successful anglers there at that time were Anthony Kormos and son Richard, of Pickering. They had landed five before two and a-half bells.

It seemed almost a pity to leave the Falls with its gay camp fires and teeming population. One thing is certain . . . the pickerel population is somewhat smaller than it was Friday.

The Nassau dam, above the C.G.E. powerhouse, presented another busy scene. Here the anglers lined the banks, the dam,

Union Station Changing Tracks Sought

Peterborough's 30-year dream of a union station may come true.

Furthermore, the construction of one new station to serve both principal railways in the city may lead to a relocation of tracks that would eliminate at least some of the major crossings, including the ones that cause rush-hour traffic tie-ups.

CALLED FOR THURSDAY

A meeting has been scheduled for next Thursday afternoon of city council with representatives of both the CNR and CPR and of the board of transport commissioners. Also sitting in will be a representative of the provincial department of planning and development and the city's planning consultant Gordon Culham.

The meeting wil ldiscuss the location of railway lines within the city limits as well as the condition and location of local railway stations. As far as the city is concerned, the aim is to obtain a union station for Peterborough.

Ever since Toronto's massive union station was contemplated shortly before the First World War, there has been talk in Peterborough from time to time of combining the local terminal facilities of the two railways.

FACILITIES POOR

The matter was brought up again three weeks ago at a board of works meeting by Ald. Pat Anglesey, who condemned the lack of proper parking facilities at the CPR station and the appearance of the CNR station.

Ald. Anglesey said the traffic jam at the CPR station on Easter Sunday was a "disgrace." Referring to a report that the CNR was to spend $21,000 remodelling the interior of its local station, he said th eoutside of the station was also a "disgrace".

The board of works approved Ald. Anglesey's suggestion to call a meeting with city council of representatives of both railways and the board of transport commisioners to discuss the possibility of a union station.

The necessary correspondence has now been completed and the meeting called for next Thursday afternoon in city hall at 2 p.m.

Plan To Launch New Ferry

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario highways department said Friday the new Glenora - Adolphustown ferry will be launched today at Erieau, about 15 miles southeast of Chatham on Lake Erie.

The ship will be christened "The Loyalist" about the middle of next month on arrival at Adolphustown in the Bay of Quinte arm—Adolphus Reach.

Highways Minister Doucett will lead the christening ceremony.

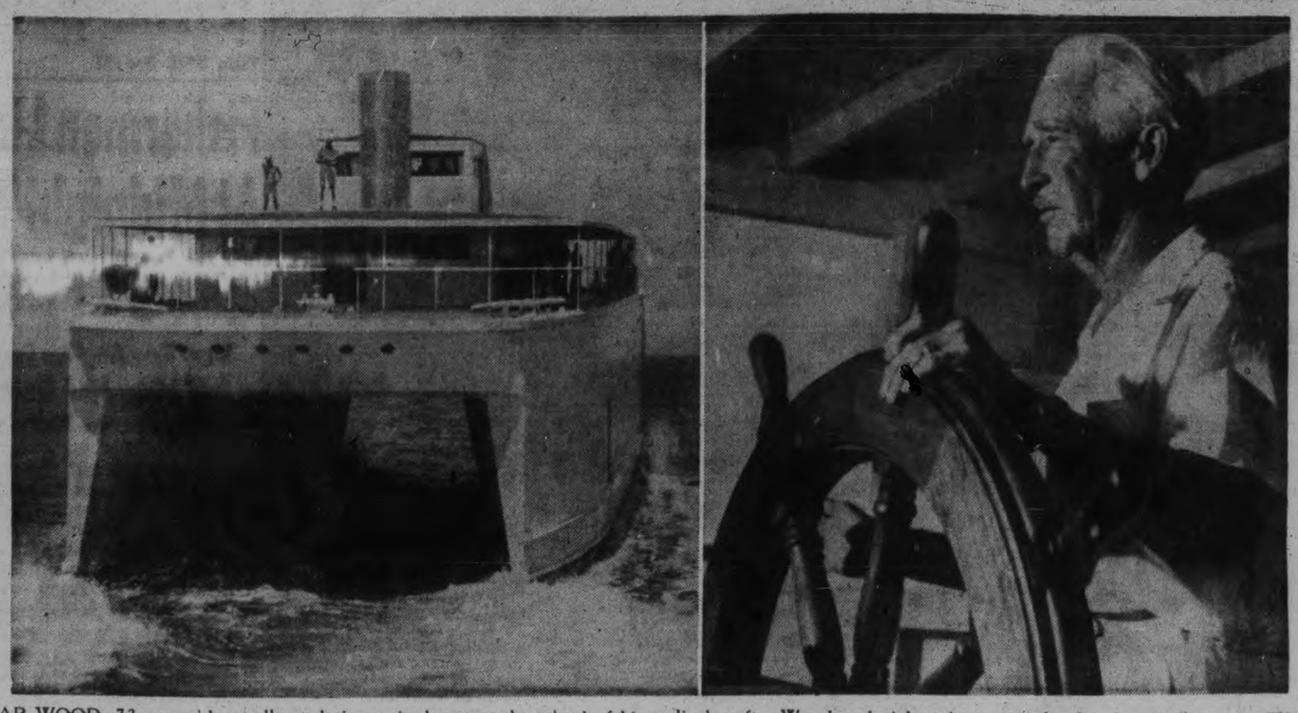
Descendants of Major Peter Vanalstyne, leader of United Empire Loyalists who settled at Adolphustown in May, 1784, will attend the Erieau ceremony from Sarnia.

They will be guests of Bryan L. Cathcart, MPP for Lambton West.

Major Vanalstyne was first member of the Ontario legislature from Prince Edward-Lennox. He took his seat at Toronto June 16, 1792.

The Loyalist will provide free service to traffic on No. 33 highway between Picton and Kingston.



GAR WOOD, 73-year-old speedboat designer, is shown at the wheel of his radical craft. Wood and eight others recently abandoned the craft. Wood and two women were picked up by helicopter. The six others were picked up by a fishing boat.

Toronto Production Wins Praise From Adjudicator

By PAULINE KENNEDY

Playcraftsmen Theatre Group of Toronto, whose production of Tennessee Williams' "The Rose Tattoo" won all the regional festival awards this year, presented the play in the Dominion Drama Festival Friday night. Adjudicator Hugh Hunt said the performance was "excellent."

"The Rose Tattoo" is the most difficult work attempted so far in the festival, Mr. Hunt said. It was a "slice of life" in which the playwright tries to show the importance of humanity and dignity which lies inside each person, no matter how humble.

The play is the story of Serafina, a lusty Sicilian woman who has vowed to close her heart to love after her husband's death by shooting. Serafina gradually realizes her husband had been unfaithful and that she has been a martyr to a worthless man.

FALLS IN LOVE

She falls in love with a truck driver, Alvarro, a caricature of her dead husband. As Serafina says, "He has the body of my dead husband but the head of an idiot."

The play's sub plot is Serafina's struggle with her daughter, Rosa, who has taken on American ways and forgotten the customs of Sicily. Rosa wants to run off with a young man.

Mr. Hunt said Frances Tobias, playing the role of Serafina, rose to the occasion with "an extremely good performance."

"This part is difficult because it must assume tragic significance as it grows. The actress was able to achieve this."

Mr. Hunt said John Sullivan's performance of Alverro was "the most demanding role in the play."

"It is an ironic part and this man must be a grotesque reproduction of Serafina's dead husband. The actor treated it subtly and well."

SKILLFUL ACTRESS

The adjudicator said the part of the young girl Rosa was skilfully handled by actress Audrey Kniveton, although he thought Miss Kniveton was a little too old to play a 15-year-old girl. Jack Kuper had "exactly the right approach" in the role of the young sailor.

In a general criticism of all plays in the week-long festival, Mr. Hunt said directors failed to spell out the story clearly in the first act.

The festival winds up today with two plays. In the afternoon La Nouvelle Equipe of Montreal will present "Le Roi David" in French. In the evening the Kingston Domino Players will play an Irish comedy, "The Playboy of the Western World."

British Commander Praises Canadians

SOLTAU, Germany (Reuters)—Canada's 1st Infantry Brigade group won praise Friday from Maj.-Gen. K. C. Cooper, commander of the British 7th Armored Division—the "Desert Rats" of the Second World War North African campaign.

Cooper said the Canadian brigade was "quite first class."

"Its men are tough and have tremendous spirit, enthusiasm and keenness."

He was addressing officers of the brigade and his division in a critique at the end of their week-long joint manoeuvres, Exercise Commonwealth Three, on the pine-studded Lueneburg Heath here.

Judge Dismisses Libel Action

WINNIPEG (CP) — Mr. Justice Ralph Maybank Friday dismissed with costs a Winnipeg man and his wife against the Winnipeg Tribune in connection with the publication of a picture of their daughter which had been provided by the Community Chest.

Mr. and Mrs. T. R. Dennis charged that an article accompanying the picture gave the impression the child was delinquent and neglected. They asked unstated damages. The published picture was not identified.

A Community Chest official said during the trial the picture was provided to the newspaper with story suggestions to spur donations.

L. St. George Stubbs, the parents' counsel, said the judgment will be appealed.

Report Stock Prices Closed At Record Highs On Exchanges

By GEORGE LINTON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Stock prices closed at record high levels on North America's three biggest exchanges this week after recovering from a severe midweek slump.

Prices Thursday suffered the greatest drop in some weeks on the New York, Toronto and Montreal markets, but many key stocks rallied for major gains Friday.

At Toronto industrials fell off from the opening session and Tuesday suffered the greatest index decline—2¼ points—in more than a month. Other sections of the market were also weak.

Industrials recovered slowly Wednesday but western oils fell off sharply. The decline followed news from Washington that the United States power authority had been advised to turn down bids of Canadian companies to supply gas to the U.S. Pacific northwest.

Industrials regained strength Thursday and Friday and western oils picked up some of their lost ground in the final session.

Western oils were the one Toronto stock group that ended the week with an index decline. It was down 1.02, while the industrial index gained 2.35. The western oils, too, accounted for many of the declines in the week's prices, 350 issues were down and 289 were up.

The Friday-to-Friday indexes: Industrials up 2.35 to 346.58, highest since 1951, golds up .18 at 73.45, base metals up .17 at 148.45, and western oils down 1.02 at 97.01.

At New York the week closed with The Associated Press average for 60 stocks at $124.00, the highest since April 17, 1930 and 40 cents about the previous Friday.

Montreal's midweek selloff was less severe than in the other markets. The market was still soft Wednesday but picked up Thursday and Friday. Industrials closed strongly.

The week's averages at Montreal: Banks up .66 at 39.26, utilities up .5 at 106.5, industrials up 2.4 at 204.0; combined up 1.8 at 171.5, papers up 4.16 at 919.7 and golds down .03 at 57.28.

Regional Conferences In Four Cities

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario division of the Canadian Cancer Society said Friday night regional conferences will be held in four cities this fall to help society workers "better equip themselves in the functions of the society."

The conferences will be held at Ottawa, Hamilton, Fort William and North Bay.

The board of directors of the Ontario group also said Margaret Bolster, with the Kingston Cancer Clinic, has been awarded a $2,000 bursary for six months' study at the Royal Cancer Hospital and the Holt Radium Institute in England.

Plans To Support Victim's Widow

TORONTO (CP)—George Schuler, 39, sentenced Friday to two months for dangerous driving, said in court he plans to support the widow of the passenger killed in his truck in an accident on Christmas Day.

Mr. Schuler said his dog jumped on him, while he was driving, making him lose control of his truck which hit a street car and another car. His friend, Walter Stumcke, a passenger, was killed.

Robbers Slay 2 In Restaurant

MOULTRIE, Ga. (AP)—Robbers slashed to death two men in an all-night drive-in restaurant on the outskirts of this south Georgia city early Friday.

E. T. Norman, about 40, attendant at the drive-in, and Broome Croft, about 42, night watchman at a nearby plant, were found with their throats cut.

Police chief C. R. Ranew said the only motive he could advance was robbery. He said the cash register had been rifled of its contents—hardly more than $15.

He noted that nobody could expect to find a large sum at the drive-in, "but they'll kill you for little or nothing nowadays."

The second speaker was Gerald Buchanan, also a member of the session who outlined the needs of the church, namely larger Sunday school facilities, a new oil furnace, a new roof, chimes and other smaller alterations. With an increase in population anticipated on account of the developments in this area, larger Sunday school accommodations are considered to be an urgent problem. Lloyd Parnall, chairman of the canvass committee spoke about the plan of reaching all the members and adherents through an every person canvass. He said that the leaders of the canvass had already made pace-setting pledges in this effort.

The Vorkuta prisoners blamed their detention on Beria and demanded their release when they heard of his arrest, the party said.

Quebec Censors Have Banned 80 Publications

MONTREAL (CP)—Eighty publications, most of them American, now are banned throughout Quebec.

The publications, mainly of the girlie variety, are banned on the grounds they contain objectionable material.

The Quebec censorship board imposes the ban after examining material brought to its attention by the attorney-general's department or by police.

When the board decides a magazine is objectionable a notice is served on the publisher and copies are sent to his distributing agents in the province. A similar notice is sent to police forces who see to it that newsdealers remove all banned material from newsstands.

The board is empowered to impose the ban underterms of a Quebec act which describes as objectionable "any illustration which evokes real or fictitious scenes of crime or of the habitual life of criminals, or morbid or obscene situations or attitudes, tending to corrupt youth and pervert morals."

The board may repeal the ban if the publisher agrees to eliminate objectionable material from his publications and gives proof that he is serious.

Soviet Socialist Progress Shown On India's Doorstep

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Tashkent, capital of Uzbekistan in Soviet central Asia, is part of Russia's "shop window" for the peoples of India, Pakistan, Afghanistan and Iran. Western China is less than 500 miles away.

High-powered radio transmitters there broadcast the Moscow message to all the neighboring peoples—presumably because the Malenkov regime believes the East is fertile ground for establishment of Communist governments.

Mountain trails and passes—and the nomad life still persisting on both sides of the frontier—are channels for "the word." On the official plane, Russia invites "cultural delegations" to visit and see for themselves the progress made inside the Soviet Union.

MODERN UNIVERSITYY

Since the 1917 revolution, Soviet central Asia has acquired its first modern university — the Central Asiatic University in Tashkent—and its first high schools.

Illiteracy among the younger generation is rare, although the regime has trouble keeping children at school because they are wanted for labor on the land.

Although Tashkent is just another Soviet city without sparkle or spontaneity, it is unquestionably the scene of "Soviet Socialist progress."

A vast housing scheme is under way to move the people out of mud-plaster dwellings. The city architect said Tashkent's 1,000,000 population should be rehoused by 1964. Navoi street, the main thoroughfare and showplace, has new buildings down one side, old on the other.

At one end of the city is its "Socialist textile town" Built around a cotton factory. Said by Westerners to be one of the most modern in the world, the community of employees and executives has its own schools, health centre, theatre, and "palace of culture"—Soviet version of a combined community hall and town centre.

PATTERN CHANGES

Another aspect of the "shop window" is the way the Soviets are changing the labor pattern. Previously Uzbekistan was predominantly agricultural. Now it is, a developing industrial region. Electricity, oil and coal resources are being exploited.

This opens up new types of employment for young people who previously could only farm.

Free medical care for all citizens is another Soviet accomplishment. The level is not the equivalent of our best, but it is adequate.

Moscow pays much attention to this "shop window." Lenin started the policy and Stalin pursued it. In 1923 Stalin said: "Turkestan (Soviet central Asia) is the most important Soviet republic from the point of view of revolutionizing the East. The task is to transform Turkestan into an advanced post for revolutionizing the East."

By our standards much remains to be done. But to those looking over the fence from India, Afghanistan, Pakistan and other eastern countries, what's in the window doesn't look bad.

Eating Places Given 2 Years To Meet Bylaw

Some eating places in the city—where it would be impracticable to instal toilets and washrooms at present—will have up to two years to make these changes, if a board of health recommendation is accepted by city council.

Dr. J. P. Wells, MOH, made this recommendation Friday afternoon at a meeting of the board of health.

After an inspection and talk with the operators of some of the smaller eating places, Dr. Wells is of the opinion that some of the premises are too small for toilets and washrooms; in other places the installations would mean moving heating units to make room, and that would be too expensive.

Given a maximum of two years, the proprietors may find enough money, move to other premises, or work out some other satisfactory solution.

The Public Health Act requires toilet and washroom facilities, but until a year or so ago this wasn't brought to the attention of applicants for eating place licenses.

Now that the business licences are up for renewal Dr. Wells is trying to persuade applicants to put in these installations, thus complying with the act.

The board of health's recommendation to continue licences on a probational basis will be sent to city council, and it depends on the approval of the Ontario department of health.

"I know that, financially, some of these smaller operators can't do it," said Mayor Norman Graham. "I think Dr. Wells is going about it in a fair way."

Assembly To Consider Pastors In Politics

GUELPH (CP)—The question of whether Presbyterian ministers should become candidates in provincial or federal elections may soon be submitted to the general assembly of the presbyterian church of Canada.

The Guelph presbytery said Friday it will study a recommendation from the Rev. F. Williamson of Guelph that an overture be submitted to the general assembly next fall defining the status of Presbyterian ministers.

Mr. Williamson said the policy of pastors becoming political candidates has "never worked out." The Presbyterian church in Scotland and Ireland is against the policy, he added.

Bilingual Theatre Being Organized

By GERALD McDEVITT

MONTREAL (CP) — A bilingual theatre group capable of performing alternately in English and French has been organized here. The leaders hope they have laid the foundation for what they describe as Canada's first bilingual and national theatre.

The first play to be produced May 20 will be William Inge's "Come Back Little Sheba," starring Lorne Greene of Toronto and Eileen Clifford of Montreal. Rupert Kaplan is producer and Jean Gascon is director.

Mr. Kaplan, originator of the plan, said the idea of a bilingual theatre has been in his mind for many years. But it wasn't until he had seen the quality of production by a group known as Theatre du Nouveau Monde, that he realized it could be done.

GOOD ACTORS

"It's not because they are French that I'm using them," he said.

"It's because they are good actors."

Mr. Kaplan said the reason why "Come Back Little Sheba" was selected was because "it has no limitations of locale — nothing to keep it walled in by the imaginary barrier of language."

With the majority of the company's actors being bilingual it will be possible in time to produce a play certain nights in French and other nights in English. It will just be a question of substitution for the major parts."

MAY GO ACROSS CANADA

Should the project proved successful in Montreal, the company hopes to travel across Canada staging plays in French and in English.

"Up to now," Mr. Kaplan said, "bilingual theatre has consisted of having a French Canadian, dressed in a mackinaw, speak broken English."

"We want to rid people of that notion. This group, because they are good actors and bilingual, can capture the true feeling and atmosphere of a play whether it be in English or in French."

He said English-speaking Canadians regularly followed French plays and vice versa, because they wanted to see good theatre. Language barrier to these people was unimportant.

Wanted Too Much, Cancel Ladd Award

RENO, Nev. (AP)—Actor Alan Ladd wanted too much more than the silver spurs awarded him, the Reno Chamber of Commerce said Friday in cancelling its May 22 annual film award ceremonies.

The chamber had named Ladd for the annual Silver Spur Award, considered the horse opera Oscar, for his acting in "Shane." He was invited to Reno for the ceremonies.

But, said the chamber, Ladd "accompanied his acceptance of the invitation to Reno with requests for the accommodation of several personal guests and a substantial gratuity for himself."

Ladd was not around for comment when the cancellation of the ceremonies was announced, but his wife, former actress Sue Carol, denied that a "gratuity" had been sought.

Council Asked To Improve Surface Drains

Surface drainage on the premises on the south side of Maniece Ave., between the canal and city limits, is poor. So the board of health are requesting city council to take joint action with the CPR to improve it.

This and some other related recommendations were made Friday afternoon at the meeting of the board of health.

Seven houses are on the south side of the street between the canal and the city limits, north of the CPR tracks. Because the land there is low it is often flooded when there is a heavy rain or when the thaw sets in in spring.

Because of this flooding, said Dr. J. P. Wells, MOH, "the well water supplies are unsafe and the installation of septic tanks is impracticable, causing menace to health."

The board want the PUC to make municipal water available to the premises.

Dr. Wells also recommended that the owners should be required to build adequate box privies for sewage disposal and leaching wells for waste water disposal

Club Enjoys Dramatic Group

Knox church Dramatic Group entertained the St. Andrew's Mr. and Mrs. Club at their meeting Friday evening at St. Andrew's church by presenting a one-act play, "Five to Five Thirty" and two short skits titled, "The Vacuum Cleaner" and "Two is Company". Director Mr. Peter McCombe and Ms. Graham Donaldson played in both skits which were quick, witty, and to the point. In the play Rita Mitchell was excellent as Mrs. Boxer, a slovenly housemaid, and the part of her mistress, Miss Tree-Top, was well portrayed by Miss Susan Summers. The parts of three ungrateful, snobbish daughters were equally well taken by Dorothy Faulkner, Betty Massey-Cooke and Dorothy Grainger. Dialogue in this went fast and the play was well received. The Rev. Henry Cotton opened the evening with prayer and later led a sing song. Mr. and Mrs. Graham Donaldson and their group were responsible for the enjoyable evening and were thanked by president Les MacLaren who was in charge of the lunch arrangements. Mr. and Mrs. John Smith were welcomed as new members and Mr. and Mrs. Reuben McDonald were guests. It was decided to dispense with the June meeting and to start the fall season in September with meetings on the second Friday each month.

Caryll Lang Chosen Queen At PCVS Third May Ball

"Sweetheart of PCVS" is Miss Caryll Lang, who was crowned the May Queen at 12 midnight Friday during the third annual May Ball. She had the honor of wearing a handsome jewelled tiara for the remainder of the evening, and was presented with a sheaf of red roses by principal Mr. C. S. Browne as more than 200 fellow-students and guests cheered her.

Runners-up for the crown were Miss Dorothy Kingston and Miss Ann Whitehouse, and they were presented with colonial nosegays of spring flowers. These two students are in grade 10B and Miss Lang is in 12A.

Choice of the queen was in the hands of three teacher advisors. To choose one girl who was more graceful and charming than the others in a crowd of 110 on a dance floor was indeed difficult, so they chose six, put their names in a hat and had Mrs. C. S. Browne make a draw. Costume and general deportment during the dance were other factors considered.

A parchment proclamation naming Miss Lang the queen was brought forth amid fanfare by three pages, Don Sargent, Brian Truman, and Bill King. Chairs of honor for the queen and her attendants were placed beneath a silver crown decorated with apple blossom branches, symbolic of the season.

The crowning ceremony was in charge of Miss Lorraine Bacon. Bob Lauchlan was chairman of the dance and the decorations were put up by Marilyn Hardwicke, Margaret Dobson and Judy Hardill. Spotlighting for the crowning was handled by Denton Cameron and Bud Cruikshank.

The effective display of blossoms throughout the gym was colored by heaps of balloons let down after the crowning in a balloon dance. Music was by the Bobby Kinsman orchestra and programs named the dance selections made by the students for the evening.

Refreshments of jelly do-nuts with coffee or coke were provided by arrangement of Miss Jane Buckland and Don McIntosh.

Mr. and Mrs. Browne attended as special guests. Teacher advisors to the Social Functions Committee for which this was the last official act of the school year, are Miss Doris Burgess, Miss Mary Johnson, and Mr. A. Shearer.

Montreal Singer Ignores Warning To Save Voice

By ALEX DIMEO

MONTREAL (CP) — Six years ago a doctor warned Jeanne d'Arc Charlebois she would lose her voice if she continued to sing in the style that made her an international favorite.

But since then the statuesque 31-year-old blonde has entertained Canadian troops in Germany, worked for network television in Paris and appeared at New York's famed Palace theatre.

Jeanne d'Arc imitates banjos, trumpets and tap dancers, or sings humorous songs in a foghorn-like voice.

The doctor's warning was prompted by the strain on her vocal chords.

SANG IN EUROPE

She seemed undisturbed at the possibility she might lose her voice almost anytime.

"I guess I'll keep on singing for another four years or so until my oldest boy is ready for school," she said. "Then I'l wlant to be around to help with his homework."

But this doesn't mean the Guimonds—her off-stage name is Mrs. Olivier Guimond—will be out of show business completely. Her husband is "Ti-Zoune," a French-speaking comedian who has made a name for himself in Quebec and Montreal.

Her two children, Richard, 2, and Marc, 10 months, may not be headed for entertainment careers but Jean d'Arc says they're "good little troupers."

She took both of them on her European tour.

"I took a maid along and she and the children stayed in hotels while I worked. I'd arrange to spend as much of my time as I could with them, so we all had quite a time."

The children, however, will not go with Jeanne d'Arc on a tour of Japan this spring. She plans to spend six weeks there with the Canadian forces and perhaps visit other Asian countries. She will come back to Canada for a few weeks and then go off to France again.

"French television is wonderful" she says.

"There are no long, drawn-out rehearsals. They report to the studio about 15 minutes before broadcast time, look their lines over, get a few tips from the director and that's it."

She's an old hand at television, having appeared on New York and Montreal network shows.

DOROTHY DIX

Says Indiscreet Divorcee Might Resent Interference

DEAR MISS DIX: A divorced friend of mine is going with a man who is a widower. She visits him at his home three or four nights a week, sometimes staying all night. As he lives alone, this has caused criticism and I think she's losing her good name. I should like to talk to her about it but my husband disagress with me. Do you think I am right in trying to warn her?

S. S.

NO WARNING NEEDED

ANSWER: Your friend is old enough to know right from wrong, and I'm sure she needs no friendly warning as guidance. If, however, your conscience won't rest unless you do interfere, you'll do so at the risk of losing her friendship. Avoid her if the association is displeasing to you and your husband, but let her work out her own problem.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I'm going with a very nice young man; he's considerate, good company, has a fine personality and is liked by everyone. His only fault is that he hasn't a good education, while I have gone through college. He makes lots of mistakes in grammar, and my friends tease me about it. I certainly don't want a difference in education to ruin my love life.

MISS JOAN

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: I gather you are but newly out of college, and so still carry the shiny armor of higher learning, which will, in time, run itself into a pleasant patina that will endure for the rest of your life. At present you are just too conscious of your degree, giving it preminence over everything else in your life. It is a perfectly natural reaction—one that lasts just a bit longer than the usual run of adolescent, or postadolescent disturbances. If your friend has no outstanding faults other than a deficiency in grammar, don't let that upset your love life by any means. In fact, many college graduates have the same failing. If he cares for you enough to marry you, I'm sure he'll be willing to work at overcoming his handicap. Look to the things in which he is superior, and overlook this single defect which probably can be remedied.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I have a girl friend who is very dear to me, but I no longer trust her. Whenever we are in her company she is constantly fussing over my husband. She fixes his tie, rumples his hair, lights his cigarette, etc. Naturally, he's flattered by all this attention and insists she is a wonderful person. If there a way I can tell her to leave him alone, without losing her friendship? Her husband trusts her implicity and he never seems upset over her conduct.

E. O.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Incidents like this frequently cause trouble. The lady's husband, you say, is dull so perhaps she is merely on the lookout for minor diversion. I doubt if there's anything in the situation for you to worry about, but I certainly do appreciate your concern. Why not try the same tactics on the lady's husband? Under his apparent disregard for his wife's conduct, he may be as seething as you are, and quite ready for a bit of retaliation. Both she and your husband are so confident of their respective mates that it would do them goo dto have their complacency slightly shaken.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX:: I am 16 and my boy friend is 19. He wants me to marry him and my parents are urging me to. I'm not pretty and my folks say this is the only chance I'll ever have to marry and I'd better grab it. The trouble is I don't know whether I'm in love with him or not.

J. T.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Marrying at 16 carries enough risk without the additional difficulty of uncertain love. Tell the young man you aren't ready for marriage, and if he loves you, he'll wait another year or two. Ignore your family's attitude as much as you can. The fact that you aren't pretty (or at least are not considered so by your family) would be the worst possible reason to marry. Sixteen is no age to grab at a "last chance."

FIRST BORN—Do you remember when you held your tiny baby in your arms? There are few experiences which equal the thrill of these early days of parenthood.

FOR PARENTS ONLY

First Born In Mother's Arms Happiest Moment In Life

By NANCY CLEAVER

At the end of Christian Family week look back into the past and remember when your first-born was put into your arms! There are few moments in all of life which can compare with this experience. There are none greater!

Mother forgets the long months of waiting, the hours of childbirth, in the joy of feeling this warm, vibrant little bundle, with the soft hair, the long lashes sweeping the delicate pink cheek, the miniature nose and mouth. She slips one of her fingers into a tiny shell-like palm, and baby's fingers close tightly around hers.

"I had no idea a new baby was so small! a young father said hecently, "But when I looked through the hospital nursery glass at my son asleep in the tiny crib, did I ever feel big!" Many a father is almost as relieved as a mother, that the baby is safely here—and is perfect in every way. If father has been counting on a boy, and a daughter arrives, any sense of disappointment soon disappears. Little girl babies have ways of casting a spell over their fond fathers!

One of the loveliest of good wishes for a child's future appeared in "Antony, A Record of Youth" by the Earl of Lytton. Antony writes these lines to Lady Gage, after the birth of her son. "May all the best things in the world be his always, and life fall on his shoulders like a brave, rich and beautiful cloak."

BEST FOR CHILDREN

"The best things in the world"—all parents want just that for their children, and whether or not boys and girls will receive this heritage depends to a great extent upon the character and ideals of the parents. The mother or father must try to be what they want their children to become, because example is so much more effective than precept.

A well-adjusted, happy, successful individual casually comes from a home where parents enjoy their children. It is not easy to enter imaginatively into their joys and sorrows and try to understand the reasons for desirable or undesirable behaviour. A good parent views problems objectively and not with a personal or emotional bias.

In a recent book, "Mary Lincoln, Biography of a Marriage" by R. P. Randall there is a chapter "Four Dollars a Week" of the early married life, of the future president of the United States.

The author writes,

"One can picture the anxiety in the deep-set eyes at the birth of his first-born, and then their lighting with the joy of fatherhood. A basic human experience had come to the Lincolns to bind them together; two heads bent over the perennial miracle of a newborn baby, flesh of their flesh. Fom this time on the name "Molly" disappears from the record. Sometimes Lincoln called her playful pet names like "Puss," "child-wife," or "little woman," but mostly after this he called her "Mother." "

Freda Newton Bunner, a Canadian poet who is the mother of three children has echoed the emotions of many parents as they look down on the lovely little form of their baby in these thoughtful lines which are quoted by special permission;

This is our child—at last!
The dream of yesterday is past,
And now he lies—a person—in my arms.
What have we done? What have we done!
Brought a new soul to birth,
To face a lifetime on this earth
All lies ahead. And what's ahead?
Oh God! What Glory, or what dread?
What can we do?
We are not wise enough, we too,
To guide this precious life we have begun.
"God, show the way!"
We both must pray—
We both each day.

Readers' Saturday Column

QUESTION: Could you help me . . I am having an awful time trying to think of 1) something for lunch pails. 2) Something to eat when my husband comes home to lunch . . every week my husband goes on a different shift . days are fine, but trouble starts when he goes on the 4 pm to 12 shift. He wants something light yet filling . same goes for when he gets up after sleeping all day on the other shift . I've tried eggs, boiled, fried scrambled, creamed asparagus, spaghetti, also canned soups . . . sandwiches are "no go" . . . . MRS. R. E. S.

ANSWER: You need not have apologized for your letter. I thought you were a pet. Here goes: 1) creamed salmon or tuna or chicken on toast with dainty little green salad. 2) Scotch Woodcock (process cheese on untoasted side of 1 slice of bread, with 1 or 2 strips bacon, broiled) and celery hearts. 3) Clam Chowder with rye toast and tomato jelly mould on lettuce 4) Hot consomme, chicken salad, bran muffin, dill pickle. 5) French toast and crisp side bacon and carrot strips, hot cocoa.

For the lunch box: 1) Cold baked spare ribs. Cut these so that meat is on both sides of one rib; white cheese and jelly whole wheat sandwich; sweet pickles; apple pie, cheese, coffee. 2) Corned beef whole wheat sandwiches with lettuce and mustard; dill pickle; hard-cooked egg; fruit cup, chocolate brownie, tea. 3) Hot cream of tomato soup in vacuum bottle; individual homemade beef or chicken pie; celery hearts; orange, cookie. 4) Fried chicken leg and thigh; lettuce and white cream cheese whole wheat sandwich; strips of raw carrot, cucumber and green pepper, banana, fig bars, hot cocoa. 5) Sliced pickled tongue and lettuce sandwich on whole wheat, cole slaw, apple turnover, Swiss cheese, comfee.

I hope these ideas help. When you have worn them thin write again.

QUESTION: I am a business girl who has just acquired a new stove with a fully automatic oven and would appreciate if you could give a few menus for oven dinners (for two persons) . . . enjoy your articles for calory watchers, of which I am one . . . D. F. F.

ANSWER: You certainly came to the right source. My two sisters have an automatic oven and use it to perfection. They say to walk in the front door and smell dinner cooking is next best to having mother there. I phoned my sister Peady, read her your letter, and she told me the menus she had prepared in the oven during this past week. 1) Veal cutlet with ½ can undiluted tomato soup over, 2 small baked potatoes. She heated in top of double boiler small can of corn niblets and served fresh fruit cup and cheese and crackers for dessert. 2) Baked chicken breasts, casserole of rice (see method below), casserole of beets, (parboil and peel these, then quarter, add 1 tablespoons each water and butter, salt and pepper), baked apples. Oven temperature 350 deg. for 1 hour. 3) Meat loaf, glazed carrots (parboil carrots 10 minutes before adding glaze and putting in covered casserole), coarsely diced parboiled potatoes in cheese sauce, rhubarb crisp. Oven temperature 350 deg. Fahr. for 1 hour.

For the rice casserole use ½ cup regular long-grain rice, ⅞ cup boiling water, 1-3 teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon butter. Put in covered casserole. It will swell, cook and each grain will be distinct and delicious.

QUESTION: Our group wish to serve an evening lunch of fruit salad plate. Would you please tell me what amounts we need for 50 ladies. We will use 105-oz. tins . . . please give amounts in ounces. The tinned fruits are: peaches, pears, cubed pineapple and apricots . . . also ¼ banana sprinkled with nuts, maraschino cherry, stuffed prune and possibly cheese ball. How many heads lettuce . . . E. L.

ANSWER: Two things I want to be sure to say: 1) spread the banana pieces with mayonnaise sparingly then roll them in nuts. Otherwise nuts won't stick and bananas will darken. 2) Be sure to serve a cheese ball or wedge of Gruyere. Fruit salads made with canned fruit need it. You will need 6 big heads of lettuce to get 50 perfect cups. You will have waste here but the ladies can take imperfect leaves home. Cut out core and flood water through bottom to gently loosen leaves, then dry them very thoroughly. Figures on pieces of fruit in 105-oz. tin are approximate because size of fruit varies. Peaches: 28 halves per can; apricots 68; pears 20; pineapples slices 45. Use one-half piece of all but pineapple; ¼ slice pineapple.

6—In Memoriam

PAYNE—In memory of a loving daughter, Mrs Ken Payne, died May 16, 1953.
Just when her life was brightest,
Just when her years were best,
She was called from this world of sorrow,
To a home of eternal rest.
—Ever remembered by Mother and Dad.

PAYNE—In loving memory of my dear wife and our loving mother, Mrs. Cressa Payne, who passed away, May 15, 1953.
We have lost our souls companion,
A life linked with our own;
And day by day we miss her more,
As we walk through life alone.
—Sadly missed and always remembered by husband Ken and family, Joan, Nora, Keith.

SPENCLEY—Still thinking of happy days when he was here and of happier ones when we meet.
—Al Spencley and family.

McKEE HARVESTING SYSTEMS
Why not call on our Field Men to help you plan a Harvesting System for your Farm? We have the experience to assure guaranteed results. Our systems apply to every crop. Grass, silage, hay, grain threshing, and seed harvest. Use McKee Harvester to pick up swathed grain and haul it to your threshing machine. We manufacture special conveyors to elevate it into your thresher. Remember, ONE 25 H.P. Tractor, ONE McKee Harvester and Wagon, and ONE Man can bring in enough grain to keep a threshing machine running continuously. Two Men can do the job which formerly required 7 or 8.
HAVE YOU ORDERED YOUR McKEE HARVESTER?
Did you ever rise early on a quiet June morning to slip off to your favourite fishing spot only to find some one has been there before you? Rather frustrating, isn't it? The man that telephones up in June and expects to get a McKee Harvester could find himself in the same dilemma. Let's face it! We have about 25 in stock, but a carload is scheduled for Kelowna, B.C. Plus a carload for Regina, Sask. We prefer to do business with Ontario farmers, but we certainly can't maintain a manufacturing plant on last minute orders.

Captured Nazi Raider Taken To Chicago Museum

PORTSMOUTH, N.H. (AP)—Ten years ago the captured Nazi undersea raider U-505—first enemy man of war captured on the high seas by the U.S. navy in 129 years—began a 2,500 mile voyage at the end of a tow cable.

Today the U-505 was off on another 2,500 mile tow—to a final resting place in Chicago.

And Earl Trosino, in command of the prize crew 10 years ago when the U-505 was towed to Bermuda from a point off French West Africa, again was in charge. Trosino, of Springfield, Pa., now is a naval reserve captain.

The 650-ton German craft will travel by way of the St. Lawrence river and the Great Lakes. She will be set up as a war memorial at Chicago's Museum of Science and Industry.

Trosino, on leave from his civilian job as chief engineer of a merchant marine tanker, estimated five or six weeks for the voyage to Chicago. Earlier estimates were 30 days, depending on weather conditions on the Great Lakes. Cost of the tow job is estimated as "in excess of $25,000."

The unusual tow will be met at Montreal by a yacht bearing members of the Chicago "U-505 committee" and four selected Sea Scouts who will travel with Trosino the remainder of the route.

Trosino explained also that the sub will have to be moved a short distance overland in Chicago, from the lake front to its final resting place, and this haul will entail crossing busy Lake Shore drive at night when traffic is lightest.

The sub will be towed by the tug Pauline L. Moran of New York.

It was the first time Nehru had publicly indicated India would be willing to take a hand in the Korean and Indo-China issues.

Bible Society Plans Rally

A public rally to mark the 150th anniversaary of the founding of the British and Foreign Bible Society will be held in the Brock arena Sunday at 8.30 p.m.

The interdenominational mass meeting, one of the first of its kind in Peterborough, will feature Dr. Emlyn Davies, pastor of Yorkminster Baptist church in Toronto, as guest speaker. Yorkminster is the largest Baptist church in Canada.

The rally will call attention to the work of an organization which has averaged a daily output of 10,000 volumes of scriptures for the past 150 years. A total of 210,000,000 volumes has been produced by this organization, translated into 1,070 languages and dialects.

The meeting will be handled by the Peterborough branch of the Upper Canada Bible Society, a subsidiary of the British and Foreign society. They will work in co-operation with the Ministerial Association, the YMCA, the Friday Night Club, the Salvation Army, St. Andrew's United church and the Brock St. Gardens.

Sunday's rally coincides with a drive for funds in this area to carry on the society's publishing work. It is probably best known for printing the Bibles which are placed in hotel rooms by the Gideon society. Locally the drive is for $1,500.

Musical offerings will be promoted by the Salvation Army band under bandmaster R. G. Routly. There will also be a hymn sing directed by the Army's song leader, and vocal selections by the St. Andrew's church quartet.

Among the clergymen taking part in the meeting will be the Rev. I. G. Pollock, who will give a scripture reading, the Rev. Gilbert Smith who will lead in prayer, and the Rev. H. F. H. Parlee who will close the meeting with a benediction.

Greetings will be brought on behalf of the ministerial association by the Rev. M. Poole. Also on hand will be the Rev. H. Egerton Young, district secretary of the Upper Canada Bible Society. Dr. Davies will be introduced by the Rev. A. S. Roblin.

Local officers of the Bible society are: president, Orley Axford; secretary, Miss Leatha Kidd, treasurer, W. P. Laverty; canvass chairman, James C. McClenaghan; directors, E. A. Hales and E. A. Watkins; Mr. Axford recently succeeded Charles Coleman as president.

Hold Man, 51 In Fatal Stabbing Death

MONTREAL (CP) — Homicide detectives said they are holding a 51-year-old man following the fatal slashing of an unidentified grey-haired woman whose body was found in an east end field Friday night.

Inspector Henry Bond said the victim, aged between 40 and 50, was found by two 16-year-old boys in a six-foot deep foundation pit.

There was a deep gash along one side of the neck and the lower lip. There were also teeth marks on the woman's left arm.

Police said the man, identified as Leo Poitras, formerly of St. Lin, Que., was found sprawled beside the body. He appeared to "have been drinking heavily."

FIND EMPTY BOTTLES

Two large empty wine bottles and some freshly - made sandwiches lay on the ground, together with two blood-stained razor blades.

Inspector Bond said police could not question Poitras immediately as the man was not coherent.

Medico-legal experts place the slaying in the "late afternoon."

Police said the woman wore a black overcoat and was dressed in a black flowered dress, grey sweater and brown low - heeled shoes.

They said they were called when the boys, Jimmy McCollum and Larry Routly, ran home from the field on Notre Dame St. East and told their parents.

Assistant Inspector Henry Bond of the homicide squad said there was little doubt the killing was the work of a sex maniac. The victim had been bitten on the wrist and upper thigh.

Tells Of Christians In China, Thailand

MILLBROOK (ENS) — The WMS of St. Andrew's United church met in the church hall with Miss Estella Hetherington, president, in the chair.

The program was in charge of Group F, under the direction of group leader Mrs. Mary Widdis.

The worship service had as its theme "The Church of the Open Book." The scripture lesson was read by Miss Marjorie Skiteh. Miss Widdis led in the responsive prayers, Mrs. Chester Fisher sang a solo, with Miss Hetherington at the piano. The offering was received by Mrs. J. J. Powell.

Mrs. H. R. Edmunds, treasurer, reported $39.80 had been received in the Easter thankoffering and there was a bank balance of $69.22.

The study period was conducted by Mrs. Homer Quellette. It dealt with missionary work in Thailand and China. At the present time there are no missionairies in China. This is the fourth time in its history that Christianity has come to China and been driven out. There are still many Christians behind the iron curtain.

In Thialand, Mrs. Ouellette told of the city of Bangkok, one of the most modern in the world. She told also of the Christian work camp in the northern part of Thialand, where 60 families from 30 different churches work and worship together.

Special Prayers Said For Queen

LONDON (Reuters) — Church congregations throughout Britain of all denominations will offer prayers of thanksgiving Sunday for the safe return of Queen Elizabeth from her Commonwealth tour.

At Westminster Abbey and other Church of England services, three special prayers suggested by the Archbishop of Canterbury will be said for the Queen, the duke, the Royal Family, and the Commonwealth.

The prayer for the Commonwealth asks that the peoples "May be so fashioned in Thy (God's) spirit and fortified in Thy will, that, obedient to Thy direction, they may go forward with courage and hope to meet the demands and dangers of this present time."

At the Roman Catholic Westminster Cathedral here, a mass in thanksgiving will be followed by a special sermon by Cardinal Bernard Griffin, Archbishop of Westminster.

Freighter Fights Cargo Fire Reaches Buffalo Safely

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — The great Lakes freighter Mataafa arrived here safely under her own power early today after successfully fighting a fire in a cargo hold on Lake Erie Friday.

None of the 32 crew members of the 429-foot vessel was injured in the fire, which forced the ship to heave to off Long Point, Ont., about 65 miles northwest of here.

Capt. Emory Mossman said his ship was not damaged by the flames, but that eight of 361 new automobiles in the cargo were badly burned. Several others were damaged by water and steam.

Mossman said a complete damage report will be made later by the owners of the freighter, the Nicholson Transit Co., of Buffalo.

CAUSE UNCERTAIN

The cause of the fire has not been determined but an official of the company said that the fire was believed to have started with a short-circuit in one of the automobiles.

The Mataafa docked here shortly after 12:30 a.m., EDT. It was escorted by two 40-foot United States coast guard cutters, one from Buffalo and the other from Erie, Pa.

Capt. Orwin Peterson of Chicago, commander of an American Airlines plane en route from Detroit to Rochester, N.Y., was the first to report the ship's plight.

He radioed the air traffic control centre in Cleveland when he noticed an abnormal amount of smoke coming from the Mataafa when he passed overhead Friday afternoon.

Coast guard units were ordered to the scene from Buffalo and Erie, and others were ordered to stand by in Cleveland.

Mossman said the fire was extinguished shortly after 3 p.m., and the vessel continued its voyage to Buffalo.

Dragging Lake For Fisherman

KINGSTON (CP) — Ontario provincial police dragged lake waters 16 miles north of here today for the body of Robert D. Miller, 24, of Bethlehem, Pa., believed drowned when his fishing punt struck a submerged steel pipe and capsized Friday.

Two companions, Albert R. Beahm, 25, and his brother, William, 34, both of Bethlehem, managed to swim ashore.

The three men were cruising through Fiddler's Elbow, between Cranberry and Dog lakes, in their home-made 12-foot outboard motor boat, when it capsized.

Albert Beahm said he tried to save Miller, a poor swimmer, but was himself almost pulled under by the drowning man.

Nearby residents notified police and a rescue boat from Belleville went to the scene.

Fishermen Line

the bridge and the log booms. They fished elbow to elbow and there was plenty of excitement, what with tangled lines and wayward fish.

Ed Coss, 43 Edgewater Rd., and Lawrence Falls, 14 Bruce St., were two local fishermen who struck fish soon after midnight.

Across the other side of the dam someone landed a pickerel, but lost hold of it on the bank. It started struggling dangerously near the water. Encouragement and advice came from all sides—"Hold him boy, . . . tackle him low, . . . get in after him fella". The "fella" got him alright.

Deputy game warden Gerald Johnson, who was keeping a check on proceedings at Burleigh Falls, told the Examiner that anglers from Perry's creek reported excellent fishing. As far as Gerald could make out, the district generally was having a real night out with the pickerel . . . "one of the best opening nights in many, many years."

Early today Buckhorn residents told of a great night's sport. Everyone said that the fish were definitely bigger than in some previous years.

CAUGH THE LIMIT

Fishing in that area, Frank Lockington and K. Spencer, both of Peterborough, collected limit bags (six fish over 14 inches) before 2 a.m. Several others also had similar luck and Don Marois of Buckhorn landed an excellent 9½-pounder about 1 a.m.

The Examiner today interviewed several local anglers who had taken big fish during the night. Gordon Bullied, 506 Cordach Cres. had the biggest. It was a 28-inch, seven-pound pickerel. He caught it just south of the Hunter St. bridge.

Fishing off the end of the pier at lock 22, Jim Ridyard, 1115 Hilltop Drive, hooked and landed a fish, just a few ounces short of seven pounds.

Bill Dunbar, RR 7, Peterborough, reported extra good fishing at Chemong. This morning he dislpayed a 6 lb. 5 oz. pickerel that he caught off the causeway. He also landed four others.

Alec Daniels, Jr., 524 Howden Ave., collected a limit bag at Buckhorn. One of the fish tipped the scales at seven pounds.

The lock at Lakefield did not go unnoticed by fishermen and at Young's Point it was really difficult to find parking space. Fishing at both these spots was reported "just fine" and along the banks, collections of flapping pickerel added their mute testimony.

From all accounts it seems that this opening day's proverbial fish stories will be true. It was an unfortunate angler, indeed, who failed to catch his breakfast.

The Examiner met just one of these types. It appears that the effort of his second cast had been enough to dislodge his glass jar of minnows. Then he discovered that he had left his plugs at home, and although it was only a moderately warm night, the air about him right then was red hot.

The International Olympic Committee meeting in Athens refused to recognize the East German Olympic committee. West Germany was previously admitted.

His Lucky Day

CORONATION, Alta. (CP)—Farmer John Waltham won a new automobile in the curling association's bingo—on his birthday. A year ago he tied for a similar prize, but lost out in the tie draw.

Stabs Child, 9 200 Times With Pencil

CAMDEN, N. J. (AP)—Police are searching for a teen-age bully who beat and tortured two little brothers caught in an alley on their way home from school. He stabbed the older child about 200 times with a lead pencil.

Police said the victims of Friday's vicious attack, John Doto, 9, and Joseph, 7, stumbled arm-in-arm from the alley and slumped to a curb. A passing salesman drove the bleeding and partially disrobed pair to hospital.

Police described the attack as "one of the worst cases of cruelty we have ever seen."

The children were on their way home from school when the unknown attacker pulled them into an alley and demanded money. The brothers told him they had none and the bully struck them. A woman noticed the disturbance and ordered the older boy to leave.

The two youngsters hurried homeward but were stopped a second time in another alley. The boys were stripped of jackets, sweaters, shoes and socks, which were thrown over a nearby wall.

Joseph was knocked down several times and kicked in the face. Then the bully attacked John with the child's own pencil, and punctured most of the upper portion of his body.

Physicians said both were given anti-tetanus injections. They said Joseph was so badly beaten it was first thought his nose was broken.

Moose, Plays Game Of Tag

NEW LISKEARD (CP)—A bull moose calf Friday gave up his meanderings in the woods to provide a game of chase with provincial police Constable Ian Robertson.

Constable Robertson found the year-old animal ambling along highway 11 about 15 miles north of here and attempted to chase the young bull to wooded safety.

But efforts of the constable—armed with a flashlight—were unsuccessful.

The two took turns chasing the other, the pursuer depending on momentary flashes of courage.

Finally, the constable got in his cruiser and tried to head the animal off. But the game ended tragically.

A passing motorist struck the animal, breaking its legs. It was destroyed by Constable Robertson.

Plant Closing Halts Demonstrations

FLINT, Mich. (AP) — The customary weekend closing of Flint auto plants today halted for the time being at least any further demonstrations by fellow workers against witnesses who refused to tell congressional investigators whether they are or aren't Communists.

Two such demonstrations developed Friday shortly before a House of Representatives un-American activities sub-committee concluded two weeks of Michigan hearings.

Testimony was developed to show that the Communist party sent a brigade of highly - trained "colonizers" into Flint in 1949 to infiltrate sprawling General Motors' plants.

Two men identified by "co-operative" witnesses as "colonizers" were the subjects of the demonstrations.

TOLD TO KEEP GOING

At General Motors Buick dynaflow plant, several hundred workers escorted Howard I. Falk, 26, out to the plant gates and told him to "keep going." The other workers jeered at him along the way.

At GM's Chevrolet plant, Marvin Engel, also 26, went to the management and obtained a pass to go home after his fellow workers were milling around when he returned from lunch. A Chevrolet spokesman said Engel "sensed trouble" and asked for a pass for "personal" reasons.

Both Falk and Engel refused to answer questions as to whether they were "colonizers" dispatched to Flint to inject new life into ebbing party affairs. They also balked at all other questions about communism.

TV NEWS TV

By Ken McCannan

We hope the new Kitchener TV station won't have the same worries they faced in Sudbury. CKSO-TV in Sudbury was the first privately owned station in Canada to go on the air. When they turned on the current last fall, they just crossed their fingers and hoped. No one knew for sure what would happen. The station was facing a problem no one had faced before.

All around their transmitting towers were Sudbury's famous hills of copper and nickle. There was fear that these mountains of metal would make ghosts on the screen.

But Sudbury's mountains turned out to be blessing in disguise. The copper and nickle ore actually helped transmission and made the image strong 78 miles away in North Bay, and at Parry Sound and Manitoulin Island.

The Sudbury station was on the air just a year after Canada's first TV programs were transmitted from Montreal. At present 16 private stations are preparing to broadcast. London is broadcasting. Hamilton is just about ready, including our own station in Peterborough which will be televising within a few months.

With all the bigger and better things in the offing in TV there are more reasons than ever why you should own a television set that will give you all the advantages 1954 industry advances have made available. Pictures free from flutter, flop-over and all the other TV jargon meaning poor reception. If you have some questions about TV do drop in and see us. This is one subject we LOVE to discuss and you're never, never under an obligation. We promise if you buy, it will be because you sold yourself! We should warn you though it won't be hard when you get a look at the big, beautiful ADMIRALS crowding our floor . . . the latest miracle, the miracle of television has to offer in this age of miracles. DR. EMLYN DAVIES will be theme speaker at a public rally in the Brock arena Sunday, marking the 150th anniversary of the founding of the British and Foreign Bible Society. Dr. Davies is pastor of Toronto's Yorkminster Baptist church, largest Baptist church in Canada. Dr. Davies will also preach the anniversary services of Park St. Baptist church.

Rev. Dr. Davies To Preach At Park Street

The Rev. Emlyn Davies D.D. will be guest minister both morning and evening at services marking the fifty-ninth anniversary at Park Street Baptist church this coming Sunday.

Dr. Davies is a native of Wales. He received his university training at Cardiff, and did research in ecclesiastical history at Oxford. After pastorates in Wales and in London, England, he returned to Wales as national secretary of the Student Christian movement, and later became professor of ecclesiastical history at the university school of theology in Cardiff. At present he is the minister at Yorkmister Baptist church in Toronto, and is favourably known throughout Great Britain and the United States as a preacher and lecturer.

During his few years in Canada, Dr. Davies has endeared himself to Christians of all denominations through his earnest and forceful presentation of the Christian gospel. Two years ago he was honored by having the honorary degree of doctor of divinity conferred on him by McMaster University. He is well-known on television and radio, and is at present conducting the first four of a series of 12 periods dealing with Christian doctrine over the CBC at 2.30 Sunday afternoons.

The Park Street Baptist church is looking forward to a fine day climaxing a year of activity in which several members have been received, a preaching mission and a festival of missions were conducted, a new Sunday School has been opened, a substantial building fund has been set up, and a healthy spirit of Christian fellowship with others of the city churches has been enjoyed.

Queen Kept Busy Schedule During Travels

LONDON (Reuters) — For the statistically minded, here is what Queen Elizabeth has been doing for the last six months:

She has travelled 50,000 miles by land, sea and air in 174 days.

She has visited 15 states around the world: Aden, Australia, Bermuda, Canada (a stopover at Gander, Nfld.) Ceylon, the Cocos-Keeling islands, Fiji, Gibraltar, Jamaica, Libya, Malta, New Zealand, Panama, Tonga and Uganda.

She has opened six parliaments, unveiled three memorials, opened a road, planted six trees, inaugurated a dam, laid the foundation stone of a cathedral, dedicated a shrine, opened a school, made four broadcasts and held 11 investitures.

She attended 50 state balls, garden parties, lunches and dinners, 135 public receptions and presentations, 27 children's displays and seven horse race meets.

Statisticians lost count on one item: Nobody knows just how many times she shook hands.

Veteran Conductor Falls Under Train

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Albert Kimbel, about 62, of St. Thomas, died Friday under the wheels of a train in the Canadian National-Wabash yards at the foot of McDougall street.

Officials said Kimbel, a veteran Wabash conductor, was crushed by the wheels of a box car, part of a Wabash train which was being made up. The body was found shortly afterwards, at 7:30 a.m., by a CNR employee, Alfred Massotti.

Coroner Dr. C. V. Mills pronounced Kimbel dead, and the body was taken to the Windsor ambulance morgue.

Christian Church

were about the most attractive children in the world.

We were fortunate that it was Communion Sunday, and we were invited to partake, although in good Presbyterian fashion those who did not have their tokens were invited on the basis of being in "good and regular standing." The solemn elders joined with their minister in dispensing the Sacrament, and the little children seemed to melt away through the open doors when we came to that part of the service.

Afterwards the minister told us something of the history of the congregation and of the stone and stucco church. It had been built in the early 1830's by a young Presbyterian missionary from Scotland. He spent five years here, and organized the construction of a fine large building, and carefully planted a little bit of Scotland on this island.

They died young then, and at 33 he was buried beneath the stones of the tower floor, and a marble plaque was erected to tell his story. Such grave-stones and plaques are seen in other parts of the islands, where 30 seemed a close-to-average age to end their work. Jamaica now is a very healthy place, but life was short for young missionaries in those early days.

I think our very pleasant reactions were summed up by the comment of one of my own members who was with us: "This is a good argument for missions."

Parish Players Present Successful Plays

A very good evening of one-act plays, two of them psychological thrillers, the third a hilarious domestic comedy, was given Thursday and Friday in the Parish Hall by St. John's Parish Players. The actors showed intensive training, skilled direction and considerable talent. The staging was restricted by the size of the platform and the static box-structure of the set, but careful use of lights and improvisation on and around the set minimized the deficiencies.

"Legend," by Philip Johnson, a rather harrowing drama evoking the sea and tragedies of seafaring families, was worked out in a kind of Ibsen-Synge manner. Sound effects were good in timing and density, the lighting was used to reflect the mood of the play, and the two principal women (Mrs. Reid played by Muriel Weekes and Mrs. Walters acted by Jeanne Clarke) gave a forcefully dramatic pitch. Their voices were good, their gestures in keeping, their acting was complementary, and both had command of the stage and understanding of the play's substance. The moments of crisis came pat upon rising tension artfully created.

The visiting clergyman was played by Roy Pitchford and the strong spectral intruder from the past was acted by Don Endicott. The players' achievement was all the more remarkable considering how little action there is in the piece; so much hinges on mood and the recreation of emotion by word and voice. Prompter: Phyllis Scott.

"THE BRIDE"

The second play, "The Bride," by Gertrude Jennings, is set in England. It is a funny frolic whose crux is the bridal dress which is mislaid. The ladies acting it entered into the temper and hectic hour before the wedding as if it were the real thing. The mother of the bride (Lillian Cridland) handled her difficult jabber of lines with assurance and gave an altogether convincing performance as the woman who must keep calm but is far from doing so. The audience howled. So they did also when the bride pranced into view and gave tongue so tempestuously and unreasonably. The bride was acted by Gwen Brown. The bride's sister, bloomingly abetting the blather was Vivien Graff. The down-to-earth harried maid (Eileen Baker) came as a good contrast to the rest of the menage. The apparently-careless French dressmaker was Vivien Brier who was an excellent stage replica of what a French dressmaker should be; her flutter and accent were piquant. The dary in the boudoir (or fly in the perfume) was played by Mildred Sutton, the epitome of a scheming, bothersome female Panderus. A funny, light-hearted play. Prompter: Elizabeth Muir.

"ANTI-CLOCKWISE"

The third item on the bill was "Anti-Clockwise", another thriller but with domestic horror rather than sea-blues for its theme. In the principal role of dependent attendant upon a terrible old aunt who would eat the smile off a brass Buddha was Lucy Jane McClellan. An expert and sympathetic performance. The harridan of an aunt was Alison White, who extracted every full ounce of venom and spite from the role. The doctor was efficiently and confidently played by Christine Nornabell. The other, and cold, niece was Margaret Jorygaret Jory, Well done Prompter: B. Norman. Good chilling drama, with the suspense and heart throbs well achieved.

Producer of the first two plays was Archdeacon W. P. Robertson. R. R. Faryon directed "Anti-Clockwise."

Ray Gillies managed the lights; the sound was effected by Victor Coleman, and make-up was under the guidance of D. McTavish.

W. S. Mason introduced each play from the platform. President of the St. John's Parish Players is Miss Margaret Stevenson who also assisted in the direction.

Altogether a praiseworthy evening of entertainment at a high amateur level. —T.J.A.

FIND HIGHWAY RECORDS DESTROYED

Would Halt Progress Payments

Report Recommends Deputy Minister Be Held Responsible

TORONTO (CP))— A system of pre-qualification of Ontario highway contractors and the discontinuance of progress payments to contractors was recommended today in a report presented to the Ontario legislature's elect committee investigating alleged irregularities in the provincial highways department.

The 78-page report of J. D. Woods and Gordon Ltd., appointed last January by Premier Frost to make a study of the department, also proposed:

1. The deputy minister be responsible for all departmental operations.

2. The department's two field organizations be merged and strengthened.

3. Five senior officials at head office report to the deputy minister.

4. A considerable reduction in number of causal employees and a proportionate increase in number of permanent civil servants.

5. Departmental employees be subject to instant dismissal if they accept gifts or other favors from contractors or others doing business with the government.

6. The chief engineer should have four senior assistants at head office and several inspecting engineers.

WOULD SCREEN BIDDERS

The report, presented to the committee by Duncan Gordon, recommended that contractors wishing to work for the department be asked to meet certain specified requirements in experience, financial resources and equipment. Similar procedures, known as pre-qualification, are used in most of the United States.

"Competitive bidding has many advantages, that most obvious being that the work should be done at the lowest possible cost to the public and every contractor has a fair opportunity to obtain a share of it. The difficulty in competitive bidding, however, is to ensure that the lowest bidder is capable of performing the work in a satisfactory manner."

One Contract 300% Over

TORONTO (CP)—Destruction of highway construction records following the start of the investigation into alleged irregularities in the highways department was revealed today by H. A. Cotnam, provincial auditor.

Mr. Cotnam testified before the Ontario legislatures select committee investigating the department's activities, that no written instructions were given to subordinate officers to destroy the recofds.

He said the investigation had been hampered by the loss of these records.

"Persons have told us they destroyed the records; as a result it is most difficult to check the work that has been done," he said.

Under questioning, Mr. Cotnam said some of these persons were now involved in criminal court proceedings.

CAN'T FIND SUIT

Albert Wren (Lib-Lab—Kenora) asked where the instructions to destroy came from. Mr. Cotnam said it was difficult to find that out.

"Were there no written orders to destroy the records?" asked Mr. Wren.

"That's our information," replied the provincial auditor.

W. J. Grummett, CCF House leader, wondered if proceedings were to be taken against junior employees involved.

Mr. Cotnam said he did not think it desireable to "persecute," the juniors.

"They may have been instructed to do some things."

"But the wrongdoings of the seniors and the contractors were facilitated by the work of the juniors," said Mr. Grummett.

"That's true," replied the provincial auditor.

TRIALS BY SEPTEMBER

Mr. Cotnam said he did not wish to elaborate further on his interim report until court proceedings had been completed. Asked by Mr. Wren how long that would be, Attorney-General Porter said that the cases should come up for trial by September.

Mr. Cotnam said irregularities were discovered in the field survey records and supporting field notes. Present practices call for a preliminary survey of the proposed highway route followed by another survey when the work has been started. The difference is what you pay for."

He said the preliminary survey offered the best opportunity for "fudging"—juggling of figures.

"Mounds of earth would disappear. It was then difficult to determine what was originally there."

The contracts were let on a tender basis. Payments over the amount of the original tender were covered by work orders.

$15,000,000 OVER CONTRACTS

Mr. Cotnam's interim report contained a detailed description of contracts let in 1950, chosen as a representative year. It showed the

Rebels Treated Wounded Well Evacuee Says

HANOI, Indo-China (AP)—The French Union defenders of Dien Bien Phu fought their Communist-led assailants furiously without letup until all their ammunition was gone.

Then, as one by one their guns fell silent over the remnant of the fortress bunkers, they carried out Brig.-Gen. Christian de Castries' last order — "give up when you can no longer fight."

This account of the fortress' last hours May 7 was given to reporters Sunday night by three badly wounded survivors of the epic siege, part of the contingent of 11 casualties released by the Vietminh rebels before the airlift evacuation was suspended Saturday.

At Hanoi's overcrowded Lanessan military hospital they said both Brig.-Gen. Christian de Castries, their garrison commander, and the only woman in the fortress, air force nurse Genevieve de Galard Terraube of Paris, were captives of the Vietminh.

Neither was wounded, the trio said.

All three men lay severely wounded with some 1,400 others in the battered, shell-torn fortress' underground hospital while the human tidal waves of rebels swept over in the final engulfing blows.

LEG SHATTERED

His right leg badly shattered by Vietminh fire, Pte. Marcel Champougny said he thought the last hours of fighting would never end.

"It seemed as if there were thousands of shells and machine gun bullets hitting against the hospital bunker.

"Some of them buried some of the wounded alive as the Vietminh just fired over everything they had.

"From outside we could hear the wild screaming of the Vietminh and the answering cries of the French as everybody fought viciously, hand to hand.

Railway Bridge Used To Hide Secret Papers

CANBERRA (CP)—The planks of a railway bridge near Canberra served for a time as the hiding place for documents passed between Vladimir Petrov and other foreign agents, Australia's royal commission on espionage learned today.

W. J. V. Windeyer, chief government counsel, told the commission government authorities learned of the hiding place when they translated one of the documents turned over to them by the former Soviet embassy third secretary when he requested political asylum last month.

It was Petrov's disclosures that touched off the investigation into what Windeyer described today as a "remarkable counterpart" of what was discovered in Canada following the defection of Igor Gouzenko, a Soviet embassy cipher clerk, in 1946.

One of his documents, Windeyer said, contained orders to Petrov from Moscow to stop using the railway-bridge as a hiding place because it was inspected regularly by railway employees.

VICTIMS BLACKMAILED

The government counsel said in his opening statement Soviet agents had blackmailed Australians into spying for them.

Petrov, who was given political asylum as was his wife when she decided not to go back to Russia, told investigators the Red agents employed blackmailing tactics if they knew anything detrimental about a person they wished to use. Once in the spy ring, it was not easy for a person to get out.

Since 1951, however, the Soviets had found it "increasingly difficult" to find Australians who would work with them.

Operations of Australia's foreign ministry and its military departments were the chief targets.

100 Jailed As Saboteurs After Rioting

DACCA, East Pakistan (AP)—Police have jailed about 100 persons—some of whom they called enemy agents and saboteurs—in the wake of bloody rioting Saturday among workers at the Adamjee jute mills in Narayangunj. Others were hunted today.

Possibly 300 persons were killed and 300 injured in the riot, reported to involve hostile factions of local Bengali workers and non-Bengali workers from West Pakistan. Usually reliable sources said Communist agitators had fanned minor disputes into violence.

Officials said university students posing as mill workers were among the jailed suspects. A large number of other suspects were reported to have gone underground.

Troops patrolled the mill area south of Dacca. Newspapermen who visited the area Sunday night saw some huts still burning. Bodies still floated in mill ponds or lay partly hidden in rice fields.

In Karachi, Justice Minister A. K. Brohi told parliament the national government took a serious view of the rioting, but law and order was the responsibility of the East Pakistan provincial government. The dominant Moslem League lost control of the province in March elections to a five-party United front including Communists.

Airliner Averts Malton Collision

TORONTO (CP)—A threatened mid-air collision between a loaded Trans-Canada Air Lines North Star airliner and a small civilian aircraft was averted Sunday at suburban Malton airport.

Pilots of both planes banked sharply and veered off in opposite directions.

Passengers aboard the North Star were pitched against their safety belts as the airliner lurched sharply to avoid the small yellow plane.

Capt. Edward Marriott of Montreal, TCA pilot, said it was another case of Sunday afternoon pilots getting in your hair."

TCA officials said efforts are being made to track down the small plane.

The incident recalled the crash at Moose Jaw, Sask., a few weeks ago in which 37 persons were killed when an RCAF training plane rammed a TCA North Star.

Alleged Burglar Shot To Death

WINNIPEG (CP)—A 27-year-old alleged burglar was shot to death early today while attempting to escape a police cordon in downtown Winnipeg.

Police identified the dead man as Theodore Rosmus, who was out on $30,000 bail while awaiting trial on several charges of shop-breaking in Winnipeg and St. Boniface.

They said two other men are in custody and probably will face charges.

The cordon was set up after police received a telephone call from a local resident that three men were in the premises of the Manitoba medical clinic.

A young constable went after Rosmus as he fled, firing several shots into the air in an attempt to get him to stop. Rosmus ducked behind a parked car and the constable said he threatened to shoot.

The policeman fired, striking Rosmus in the chest.

Dummer Twp. Farmhouse Rocked By Explosions, Destroyed By Sunday Fire

By DON GRANT

NORWOOD (ENS)—Two explosions rocked a Dummer farmhouse early Sunday morning, sending two families into the semi-darkness outside. Within seconds their red brick home was filled with flames

"It was awful close," said owner Austin Sampson, who along with his wife, Bertha, his son, Donald, 10, his brother-in-law, Don Hull, and his daughter, Anne, three, had to stand back and watch their possessions go up in smoke. The Sampson home is a mile and a half northeast of here.

The fire swept through the large home so fast that Sampson couldn't get the furniture out. All they managed to save were three blankets and a mattress.

Mr. Sampson was unable to give an accurate estimate of his total loss, but set it somewhere near $8,000. His estimate was based on $5,000 for his brick home and $3,000 on the contents which included a new sewing machine, a deep freeze, washing machine, electric stove and other home furniture.

Cause of the fire is unknown. One theory is that it may have been caused by defective wiring. The fire seemed to start in the back shed into which the hydro lines led.

"I had just got up and was going to do the chores when there was a terrific bang. It seemed to come from the attic," Mr. Sampson said.

"After that the flames came into the kitchen through the shed door."

Mr. Sampson roused his wife, son and brother-in-law and his small daughter, and rushed them to the outside. As his wife, carrying Anne, was going out the door, the second explosion occurred.

Terrorized Town Convict Caught

MOULTRIE, Ga. (AP)—Capture of a paroled Georgia convict wanted in connection with four brutal slayings ahs ended three days of terror for this South Georgia community.

Tom Williams, a 45-year-old paroled murderer was taken on the edge of a swamp east of the city Sunday night. Lieut. W. E. McDuffie of the Georgia bureau of identification, who made the capture, hustled Williams off to his automobile, locked him in the trunk and headed for an undisclosed jail.

Hundreds of citizens had joined in the hunt.

Williams, a slightly built, greying Negro, was found about 500 yards from the home where retired prison warden W. C. Rowland and his wife were killed Saturday night. Their throats were cut and both had been brutally slashed.

cash register.

McDuffie said Williams readily confessed killing Rowland and his wife and slashing two men who responded to Mrs. Rowland's screams.

Locked Doors Delay Firemen

TORONTO (CP)—Firemen spent more than 30 minutes battering through double doors to fight a blaze Saturday night at the Alpha club in suburban Cooksville.

Police said heavy steel mesh was placed over windows and extra locks added to the doors two months ago after two members of the provincial police anti-gambling squad were found in the attic. The officers had moved in with food and sleeping bags to try to get gambling evidence.

Fire chief Jack Braithwaite of Toronto township said with regard to the firefighters' difficulties:

"Everything was locked and barred."

The chief said it appeared gasoline had been poured over the floors and furniture. The Ontario fire marshal's office and provincial police are investigating.

Railway Unions Plan Thursday Conference

MONTREAL (CP)—Frank Hall, chairman of the negotiating committee of 17 non-operating railway unions, said today the committee will meet Thursday to study rejection by the railways of a federal conciliation board's reports.

Three separate reports were made by the three-member board dealing with so-called fringe benefits asked by the unions.

The unions' committee as well as both the Canadian Pacific Railway and Canadian National Railways rejected the reports.

When the unions' rejection was announced there were hints that the negotiating committee would ask for a strike vote.

Huk Leader Has Surrendered

MANILA (AP)—The surrender of Luis Taruc, colorful leader of the Communist-directed Huk rebels, was hailed today as a major step in President Ramon Magsaysay's campaign against the Huks.

Army combat teams surged through the jungles of southern Luzon seeking the remnants of Taruc's elite guard while Carlos P. Romulo, a top presidential aide, termed the surrender the end of the rebellion.

Top target now is Jesus Lava, whom the army considers the top Communist in the Philippines.

Taruc, 40, who repeatedly has slipped through army traps in the last six years, surrendered to a Manila Times reporter, Benigno Aquino, who carried a letter from Magsaysay. The meeting on a dusty road north of here climaxed months of negotiations.

Terms of the surrender were not disclosed.

50-Storey Skyscraper Impractical–Mayor

TORONTO (CP)—Mayor Allan Lamport said Sunday a proposal to build a $75,000,000 50-storey skyscraper where the city hall now stands is impractical and would be ruinous to downtown real estate values.

The mayor arrived home Sunday from a trip to Greece and was asked about reports that a United States syndicate has offered to invest in the skyscraper, which would house municipal and court offices.

Mr. Lamport said he was approached with the plan last March and that it "seemed so utterly fantastic I had almost forgotten about it." He added:

"As the plan was explained to me I would never go for it. If they have a new proposal which appears feasible, then I might consider submitting it to the board of control."

Dam Bursts, Floods Town Loss Reported In Millions

PEABODY, Mass. (AP) — This industrial city of 23,000 counted a loss of millions today as it cleared debris and fought a health menace in the wake of a flood caused by a dam burst.

Mayor Philip C. O'Donnell said the flood waters which raced into the heart of the city Sunday night caused what may result in the "heaviest property damage of any non-fatal disaster" in the city's 300-year history.

As digging-out operations got under way, state and local health officials joined to combat the health problem.

The city's nine schools, with 3,500 children, were ordered closed for the day. All restaurants and food stores were earmarked for close inspection. City-wide water tests were scheduled. Police equipped with loud-speaking systems cruised the streets warning residents to boil all water for drinking or cooking.

TWO BLOCKS GAVE WAY

The water surged downhill into the central business area after two one-ton granite blocks of a dam gave way at a pond called the Flume about a mile away.

Water up to six feet deep flooded scores of buildings, including 75 factories, all the city's main stores, city hall, police and fire headquarters and the 150-year-old South Congregational church.

Some 50 families were evacuated from their homes.

The dam gave way under pressure of water accumulated during two weeks of an almost steady rain in New England. The water began to recede about six hours after the dam burst.

French Announce Bombing Ultimatum

HANOI, Indo-China (AP) — The French announced today they will resume bombing of the Communist-led Vietminh's 70-mile "hospital corridor" unless the rebels agree to repair the Dien Bien Phu airstrip so evacuation of French Union wounded can be speeded up.

A French high command broadcast to Communist Gen. Vo Nguyen Giap gave the rebel commander until tonight to accept the ultimatum. Otherwise, the French said, they would resume all-out air attacks on the rebels streaming eastward from the fallen fortress toward the vital Red river delta.

Britain Delays Final Decision

LONDON (Reuters) — Prime Minister Churchill said today Britain will withhold any final decision on southeast Asian collective defence until the outcome of the Geneva conference is known.

Churchill added that the British government has not embarked on any negotiations involving commitments.

The status of the American-backed plan to establish a kind of NATO in southeast Asia to strengthen defence against communism has become a hot political issue here.

There is a wide section of opinion, especially in the Labor party, that such a move will jeopardize chances of successful negotiations with the Indo-China Communists at the current Geneva conference.

Eisenhower Intervenes

Orders Defence Dept. Keep Talks Secret

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower today formally ordered the defence department to keep secret any talks within the executive department relating to the McCarthy-army row.

Thus the White House barred the door to a line of inquiry the Senate investigations sub-committee has been following. Wednesday, army counsellor John G. Adams told the investigators he got a suggestion from Sherman Adams, top presidential assistant, that he put into writing a record of dealings with Senator Joseph McCarthy and members of his staff over the army status of Pte. G. David Schine, former unpaid consultant to McCarthy's investigations group.

Adams had been instructed to produce today a written directive backing his refusal on Friday to go farther with his account of the Jan. 21 meeting at which the suggestion was made.

The key paragraph said:

"Because it is essential to efficient and effective administration that employees of the executive branch be in a position to be completely candid in advising with each other on official matters, and because it is not in the public interest that any of their conversations or communications or any documents or reproductions, concerning such advice be disclosed, you will instruct employees of your department that in all of their appearances before the sub-committee of the Senate committee on government operations regarding the inquiry now before it, they are not to testify to any such conversations or communications or to produce any such documents or reproductions.

"This principle must be maintained regardless of who would be benefitted by such disclosures."

John Adams' surprise reference to the Jan. 21 conference had been taken as an indication that the very top level of the administration had taken a hand in the dispute which McCarthy theretofore had treated as primarily a disagreement between Cohn and the army counsellor.

HIDE-NAILING ATTEMPT

There were indications, too, that McCarthy himself had taken the development as an indication of a move in the highest Republican ranks to nail his political hide to the barn door.

Along with his letter today to Secretary Wilson, Eisenhower sent a 4,200-word memorandum, to back up his position.

This listed precedents in 12 previous administrations from George Washington to Harry S. Truman, relating to the principle of separation of powers of the executive and legislative branches.

Reds Halt Drive To Collectivize Europe's Farms

NEW YORK (AP) — The post-Stalin leaders of communism have halted the drive to collectivize East Europe's farms, according to a survey by more than 50 specialists on Red affairs.

A truce has been ordered in the campaign to wipe out the kulaks—the independent, land-owning peasants. The Stalin program to squeeze from all farmers low cost food for factory workers is ended for the time being.

"Satellite agriculture in crisis" is the title of the survey just published by the American anti-Communist organization Free Europe Committee, privately backed parent body of Radio Free Europe.

MENDING FENCES

The survey concludes the Soviet world's "new course" toward raising more food and taking better care of the material needs of peasant and urban worker alike is a manoeuvre to mend political fences rather than to solve an economic crisis.

The survey tells of the rapid success in sweeping some 60 per cent of Russia's arable lands into the collectives by the most brutal means.

Despite Communist efforts to bring all farmers under state control, in order to collect food cheaply for the all-important city workers, agricultural production dwindled, the report says.

Strong Industrials On Mixed Market

TORONTO (CP) — Strong industrials featured a mixed stock market in light early afternoon trading today. Western oils, however, fell off and up to 1 p.m. their index lost almost three-quarters of a point. Base metals were strong, particularly in seniors, and golds were mixed in light trading. Manitouwadge, Bathurst issues and uraniums were lower. Volume at 1 p.m. was 877,000 shares.

The strong industrial groups were utilities, agriculture, steels, foods, liquors, refining oils, financial institutions, textiles, and retail stores. A big gain up to 1 p.m. went to Loblaw, up 87½ cents. Federal Grain climbed $1.25.

Home Oil, down 20 cents, was the biggest western oil loser. Peace River Gas climbed 40 cents and Pacific Petroleum 10.

Lt.-Col. Hogarth Going To Korea

OTTAWA (CP)—Lt.-Col. R. E. Hogarth, 37, of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., general staff officer at the army staff college at Kingston, will take up a post in Korea this summer.

The army announced today that Col. Hogarth will become general staff officer, grade one, at headquarters of the 1st Commonwealth Division in August, succeeding Lt.-Col. M. R. Dare, 36, of Brantford, whose new appointment will be announced later.

Col. Hogarth, a graduate of Royal Military College, Kingston, and Osgoode Hall, Toronto, won the DSO as commanding officer of the 23rd Field Regiment in northwest Europe during the Second World War. He has also served as Canadian military attache to Yugoslavia.

MORE ABOUT—

Rebels Treated

"At times a soldier would tumble into the hospital bunker, badly wounded, and say he was out of ammunition."

That was the way every defender fought, said Champougny—until he no longer had anything to fight with.

"De Castries' last order to the men in his bunker," Champougny continued, "was 'give up when you can no longer fight.' To do anything else would have been butchery."

The private said about six o'clock that Friday night the shooting suddenly died out on the battlefield and "then everyone knew the battle was over."

AIDING WOUNDED

Miss de Galard, he continued, was still ministering to the wounded in the hospital bunker as the rebels rushed in.

There was no attack made on the wounded men. Instead the Vietminh announced all were captives of Ho Chi Minh, the rebels' Moscow-trained chief. Their captors, said Champougny, were almost apologetic. One Vietminh officer declared in French:

"Ho Chi Minh and we are fighting for our country. There are things worse than that, and we are no worse than others. You are now prisoners and will get the attention prisoners of war deserve."

Some of the rebel soldiers in their mud-caked uniforms were laughing hysterically, but none attempted to mistreat any of the French wounded.

Nor did Champougny, after he was carried out to the battlefield, see the rebels mistreat any of the unwounded, some 8,000, they had rounded up.

"Blitzkrieg" Inventor Dies

MUNICH (Reuters) — Col. Gen. Heinz Guderian, 65, German military mastermind who fathered the "blitzkrieg" tactics of the Second World War, died at his home in nearby Fuessen Friday.

One of the leading prophets of tank warfare, stocky, bright-eyed Guderian saw his theories vindicated when the armored armies which he organized demolished Poland, France and the Low Countries in 1939-40.

He personally led the German tank break-through at Sedan which started the fall of France in 1940—and then pushed his armored columns on to the English channel in defiance of Hitler's orders.

A professional soldier with an avowed dislike for politics, Guderian rose to fame and power almost entirely during the reign of Hitler.

An unknown colonel when the Nazis came to power in 1933, he was head of the German general staff when the Second World War ended 12 years later.

Five Men Injured In Two-Car Crash

REGINA (CP) — Two Kingston, Ont., men and three others were injured Saturday in a two-car, head-on collision 15 miles east of here.

Described as in "very poor" condition was Don Elsworth, 20, of Regina.

Karl Moreland, 21, of Kingston, was in "fair" condition.

Others involved in the accident included Harvey Rowley, 19, of Regina and Fred Downs of Kingston, who were in "fairly good" condition.

Police said Downs and Moreland were driving an old model car, enroute to Edmonton when it collided with the other car.

The injured in hospitals were estimated at 263.

In Karachi, Prime Minister Mohammed Ali held an emergency cabinet meeting Sunday night and later sent state Defence Minister Sardar Amir Azam Khan to Dacca to confer with East Pakistani officials.

East Pakistan is isolated from the western part of the country by more than 1,000 miles of Indian territory.

Manager Admits Giving Girl Fatal Dose

LONDON (Reuters) — Office manager Arthur K. Ford, 44, said he gave a fatal dose of "spanish fly" to a pretty office girl "to stimulate her desire for men," police said at a double manslaughter hearing today.

The woman, Betty Grant, 27, and another office worker, June Malins, 19, died on April 27 after eating a heavy dose of the sex stimulant cantharidin (spanish fly) concealed in a candy bar.

At today's hearing, police also said that Ford—a married man with a family—told them:

He and Miss Grant were "very fond of each other . . . she kept putting me off, and I made up my mind to give her cantharidin in the coconut ice (a popular English candy) to stimulate her desire for me. . . .

"I cannot say how Miss Malins got the other piece except that it must have been an accident. The only girl I was interested in was Miss Grant.

TWO GRAINS EACH

Medical evidence indicated the two girls took at least one or two grains each of the drug.

Any dose over 1-200th of a grain is almost certain to be fatal.

Ford was also affected by the drug and was rushed to the hospital for emergency treatment.

Today he was charged with manslaughter of Miss Malins as well as Miss Grant and was remanded in custody until May 25.

province paid $15,705,557 more than was contracted for on contracts let in that year.

The auditor stressed that the greater part of that amount was paid legitimately. Asked by Mr. Oliver if any of the excess payments were recoverable, Mr. Cotnam said it would depend on what the crown recommends for civil action. He was unable to tell at the present time how much of this figure was involved in charges already laid. Attorney-General Porter said it was "very small."

Of the 212 contracts let in 1950, only 40 were completed at less than the contract amount and eight equal to the contract amount. One was completed at 300 per cent in excess of the contract amount, two up to 300 per cent in excess, and 14 up to 200 per cent in excess.

The interim report of H. A. Cotnam, provincial auditor, said that irregularities arising out of the "fudging" of engineering records and data were most frequent in number and largest in size in the Fort William division. In the Huntsville division there were also irregularities indicated and action has been taken.

INVESTIGATE OTHERS

"In some of the other divisions irregularities have been indicated and although the examination in these case has been extensive it would appear from the results of that examination to date that they are of an isolated nature. However, where any irregularities have been indicated and no action has yet been taken they are still under investigation."

The report said that in some cases the province had withheld payment of certain monies with respect to work alleged to have been performed by some of the contractors under investigation. This was being done where investigation disclosed reasonable grounds for believing the work alleged to have been performed had not in fact been performed and that no monies were actually owing.

"Consideration is being given by legal counsel to the institution of civil proceedings with respect to these matters. It is expected that a decision will be reached shortly in this connection."

Last Monday, three contracting companies—Standard Paving Ltd., Tomlinson Brothers Ltd. and Bergman Construction Co. Ltd.—and 11 men were charged with conspiracy in connection with department irregularities.

Peace Talks Held Secretly

GENEVA (AP)—The Indo-China peace talks went behind a wall of secrecy today with the Western powers reported pressing for a quick cease-fire as the first step toward a political settlement.

After a week of general debate, in which all the nine delegations made policy declarations, the conference scheduled its first "restricted" session to get down to concrete negotiations.

These associations were limited to the chiefs of the nine delegations participating, plus three advisers each. They were not to be reported to the press in briefings such as are held after conference plenary sessions.

Soviet foreign minister Molotov indicated in a speech Friday that he is prepared to challenge the Western demands for a military truce, without political strings attached. He said a cessation of hostilities would be impossible without some political agreements in advance.

The Western powers were reported determined to take a tough position on this issue. U.S. undersecretary of state Walter Bedell Smith, French foreign minister Bidault and British foreign secretary Eden worked out their plans in private talks over the week-end.

WILL SUBMIT PLAN

Bidault, it was understood, plans to submit a detailed armistice plan based on his previous proposals to halt the Indo - China fighting.

The original French proposal called for withdrawal of all Communist forces from Cambodia and Laos and for the grouping of all military forces in Viet Nam, the third and largest Indo - Chinese state, in areas to be agreed on by the conference.

Western sources were reported to feel that their hand had been strengthened by developments during the last few days on the proposed Asian defence pact and by Western consultations on military matters.

One of these developments was the announcement by Australian foreign minister Richard G. Casey in Canberra calling for a meeting of British, U.S., French, New Zealand and Australian chiefs of staff in the near future to review the implications of the Southeast Asia situation.

Car Impounded For 3 Months

"I think it is beyond any question of doubt that this man was just plain intoxicated", commented Magistrate W. R. Philp QC today, after hearing evidence in a charge of drunk driving brought against Kenneth Barrett, 22, of 534 Sherbrooke St.

He sentenced Barrett to seven days in the county jail and ordered his car impounded for three months.

Constable Arthur Beardsmore told the court that he had arrested Barrett for drunk driving, after Barrett's car and another vehicle had been involved in a collision at George and Sherbrooke streets on the night of May 8.

The constable said that Barrett staggered considerably and appeared to be in a drunken stupor. This evidence was supported by testimony from constable Robert Menzies.

Barrett said that he had consumed a pint of beer before supper and about nine draughts of beer at a hotel later in the evening. He said that he had consumed similar quantities on previous occasions without any ill affects.

BLAMES GEAR SHIFT

He told the magistrate that he had had trouble with his gear shift on turning from George into Sherbrooke St. That had been the reason for him colliding with the other car. As an explanation for the staggering commented on by the officers, Barrett said that he had been extremely nervous at the time.

Defence counsel John Corkery thought that his client's explanation of nervousness was quite reasonable. He also thought that nine draughts of beer, of the small size served nowadays, would not be sufficient to intoxicate anyone used to drinking.

The magistrate was inclined to disagree. He thought that there could be little plainer evidence of intoxication, than that given by he two constables.

"I just can't understand how nervousness could make a man stagger about", he added.

The report referred to 1933 Michigan legislation which requires that any bidder on public works, except public buildings, submit a statement setting forth his qualifications to carry out the work satisfactorily within the time specified. The law authorizes refusal to allow a contractor to bid on a contract if his qualifications are not satisfactory.

CONTRACTORS RATING URGED

Michigan regulations also rate contractors for particular types of work and a contractor already working on a contract has his rating for new contracts reduced by the amount of the uncompleted portion of previous contracts. If a contractor is the lowest bidder on several contracts at the same "letting" and the total of these exceeds his rating, the department decides on contracts to be turned over to another bidder.

"We recommend that similar legislation be applied for in Ontario which would permit the department of highways to adopt a system of pre-qualification of contractors. Such legislation should provide for appeal to the courts by any contractor in the event of dissatisfaction with his rating.

"The Highway Improvement Act provides that before accepting tenders for work subject to a subsidy the approval of the minister of highways must be obtained. We recommend that this act be amended to make the proposed pre-qualification procedures applicable to all contracts entered into by townships, counties or municipalities where the provincial government pays part of the cost."

DEPOSIT RULES REVIEWED

The report proposed that tender deposits be reduced to approximately five per cent of the amount of each tender, ensuring that the successful tenderer will in fact sign the contract at his bid price.

Present regulations require a deposit of 15 per cent of the amount of the tender. Contractors have not been required to make deposits on all tenders submitted. The regulation has been interpreted as meaning—that a contractor must have made a deposit of 15 per cent of the tender price of any contract before it can be awarded to him.

"This has meant that contractors, who only expected to be awarded one contract, could bid on several contracts called at the same time and deposit one tender cheque in an amount sufficient to govern only one contract."

WOULD STOP ADVANCES

In recommending that progress payments be discontinued, the report noted that such payments are made to the contractors each month based on reports prepared in the field showing cumulative quantities moved since work commended. The contracts provide that advances can be made for materials or equipment delivered to the site of the work.

"In some cases in the past, at the start of a contract, members of the department's staff have certified that quantities had been moved when it was quite clear that this was not the case. This was done to justify an advance payment to the contractor to assist him with the expense of setting up his camp and moving his equipment. Such advance payments were later recovered by understating the quantities actually moved in succeeding months.

"This method of making advance payments is not consistent with the terms of the contracts and requires the staff of the department in the field to send in statements showing that work has been performed when in fact it has not been done. . . .

"We recommend that this practice be discontinued. The reports from the department's field staff should show only their estimates of the quantities actually moved."

TENDER TIMING RAPPED

The report criticized the system followed in awarding contracts. The practice has been to call for tenders for construction work at various times without sufficient consideration of the season. In many cases tenders were called during the winter months when it was impossible for the contractors to make a proper inspection of the ground for realistic bidding.

Furthermore, the time allowed between the publication of the notices calling for tenders and the date for submission of final bids has, in many cases, been insufficient to allow contractors to make a satisfactory examination of the projects before bidding, particularly when a number of tenders were called simultaneously.

The state policy of the department has been to award contracts to the lowest bidder. There are no regulations, however, as to the course to be followed if the bids submitted are all unreasonably high or unreasonably low, or in the event of a contractor being the low bidder on more work than he is equipped to handle satisfactorily. It was the practice in the latter case to allow the next lowest bidder who was considered capable of performing the work to make a second bid at a price below the original low bidder.

MANY BIDS TOO LOW

"There have been wide variations in the unit prices bid on particular contracts and variations in the unit prices bid for similar work on adjacent contracts. These prices have often been well below the estimates of the department's own engineers, who, in some cases, have doubted whether the contractors could carry out the work at the prices specified in their tenders.

"This has led to a tendency on the part of some of the department's engineers to be generous in their interpretation of the terms of the contracts when dealing with contractors. It was possible for them to assist contractors in a number of different ways. . . . Certain engineers were required to classify the quantities of boulders which should be paid for at rock prices. This is largely a matter of opinion and on occasions the classification would appear to have been made on a liberal basis."

OVERBUILDING ALLOWED

In some cases where the contract called for the movement of earth the quantities moved were paid for at prices applicable to granular material. (Granular material may actually have been moved although not called for by the contracts. On other occasions contractors were permitted to place a higher grade of material on the road than the contract called for.

"In these instances we are informed the unit price for the material actually handled was higher than the price which would have been paid for the material specified in the contract. On some occasions the contractors were permitted to overbuild the roads and paid for moving quantities in excess of those called for by the contract. Irregular methods involving the falsification of records were also adopted in some cases. These are under investigation by H. A. Cotnam, provincial auditor."

ASKS CLOSER CHECK

The report recommended that departmental weighmen be closely supervised to prevent the issue of weight tickets for material not actually moved.

The report said the deputy minister should be responsible for all operations. The chief engineer and heads of all branches should be responsible directly to the deputy minister.

In calling for merging of the two field organizations the report said the work being done with the counties, townships and other municipalities should be integrated with the work on the construction and maintenance of highways. One senior engineer should be placed in charge of all the work done in each district, with the title of district engineer.

The report noted that only 20 per cent of the staff of the department are permanent civil servants. The balance are employed as casual staff although in fact many of them have been working for the department on a full-time basis for some years. However, these years of service provide no credit toward superannuation benefits.

"A minimum establishment of permanent employes should be agreed to for head office and division staffs."

The practice of many contractors of giving favors to departmental employees was criticized.

". . . We recommend that all departmental employees be informed that in future no favors of any kind are to be accepted and that any infringement of this regulation will result in instant dismissal quite apart from the possibility of the employee becoming liable to criminal prosecution."

Distress Signals Excite Lakeside

TILBURY (CP) — Distress signals sent up by the crew of a cabin cruiser marooned two miles off the mouth of the Thames river in Lake St. Clair caused considerable commotion among lakeside residents but the trouble turned out to be nothing more than a shortage of gasoline.

The flares came from the Jodi, a cabin cruiser owned by Homer Moorehouse, Dearborn, Ont., on an all-day fishing trip with three other men.

The gasoline scarcity was relieved and the quartet left for the U.S. with long strings of fish to prove the trip had been a success.

Says Duplessis Just Picking Ottawa Quarrel

RICHMOND, Que. (CP) — Quebec Liberal leader Georges Lapalme said Saturday Premier Maurice Duplessis was not thinking of preserving French-Canadian culture when he imposed a provincial income tax but was "just trying to pick another quarrel with Ottawa."

He accused Mr. Duplessis of "stifling the press" and warned Quebec residents that not only city-dwellers but farmers also would suffer because of the new tax.

The tax is 15 per cent of the federal income tax and the federal government allows only five per cents of its own to be deducted as relief from the provincial tax.

Speaking at a banquet of the Richmond county Liberal organization, Mr. Lapalme said the tax hurts Quebec residents directly and indirectly.

It takes money away from them and it discourages major industries, which could provide employment for many persons, from coming to Quebec. Large firms are beginning to move their head offices to other provinces, he said.

Mr. Lapalme said Premier Duplessis is silencing press criticism "for diverse reasons which I and many others know of." Only one daily, Montreal's Le Devoir, dares to stand up to Mr. Duplessis, he declared.

This was the first step to a dictatorship.

Charles Stewart CGE Retires

After 43 years with the CGE, veteran electrician Charles F. Stewart of 220 Park St. retires this week to enjoy his pension benefits and indulge in his favorite sport of hunting.

A native of Bonarlaw, Mr. Stewart first joined the CGE in 1909, working on transformers. He left the firm for a short while but began his 43-year service in 1911, interrupted only by service in the First World War, with the CGE contingent.

Back at the Peterborough works in 1919, Mr. Stewart became an electrician in the power division. Except for a brief period in 1945 with the equipment installation section, he has been with this division ever since.

A royal sendoff was given by his CGE friends and co-workers last week to outdoorsman Stewart. Now he hopes to devote more time to his many hobbies, and also catch up on hunting he has missed over the years.

KNOCKED DOWN

"She was running out the door carrying little Anne and the force of the explosion knocked her down. All the windows were blown out of the house, scattering glass for 50 feet. That explosion also seemed to come from the attic," he said.

Immediately after that explosion "the whole house was on fire."

UNABLE TO GIVE AN ALARM

Very few neighbours knew of the fire. It was just by chance that Arnold Baptie, Sampson's next door neighbour, saw the fire. The Bapties, who have no telephone, had risen early to prepare for a day's visit to Port Hope. Mrs. Baptie happened to look out the window and saw Sampson's house ablaze.

"Jim's woodshed's on fire," Mrs. Baptie called to her husband. They rushed over to the Sampsons but it was to late to help.

FARM BUILDINGS SAVED

Frotunately the wind was blowing in the opposite direction to the farm buildings and the sparks were blown away from the garage only 50 feet away. The barn is situated down a slight grade behind the farmhouse. These buildings were not damaged.

About 11 a.m. armed with saws, hammers, lumber, nails and other carpentry tools, the neighbours started turning the fairly large garage into temporary living quarters. Mr. Baptie, Dave Nixon and others busily worked throughout the day.

Meanwhile other neighbours cared for the children and Mrs. Sampson.

People Find It Difficult To Be Forgiving

Christ and the gospels have always been largely rejected by the world, but in rejection by others Christians have found strength. This theme was stressed by Dr. Emlyn Davies, speaking at both services of the 59th anniversary of Park St. Baptist church Sunday.

The crucifixion of Christ was necessary, said Dr. Davies at the evening service. It gave the disciples an opportunity to "stand on their own feet," to spread the Gospel through faith, without the physical presence of their Leader.

The nature of forgiveness was Dr. Davies' theme at the morning service. Self-forgiveness is a difficult thing, he said, because most people approach the Communion table unable to forget the things they have done.

There was a good attendance at both services, particularly in the evening when the congregation of Murray St. Baptist church took part.

The Rev. A. S. Roblin, pastor of Park St. Baptist church, was in the pulpit with Dr. Davies. Special selections were rendered by the choir, with vocal offerings from Adam Hawley. After the evening service, Dr. Davies addressed a mass meeting in the Brock Gardens.

Three Drownings In 11 Deaths

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Highway accidents and drownings accounted for seven of 11 deaths in eastern Canada during the week-end.

Traffic mishaps took four lives. Three persons were drowned and two were burned to death.

Ontario led provincial totals with five deaths, a Canadian Press survey showed. Three were highway fatalities.

Five-year-old Venturelli of Hamilton was killed when she darted in front of a car while walking home from a nearby candy store. A 24-year-old Italian immigrant, Michele Rana of Toronto, died in a two-car collision near Pickering. Michael O'Connell of Ottawa was killed when the car in which he was riding overturned.

DROWNED IN BARN

A two-year-old boy, Joseph Claude E. Vinette of Casselman, was drowned when he fell through a hole in a barn loft into a cistern below. Roy Evens, 24, of Port Arthur, was drowned when his boat was swamped while fishing on Nipigon river.

In Nova Scotia, Douglas Grimes, 12 and Tony Fougere, 15, both of Halifax, were killed after the driving chain on the bicycle they were riding downhill slipped off. The bicycle hit a fence bordering a railway yard and catapulted the two boys headlong onto the tracks.

Quebec's one violent death was the drowning of Leger Quesy, 24, of Shelter Bay. Quesy was swept into rapids while building a wooden bridge across the Shelter Bay river.

Rev. J. P. Collins, pastor of St. Michael's, said grace. Miss Minnie Bulger gave the toast to the Queen and Mrs. Fred Burge proposed the toast to the CWL.

Choir Boys Delayed When Bus In Accident

COBOURG (ENS) — Bound for Toronto for a television appearance, the Cathedral choir of Kingston was delayed for about an hour Sunday when the chartered bus in which they were riding was involved in a minor accident. Three cars were westbound in front of the bus at the bridge just east of Grafton around 10:30 a.m. The car at the head of the line signalled for a left turn and was waiting for an opening in the traffic. The two cars behind stopped and the bus ran into the back of the last car and caused slight damage to the automobile. The bus driver was Claude Feeley of Sharbot Lake. Driver of the car just ahead of the bus was Frances Stevens of Kingston.

Cobourg Man Hurt When Car Cracks Pole

COBOURG (ENS) — John Keeler, 23, of Cobourg, was treated at the hospital here today for minor injuries received in an automobile accident. Keeler was proceeding south on William St. at 3.00 a.m. when his car left the highway, went into a ditch and broke off a hydro pole. He was alone at the time. Constable E. Butler investigated.

Queen, Duke Taking Rest

LONDON (CP) — Queen Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh went to church Sunday and attracted a crowd of about 20,000 as excitement in London was carried over from Saturday when the city welcomed the Royal Family on their return from abroad.

Crowds assembled early in front of the palace. Shortly before noon the Queen and duke came out and went to the Queen's chapel of St. James's Palace. The crowd later followed them home.

At nightfall, an estimated 4,000 persons still waited in front of the palace hoping the Queen would appear on the balcony as she did Saturday after returning from her Commonwealth tour.

The Queen, tired from Saturday's tumultuous welcome, spent the day quietly with the duke and their children.

She and Prince Philip are expected to continue their rest in the palace until Wednesday, when they will attend a welcome-home luncheon given by Sir Noel Bowater, lord mayor of London.

In the evening they will take Prince Charles and Princess Anne up to Scotland for a month's vacation at Balmoral in the rolling hills of Aberdeenshire.

The Glory Of Her State

The Queen returned in glory to her United Kingdom. Her great tour was ended, a triumph of regality, devotion to duty and womanly grace. It was fitting that London should receive her with splendour, and her people with grateful hearts and joyous affection. The tour was a triumph of her royal blood and warm humanity; it was also a testing of it, for never has a reigning monarch before undertaken so strenuous and widespread a visit. London, Britain and all the Commonwealth salute her in pride and return the devotion with which she has so deeply endowed them. For the Duke, Royal consort, husband and companion, there is an enthusiasm and heartfelt thanks. His task and the discipline which such a journey imposes and for which he has had less schooling than the Queen, has been wonderfully acquitted.

* * *

Accountable benefits, even practical ones from a political point of view, result from the Royal Progress, but it is not of these profits that one thought on Saturday when the Queen returned. The panoply of history was over her, the river of tradition flowed beside her, and the sun of Empire rode his course across the heavens, happy in the zenith of Elizabeth II, by the Grace of God and the will of her people, Queen. Greatness invests the Britannic Throne and walks with gentleness as Her Majesty moves among her people from the Antipodes to the Thames. When the Queen came up the river to Westminster, Wordsworth's apostrophe was heard, beset though the world is with its tensions:

It is not to be thought of that the Flood
Of British freedom, which, to the open sea
Of the world's praise, from dark antiquity
Hath flowed, "with pomp of waters, unwithstood",
Roused though it be full often to a mood
Which spurns the check of salutary bands,
That this most famous stream in bogs and sands
Should perish . . .

God save the Queen. Long live the Queen.

Bonfire Not Bon

A bonfire is not, as one might expect, a "good" fire. The "bon" in the word is not the French term for "good" but a corruption of the old English word for 'bone'. A bonfire was originally a great fire in which bones were burnt in the open air, or a funeral pyre. Unfortunately, despite the pleasant recollections most Ontario people have of bonfires in the Fall, the old meaning is awfully apt in the Spring. Spring bonfires are dangerous, and can quickly become the pyres of valuable property and forests.

So, dear readers, if you happen to belong to the race of cottagers and you are about to spring-clean the place and the property, be warned that bonfires are not good fires. The old dead leaves and grass you rake up and set alight should be guarded, according to our interpretation of the admonition of the Department of Lands and Forests, by a platoon of elephants, each animal with his snozzle filled with twenty gallons of water, and these fire-dowsing hoses at the present-arms. Hear what the Department says and do not say you haven't been warned:

"Grass fires that get out of control in early Spring cause much property damage every year. The grass is tinder dry and will burn quickly if a lighted match is accidently dropped after lighting a pipe or cigarette. Many landowners start a fire to get rid of rubbish. It may get out of control and run in the dry grass, causing damage to fences, buildings, plantations and woodlots.

"Forest plantations have been ruined by Spring grass fires that have burned over the area and killed almost all the trees. Spring is the only season when fire will run through a hardwood bush, as the dry leaves provide fuel.

"It is advisable to plan in advance if grass is to be burned off. Several, people should stand by with shovels, rakes, pails of water or damp gunnysacks, to keep it under control. A tractor or a team and a plough could be ready to plough one or two furrows, if necessary. They'll stop a grass fire."

Florida's Gun Laws

We are always interested in ridiculous laws or laws which permit or encourage ridiculous judical interpretations. There are laws of this kind in many countries, but the laws governing the possession of weapons in Florida would place highly in any contest to determine the most ridiculous. This became evident following the action of Judge Cecil C. Curry of Miami, who dismissed charges against sixteen armed youths and upbraided police for arresting the youths. The judge said that the boys had a right to carry weapons as long as the weapons were not concealed.

There were immediate demands that Judge Curry be dismissed, but it now appears that the judge did not act improperly—from a strictly legal standpoint. There are three laws in the Florida statutes covering the possession of weapons, but the gun-carrying youths were not guilty of an offence under any of these three choice examples of legal hiatus. Under law 790.22, for example, a boy under sixteen is forbidden "playing" with a b-b gun, an air rifle or .22 calibre rifle without supervision, but the law says nothing about a sawed-off shotgun, higher calibred rifles, or even machine guns.

Law 790.01 prohibits anyone from carrying a pistol, a dirk, a set of brass knuckles, a blackjack, or a billy, if these weapons are concealed, but says nothing about carrying them unconcealed. The third law, 790.05, has a gap in it that allows a motorist to carry a pistol in his car, unconcealed or concealed, without being guilty of an offence.

The legal interpretation of these laws, in Florida, seems to be that if anyone wants to walk around carrying a pistol and a dirk, openly, he may do so and be going about his lawful occasions. At any rate, the Miami city solicitor refused to move to oust the judge on the ground that his action was legally proper, although added the profound comment that the law was not very specific.

It is likely that most Floridians, however, will concur heartily with another remark made by this official. He is quoted as follows: "I won't say that Judge Curry acted wisely in dismissing the cases . . ." Understatement is obviously not a peculiarly British trait.

The True Cost Of Wars

On May 7th, 1945, at 2:41 a.m. a document was signed ending World War II on Montgomery's front, the Germans had surrendered on May 4th but OKW (Nazi Supreme Headquarters) was putting up a "last-ditch" fight against the Americans. After the hostilities were ended by the signing of a formal document of surrender in a schoolhouse at Reims, all the participants began counting up the cost of the War. It is comparatively easy for us to add up our individual costs on a "dollar and cents" basis, but it is an impossibility even to attempt to estimate the cost of the war in intangibles—broken homes, economic and physical effects, heart's distress and social upheaval. The true cost of victory in Europe can probably never be calculated.

Of a total of 1,081,000 Canadians who served in our Armed Services during World War 11, some 42,000 were killed. On VE day, the Army had a strength of about 490,000, (285,000 overseas) the Air Force 181,000 and the Navy 92,000 persons. In response to a clamouring public, the numbers of our Armed Forces were steadily reduced, until in 1947, demobilization had lowered Army strength to some 9,800, the Air Force to 11,500, and the Navy to 4,719. Because of the steadily deteriorating international situation, a frantic re-mobilization program has been carried on in the last several years until the strength of our armed forces today is: Army 50,000, Air Force 45,000, Navy 17,000.

In 1942, the late Cardinal Villeneuve made the statement that " . . . it would be better to lose the war than to lose at least one generation." He was referring to the tendency of mothers to enter industry (a practice still existing) with the subsequent lack of supervision in the rearing of their children. Much of the juvenile delinquency resulting can be blamed on this lack of upbringing and proper supervision. It is therefore indirectly attributable to the war itself. How can the cost of such delinquency be allotted or even estimated?

NOTES AND COMMENT

Real self-confidence is shown by people who work crossword puzzles with a pen.

A scientist describes the nuptial dance of scorpions as 'very funny.' The nuptial dance of humans provides the odd laugh, too.

Odd how words become impolite. You may still say that fire gutted a building but you must be careful to say that you have a pain in your tummy. Even the word stomach has become a bit too strong for some ears.

A statistician says that your chance of being born into this world was 1 in 32 billions. After all that elbowing to get to the head of the queue it is no wonder that some people are tired all their lives.

In Gibraltar Prince Charles and Princess Anne had a good time looking at monkeys and feeding them peanuts. Most children are fascinated by the creatures. Why? Because apes ape, too?

Royal Progress

By PATRICK O'DONOVAN

WHEN the Royal Yacht reached the Port of London Saturday, it was the end of an enterprise that has been crowned with success — with more success than anyone dared to hope for. It became a rare and joyous triumph that was good to see. It was organised with the precision of a great invasion, and the movements of the Queen, her Court, her politicians and the pursuing Press, were governed by the sort of intricate march tables that allow divisions to cross each other's lines of communication in time of war. But that does not explain the success. A number of public muddles would not have prevented that.

✧ ✧ ✧

DESPITE a Press campaign whose size and unanimity must have been unique, each time the Queen appeared there was the same delighted surprise. The longest visits were to New Zealand and Australia, and is of these only that I can write from personal experience: people there were prepared to be pleased. Some quality in those innumerable and crowded occasions and in their central figure gave more than was expected.

✧ ✧ ✧

OF COURSE there is a surviving magic about an ancient Crown. For the citizens of sun-assaulted towns such as Rotorua or Cairns whose history began with their great-grandfathers, it is a moving thing to have standing and talking in front of their own town hall the representative of all the history they brought with them from home. But no great lady, no accomplished actress, could have added more than the Queen actually did to this political and historic role.

✧ ✧ ✧

IT IS NOT EASY to define quite what happened. Certainly there was no "playing to the gallery," none of those calculated touches of unconventionality that politicians must use. At all times the Queen obeyed rigid and unfashionable rules. When she drove up the main street in the blinding sun in Wagga, her carriage and her behaviour were the same she would have shown at Westminster or Canberra.

✧ ✧ ✧

THROUGHOUT the three months in New Zealand and Australia, the Queen seemed invariably more calm, less exhausted than anyone else. She was always precisely and pleasantly dressed. When necessary, she appeared in a magnificence of jewels and State robes. She was always the still centre of the excitement. There was a sort of splendour about her self-discipline that set her apart, and this, with the memories that her office evokes turned the earnest efforts of municipalities into unmistakable Royal occasions.

✧ ✧ ✧

THIS was a genuine personal achievement and no easy one. There were the State occasions. There were three minutes of utter silence in the little Upper Chamber of the New Zealand Parliament while the Queen sat on her throne and waited for her representatives to come and hear her speech. They were slow, and she sat almost motionless in the light of arc lamps, as if it were the most natural thing in the world, and no one in the Chamber fidgeted or murmured. On a soft tropical night in Brisbane, she appeared walking along a long pillared balcony dressed for a ball, walked slowly at the head of a little procession, and stopped to wave to a great crowd who had waited for hours in a mood of curiosity and affection, and when they went away at last they seemed proud of what they had seen.

✧ ✧ ✧

OR there were lesser occasions which perhaps were more important. There was the Queen walking into the hot little gardens in the mining town of Broken Hill. Solemn ex-Servicemen kept the path clear, and she walked at ease in the heat, happy and interested without abating her dignity, delighting the miners and their families as no other individual could have done. Again and again it was the same. The Queen and the Duke, unfussed and unhurried among their subjects, and by the gentleness of their manner and the distinction of their persons, creating an immediate sympathy with a crowd who could as easily have been disappointed in their expectations.

✧ ✧ ✧

WITHOUT CROWNS or State swords, they still conveyed the splendour of their office, and they still remained the sort of people that anyone in the crowd would delight to meet as friends. Perhaps that is why their success with New Zealanders and Australians was so striking. A people who delight in hard-hitting criticism and are proud of their impatience with hero figures, accepted their office and gave a willing affection to their persons. This is the only national symbol they wholeheartedly accept. It must have been one of the most extraordinary national demonstrations there has ever been.

✧ ✧ ✧

WE ARE very fortunate in this. This was the first great test that Her Majesty has faced since her Coronation and it may be the hardest she will ever have to face. It was exhausting; it could have been a failure. The Royal Yacht has disembarked a person who has greatly served Britain, the two sister countries on the other side of the world and the innumerable other Commonwealth communities, large and small, visited during the most far-flung tour ever ventured by a Monarch.

Unconsidered Trifles

A man walking down the street on a dark night passed an alley. Two thugs jumped on him, and though he put up a terrific fight, they got him down. After they searched him, they were amazed at the small sum of money they found in his pockets. "You mean you put up that fight for 67 cents?" they asked.

"Sucks, no," answered the victim, "I thought you were after the $500 in my shoe."

A man from a tiny village was taken with a party round the docks. All were interested in a dredger at work, and the endless procession of buckets so impressed the hero of the tale that he remained behind when the others went on to further sightseeing.

Four hours later they returned to see if they could discover what had become of him. He was still there. "I've counted 11,073 of those buckets," he said, "and I mean to see the last of them if I stay here all night."

An American Opinion: GRAVE MARKER

Bannister To Run At Vancouver

By HOWARD RIGNEY

"I AM looking forward to the Empire Games in Vancouver because of the background of friendliness I know I shall find there," Britain's greatest miler, Roger Bannister, told me today. "I shall enjoy competing against runners from other Commonwealth countries and especially against Australia's John Landy," he said.

The first man to break the four-minute time for a mile, Bannister looked confident as he talked to me at the Paddington recreation ground, London, where he often practices during lunch hour. "This is something I want to do very much," he said earnestly in reference to the Vancouver Games. "It is a great opportunity for me."

"I shall do my best to win the mile event at Vancouver," he continued in a tone of mixed determination and modesty. "I shall be flying to Canada on July 20."

A 25-year-old medical student at St. Mary's Hospital, London, Bannister will fully qualify for his doctor's degree within a matter of weeks. He stands well over six feet and weighs only 154 pounds. His long legs give him a stride which has enabled him to become the fastest miler of the century.

Medical training has given Bannister a knowledge of how to best use his resources. He also has an exceptionally slow heart which beats only 40 times each minute in comparison with a normal person's 72 beats. At the end of the race in which he broke the record a fortnight ago, his heart was racing at 155 per minute.

Letters To The Editor

A HOME FOR CULTURAL ACTIVITIES

SIR: A curious species of letter appeared in these columns yesterday spawned by one "John Average Citizen." I have an urge to contradict: That this so and so regards himself as average (in Peterborough) is nothing short of an affront.

We, the Citizens of Peterborough, are proud of our efforts both in the field of sports and in cultural matters. Music, drama, painting, to mention but a few of the latter, are thriving despite growing pains, and I, as the true "Average Citizen" prescribe the one and only pill, the old-fashioned remedy —a home for those activities.

I shall not go as far as to say we are of a different breed to the rest of Canada, but when abroad (in Canada, I mean), it is with pride we point to the Kawarthas and say, "This is my home, etc." Why, then are we boastful of our acres? Is it because 34 of them accommodate CGE and another 25 Quaker Oats? I would say it is because of the people who work there and in the many other factories and businesses in and around Peterborough. They are the Average Citizens.

"TRUE AVERAGE CITIZEN."

FEELING THE PUBLIC PULSE

SIR: Once again we have one of those amateur statisticians calling himself "Average Citizen" speaking on our behalf. Another public mouthpiece has felt our pulse, and this time he finds that we like sports, but do not want culture. He then proves that Average Citizens not only lack culture, but he also can't make up his own mind, by saying, "——something nobody wants. Who does want it anyway? A handful of people."

Unfortunately I do not possess Average John's organization to enable me to cross-section Peterborough; but I shall venture a few observations of my own.

He could not have been present to see the capacity audiences when a play, opera or musical entertainment has booked the auditorium at one of our collegiates.

He likes sports? Yes, he likes to yell at others playing a game, and the more foul play the louder he yells! (Even this is usually restricted to baseball, hockey or wrestling.)

One might even suggest that he goes to see hockey for the fights and to wrestling for the vaudeville, but on second thought the latter is probably too "long-haired" for his tastes.

"HAUGHTY-CULTURIST".

SEVERAL IMPORTANT MATTERS

SIR: There are several matters of importance before the people of Peterborough at the moment.

One is the conservation of the city's natural assets: In this regard may I congratulate the Otonabee Valley Conservation Committee for their excellent efforts, and you, Mr. Editor, for the excellent editorials upon this subject each week. The planning board will undoubtedly be guided by the overwhelming opinion of responsible citizens and groups in the community.

Now for a comment on the astounding letter in Thursday's issue from a self-styled "Average Citizen." Those people who lost no immediate relatives in the war, and who have no lasting concern with the sacrifices involved may forget the wishes of all citizens should be respected in the building of any memorial.

Peterborough has shown a wide-spread interest in the need for a proper auditorium to meet the needs of all groups. The average citizen has had no opportunity to attend the fine concerts sponsored by the Concert Association. Why? Because the tickets are all sold out months in advance. Why is this? Because there is only limited seating capacity available. An average citizen has informed us she had to wait two years before obtaining a ticket.

In connection with the above matters, Mr. Editor, there is a disturbing trend in public affairs in Peterborough. It is a trend away from democracy and toward dictatorship. If we are to preserve and build a strong democracy it must operate at all levels in our society — the committee level, the planning board level, the municipal level.

Let us start by having citizens fully informed on all issues affecting them. Zoning maps should be accompanied by a legend clearly explaining abbreviations.

At the committee level all members of related groups and committees should be kept informed of decisions made. When an administrative official in the city hall doesn't recognize this fundamental, is democracy functioning in our community?

Lastly, if bylaws are to be presented for public voting let the real issue be clearly and fully presented. So often the question is clouded in phraseology with no meaning for the average reader. In connection with the Memorial Centre, I am informed it will be necessary to get public approval for debentures to obtain suffieient funds for the Memorial Centre — even if it is only a rink. The auditorium should be included in the planning, for the majority of people will vote against the spending of so much money for a memorial that does not represent to them a sufficient tribute. Will it be said the citizens of Peterborough refused to make any sacrifice to build a memorial?

Thanking you for allowing me to comment on these matters of public interest.

MRS. "AVERAGE CITIZEN."

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Ye men of Israel, hear these words; Jesus of Nazareth, a man approved of God among you by miracles and wonders and signs, which God did by him in the midst of you, as ye yourselves also know: him, being delivered by the determinate counsel and foreknowledge of God, ye have taken, and by wicked hands have crucified and slain: whom God hath raised up, having loosened the pains of death: because it was not possible that he should be holden of it.

For David speaketh concerning him, I foresaw the Lord always before my face, for he is on my right hand, that I should not be moved: therefore did my heart rejoice, and my tongue was glad; moreover also my flesh shall rest in hope: because thou wilt not leave my soul in hell, neither wilt thou suffer thine Holy One to see corruption . . .

This Jesus hath God raised up, whereof we all are witnesses . . . For David is not ascended into the heavens: but he saith himself, The Lord said unto my Lord; Sit thou on my right hand, until I make thy foes my footstool. Therefore let all the house of Israel know assuredly, that God hath made that same Jesus, whom ye have crucified, both Lord and Christ. (Acts 2:22-27, 32, 34-36.)

Prodigies

(The St. Paul Pioneer Press)

Dr. Lewis M. Terman of Stanford University answered in a recent lecture before the American Psychological Association the oft repeated question: "What becomes of child prodigies?" They are doing very well, thank you, says the doctor, despite the idea that they quickly burn out intellectually and never amount to much.

Dr. Terman followed the careers of 1,500 subjects for thirty years. All were far above the average and had made exceptional progress in their early years. The fears of the folks in the 1920's concerning overly-bright children have proved groundless, for the prodigies of that age are all mature men and women now, on the whole quite a distinguished group.

Periodic checks on the incidence of mortality, ill health, insanity and alcoholism have shown that the majority are still well adjusted socially and that the delinquency rate is much lower than for the general population.

Of the group 90 per cent entered college and 70 per cent graduated, 30 per cent of the graduates won honors and about two-thirds remained to take graduate work.

In achievements, the records of 800 men in the group showed that they have published sixty-seven books, written more than 1,400 scientific, technical and professional articles and hundreds of short stories, novelettes and miscellaneous articles. The group rate high professionally, many of them in sciences.

British In Lead In Color TV

LONDON (Reuters) — British scientists have perfected a TV camera aimed at getting color television programs started with a minimum of dislocation of present services.

The camera transmits pictures that can be received both in color and by ordinary black-and-white receivers. Observers who saw its first demonstration by Marconi's Wireless Telegraph Company said its color reproduction was better than that of any similar equipment in the United States.

The process is a closely-guarded secret.

Officials of the British Broadcasting Corporation said British televiewers should be able to see their first color programs in three or four years. The new camera would save Britain's 3,500,000 set owners from throwing black-and-white receivers onto the rubbish heap.

The success of the British designers lies in compressing the color TV signals into a band only a little bit larger in the ether than the present black-and-white signal.

So far no plans have been made to licence color TV in Britain, although it has been licensed in the United States since last December.

Urges Industry Discharge Obligations To Community

HALIFAX (CP)—Canada's phenomenal industrial progress will continue if industry discharges its obligations to the community, J.C. Whitelaw, general manager of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, said today.

Bigness produces responsibilities he said in an address prepared for delivery to CMA's Maritime division, his first major speech since he was appointed general manager last December, and he outlined eight of them.

One was to make a profit, without which the others couldn't be carried out. "If a manufacturer doesn't earn a profit, he won't be in business long, and a dead or dying business is no asset to any community."

The second responsibility was to grow—a growing industry had the same effect on a community as tossing a pebble into a pond.

CREATES NEEDS

"A growing company provides more jobs and bigger payrolls. A growing, prosperous community attracts more industries to it; the need arises for more schools, churches, public utilities, parks, libraries, theatres, and maintain good employee relations and fourth was to foster an awareness and appreciation of local industry.

Fifth was to sell the merits of the competitive enterprise system, for "far too many people subscribe to the theories of Karl Marx and the supposed utopian bliss of the Socialist state."

Responsibility six was to be a real part of the community, not only of its industrial life, but in all endeavors for civic and cultural betterment.

Responsibility seven was an active interest in education, and eight was to be a good neighbor and friend, which industry would automatically be if it met the other seven requirements.

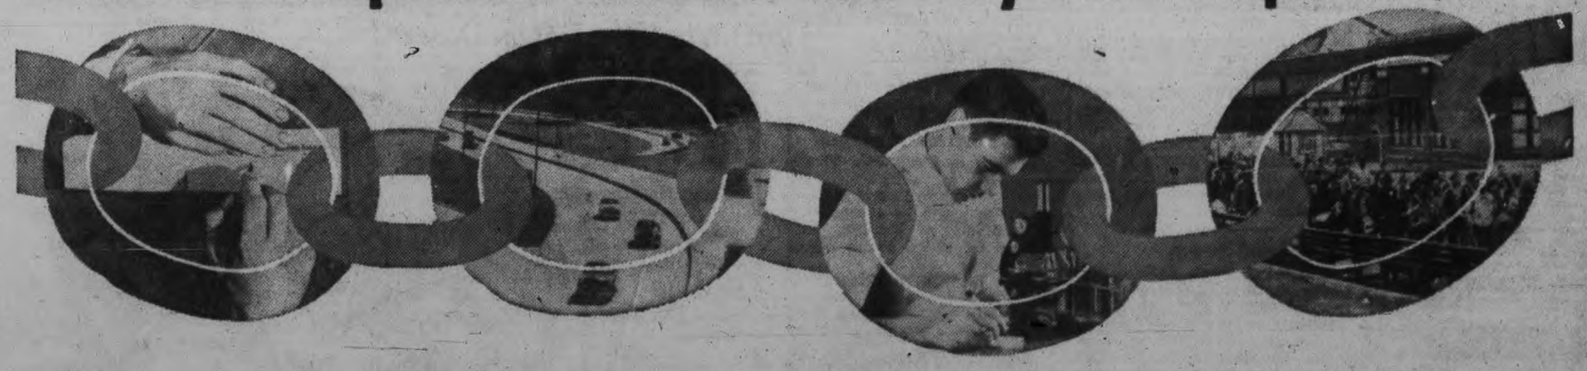
A chain of important benefits YOU may have helped create!



If you are paying premiums on life insurance, chances are you think this money works only for your family, and yourself. But, while it does provide security for your future, it also has far-reaching effects on your fellow-citizens.

Part of this same money invested in sound securities, helps to build new homes, schools, hospitals, roads, bridges, power plants and other useful developments. And this in turn works to build better communities from coast to coast. What's more . . .

Other life insurance dollars are contributed to vital medical research projects. In this way, you may be sharing in science's war against cancer, polio, heart disease and other enemies of good health and long life. Some day, too, you may benefit by the results of this work. But that's not all . . .

You may also have helped to create jobs by means of your life insurance payments . . . because some of those dollars were probably invested in ways that enabled industries to expand and employ more workers. In fact, one of those workers might be you!

In all these important ways, millions of life insurance policyholders are working to make Canada a better land to live in!

P.S. FROM YOUR LIFE INSURANCE MAN
"Invested life insurance dollars earn interest that makes it possible for you and your family to enjoy the benefits of life insurance at such low cost. If you have any questions about how to make life insurance fit your own special needs, give me a call. I'll be glad to help you!"

Petes Lose Opener To Hoskings In Sunday Contest

Failing to come through on clutch clouting in Toronto yesterday, the Petes dropped a 7-3 decision to Hoskings Oil Burners to open the VOBL schedule for the Peterborough squad. Hoskings had lost their opener the previous day to Oshawa, while Oakville were trimming Dependable Caterers, the other Toronto entry in the six-club circuit.

About 200 Sunday fans saw a tidy tilt most of the way, a 4-2 game until the seventh, pretty much of a typical early-season struggle with good and bad ball displayed by the rival squads. Speedballer Bill Fullerton of Hoskings limited the locals to two hits and fanned eight, but he was wild to issue 14 walks in the nine frames. Jerry Frizzelle, on the Petes' slab, twirled steady ball to allow nine hits and six walks, fanning five. His support wasn't too good at times, as he was nicked for only two earned runs.

HOW IT WENT

Edger got on on an error in the third, moved up on two outs and scored on Lowrey's single. Redmond walked in the sixth, stole second, took third on a miscue and scored on a double steal with Foley. Their last run came in the eighth when Foley and Ferguson walked, the former taking third and then home on two outs.

Fullerton homered off Lowrey's glove into the stand in the third for Hoskings. They got three in the fourth on a walk to Stuart, triples by Mighton and Gleed, plus an error on Fullerton's roller. Two more tallied in the seventh on a walk to Spotton and a single by Mighton which went through Lowrey in centre to let both cross the platter. In the eighth, Gleed beat out a bunt and took second on a bad peg, scoring on a two-bagger by Fullerton, who led the hitters with two for three. Gleed and Clark each had two for four, while Petes' hitters were Lowrey and Garvey, the latter with one for two. Kearns and Garvey pulled the only double-play. The box score:

Penticton Wins Allan Cup

PENTICTON, B.C. (CP)—There was dancing in the streets until dawn here Sunday, as the whole city turned out to whoop it up over Penticton V's amazing Allan Cup victory.

The come-from-behind V's took the measure of the dogged Sudbury Wolves 3-2 Saturday night in the seventh and deciding game, to bring the Canadian senior amateur hockey championship to British Columbia for the first time since 1938.

It was a fitting climax to one of the most exciting Allan Cup finals on record.

Sudbury appeared to have the battered trophy in the bag after [illegible] the first four games, the fourth one by a convincing 8-2 margin.

COULDN'T BE STOPPED

But the V's were not to be stopped. In true storybook fashion, they roared back with three straight wins, all of them thrillers.

They rewrote the script slightly Saturday, taking a 3-0 lead and then hanging on grimly as Sudbury stormed back.

Playing-coach Grant Warwick once again was the sparkplug as he fired the winning goal in the second period. Jim Fairburn and Jack McDonald were the other Penticton marksmen, and defenceman Yogi Kraiger and Tatter McClellan scored for Sudbury.

FIRST-PERIOD LEAD

V's led 1-0 at the end of the first period on Fairburn's tally at 15:12. Grant Warwick and rear guard Kevin (Crusher) Conway drew the assists.

Each team scored twice in the second period. V's got both their goals in the first seven minutes and appeared well on the way to victory.

A cross-checking penalty to Penticton's Doug Kilburn at 16:32 set the stage for Wolves comeback. The easterners ganged to the attack and Kraiger connected first at 17:01. McClellan's goal came just 20 seconds later.

Great goal-tending by Ivan McLelland, who performed near miracles for V's all through the playoffs, was the key to the scoreless third period.

TeePees Win Memorial Cup; Edge Kings

By JIM PEACOCK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)The east's well sharpened hat pin has burst western Canada's Memorial Cup bubble for the sixth straight time—and this year the bubble popped with a louder "bang" than usual.

St. Catharines TeePees, carried to the limit by eastern opposition from the start of eastern playoffs, whipped the previously-almost invincible Edmonton Oil Kings 6-2 Sunday to win the best-of-seven Canadian junior hockey final 4-0, with one game tied.

The Kings, touted as one of the strongest western contingents to seek the big silver bowl, had come to the east with a record of 60 wins in 65 league, playoff and exhibition games for the season. The Teeps, meanwhile, had been extended to eight games in a best-of-seven league semi-final, to seven games in a similar league final and to six games in the eastern series against Quebec.

TEEPEES UNIMPRESSED

But the TeePees were unimpressed by the Oil King record, and promptly set the Edmontons back 8-2 in the series opener a week ago, and 5-3 and 4-1 in the second and third games.

Kings came up with a surprising reversal Saturday when they held St. Catharines to a 3-3 overtime tie in the fourth game.

Sunday told the story. TeePees scored two goals in 28 seconds of the opening whistle, both by their No. 1 front-line ace Brian Cullen, who played his last junior hockey game in leading TeePees to victory, and Oil Kings were through.

The 20-year-old Brian, whose 19-year-old brother Barry plays on the same line, bowed out of junior competition with a flurry. He scored twice and assisted on two more as TeePees sewed up the first Memorial Cup for St. Catharines in 12 years of trying.

Brian accepted the cup after the victory. Jack Roxbrough, past president of the Ontario Hockey Association, in which TeePees play made the presentation.

TIRED BUT HAPPY

"We know you, the fans, are tired. The boys are tired and I'm tired," coach Rudy Pilous said after the more-than-eight-month season had ended. "But we're mighty happy."

Hank Ciesla, Hugh Barlow, Barry Cullen and Wimpy Roberts added the other St. Catharines goals and Oil Kings could do no better than cut the count to 3-1 in the first and 5-2 in the third on goals by Norm Ullman and Johnny Bucyk.

Saturday it was a different story as the Kings twice took the lead and then came back from behind to hold the powerful, opportunist TeePees to a draw.

Ray Kinasewich and John Bucyk gave Kings 1-0 and 2-1 leads Saturday night and Chuck Holmes' blazing shot from a TeePee-zone face-off tied it up. Hughie Barlow scored twice and Cec Hoekstra once to save the TeePees from defeat.

Crown 10 New Champions In Canadian Boxing Finals

By KEN ROMAIN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—It was off with the old and on with the new as Canadian amateur boxing crowned 10 new champions Saturday in the flailing finale to the Canadian British Empire Games boxing championships.

Three titles changed hands in the final round of the three-day trials that had brought together 78 of the top amateur boxers of the country. Three other titles were lost during the elimination rounds, two were not defended, and two were vacant as title holders moved into a heavier weight division.

Gerry Buchanan, 185, last year's light heavyweight champ of Montreal, who gave away 30 pounds to defending champion Jim Saunders, took the heavyweight crown with a split decision.

The 18-year-old Montreal fighter fought his way out of trouble in the second round of the three-round matches and staggered Saunders with stinging blows in the third.

WILL REPRESENT CANADA

The winners along with 10 alternates will represent Canada at the British Empire Games in Vancouver. They will be coached by Gordon Mackie of Winnipeg and managed by Major Frank Alden of Hamilton.

Mackie said he was much impressed with the ability of the fighters and predicted that Canada should take one or two titles at the games this summer. The last time Canada won a games title was in 1938.

Gerry Boucher of the RCAF in Vancouver took a split decision for the flyweight crown over defending champion Pat Supple of Montreal that brought the disapproval of the crowd. And they roared more disapproval when the referee stopped the match between Bud Palmer of Champion, Alta., and Vancouver's Bud Pearson.

Palmer took the featherweight title with a technical knockout at 2:05 of the second round when he cut Pearson above the eye.

In the bantamweight class, Toronto's Benny d'Amico scored a unanimous decision over Jim Hurley of Brantford for the title. However, d'Amico, who arrived in Canada from Italy 2½ years ago, will have to prove by May 31 his eligibility to become a Canadian citizen before he can compete in the games. If he cannot, said Dennis White, chairman of the boxing section of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada, he will be replaced by Hurley.

UNANIMOUS DECISION

Clayton Kenny, a stand - up fighter from Ottawa, took a unanimous decision over Ed Beattie of Hamilton for the lightweight crown. Montreal's Mickey Bergin became light welter champ with a decision over Jack Barclay of Vancouver.

Sonny Forbes of Toronto gained a split decision over Norm Jorgenson of Vancouver for the welterweight title and Wilf Greaves of Edmonton outpointed Steve Phare of Haney, B.C., for the light middleweight crown.

Marcel Piau of Montreal defeated defending champion Trent Ketchison of the RCN, Victoria, for the middleweight title with a technical knockout in the first round. And Kitchener's Norm Misselbrook scored a unanimous decision over Regina's Lee Donison for light heavyweight laurels.

Merchants Fall To The UEW In Soccer Fray

The strong Peterborough UEW soccer team blanked the local Merchants 7-0 on Saturday at King Edward Park in an Eastern Soccer League fixture, while the Canadian Scots were losing away to Batawa on the Belleville pitch by a 5-1 count in league play.

After two minutes of action in the game here, Hoyle scored but was ruled offside. In the next attack, Campbell counted with a hard shot just inside the upright. Merchants' outside right almost tallied with a good cross shot. Payne got one but had handled the ball Hoyle came through again on a neat pass from Payne. The UE defence was well on top with Buchan especially strong.

ADDED IT UP

From a well-placed free kick, taken by Strong, Dunn scored No. 3 and Biddle added one on a pass from Holt. Offside left Holroyd got one with a neat direct from a corner kick. The half ended with a 5-0 tally for UE.

In the second half, UE proved better and Hoyle counted No. 6 after smart play by Biddle. Merchants tried hard to notch one and came close when Jones had to dive across the goal to hold the ball out. Hoyle notched one more on Strong's pass. Merchants' goalkeeper played a fine game and kept the score down, as UE were better all the way.

Grove School Gets Win Over "B" Club

Grove School defeated Peterborough-Whitaker "B" cricket club by 69-37 in a match played Saturday in Lakefield. The "B" team starts its Toronto and District League schedule next Saturday against West Indians in Toronto.

[illegible] batted five wickets falling against steady bowling by Dyer and Illingworth for six runs, but due to an excellent batting display by Harris, Grove had a total of 69, Harris making 46, not out. Earl Sande rode William Woodward's great three-year-old Gallant Fox to victory in the Kentucky Derby 24 years ago today. Gallant Fox went on to win the triple crown of the American turf—the Kentucky Derby, Preakness and Belmont Stakes — duplicating the feat of Sir Barton for J. K. L. Ross of Montreal in 1919. Later triple crown winners were Omaha, War Admiral, Whirlaway, Count Fleet, Assault and Citation.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

Unable to cash in on a flock of free tickets yester aft in Toronto's Millen Stadium along the Danforth, the Petes' ballsters lost their 7-3 opener to Hoskings Oil Burners, last year's Viaduct Loop champs The Burners kept their top twirler for the Petes in this VOBL clash and he burned the third strike by eight batters whilst holding Joe Lowery's lads to just two singles. However, he had trouble finding the plate in four or five frames and issued no less than 14 walks. On the other hand, Jerry Frizzelle just passed six and whiffed five, while being nicked for nine hits. A creditable showing in his first senior start, because his support was wobbly at several crucial spots. On earned runs it should have been a honey of a pitching duel ending in a 2-1 score for the Oilers.

Playing manager Joe Lowrey rarely boots one in the outfield, yet he had a shaky afternoon in the opener to kick two and steer a long fly into the stands for a homer. Ed Redmond had trouble once figuring the carom of a liner into left off the wall and it came up a triple. Jerry had a miscue and dependable Bill Huntley had a bad peg. So it went—tough breaks by players who will go game after game without a slip. They also didn't hit with ducks on the pond, and the puddle was inhabited frequently with those free tickets. But they feel they can beat Hoskings regularly when they get rolling, and we're not unduly worried about either of the Toronto teams. Oshawa can be tough, and maybe Oakville, as well. Belleville is an unknown quantity at the moment.

Ex-Juniors Go Good

On the brighter side of the ledger, the junior players performed well in their first start in senior ranks. Clare Ferguson looked good on third and Larry Foley in the garden. Gary Kearns, though caught off second once, was sharp at short, he and Freddy Garvey combining for the only twin killing of the tilt. Jack Donlevy and Bill Huntley split receiving duties in capable fashion in a well-handled game. Bill Edger handled nine chances flawlessly at first. Frizzelle, as we said, will do okay with some hitting and fielding support—and we look for lots of that as the team gets going. They'll drill hard all this week for their home opener against Belleville on the May 24 holiday next Monday aft in Riverside Park.
